these preferences in the British market, it would be harmful. All down the record Canada got the worst of the bargain in trade treaties with United tSates.

More Preferences to U. S.

"Apparently we are on the verge of making another treaty with the United States which will probably give them greater preferences at a time we are buying from them 50 per cent. more than we sell to them.

"There seems to be no finality to a trade treaty nor to our dealings with United States.

Moderate protection was the Conservative tariff policy. Tariffs thai raised prices too greatly were no justified. The primary purpose of a tariff was to hold the market for the domestic producer. A secondary one was to give Canada a weapon in international trade bargaining.

"A third principle of Conservattive tariff policy is that there shall be no exploitation of consumers through tariffs," said Dr. Manion.

Canada should not become a suburb of the United States, he said in urging retention of distinctively Canadian and British customs and foods as an attraction for tourists. The U. S. tourist wants to see and tase in Canada wheat he can't see or taste at home.

A Trio That Must Go.

Unemployment, lack of opportunity for youth, fear of insecurity in old age were the trinity of abuses that marred our democratic and capitalistic system. They must be ended. Their existence led to the acceptance of dictatorships and the setting up of third parties.

Third parties in Canada's history had a record of impotence. They did no particular good or evil. The Conservative party was prepared to go forward to the needed reforms.

"I am not out to make the rich richer or the poor poorer but to make the great body of our people better off."

National planning, as has been undertaken by Great Britain, was needed in Canada.

Relief Figures Drop 44 p.c.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 22.—(CP). — Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Labor Minister, said yesterday reduction in unemployment was "unmistakable evidence of the recuperative powers of Canadian economy."

Mr. Rogers, in his address to a luncheon meeting of Vancouver Board of Trade, said at the end of August this year the number of employables receiving unemployment relief had decreased 44 per cent from the figure of 206,000 in September, 1936.

There was a reduction of 33 per cent in the number of unemployables and their dependents receiving assistance.

"We have held the gain we made from 1936 to 1937," he said. In Great Britain, despite the heavy re-armament program, the number of unemployed increased last year by 500,000, and in the United States, particularly since the recession, the increase was estimated at 2,000,000.

Discussing the problem of transient unemployed, many of whom come to British Columbia to spend the winter months in the relatively mild Pacific Coast climate. Mr. Rogers said:

"Our policies should not encourage transiency — if possible they should discourage it — and they should control it to an extent where no single province will receive more than its proportion of the movement in search of relief."

Czech Areas Are Back in the News

WHERE MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED

In the face of Hungarian mobilization which followed the territorial dispute with the Czech government, the Slovak government declared martial law in 17 districts close to the Hungarian frontier. The affected area, shown on the map, runs from Bratislava to Kosice. When the Czech and Hungarian delegations resume negotiations on the Hungarian demands, it is believed the Czechs will retain the cities of Bratislava, Nitra, Kosice and Uzhorod.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married ten years and have a small family. Up until the last year I have managed to keep my husband and family together, and I have been a good mother, wife and housekeeper. But my husband announces now that he is tired of domesticity; that he finds a wife and children boresome and cannot tolerate us any longer. He is very anxious for me to take the children and go away for a while, as he says he needs a rest from the family. I was a very successful business girl before I was married and am offered a marvelous opportunity to go back into the business world, but I hesitate because I am afraid I would have to neglect my children. Do you advise me to go away for a while? —JEAN.

Answer: I certainly do. Evidently your husband is fed up on domesticity and for the time being, at least, you and the children are just poison to him. Of course, he is altogether in the wrong, but you can't argue with a mental state like that. You just have to meet it with common sense.

So the thing for you to do is to pack up and get off just as soon as you possibly can, and leave him to the freedom he so ardently craves. The chances are that when he gets the thing he desires so much he will find that he doesn't want it after all. Just now he growls over the good food you cook for him. When you have beef he wonders why you didn't have mutton, and when you have mutton he demands to know if they have quit killing beeves in the slaughter house. Let him try cooking his own breakfast and eating around the cafeterias and restaurants for a change.

Just now you and the children bore him to tears and get on his nerves. Let him find out how lonely a house can be without a woman or a child in it, nobody with whom to exchange a word.

Just now he thinks it would be the most delightful thing in the world to be able to come and go as he pleases, and stay out with the boys all night without any one lying awake listening for his key in the lock. Let him try sitting up in a few all-night sessions at poker.

Believe me, he will come out of the experience a wiser man, for whatever else matrimony does to a man, it unfits him for the single life. That is why widowers remarry so soon. They can't stand the freedom they have perhaps longed for. Your husband will miss the good meals you have prepared for him, the comfortable home you have made for him, the responsibilities you have taken off him, the care you have taken of him.

About the time he gets so that he can read over a menu from top to bottom without finding one single thing on it that appeals to his appetite; when he goes back home at night to a house that is dusty and stuffy and cluttered up; when he finds out that he has forgotten to send out the laundry and hasn't a single clean collar; when he finds that all he has got out of running around with a wild crowd is a headache, a stack of I.O.U.'s and bills he has run up for things he couldn't afford, why, then, domesticity won't look so bad to him and he will begin to count the days until you and the children will come home.

At least that is the strong probability, and at any rate it is the one chance you have of getting him back. Try it, and when you go, don't ever write him a letter. Above all, don't suggest that he join you. Make him feel that you can perfectly well get along without him. If anything can rouse his interest in you and the children, that will. There is a lot of truth in the old adage that absence makes the heart grow fonder.

The real mission of vacations is not to give wives and children a change of air and climate. It is to give husbands and wives a change from each other and a chance to let the sore spots in their lives that have been made by the chafing of different personalities get healed.

If at the end of your experiment your husband is still bored with you and the children and still longs for freedom, you will be well advised to take the business opportunity that is offered you and become self-supporting, for it will only be a matter of time until a man whose obligations rest so heavily upon him will take some means of evading them.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a boy of 21, very much in love with a girl who has told me of an affair she has had with another boy, and says, "If you don't like the way I am you can look for some one else." All my life I have always looked forward to marrying a clean, innocent girl. Hasn't a man a right to expect such a wife? Does it really make any difference as to the type of girl she is or will be? Should I be doing right in giving her up? I am very miserable. —J. J. J.

Answer: I think you will be still more miserable if you marry a girl who does not come up to your ideal of womanhood, for always between you will be that stain on her character, and you will never wholly trust her. Sometimes the girl with a past has been the victim of ignorance or circumstances. Sometimes she has sinned in loving and trusting too much, and very often she is so remorseful for the wrong she has done and has such a horror of the pit into which she has fallen that she wipes out her offense with her tears.

The girl who has stumbled and fallen and who is truly repentant seldom repeats her offense, and if a man is big enough and loves her enough to really forgive her, he may take the risk of marrying her, for she nearly always makes him a true and faithful wife.

But when a girl considers that she has a right to stray down the primrose path whenever it looks alluring to her and a pleasing companion presents himself, and when she has no sense of wrongdoing or remorse, then the man who marries her may be absolutely certain that she will have no ideal of honor that will make her respect her marriage vows.

It is often asserted that the young men of to-day do not demand chastity of their wives. If this is true, it is a sad thing for humanity for it will reduce us to the level of the beast.

At any rate, a boy of 21 is too young to make a decision that will require him to lower all his standards and accept new ones that go against all of the traditions in which he was reared. It takes a lot of sophistication and cynicism to enable a man to shrug his shoulders over the thing his wife has done and that he suspects her of still doing.

Firemen Beat Stork

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 22—(AP). —The fire department beat the stork the other day. Clare Harvey, prospective father, had no telephone, and Mrs. Harvey needed a doctor immediately. Harvey turned in a fire alarm that brought a hook-and-ladder company which in turn sped his wife to the hospital. Mrs. Harvey and her infant son are reported "doing nicely."

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 22 (C.P.). — For the second successive week world wheat futures moved narrowly in featureless trading. Export business from principal export countries was disappointing, but at the same time selling on exchange thinned, principally due to unfavorable crop outlook in Australia.

Winnipeg wheat moved in line with Liverpool and United States markets to close the week on Friday ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher, October at 62⅛, November 62, December 61¼-⅜, and May 64⅝ cents.

While selling was restricted by the Australian reports bright wheat prospects in the Argentine stifled buying. Winnipeg moved in sympathy with United States markets which reflected possible governmental action to strengthen farm commodity prices. Need of moisture in the winter wheat states to replenish surface moisture reserves also was a factor at Chicago.

Canadian export sales were reported not more than 2,000,000 bushels, U. S. sales were small and Australian disposed of only a few small cargoes. Italy and Germany reportedly took more than 5,500,000 bushels of Persian wheat.

Forecast of small world wheat shipments this week gives some hope for improved overseas demand.

Toronto Raises $15,000 By Fining 5,000 Traffic Violators

Toronto, Oct. 22.

UPWARD of five thousand Toronto motorists have been summoned for traffic violations during the past ten days, it was revealed in a survey conducted yesterday. The majority of these drivers, however, elected to settle their cases out of court. And even the few who did go to court were in great majority unsuccessful in having their cases either withdrawn or dismissed.

Thousands of dollars has been added to the magistrates' office coffers as the result of this drive against unobservant motorists, and with the vast majority paying at least $3 the total amount of money paid in fines has neared the $15,000 mark.

The intersection of Bay and Harbord streets proved the main pitfall of many of the motorists, hundreds being fined for failing to observe the stop signs which make Bay a through street.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anæmic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system, strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE CONFLICT OF IDEAS. A NEW TEACHING.

St. Mark, 1:27 R.V.

The Carpenter of Nazareth, having decided upon the principles of His ministry during the forty days in the wilderness, starts preaching in the synagogues.

The synagogue was a Church school for the teaching of the children in the reading and study of the OLD TESTAMENT during the week. On the Sabbath it was the place of assembly for the people's worship. It was presided over by a layman called "The ruler of the synagogue." At the appointed time he would call upon some visiting Rabbi or prominent layman with the words:— "If thou hast any word of exhortation for the people, say on?" Acts 12:15. Thus Our Lord found a place prepared for Him.

The Gospel, God's News, according to St. Mark, was the earliest written and the shortest. Yet it is full of vivid pen pictures. Here is one. "A new teaching." It is an exclamation by some Jew to his friend as he passes out of the synagogue. You have done the same when a strange preacher has said something startling.

Our Lord's teaching was a new teaching. The clever minds who listened to Him, both scribes and pharisees, were quick to see what this new teaching meant. It was in direct opposition to theirs. It was revolutionary. It was, to use a modern term, RED. During the hundred years before Our Lord's ministry Jewish thought about God had hardened, solidified. They taught that Jehovah was the one, living God, but they separated Him from the people. He was the transcendent God, the God above everything, over-ruling all things. There was such a gulf between Him and the Jewish people that they never even pronounced His Name, but replacing it by the word Elohim in the reading of the Scriptures.

The Carpenter from Nazareth declares that Jehovah loves all men, no matter who they are. The Lord Jesus taught that the outcasts of society, the publicans and sinners, if they repented, would be received back into the Father's family. This was an unheard of teaching. Respectable, religious people of that day had no dealings whatever with the outcasts of society. Their teachers taught them they would be defiled, made unclean by such contact. God hated the outcasts and they must do likewise.

Can you afford to throw stones at these scribes and pharisisees? If an Indian, trained in a Mission school, dropped into your Church next Sunday morning for worship would you welcome him with the right hand of fellowship and brotherhood?

One day a rich publican, a taxgatherer, invites the Lord Jesus to dinner and includes His disciples. The disciples were plain Galileans, decent, respectable Jews, who had been trained in the strictest Church rules. When they followed the Lord into the house of the publican they were dismayed and upset. This was beyond them. They did not bargain to eat with publicans and sinners. They loved their Master and were drawn to Him but they were unhappy and uncomfortable at that table.

Can you see how quick the pharisees were to read their minds? "Why does your Master eat with publicans and sinners?" They had no answer. But the Master comes to their defence. "I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance". You only send for a doctor when you are sick. It is indeed a new teaching that God loves the sinner and the outcast.

Those old teachers refused the new teaching and killed the Teacher in the Name of God. Why? Because His idea of God clashed with theirs. They taught Jehovah loved the outcasts.

We are living in a marvellous age of advancement along every line of thought and action. You would not dream of using the old sickle to reap the fields. Your father passed on to you his idea of God. Have you advanced in your idea of God? Is your mental image of God greater than when you received it as a young man? Have you advanced in the knowledge of the truth? Is your mental image of God tied and bound in the grave clothes of your father's idea?

THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE.

Our Day Of Rest

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(International Uniform Lesson on the above topic is Exodus 20:8-11; Isiah 58: 13, 14; Luke 13: 10-17; Galatians 4: 8-11; Colossians 2: 16; Revelation 1:10, the Golden Text being Exodus 20: 8, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

LAST WEEK'S lesson was on the third commandment, which tells us to reverence our maker. Today's is on the fourth commandment, which commands us to keep one day for holy things and for rest. The word "Sabbath" is a Hebrew word which means "rest."

The story tells of Jesus teaching in the synagogue in Jerusalem. Among the worshipers was a poor woman who evidently suffered from a curvature of the spine. She was bent almost double. Possibly she had heard of the miracles Jesus performed and hoped He could help her. Maybe she merely went to attend the service. At any rate, Jesus saw her, saying, "Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity," and she was healed. Straightening up, the story says, "she glorified God."

Ruler Is Angry

There were no ministers as we know them in the synagogue; they were ruled by a board of men with a "ruler" over them. This man immediately became angry with Jesus, and so he turned to the people present and told them there were six days in which they should work, and healing should also be done in those six days, and not on the Sabbath.

But Jesus called that hypocritical and reminded them that they were allowed by their laws to care for their livestock, and why should they not help human beings that needed aid. Evidently most of those present in the synagogue agreed with Jesus, and were glad that the woman had been healed.

The Bible says that those whom Jesus rebuked were ashamed, while the others "rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by Him."

One Rest Day Needed

Even in those faraway days when the Hebrews wandered in the wilderness, looking for the home Moses had told them should be theirs, they found that they needed one day of rest, and so did their beasts. So they set this day aside and made very strict rules that no man should work on the Sabbath. The law even said that if a man was found to have broken this law he should be put to death. Only the most necessary tasks should be done.

In our day we often have not only one day of rest, but two, as people work only five days. One day for fun and one day to go to church and to improve curselves. It is good for us to make Sunday a "different" day. To wear better clothes, to do different things, and to try to make it the happiest day in he whole week.

Democratic Whip Bows To Prelate

Postmaster-General of the U.S., James A. Farley, "whip" of the Democratic party, is shown kneeling and kissing the ring of Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel during the opening of the 8th National Eucharistic Congress at New Orleans. Almost 50,000 devout Catholics jammed the great outdoor cathedral in city park to hear a radio address from Rome by Pope Pius XI., and receive his apostolic benediction. In his message, the Pope blamed the world's ills on "men who reject and spurn the precepts of the gospel."

A National Message

(By the late Rev. W. Pascoe, Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.)

So the static resistance operated against the Puritan revival, but helped it on. Wesley came on the scene with his associates. In Oxford they were dubbed Methodists, because they had method in their study and relicion.

The static resistance to anything new in doctrine or method operated nomally. Wesley was no nonconformist; he was a clergyman of the Church of England until his death But his doctrine, although that of the Articles of the Church, seemed strange to his generation, and his methods irregular. Therefore, the Church closed its doors to him and his following.

It is now admitted that the preaching of Wesley and his associates so established the thinking of Britain as to carry it unscathed through the period of the French Revolution, which then shook all Europe and the world.

Yet the Church excluded the revival forces and forced them to organize themselves into a denomination: even a whole series of denominations outside the Church communion. To-day the Archbishops have honored the platform of the Methodist Church with their presence; and the resistance is being overcome.

Later, General Booth took the field, and his followers had to endure much persecution. Many of them were imprisoned for preaching in the streets. The static opposition was operative as usual. But the opposition has been overcome in large measure, and the value of their great revival work is now recognized.

The British-Israel movement came into existence. It has to meet exactly the same static opposition from the established bodies. This is not at all surprising. It would be surprising and out of harmony with this law of nature if it were otherwise. Such opposition even from the highest quarters has no other significance than that the movement seems to be encroaching on the claimed monopoly of instruction.

Therefore, wo do not take the matter to heart. We know exactly what to expect; for the law of averages comes into play; and a graph might be made of the opposition which must be met, and of how it can be overcome, and of how it may be expected to pass away, as in the other instances.

Ton Apple Pie

WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 22.—(AP)—It took a tractor to pull this apple pie from the oven. The pie, weighing 2,300 pounds and 10 feet in diameter, was made from a ton of apples, 100 pounds of flour and 10-pounds of butter. Spectators at a national apple week festival ate it yesterday

To Continue Series On The Study Book

Rev. E. W. Young will continue his addresses on The United Church Study Book "The World in Canada" on next Sunday morning. This book contains a message to the congregations, and it will be the aim of the speaker to interpret that message.

The healing ministry of the church is exercised in its hospitals in the isolated parts of the Dominion In these hospitals skilled doctors and nurses give their services to the Indians, mining men, lumber men, and detached families in the northern regions of this land.

Heroic stories are told of self-sacrifice, and adventure, which are bound to capture the imagination of youth.

The chapter on learning to live together is worthy of attention. The author is the superintendent of The All Peoples Mission in Toronto, and knows the prejudices of the European peoples better than most folk in Canada. He is convinced that there is a place for national organizations, without any disloyalty to this new country. He deals with the evils of nationalism with firmness and shows that it often breeds contempt for other peoples. There are he says various influences abroad to teach people how to live together, amongst these the foremost are the school and the church.

He is quite optimistic about the possibility of the citizens of this Dominion learning the art of living together, despite the acute divisions that appear on the surface of Canadian life. In fact he declares that it is being done in the Houses of Friendship which the church has instituted in the great centres where new Canadians are numerous. He leaves the impression in the minds that the approach of Jesus Christ is the only way to solve the problems of estrangement. The church in Canada is facing the same problems as were faced by the early church in the days of the New Testament.

Jubilee Program Is Presented To W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COTTESLOE, Oct. 22—The W.M.S. held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Joseph Gallagher on Wednesday afternoon. The roll call was answered by ten ladies After a short business session the Honan Golden Jubilee program was given by Mrs. Harry Patterson, Mrs. L. Freeburn and Mrs. E. McDonald. Mrs. J. Kidd gave a reading from "Through Missionary Windows," and questions from the blue book were answered by Mrs. G. H. Barr and Mrs. Johnson Blakely.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher rendered a solo, "God's Tomorrow." The hostess served a dainty lunch at the close of the meeting. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. L. Freeburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webster spent a few days with friends at Picton. Mrs. J. Ditcham accompanied them to Belleville where she visited her sister, Mrs. Simons.

Misses Rena and Mary Toms vistied friends in Peterborough on Monday.

Cathedral Musings

To-day, the world needs men of the single vision. Men who, setting their hearts towards the right, will steadfastly pursue their course irrespective of the clamor of the ignorant. Men who will not let their inner light grow dim, or allow themselves to be blinded by the force of outer circumstance. Men who will not keep silent for fear of offending those others who, for reasons of expediency, seek to stifle truth. Men who, in their spiritual aims, hunger and thirst after truth itself, and who are not hampered and bound by the ties of political parties, or creeds, but who unselfishly seek the wellbeing of all. We need such men and many of them, but they are hard to find, for there are comparatively few who are ready to sacrifice all other considerations and follow God. These are the kind of men that Jesus sought, men of the single vision. It is a sad commentary o nour self-righteousness when we find our ethics so divorced from the fabric of our civilization, so out of contact with the everyday life of the everyday man, that man to-day is still living in fear, still walking in the shadow of death. But how can it be otherwise when, with but few exceptions, from the highest to the lowest, self interest is the rule of life and God's interest is disregarded. Is it not possible to return to the fundamental truths of our being, to regard as immaterial, which it is, the seeming complexity of modern life and to return to that simplicity of outlook and of mind that alone makes for the Peace of God? Can we not realize that human misery is man's mistake, not God's? It is all so simple, for we need not to love God less, but to love man more. Our great mistake is in not loving, for as it is written, how can we love God Whom we have not seen, if we love not our brother whom we have seen? Can any thinking man believe that God is in any way gratified by the adoration of His worshippers while those same worshippers, like the Levite, ignore the hunger, misery, and suffering of their brothers? Are we not like Saul, tacitly acquiescing in the martyrdom of man? Where then is our righteousness?

Our Day of Rest — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Ex. 20:8:11; Isaiah 58:13-14; Luke 13:10-17.

One Sabbath when Jesus was teaching in a synagogue, he saw a crippled woman. He called her to him, placed his hands upon her and healed her.

This made the rulers of the synagogue angry. They said Christ had six days in which to perform miracles and he should not heal on the Sabbath.

But Christ rebuked them. He said it was no more wrong for him to help this woman than for them to water their cattle on Sabbath.

Then the rulers were ashamed, but all the people were glad and rejoiced at the glorious things that were done by Christ. (GOLDEN TEXT—Exodus 20:8.)

Does Not Favor the Visit

The Daily Pantagraph, published at Bloomington, Ill., is afraid that the rumored visit of the King and Queen to Washington is something which will actually come to pass. In this paper we read:

"Whoever told the king of the British empire that it would be a fine thing for him to make a state visit to the United States was giving his majesty the wrong dope. This sort of thing can give rise to more trouble than it can assuage. The trouble may not be all for the king, for whom we are not greatly concerned, but the reaction to the ceremony on the part of the American people is the thing which should be well considered.

"With the many sharp divisions among Americans on political and economic lines already brewing trouble, we need no royal pageant in and out of the White House for a week to set the tongue wagging....The king's visit may be short and very enjoyable, but it may take a long time to live it down."

The Examiner does not publish the article in full, but that is the gist of it, and after reading it over a couple of times we take it the editor does not wish the king to visit Washington, but he does not say why. Admittedly he uses a number of words but they mean little indeed without the services of an interpreter.

Not many weeks ago President Roosevelt came over to Canada, and he is not the first president to have crossed the border. The reaction (a poor word at best but the editor in Bloomington used it) of the press and people in this country was simply that we were delighted to have President Roosevelt present with us. If he desires to come again we will feel much the same about it.

Whether there are many people in United States who will not welcome their Majesties we do not know, but of one thing we are quite certain. Just this — they have no desire to impose their presence where it will not be cordially welcomed, nor would they expect the White House to be turned into a place where a royal pageant would be enacted.

Bring Them to Court

In two days Toronto traffic court handled 1,760 cases. And that in itself indicates two things: (1) that people were breaking the traffic laws at a merry rate, and (2) the officers were checking up on them and taking them to court.

There was a letter forwarded to the Examiner to-day and it had to do with traffic. From it we quote:

"I was driving last evening along Gilmour. As I came near the corner of Park street a car passed me and went right on without making a stop. At the corner of Park and Hunter where cars are supposed to stop there was another car which paid no attention to the sign. At the corner of Brock and Aylmer I saw another car cross and there was no stop made. Now it is not my business to spy on cars, but if I could find three in so short a time without looking for them then traffic laws in this city are not being observed. They are being ignored."

We believe there is truth in that letter, and we believe if there is a greater number of such drivers landing in court, there would be better driving and a more strict observance of the traffic laws. If drivers are made aware that the police are after offenders in all parts of the city they are going to observe the rules, and if they feel they can get away with it they are going to break them. That is human nature.

A Land of Substitutes

German spokesmen make much of the claim that they have an ample supply of food, and recently the statement was made it would not be long before the people could have bread made from wheat flour. A nation finds it difficult to disguise the fact that it has to use substitutes for standard articles of food because tourists from the outside world quickly detect the difference and they carry the news out of the country with them.

It seems open to question whether this substitute business is as good as the German authorities would have people believe. The Examiner is informed by several people who spent many weeks in Germany this year that the rule of substitute is found frequently. Young Germans touring the country on bicycles and staying at hostels would have with them large cucumbers. With that they would secure some bread which was made largely from potato flour. That is what they were eating. It was noticed that when they had done 40 miles or so on their wheels they considered they had gone far enough for a day, while young fellows from England and Scotland would often enough put on 100 miles before deciding to turn in. When the German youths came to a hill we were informed that almost without exception they got off their wheels and walked up, while the lads from England and Scotland would hump and ride up the hill. It was evident enough that the German young chap did not have the stamina of the youth from England or Scotland. To what extent that would affect the adult population we have no way of knowing, but it does appear that the growing young folk are feeling the effect of a shortage of staple foods at a time of life when they should have plenty of them. It is not possible to thrive indefinitely on a diet of patriotism and substitutes for good substantial food, not even in Germany.

They'll Have to Plan

It does beat all the chances some young people are willing to take now in order to get married and start a home of their own. There is something in it which draws deeply upon the admiration of the wholesome people of any community. These young folk just figure we suppose that they will get along some how or other and things will come out all right for them in the end.

Take the case of Lucille Evelina du Pont, who married Robert Flint the other day at Wilmington, Del. Robert is a chemist who works in the du Pont factory, and Lucille is the daughter of one of the chief owners of the place. On her wedding day father handed the daughter a check for a mere million dollars.

And they are going to start housekeeping and will probably have nothing else to depend on but Robert's savings and salary. They'll have to do a good deal of planning, probably starting with furnishings for the kitchen, a bedroom, the dining-room and a little furniture for the living-room. And after that as they are able they may find continued joy in adding a few sticks of furniture here and there as they find they need them. However, now that they have made the break we wish them well. But they are going to have some careful planning to do in order to get settled with only a million dollars for a starter.

A Long Time Ago

Time was when there must have been a form of life in our country the size of which we can hardly appreciate. When James Watson was plowing in a drained bog on his farm in Middlesex he turned over a set of teeth. And they were great teeth. Each tooth in the set weighed about four and a-half pounds, and the grinding surface was seven and a-half inches by four inches, and seven and a-half inches is just about the width of three ordinary newspaper columns.

A scientist who looked at the teeth said they belonged to a mastodon, and at that time there would also have been lizards in the same district with feet as large as an ordinary table. One rather unusual thing is that when remains of a mastodon are found such as the farmer unearthed in Middlesex County, the location is usually the same—in a bog. That has held true in Egypt, Europe, North America and Asia, and is taken to indicate that the giant animal, larger than the elephant, lived in places where there was rich growth in vegetation and his food would be the bark and limbs of coniferous trees.

It is probably just as well that Mr. Watson when following the peaceful occupation of plowing in a newly-cleared bit of bog land was doing so at a time long following the period when the giant with the four and a-half pound teeth would be looking about for the day's fodder.

As It Was on the Tenth

There was a farmer in a hardware store a few days ago and he had a little slip of paper in his pocket from which he was ordering a few lengths of stove pipe and a couple of elbows; he was also inclined toward the belief he better have a bit of new wire just to make sure. He also recalled that he had to hurry along because the job had to be done that "very evening." Of course the people in the store knew well enough what the job was—moving the range from the summer shed back into the kitchen.

That farmer was moving around just about the same as they used to on the Tenth Concession a good many years ago. He had put off moving that stove just as long as he could and farmers do not change much that way. In a number of farm houses there are central heating plants now—furnaces—but of course that would make no difference when it came to putting the range out for the summer and in for the winter. That is as it was on Lot 4, Concession Ten. The kitchen range had to come in and the heater had to go up in the parlor.

Grandfather needed a deal of urging before he would make a move about getting the range in from the summer kitchen. If there was going to be anything wrong with him it was sure to come to the surface just about then. Or if the school trustees were going to have a meeting or if there was a session of the officers at the church down at the corner of the Tenth and the Broken Front Road, or if any of the neighbors were sick and needed visiting then grandfather developed a sudden desire to attend to all these matters. At other seasons of the year he preferred much to be at home in the evening. The only other time when he had a spell of being preoccupied would be in the spring of the year when it was about time to take the range out. Then he would be taken up with making studious survey of the brown spots which were showing in the winter wheat where it hadn't come through the snow and ice months too good. He would be so deeply steeped in thought as to whether he should put in some mixed grain on those spots that nothing else was allowed to interfere with his deep thinking. Certainly not the stove.

We never recollect of the kitchen range being brought in before it simply had to be attended to. The women folk could broach the subject gently or with more point, but grandfather was not easily disturbed. The meals were generally served in the kitchen and not until grandfather himself felt a little chilly through his grey flannel shirt would he admit the time had come to attend to the moving.

The hired man always got the worst of it because grandfather acted more as a supervisor of operations than an active participant. He seemed to conserve what strength he was going to expend for the raising of the range up the two steps from the summer shed to the kitchen. It was indeed a very great range. The men who had made it must have been collecting iron and steel for a long time before they secured a sufficiency to start on that stove. Never would grandfather have anything to do with stove pipes and elbows and wire. He could so tinker with a horse that he could disguise the heaves until he was ready for a trade; he could cure the little pigs when they had brown spots on their backs and he could use the handle of a pitchfork when a cow seemed inclined to choke on a piece of pumpkin, but he never would touch a stove pipe. But always after the range had been moved in it seemed that life was organized on a new basis, prepared for the days of winter. After that and before the ground started to freeze the kitchen was banked up outside. But the farmer who was buying his pipes and elbows in town the other day and who admitted he had to get home and attend to business was doing much the same as they did on the Tenth. Never was the range moved in until the situation started to become a trifle acute.

Wee Angus

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus didn't seem just right, when he sat down to eat last night, he picked at this and that; his bread he thought was rather old, potatoes seemed to be too cold, and meat was much too fat.

¶ He just sat there upon his seat, and said he didn't want to eat, the cake was rather tough; and when we weren't but half way through, Wee Angus' wish to eat just blew, he said he'd had enough.

¶ I couldn't understand the lad, and asked him was he feeling bad, or did he cough or wheeze; I thought perhaps that he'd took sick, I ought to move now pretty quick, to head off some disease.

¶ But after four Wee Angus said, he'd had brown sugar on some bread, Dan's mother had a treat; and when he finished up at Dan's, he really had no other plans, so he called in on Pete.

¶ They had some cookies and some cake, Pete's mother had begun to bake, some taffy spun like silk; We Angus said next place he'd go, he went to holler out at Joe, and got a glass of milk.

¶ When he got home at supper time, he wasn't feeling none too fine, not just like what he should; his appetite was rather thin, but when he told me where he'd been—well, then I understood.

We Owed Money For A Railway

SO MUCH is heard these days about the City Trust Commission that it should be interesting to learn a little about the establishment of the commission and about the act by which it was created.

The legislation may have been published years ago but the present generation has had little opportunity to study the act which incidentally came into force on May 18th, 1861 and was officially described as "an Act to consolidate the debt of the Town of Peterborough and to authorize the issue of debentures on the security of town property and for other purpses."

The first members of the Commission as set forth in the Act were Charles Bradfield, Samuel Dickson, James Stevenson, Edmund Chamberlen and William Hall.

And now for the Act itself:

"Whereas the Town of Peterborough has incurred debts and liabilities amounting in all to the sum of eighty-six thousand four hundred dollars on account of the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway, for the erection of a school house and for other local improvements in the said Town—and is desirous of incurring further liabilities, to the extent of eighteen thousand two hundred dollars, for the purpose of acquiring by purchase from the Crown, with a view to draining and reclaiming the same, certain lands south of Townsend street and east of Park street, in the said town for the erection of an engine house and lock-up and for the building of a new Town Hall; and whereas the corporation have petitioned to have all the said debts and liabilities consolidated, and that debentures may be issued by the said corporation upon the security of he Town property, in order to raise funds for the liquidation of the said liabilities: Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the consent and advice of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Canada enacts as follows:

1. The Town Hall, the Market Block, and the land south of Townsend street and east of Park street, with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be vested in five Commissioners, to be held in fee simple upon the Trust hereinafter declared and the said Trustees shall be called "The Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust."

Shall Hold Property

2. The said property shall be held by said Commissioners exclusively in trust, out of the rents, dues, revenues and profit thereof, to pay, in the first place, all reasonable expenses of managing the said Trust, also all the necessary moneys that may be required to keep the said properties in good order, usefulness and repair, and to insure the buildings against loss by fire, for such an amount as they, the said Commissioners, shall deem advisable; and secondly, to pay all interest moneys to become due on the debentures hereinafter mentioned; and thirdly, to establish a sinking fund for the payment of the principal debt.

3. It shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to raise by way of loan upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned from any person or persons, body or bodies incorporate, either in this province or in Great Britain or elsewhere, a sum of money not exceeding the sum of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars.

4. It shall be lawful for the Mayor and Town Council for the time being, to cause to be issued debentures under the seal of the said corporation, to be signed by the Mayor, countersigned by the Treasurer of the said Town, and the Secretary of the said Commissioners in such sums in sterling or current money, or part in one and part in the other, not exceeding in the whole the sum of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars as the Town Council shall from time to time direct and appoint; and the principal moneys and interest secured by the said Debentures shall be made payable either in this province, in Great Britain or elsewhere or part in one place and part in another, and at such times, as the said Council shall deem expedient; and further the said Debentures shall, on the face thereof respectively, express that they are secured on the property aforesaid. Provided always, that the said Council shall not issue any debentures for the erection of a new Town Hall until such time as a by-law providing for such erection shall have been passed by the said Council, having previously received the approval of the ratepayers of the said town in the manner provided for the creation of debts under the Upper Canada Municipal Corporation Act.

May Exchange Debenture

5. It shall be lawful for the said Commissioners either to exchange such debentures for outstanding Debentures, or to pay the same to contractors or others holding claims against the said Town, or to negotiate the same as aforesaid; and also to issue new Debentures if required from time to time, upon which to raise funds to retire those which shall be outstanding; provided that a larger amount than the said one hundred and twenty thousand dollars shall not at any time chargeable against the said Trust property.

Section 6 is important. It enacts in part as follows: It shall be lawful for the Commissioners, and they are hereby required, on or before the first day of July, in each and every year, to submit to the corporation of the said Town of Peterborough the amount required for the payment of interest due upon Debentures issued under this Act, together with one per cent for a sinking fund for the final payment, satisfaction and discharge thereof: and the Town Council shall thereupon impose a special rate equal to the amount so required by the Commissioners, over and above, and in addition to all other rates to be levied in such year, and the money so collected shall be paid over by the said Corporation to th said Commissioners on or before the fourteenth day of December in each year.

The following sections provide for the appointment by the council of new commissioners to fill any vacancy through death or otherwise that may ensue, and for debenture issued by the Commissioners to be chargeable against the inhabitants and ratepayers generally, and authorize the Trust to lease town property and collect the rents therefore.

Section 12 sets forth that the said Commissioners shall have annually on or before the first day of December, in each year, render an account to the Town Council of all moneys received and expended and also of all debentures issued during the year, as well as of all outstanding: and the books containing the transactions of the Commissioners shall be open for the inspection of the ratepayers of the said Town at all reasonable hours.

• Wages Higher; Steel Prices Lower

WAGE EARNERS in the steel industry are currently earning 33 percent more per hour than they did in the pre-depression years 1923 through 1926, but the composite price of finished steel as reported by trade papers is more than $1 per ton below the pre-depression average.

Between 1923 and 1929, wage-earning employees in the steel industry earned an average of 63.5 cents per hour, the peak coming in 1929 when hourly earnings averaged 65.4 cents.

By comparison, hourly earnings of steel wage earners in July 1939, the latest month for which data are available, averaged 84.8 cents an hour, 33 per cent more than the average for the seven years before the depression.

The composite price of finished steel in July of this year, as quoted by trade publications, was 2.30 cents per pound, or 2 per cent under the average price of 2.35 cents per pound reported for the 1923-1929 period.

The present level of steel prices is 15 per cent below 1923 when the composite price of finished steel reached a post-war high of 2.69 cents per pound, and is about one per cent below the composite price reported for 1926, a year sometimes referred to as a "normal" year for prices. Between 1929 and 1938, hourly wages increased 30 per cent, but steel prices rose only 4 per cent.

Change Since 1933

Since 1933, when both prices and wages were at the lowest levels of the depression, wages have increased more than 2½ times as much as prices.

Average hourly earnings of steel wage earners in July 1938 were 62 per cent above the 1933 average of 52.4 cents per hour, while the composite price of finished steel was only 24 per cent above the 1933 figure of 1.86 cents per pound.

In comparison with 1937 averages, the composite steel price in July of this year represented a decline of 7 per cent while average hourly wages were 4 per cent higher.

• 1760 Traffic Cases in Two Days

IN TORONTO, on Tuesday of this week, 920 drivers of motor vehicles appeared in traffic court—or settled out of court—to answer for their infractions of the traffic laws. The previous day the Toronto courts had 840 traffic cases. Can anyone doubt that the publicity given this massed attack on law-breaking drivers will make an impression on Toronto motorists?

More than 300 of the cases, notes the Ottawa Journal, were of drivers who failed to obey the stop sign at the street intersection where James Simpson was killed a few weeks ago. For the future, we should say, drivers will take note of the signs at Bay and Harbor.

Comparison of these figures with records of the Ottawa Traffic Court is interesting.

In Ottawa—the figures were given in detail here last week—for the six months from April 1 to September 30 the police brought 263 of the more serious traffic offences to court, or an average of ten each week, secured convictions in 242 cases.

Thus, in proportion to population, the Toronto police laid more traffic charges in two days than did the Ottawa police in half a year, and nobody would suggest that the difference fairly can be explained by superior driving in the Capital.

The Journal again urges that the Ottawa police, backed by the Ottawa Police Commission, carry on a systematic campaign against infractions of the traffic laws. We believe they will have the hearty support of all careful drivers who, fortunately, are in the majority. A feeling has grown up, is increasing, that in Ottawa traffic rules may be broken with impunity.

• Speeding Up the Military Rifle

DETAILS of the United States Army's new Garand semi-automatic rifle, revealed to the general public indicate that it will give the American doughboy a five-to-one advantage over any other soldier in the world, according to Frank D. Morris.

Describing the rifle as "the most important addition to our defense since the invention of the machine gun," Morris writes that it "will make every infantryman a walking machine gun nest and the equal of five men equipped only with bolt-action rifles." The Garand will replace the old Springfield rifle, standard in the United States Army since 1903.

"Physically the new rifle resembles the old Springfield," Morris states. "It weighs nine pounds and is generally of the same dimensions as the Springfield. For a precision machine its action is comparatively simple. You insert a clip of eight cartridges and pull the trigger. A gas chambers opens, discharging its contents. This operation automatically ejects the empty cartridge, cocks the gun and carries a new bullet into place. Your trigger finger controls all this; there is no cumbersome bolt to lift and slide before each shot as on the old Springfield."

The Garand rifle, perfected after a period of 13 years of intensive labor by John C. Garand of the government arsenal in Springfield, Mass., is rated at 12 to 34 per cent more accurate than the old Springfield, which itself was regarded as the equal or superior of any foreign military rifle. The Garand fires five times as fast, and has ten to fifteen per cent less recoil. It's cost will be approximately the same.

Pointing out that in effect the new weapon quintuples the nation's infantry strength, Morris quotes Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson saying that "since the doughboy with the rifle is still the backbone of the Army, whatever contributes to his greater effectiveness is bound to result in speedier and more certain victory in battle."

Equipment of the entire American Army with Garands will cost approximately $10,000,000.

• More Wheat From More Places

WHAT MOST Canadian grain growers do not realize is that the European markets can get shipments of grain all the year round. That is one of our difficulties — and our farmers' organized efforts to stabilize prices and demands. The Port of London Authority's magazine "The P.L.A. Monthly" for this month contains some interesting details on how the harvest of primary products in different parts of the wold vary so that supplies are dove-tailed, and the flow of commerce to the Port of London remains regular most of the year round.

"The grain areas of the world all supply London and the benefit of staggered harvests is obvious. Freighters loaded with new crop Canadian grain begin to dock in October; those from the Plate and Australia arrive in December or January, carrying on until the season is finished. The Danubian and South Russian grain season starts earlier, in July or August. Indian and Persian grain comes in earlier still, in May or June.

"Sugar arrives during most months of the year owing to the fact that supplies come from Java, Fiji, Australia, Africa, Peru, Cuba and the West Indies. Wines are also landed all the year round. Scandinavian timber is not subject so much to harvests but to the dictates of ice in the harbors from which it is exported, and accordingly there is a closed season from January or February to April. Canadian softwood has no such difficulties with which to contend, and appears in Surrey commercial docks all the year round."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

FOR every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins. And no man taketh this honour unto nimself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

So also Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest; but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, today have I begotten thee.... Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience uy the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him. —Heb. v, 1, 4, 5, 8, 9.

Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.—I Pet. iv, 12, 13.

A BLIND ORGANIST.

(Toronto Telegram)

AT NOON WE WENT up to the Eaton Auditorium to meet M. Andre Marchal, the blind organist of Saint Germain de Pres in Paris. Found him quietly practising before an audience of two people who had stolen in before ushers detected them. So we talked to his 16-year-old daughter, Jacqueline, who speaks excellent English, and is one of the most charming youngsters we've come across in a long time. Although her father has never seen one of his audiences, she said he can tell instinctively how many people are listening to him. When he plays on a strange organ, she reads over the stops to him twice; the third time he reads them to her. There are many blind organists in Paris, we learned, some of them war victims and a goodly number are M. Marchal's pupils. The French government has sent him to America to see what institutes for the blind are doing over here.

There was some difficulty in persuading M. Marchal to tear himself away from his music, but at nearly one he crossed to the Round Room to take lunch with Lady Eaton, Lady Kemp, Hector Charlesworth, Col. and Mrs. R. Y. Eaton and several other music lovers.

Actress Plunges 16 Stories To Her Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Dorothy Hale, motion picture actress, plunged to her death early today from a window of her 16th floor room in the Hampshire House, exclusive hotel overlooking Central Park.

Mrs. Hale, who a few years ago was described by a Hollywood producer as a "great movie find," was the widow of Gardner Hale, of Chicago, killed in 1931 when his automobile went over a 500-foot cliff in California.

Detective James Leech, who made a preliminary investigation, said the actress may have fallen from the window when she attempted to open it.

Reports Mrs Hale had become engaged to Harry L. Hopkins, United States works progress administrator, were denied last summer.

In "Catherine the Great"

Among the outstanding motion pictures in which Mrs Hale appeared was "Catherine the Great."

Dorothy Hale was a close friend of Rosamond Pinchot, socially prominent actress who attained farme at 17 in the biblical spectacle "The Miracle" and was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage of her Long Island estate near Oyster Bay last Jan. 24.

Gardner Hale, the victim's late husband, was an outstanding muralist.

Mrs Hale was educated at a convent and the drama school of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Friends helped her to obtain her first job, as a chorus girl in "Lady Be Good." She fell down a flight of stairs backstage and broke her back, being bedridden for a long time.

Later she married Gaillard Thomas, millionaire clubman and maintained salons in Paris and at Southampton. She shared a studio with Estelle Manville, now Princess Bernadotte of the Swedish royal family, and worked at sculpture. Later she was divorced and married Hale.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, THE shadow-boy with the turned about name, smiled happily. "So the queen wants to see me?" he repeated.

"Yes, Her Majesty will see you right away. Follow me, please," said the little ant. "Mind you don't lose sight of me," she added as they stepped through the entrance to the royal palace.

As soon as he passed through the entrance he came to a little clear space. Here four or five corridors branched off in different directions; one went down-hill, another went up-hill and the rest went to one side or the other. Some ants were busily dragging bits of dirt and stones up through the corridors and throwing them outside.

"They're the builders," the little ant explained to Knarf as they paused a moment. "They're making the corridors deeper and the hill higher. But come along! We mustn't keep Her Majesty waiting. Hello! Where are you going?"

Looks Like a Fight.

"Oh! something's happening down this little corridor," Knarf shouted. "I think some other insects have got in this hill by mistake. It looks like a fight!"

Knarf was right. Some tiny white insects were crowded together in a frightened knot in the middle of the next corridor, and half a dozen ants were dashing up and down before them, waving their sharp nippers at them. It looked like a pack of dogs keeping some sheep together.

"They're going to hurt them," Knarf said to the ant when she came up to him.

She laughed. "Hurt them? Don't be silly. Why, those are our herd of cows."

"Cows! Why—what do you mean? Those aren't cows!"

2 Held in Car Theft

HULL, Que., Oct 22—(CP)—Sydney Plamondon of Cornwall, Ont., was arrested last night near Aylmer, nine miles west of here, and held here in connection with theft of an automobile in Montreal yesterday. An alleged companion, Napoleon Brunett of Montreal, was arrested earlier at Campbell's Bay on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Police said they became suspicious of the pair when after a minor accident near Campbell's Bay the men ripped off the licence plates and threw them into a bush.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

THE WORLD ended for Judy as Ronald followed Abbey into the den. She breathed, she walked, she smiled, she wasn't dead. She might even be able to cry—bushels of tears that would make her eyes red and her nose sore....

That conference in the den meant only one thing to Judy. Mr. Boland was being informed of Abbey's change of heart.

"Judy!" We came mainly to see you!" It was Craig who greeted her in the great drawing room a few seconds later.

Craig! She had thought her heart was cruelly hurt because of him such a brief time ago. It hadn't been like this, though. Yet she had far more reason to be wounded then. This time she had practically none. Was she always to go on, her heart being kicked like a foorball, until it gave up and rolled off the field?

Mary was with Craig. She wore a long tight black skirt and a jeweled jacket. Her hair, parted in the middle and coiled low on her neck, made her resemble a Madonna.

Mary was lucky. She loved a man and he loved her.

Judy heard a voice greeting guests and knew that it must belong to her. She smiled. It was a mechanical voice, like a toy, that you wound up and forgot until it ran down.

Marjorie came in a heavy white crepe dress that was lavishly dotted with old gold coins and gold slippers and cane.

She closed her eyes, for just a moment, as she walked through the door. Soon now she would see Count Phillippe. Any moment she would be confronted with visible evidence that there had been a month by a blue sea, when a silver wind blew softly, and gondolas wove their mystic way through the water lanes of Venice. She had not dreamed it.

That moment at the boat had been so brief. Count Phillippe had seemed different. But now—now he would be his gay, charming, tender self.....the self he had been when he told her he loved her before she knew that he was on a heart-breaking crusade—

Judy saw Marjorie and came to meet her, and Marjorie adjusted the twin mask of Judy's smile.

Dinner .... place cards painted by a distinguished artist, torn to bits by nervous fingers, or seared with cigaret flame by a careless few. Course after course of priceless food. Small Santa Clauses frolicking on the ices that concluded the meal.

Marjorie had given one swift glance at the count and looked away, trying to disguise the emotions on her face.

"Ah, Marjorie, it is good to find you again," he was saying, but she did not stay to listen. Her head was swimming dizzily.

Judy observed Marjorie's quick withdrawal, and thought about it a time or two during the dinner. But there was so much to do .... Ronald, Ronald, why did you come? Why did you make me dream again?

The dinner ended. The other guests arrived. The swing band, that would send its tuneful melodies as high as the cloudland where the angels once sang, came too.

The party moved to the swimming pool and the game room beyond Silver trees stood everywhere, a silver Neon moon shone through the frosty boughs that were a canopy for the ceiling. Stars twinkled, miniature sleds, big enough to hold two, made seats.

The swimming pool had been frozen. Here presently the most famous skaters of the age would perform, and then all the guests who wished would glide on the green glass surface to the ring of their skates, or if they didn't skate, use the ballroom floor upstairs, the game room next door. Skating shoes were abundantly provided.

Gaiety was king of the evening. If you laughed, if you talked, if you laughed again, no one would notice that your heart was breaking—breaking up like real snow and ice, not this artifical stuff that had been banked everywhere.

When Ronald came to Judy, chose two pairs of skates, one for her and one for himself and fastened them on, she said no word. Not until they were on the ice's surface did he smile down at her.

"Like it?" The old warmth was in his tone.

"Now I do." Surely she could take one minute's happiness.

"But before?"

"Its not real."

"Ah, Judy, you're learning fast." (So fast that maybe I'll pass you, Ronald. Aren't you forgetting the rules you gave me—courage, sacrifice, strengths?).

He spoke slowly. "What do you think of the count?"

"He's amusing. Why?"

"Do you think he really loves Abbey?"

Judy was looking away, into the bower where the musicians sent their provocative strains higher and higher, as she heard the question.

"Neither the count nor Miss Boland like to entertain me with secrets. But when a man with money and a girls wants a title—or aren't you good at arithmetic, Ronald?"

(So, Ronald, if you want her, you may have her. Don't give up. Persist. Only you're real and she's moonbeams and glamor and sham. Don't you see?)

Her eyes searched among the skaters and dancers. She did not see that blue dress which gathered all silver lights to itself and flung them away glorified. The gold head was not shining proudly, as though it challenged the silver stuff to defeat it.

Ronald said: "Judy, can Abbey rely on your help if she needs it? She may not ask it. She may have to."

His voice was curiously pleading. Oh, it was a Merry, Merry Christmas!

"Abbey is all right. She's so young," Ronald tried to explain.

"One month younger than I am," Judy supplied, and a dimple flashed.

Ronald smiled, too. "I mean in wisdom, judgment — that sort of thing. She never had a worry heavier than a handful of pink confetti until now."

"And now?"

Maybe he would confide in her Then she wouldn't send her thoughts back and forth between two opinions, like a shuttle train. He loved Abbey—he didn't love Abbey....

Judy silver sandals had low, sturdy heels. Her warm brown eyes were steady and bright. Her curls and her eyebrows and her mouth flew gaily upward. She was small, but there was a sense of durability there.

It was this which Ronald sensed and on which he learned. But she did not know it. She knew only that he donned armor to fight for another girl.

Craig came, skating alone, and held out his hands. She glided away with him, smiling at Ronald, not even saying goodby.

(Here is Craig—Craig who once was dear to me. Because he was, I'll say light words to him for a little while, too. Goodby, Ronald. Oh, you can count on me. It's my job, isn't it? Whatever we do, we Rogers see things through.)

Marjorie found Ronald staring at Judy with a puzzled frown on his good-looking face.

"What did I do?" he asked. "I might be someone to whom she paid a quarter, summer before last, for mowing the lawn if New York had lawns. I thought she would want to help me—forget it, Marjorie."

Music—slow, fast, daring, sweetly syncopated. Laughter. Chatter.

The rooms were too warm, and Judy picked up a velvet cape that was part of her frock, and stepped outside on the terrace. The moon was a great tinsel ornament for somebody's evergreen tree, and the stars were caught in a network. She breathed deeply. She walked down the terrace.

She stopped quickly. A girl was standing against the wall. She moved out of the shadow just as Judy appeared. A man who had been with her turned and disappeared. The girl was Abbey. Judy didn't see the man.

Maybe it was the Count. Perhaps it was Ronald.

Abbey banished that first supposition. Her slim fingers gripped Judy's arm. "Promise me you'll not mention this to Count Phillippe! Promise!"

U.S. Income Tax To Be Boosted For Buying Arms

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP).—United States tax experts are studying several proposals for increasing income taxes to finance an expanded armament program.

These experts—staff members of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue—will make recommendations for tax legislation at the next session of Congress.

Informed persons said an emergency 10 per cent. increase in income taxes was one method under consideration. The increase would apply to both individual and corporate incomes. On the basis of this year's revenue estimates, it would yield an additional $200,000,000.

Tax authorities said the additional levy would be imposed for only a year or two, and would expire automatically at the end of the designated period.

Various proposals to reshuffle existing income tax rates also are being studied. These include one by Senator La Follette (Prog., Wisconsin) to reduce existing income tax exemptions from $1,000 to 800 for single individuals and from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons.

New Crop Wheat Of High Quality

WINNIPEG, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Milling and baking quality of Western Canada's 1938 wheat crop is at least equal if not superior to that of a year ago states the annual wheat quality report of the Canadian Board of Grain Commisisoners. The survey, compiled by Dr.W. F. Geddes and T. R. Aitken of the Grain Research Laboratory, was released today.

Flour yields of this year's crop are slightly higher than 1937 samples despite lower weight per bushel. This is due, the report said, to presence of Thatcher wheat in many grades, a variety with high flour-yielding capacity.

Comparing baking characteristics of the new crop average samples with those of the corresponding year, the report said that when baked by themselves new crop No. 1 hard, No. 1 Northern and No. 5 wheat are approximately equal. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 Northern and special wheat grades this year are definitely superior and Garnet grades inferior to 1937.

Blending values—ability to impart strength to a weaker mix—show that 1938 Northern and special wheats apear to be fully equal and possibly superior to last year's samples.

Turn "Nerves" into Glamour

Lovely Frances! It's hard to believe she was ever a victim of worry and hysteria. Yet now that she's found the secret of relaxation and nerve control, she is poised and glamorous.

Too many high-strung people remain lifelong slaves to "nerves" because they don't know how to direct their abundant energies.

How to escape insomnia, worry and temper, and redirect energy? Overcome insomnia by learning to relax one group of muscles at a time—fingers, arms, legs. Go limp as a rag doll.

Banish worry by going for a walk or to the movies. Go to see a friend. Buy a new hat!

Don't exhaust your energies in anger and hysteria, but turn them into such channels as tap dancing, music lessons, bicycle riding, photography. A hobby makes you interesting—sought after.

Many people have escaped the tyranny of "nerves" by learning the underlying causes. In our 32-page booklet a prominent physician tells you how to live radiantly and joyously, how to turn "nerves" into loveliness.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of OVERCOMING "NERVES" AND EVERYDAY HEALTH PROBLEMS to The Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Community House

TORONTO, Oct. 22—(CP).—Toronto's newsboys have some place to go when they dispose of the last of their papers — the Toronto Newsboys' Community House. The building, purchased with funds from the newsboys' building fund started in 1910, was opened officially last night in ceremonies attended by representatives of the city's spiritual, civic and publishing circles. The building is located on St. George street, in uptown Toronto.

Greece has started a big project for reclaiming marshland for agriculture.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 23

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very propitious one, with every promise of attaining honors and the endorsement of superiors and those in high standing. These should be sought for promotion or preferment, but be discreet in writings, especially of an intimate nature, and guard against small loss.

Those whose birthday it is are on threshold of a very lively and important year, with matters moving at such high tension as to attract the attention and authority. These may be sought for promotion, favors or even their personal friendship.

A child born on this day may be talented, progressive and ambitious. It should not be backward in attracting its employers and superiors who will assist its career.

For Monday, October 24

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for rather disturbing or unsettled conditions, which may cause a disagreeable uprooting, a relinquishing of plans or environs, or other events rather devastating and disappointing. Strange influences are noted, with documents, writings, speculative agreements or contracts holding importance.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there may be surprising developments, with some disturbances and hazards to the fortunes and peace of mind.

A child born on this day may be clever and adventurous,but perhaps difficult to understand and impossible to manage, although it should have proclivities to intrigue, craft and expediency.

"Lack Of Leader Holds Canada Back"—Stevens

EDMONTON, Oct. 22—(CP).—The Edmonton Bulletin quotes Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., as declaring in an interview that a lamentable lack of leadership, politically, financially and industrially is militating against Canadian progress and preventing the Dominion from coming into its own os one of the world's greatest and most prosperous democracies.

The former minister of trade and commerce is in Edmonton on private business. He said in the interview he was speaking "as a private citizen" and not expressing the viewpoint of any party.

"As I see it at the present time, lack of leadership is our greatest drag on the wheels of progress," said Mr. Stevens. "We are like some giant power house with a dozen generators but with only one or two of them working."

The Bulletin quoted him that debt and high interest rates constitute one of the greatest deterrents to progress and prosperity in Canada. There was a failure to realize there is a latent credit in Canada lying unused, he said.

A more generous credit policy was needed to give those building up the country an opportunity to carry on their work and get their plans in operation, said Mr. Stevens. He said he was not criticizing the banks.

"Eastern Canada has never lost anything in the West," he was quoted as saying.

FOR 47 YEARS

THIS GREAT SCHOOL HAS BEEN HELPING MEN TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS AND IN LIFE

FORTY-SEVEN years ago, October 16th, the International Correspondence Schools were founded. That was the birth of the idea of correspondence instruction. That was the beginning of a new method of training that has since become an invaluable asset to the educational program of the Dominion...of the whole world in fact.

Any institution that survives the storm and stress of forty-six years and shows increasing vitality with the passing of each milestone must have in it the chief essential of success in any enterprise or individual . . . merit!

Half of all the students enrolled by the International Correspondence Schools every day, every month, and every year are guided to our doors by I.C.S. students, while the other half are inspired to enter our portals by the sheer force of their example.

We cordially invite other earnest men to follow their example. Return of the attached coupon will bring you information about the subject in which you are most interested.

Cecil Downs Wins Speaking Honors In South Monaghan Contest

CENTREVILLE, Oct. 22.—The annual public speaking contest for the public schools of South Monaghan township was held in the Sunday School hall on Wednesday night.

The enthusiasm with which the various speakers were received and applauded and the intense interest manifested by the large audience of parents and children attested the popularity of this contest.

There were six contestants for the honors, all of whom did themselves credit, showing careful preparation of the subject treated as well as excellent style of delivery. Mr. Fred Waterman acted as chairman and associated with him on the platform was Mr. Robert Dawson of Warkworth, president of the trustees' and ratepayers' association of Northumberland.

Following the singing of "O Canada" the chairman welcomed the large gathering and called upon Mr. Dawson, who spoke of the benefit of the contests. The contestants were Bernice Huggins, Audrey Beebee, Cecil Downs, Maureen Moncrief, Arthur Beebee and Helen Thompson.

The report of the judges gave first prize to Cecil Downs, who spoke on the life of "David Livingston." He received the cup donated by W. Fraser, M.P. and presented by Mr. Dawson.

The recipient of the second prize was Arthur Beebee, whose subject was "The Grey Owl," and received the township of South Monaghan cup presented by the reeve, Mr. Roy Whittington.

The third prize went to Bernice Huggins, who spoke on a "Trip to Paris." She received the Women's Institute cup presented by Mr. Waterman. All the contestants received a book.

Interspersed between orations were several musical numbers: Piano solo by Jean Rutherford; folk dance by junior pupils of No. 2 school; violin selections by Mr. Dawson and choruses by S. S. No's 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Gambling Tactics

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP).—August Piehl drew four aces in a poker game. He bet. One of the three strangers sitting in with him in a hotel room raised the ante. Presently Piehl had $660 on the table. The staying stranger started downstairs to get enough money to cover the wager. Piehl tagged along until advised he "better go back and watch the dough." He returned. The pot was gone. So were the strangers.

Rev. Boshart Dies

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Rev. William Peter Boshart, 73, former assistant pastor of Dominion Methodist Church at Ottawa retired several years, died last night at nearby Lachine.

A native of Renfrew, Ont., Rev. Boshart was ordained at Kingston and served in Methodist churches in Montreal, Grenville and Sawyerville, Ont.

Don't let these THREE hold you up this winter!

You can forget that there ever was such a motoring menace as a freeze-up when you choose "Prestone" anti-freeze.

Because "Prestone" anti-freeze and water in the proper proportions just can't freeze even at 60° below zero!

And this is true every day, no matter how long the winter—or how severe. Because "Prestone" anti-freeze doesn't evaporate—doesn't lose its strength! Three or four days of mild weather won't send you scurrying for another quart.

"Prestone" anti-freeze protects against rust-clogging, too—can't harm the finish of your car—can't create an unpleasant odour.

The words "Eveready" and "Prestone" are trade-marks of the Canadian National Carbon Co., Limited.

NO FREEZE-UP
One half "Prestone" anti-freeze and one half water protects against freezing to a temperature 34° below zero. Use more "Prestone" anti-freeze, according to printed directions, for protection at 50° or 60° below zero. The guarantee is printed on the tin!

NO EVAPORATION
"Prestone" anti-freeze will not evaporate. When mixed with the proper amount of water in a normal cooling system, it gives guaranteed all-winter protection.

NO RUST-CLOGGING
Special properties in "Prestone" anti-freeze reduce the danger of rust-clogging and corrosion to a minimum. A rust-clogged cooling system often leads to expensive repairs—play safe with "Prestone" anti-freeze.

Jolly Weiner Roast Held Near Ski Jump

Probably one of the latest outdoor gatherings and weiner roasts of the season in this district was held Friday evening on a site near the Peterborough Ski Club jump.

The party was a jolly one, and about thirty-five members of the Young Men's class of Knox church, and their friends attended. The group had the use of the small booth on the grounds for the preparation and serving of weiners, coffee, doughnuts and apples.

A group of active games around a campfire, and a series of guitar contests were arranged and supervised by Don Charlton.

The social committee was Norman Hughes, Reuben McDonald and Marlow Banks. Gordon Morrison, president, and Ray Gillies, secretary-treasurer, were also capable assistants in the planning of the happy get-to-gether. The singing which closed the evening was led by O. Benson.

We Noticed

....among the scores of pretty, smartly-ensembled girl delegates from all parts of Ontario who have been attending the A.Y.P.A. Convention since Thursday:

◇ ◇ ◇

....a striking-looking girl, tall and slender, who wore beautifully a green wool dress with a rust shade beret, shoes and bag. A tweed topcoat was in matching tones, and she wore Kolinsky furs.

◇ ◇ ◇

....a tailored two-piece suit of slate grey with Burgundy accessories was another chic costume, and a third young lady looked very smart in a dress of dusty rose angora wool worn under a pebbled woolen coat of Hunter's green that was mink-trimmed. Her tiny felt hat and neat accessories were also of Hunter's green.

Mrs. Foley Wins Door Prize

An enjoyable euchre party was held by the ladies of St. John's church, Keene, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bolin on Thursday evening.

Prizes were as follows: Ladies', Miss Elinor McCarthy and Mrs. M. H. Heffernan; men's, Mr. Jas. Kylie and Mr. M. O'Keefe. The door prize was won by Mrs. James Foley.

Hobbs-Elliott

MILLBROOK, Oct. 22.—A pretty evening wedding took place in St. John's church, Norway, of Hilda Violet Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Elliott, to Dr. Leslie Newman Hobbs, of Millbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hobbs, by Canon W. L. Baynes-Reed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of turquoise blue taffeta, made on princess lines, with matching jacket. On her head, caught by a wreath of orange blossoms, she wore a shoulder veil of turquoise blue and white tulle. She carried pink roses.

Atending the bride was Miss Laura Hobbs, sister of the groom, wearing a similar gown of orchid taffeta, with small jacket made on princess lines, and on her head an orchid veil caught with matching flowers. She carried a bouquet of tea roses.

Dr. Maurice E. Hobbs, a brother, attended the groom. Mr. Norman Mould assisting at the organ.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with her mother receiving in a blue velvet gown and shoulder corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Hobbs, mother of the groom, received in a gown of teal blue satin and corsage of tea roses.

Later the young couple left for a trip to Eastern Canada the bride choosing navy triple sheer dress, blue coat and wine accessories for travelling. On their return they will reside on Tupper street, Millbook.

Interesting Toronto Wedding

The marriage of Miss Doreen Alice Kenward, daughter of Mrs. Kenward and the late Earnest Kenward, Toronto, to Mr. Donald Stewart Reid, Detroit, son of Mrs. H. E. White and the late P. S. Reid, Peterborough, took place Saturday in St. John's church, York Mills. Rev. A. C' McCollum officiated at the ceremony. Wedding music was played by the organist, Mr. Cameron, and Mrs. Taylor Mercer sang.

The bride, whose brother gave her in marriage, wore a street length frock of fuchsia velvet, a black felt doll hat trimmed with teal blue, and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Eloise Kenward was her sister's attendant, gowned in teal blue crepe, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley.

Mr. Robert Healey acted as groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Taylor Mercer and Mr. Lloyd London of Peterborough.

A reception was held at the Patrician Tea Rooms, and later Mr. and Mrs. Reid left for a motor trip, and on their return will reside in Detroit.

COST HIM DEAR, TOO

LONDON—(CP). — Her husband permitting her to "take the wheel for a moment, dear," Mrs. Caroline George, minus a licence, drove erratically and was fined five shillings ($1.21). Her indulgent husband had to pay 15 shillings ($3.63) for "aiding and abetting."

Conference Sidelights Of Ontario A.Y.P.A.

Bill (Red) Ford, student at the Peterborough Business College three years ago and now in St. Catharines is a delegate to the Convention and is renewing acquaintances while here.

The St. Thomas delegation added a bit of color to the Convention at noon Friday when they formed a parade at Simcoe street and paraded north to the Legion Hall by way of George street. Balloons, whistles, bells and horns provided noise—not music.

Women of St. John's Church are doing a splendid job preparing and serving meals to the host of outside delegates. Many favorable comments on the quality of the food have been heard.

Windsor delegates claim they intend to see the football game between Sarnia Imps and Peterborough this afternoon and they are backing the locals to a man.

London delegates on the other hand favor the Imps but talk last night indicated the St Thomas contingent might throw in their lot with the noisy Windsor delegation which would give Peterborough a decidedly strong contingent of rooters Many are taking the tour through the city early so that they may see the game also

The tour starts from the Ashburnham Bowl at the east end of Hunter street bridge directly after the noon luncheon The same spot where the group picture will be made before luncheon.

Grace Jackson and Zella Wesson of Oshawa were among the newcomers who registered last night, along with a strong contingent from St Michael's, Toronto. Among the latter crowd Dorothy Kent, Margaret Bassett, Amy Hardacre, Eleanor Cox, Annabelle Davidson, Dorothy Davidson and Betty Iles. The boys from Toronto who arrived last evening were: Bernard Neeb, Andy Black, Reg. Orgile, Dave Jones, Ken Galer, George Nixon and Les Davis.

Dorothy Reeder of Toronto in charge of the GBRE supply booth reports a brisk sale for the new members manual, and states that all who failed to obtain one of these valuable booklets during the convention may obtain one by writing to headquarters in Toronto.

Legion Hall has seen some large crowds attending dances there in recent years, but last night's crowd jampacked the hall. Late arrivals from Toronto, Oshawa and Cobourg along with members of local A.Y.P.A.'s swelled the crowd to upwards of 700. At a late hour last night there were 360 delegates registered and billetted and at least sixty others had found accommodation in the hotels.

Admission to the dance last evening was seven cents a member, this sum being set because it was the Seventh Annual Provincial Conference.

Enquiries among the delegates reveals that at least 85 per cent. of the out-of-town delegates never had been in Peterborough before, and all express praise on the clean streets, lack of slums and the beauty of the buildings.

Credit is due Miss Florence Hutchinson for the competent and thorough manner in which she arranged for the billetting of all out-of-town delegates. This department showed exceptionally fine organization all through, and tied in perfectly with the transprotation committee in locating the visitors in their respective billets.

The district executive presented a picture to President-elect Tim Regan and Mrs. Regan at the evening sessions of the conference. Mr. and Mrs. Regan were just recently married.

Two hundred A.Y.P.A. delegates stayed up until the C.P.R. train arrived at two o'clock this morning to welcome Margaret McNichol of London, president last year of the Provincial Council. They kept chanting "Where Oh Where Is My Little Margie" while the train pulled into the station, and no statesman was ever given a more royal welcome.

At ten o'clock tonight when the banquet in the Collegiate is over, more than seven hundred delegates and the A.Y.P.A. members intend to form a snake chain and parade through the downtown traffic as a gay climax to one of the most successful conventions in the history of the organization.

Peterborough's street signs hidden behind trees and to small to read are geting a panning from visiting delegates, six of whom got lost last night and had to make several enquiries before they found their billets.

The staff at the Elite Grill will long remember Friday night. After the dance was over at the Legion Hall the delegates more than 700 strong marched down George street and filled every restaurant that was open. At Yeates, Louis and his staff were still running around in circles with every booth jammed at two o'clock.

The convention is studded with rugby fans. This morning after Ottawa had lost to Hamilton in the matter of the place for the next convention, an Ottawa delegate was heard to remark: "Well anyways we have a good rugby team"...and the same team by the way has been walloping the Hamilton team this year.

Miss Winsome Davis and Doris Coxford of Ottawa were two more of the Ottawa contingent who arrived in the city last night.

Tim Ryan, genial leader of the delegates said Peterborough is a perfect convention town. He remarked that it has exceptional beauty, clean, comfortable homes, friendly people, but needs a large ball room or banquet hall, and should make the street signs plainer.

BRANCH NOTES

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH

Last Monday a short business meeting was held and the program for the night was in charge of Lewis Barry, minister of work, and his committee. All members took part in painting the initials of the church on the bottoms of all the chairs in the Sunday School.

The branch accepted the invitation from Teen Age Branch of the W.A., to attend their meeting next Monday, at which motion pictures will be shown.

There will be no regular meeting of the branch next week.

ST. JOHN'S, LAKEFIELD

An enjoyable time was had by the members of St. John's Young People's Association, when they held a social evening at the Parish Hall on Monday evening. Miss Patricia Earnshaw presided at a short business meeting, followed by games conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Reg. Howedn. Prizes were won by Odell Watson and Helen Chappell.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

St. John's held a well-attended meeting on Wednesday with education being the theme. The evening was opened by a short devotional period under the guidance of Fred Hooper whose team provided the program.

The first event was a debate. The group was divided into two teams. The subject, "Resolved that radio is a more effective means of advertising than the newspaper." The honors went to the negative by a good score. A short sing-song was followed by a very interesting address by Father Serson of the Order of St. John the Divine at Bracebridge, who is in Peterborough for the conference. He described some of the work which he and his brothers are doing.

LONDON—(CP).—Reminding reporters of Greta Garbo, a 15-year-old Estonian, Keljo Sepp, with a "turbulent mane of almost yellow-colored hair" here on a three-year scholarship is "a great pianist in the making."

JOHANNESBURG—(CP). — No one was to have a guilty conscience, wrote a 20-year-old Rand girl, just before she shot herself dead in bed because she was very much in love with a young man whose parents kept her away from him.

Mrs. Widdifield New Liberal Head

"An aggressive woman cannot get anywhere in politics with either men or women, but a woman who is ready to co-operate generally finds that the men are ready and willing to listen to what she has to say," declared Mrs. C. R. Widdifield, recently elected president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, who spoke before a large gathering of St. George's Women's Liberal Riding Association in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Thursday.

Speaking particularly of women's place in politics, she said: "I do feel that women should have more voice in the government of the country. But in order to obtain that power many go the wrong way about it."

There is still a great deal of adverse opinion about women in public life, and while the old idea that women should not have anything to do with affairs outside the home is an antiquated one, the home must ever remain the backbone of every country, if that country is to remain a solid entity, she maintained.

But if home is women's sphere, then all things that pertain to it are essentially part of women's interest. Thus city politics, taxes, laws pertaining to protection of unions, municipal government, including education of children, become part of the business of the good homemaker, "who must interest herself in everything with which home comes in contact, municipally, provincially and federally," she said.

Mrs. Widdifield was introduced by Mrs. William Fox, immediate past president of the Women's Liberal Association.

LONDON—(CP). — Recognizing extra work of their staffs in connection with air-raid precautions, Lloyd's Bank gave all their employees an extra day's holiday.

Fashions

There's much to recommend skirts and bouses to start off fall for town or suburban wear. It gives endless variety to your wardrobe at a budget price. The pattern includes both the gored sports type and the plaited model. Make either in monotone or in plain woollen! Wear them with all your sweaters, blouses and wool or velveteen jackets.

The gored skirt is very smart too in pin wale corduroy velvet. You'll find them so easy to make you'll want the pattern for "keeps" to use over and over again.

Style No. 3407 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust; or 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34-inches waist. Size 16 or 28-inch waist requires 3¼ yards of 54-inch material for plaited skirt; and 1¾ yards of 54-inch material for gored skirt.

Shirt blouse style No. 3036 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust.

Do You Know?

That if the housewife's work is properly systemized, most of the dishwashing can be done in advance while the food is being prepared? Mixing bowls, measuring spoons, rolling pins and such things are washed and wiped and put away in spare moments during cooking. Spills are mopped up the minute they occur. Leftover cooking ingredients are placed in the refrigerator or relegated to the garbage. When the cooking utensils have been emptied, they are filled immediately with soapy water—hot water for those that held sugar or syrupy mixtures, cold for the containers of eggy substances, milk or cream.

Deserted Wives Classed Widows

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Oct. 21.—(CP).—Provision for payment to widows, subject to marriage period and residential qualifications; and to orphans, is made in the Social Security Bill adopted by the New Zealand Parliament.

A widow with one child under 16 years of age will receive a benefit of $7 a week; with two children, $9 and so on to a maximum of $18 a week.

Women, who have been deserted and have taken maintenance proceedings will, if their husbands' whereabouts are unknown, qualify as widows if they have dependent children under 16 years of age, or in any other case, at the discretion of the commissioners. Women whose husbands are in mental hospitals also qualify as widows.

Orphan benefits up to $3 a week will be payable to every child under 16:—(1) if both parents are dead; (2) if the child was born in New Zealand or its last surviving parent resided in New Zealand for three years prior to death; (3) so long as it is not being maintained in a State institution.

The Young Mother
Has her health problems

Happy and fortunate is the bride who enters married life in full health and vigor of mind and body. Perhaps the importance of robust health at the time of marriage is sometimes overlooked.

But the cares and worries of the household and the tremendous strain of baby's coming demand an abundance of rich, red blood and a healthy, buoyant nervous system. Modern life and present financial stringencies tend to make the life of the woman in the home more difficult and more nerve racking.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can be of very great benefit to you both before and after baby's coming. By restoring health of body and mind it will save you from the irritabilities which tend to destroy the happiness of the home. It will restore hope and confidence at a time when ill health lets you see only the dark side of things.

A.Y.P.A. Names Hamilton Conference City

Hamilton was chosen as the location of the 1939 Provincial convention of the A.Y.P.A. councils by 40 delegates in the closing session of the 7th annual convention at Legion Hall this morning.

Ottawa made a strong bid for this honor but a look at the records showed a convention had been held in the capital city in 1934 while the last held in Hamilton was in 1932. The vote was two thirds in favor of Hamilton. Stoney Creek and Hamilton delegates helped the situation with a song which voiced the invitation to the tune of Alexander's Ragtime Band. Ottawa was equally musical in their demand but were outnumbered.

Most Rev. J. C. Roper, D.D., Archbishop of Ottawa, sent a letter of greetings and appreciation to the 7th annual Provincial A.Y.P.A. convention, and in the letter said: "I trust that the conference in Peterborough will be most successful. I am hoping much and expecting much of the A.Y.P.A. Be true to your ideals. We are hearing much of youth movement and organizations to-day. You represent the youth movement of the Church of England in Canada. As members of the church you have great privileges and great opportunities. May God bless you always and make you faithful and make you strong in the life and leadership to which our Saviour calls us.

On motion of Rev. A. H. O'Neil, seconded by Norman Weese, Cobourg, a letter of thanks will be sent to Archbishop Roper.

Greetings From Dominion.

Tom Bellis, Dominion president, brought greetings from the A.Y.P.A. Dominion Council, and asked for the co-operation from the Ontario Council which he says was numerically the largest in the Dominion. He spoke in favor of study groups, and explained that God and the church has the answer to all worldly problems to-day. He urged all members to make a study of current events and economic problems, because all have a direct effect on their lives.

He asked that every member subscribe to the official association organ, the "A.Y.P.A. Monthly." Two thousand subscribers must be obtained if the magazine is to pay its way. Bellis also recommended the A.Y.P.A. members' handbook as being a very complete manual and this booklet is available at 7 cents a copy.

To-night Judge H. S. Mott of Toronto will be guest speaker at the closing banquet to be held in the P.C.I. gymnasium and Margaret McNichol of London, immediate past president will be chairman.

Fire Is Quickly Put Out

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 22. — A spark from an acetylene torch started a fire in T. E. Hall's garage at five o'clock on Friday afternoon, and the quick action of the mechanic who was welding an iron handle at the time brought the blaze under control shortly after an alarm had been given the Fire Department.

A spark fell into a quantity of crank-case oil lying in a container on the bench and the oil ignited immediately. The mechanic reached for the water hose and poured it into the flame to extinguish the blaze just as the Fire Department was being summoned.

Canadian Legion Notes

"A chields amang ye takin' notes, and, faith, he'll print them.—Burns.

The tickets for the dinner on Remembrance Day are now on sale and hope to have a most successful evening. The Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, will be the principal guest.

Will all the members who have entered their names for the billiard tournament meet at the hall on Monday evening and draw up a schedule of the games to suit their own convenience.

That flapping of wings and loud crowing heard at the firehall last Tuesday evening was only the Legion rooster letting the world know of his victory over the Chief and his smoke swallowers, and the wailing heard was not from the wailing wall at Jerusalem, it was the moaning of Joe Astles as he saw those four points vanish in the distance.

There will be a church parade on Sunday, Nov. 6th, to Trinity church at the invitation of our Padre and it is hoped there will be a good muster of members and ex-service men as it will be the Sunday before Remembrance Day. It is meet that exservice men should give thanks not only for the ending of the great war but also for the narrow escape the world has had from another one.

The winner of the clock at Monday's meeting was Ross Little with ticket No. 292.

The Legion Minstrels have changed the name of the troupe from Tipperary Minstrels to the Dixie Minstrel Troupe. The party is now filled up and H. C. Lord and his committee are greatly elated over the fine lot of entertainers they have succeeded in rounding up. The committee hopes to put on their first stage show some time in November.

Will all the members of the various carpetball teams watch the Examiner every Saturday for the schedule of games to be played during the next week and thus save the trouble of notifying them. That request applies to the skips also.

Paralysis Wanes

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 22 (C.P.). —State Health Department officials said the infantile paralysis season was over for Michigan to-day and only 50 cases were reported during the summer months, the lowest number in 15 years.

Dr. F. Forsbeck, a Health Department director, said the reduction was not due to any public health program and within three or four years "we'll catch it."

Tim Regan Is Elected Head Ontario A.Y.P.A.

New names grace the key positions on the new slate of officers elected Friday for the Provincial Council of Anglican Young Peoples Associations, meeting in convention here 400 strong.

The delegates gave unanimous endorsation to the report of the nominating committee read by the Rev. A. H. O'Neil of Hamilton in the absence of the committee chairman, Miss Margaret McNicholl. The slate is as follows: Tim Ryan, Hamilton, president and vice-president last year. Gordon Haram, Ottawa and Bill Rich, St. Catharines, vice-presidents. Ann Walker, Stoney Creek, secretary, and Jim Flaherty of Toronto East, was returned for another term as treasurer. The convening executive is as follows: Ed. Martin, Kitchener, Leslie Cavalier, Peterborough, Dorothy Martin, Toronto, Cecil Walker, Toronto Centre, Fred Brown, Essex, Harold Leitch, Brant Deanery, Madeline Clark, Oshawa, Clyde Jenner, Sarnia, and Genevieve Jamieson, Simcoe.

The Most Rev. J. C. Roper, D.D., Ottawa, was named Patron, and Dr. G. B Snell, Toronto, is chaplain for 1938-39 Rev. A. H. O'Neil, Gorrie, R. G. Towne, Hamilton, Rev. A. E. L. Caulfield, Ottawa, Charles Belliss, Hamilton, and the Rev Walter Bagnall, Hamilton, were named Archbishop's appointees.

Each office was placed before the assembly separately and each was endorsed without change. Rev. O'Neil said Miss McNichol, of London, past president of the Council and chairman of the nominating committee, had sent letters to all local councils seeking names and data on all prospective officers and he added this correspondence was open to inspection to any delegate attending the convention.

Group Discussion.

On Friday afternoon the delegates were divided into four groups and a rotary group discussion was indulged in, the four themes being: Worship, Work, Fellowship and Edification. The four group leaders were Rev. S. A. R. Wood, Kinmount, Bill Rich, St. Catharines, Bernard Neeb, Toronto, and Reg. Towne, Hamilton. Each leader spent a half hour addressing each group, and the entire address and discussion period occupied two hours.

The highlights of all discussions and salient points which brought approval in principle and practice from the delegates will go before the general assembly of delegates to-day in the form of resolutions for consideration.

Summaries Presented.

Tim Regan, of Hamilton, elected president, called on the four group leaders for a summary of their findings during the evening program Friday night and each outlined briefly the points discussed. The talks indicated discussion and argument had prevailed with vigor during the afternoon and the feeling was paramount that the undertaking had been both high, interesting and educational.

A reel of motion pictures taken during the summer at Whitehouse Camp on Lake Couchiching, brought peals of laughter from the packed hall and after this was completed Jack Marshall and his orchestra provided music for dancing, with Miss Quesnie Hope, in charge of the entertainment, all arrangements for which had been made by the local A.Y.P.A. Council.

During the entertainment period a group from St. George's Anglican church put on a skit which brought them top honors in a recent competition of A.Y.P.A. branches, and the audience voiced keen approval.

Reviewed Year's Work.

The President's report which was given some discussion this morning, expressed the opinion that the Anglican Young People's Associations were making definite progress across the province. Miss McNichol, the president, reviewed the year's work and told of the pleasurant associations that had been formed during her term of office.

Good organization work and fine leadership was evident everywhere she said. During the past year many of the district Councils have been visited by members of the Provincial Council and Miss McNichol approved of this action. Camp this year was the best ever held, the number of members was greater and every feature of the camp program was enjoyed. She made reference to the department of Devotional Development and lauded the convenor for preparing eleven pages of Devotional programme material. In conclusion Miss McNichol expressed the hope the Council would go ahead in greater strength year by year under the guidance of willing and inspired members willing to work for Christ and the Church.

Miss Evelyn Thompson, the retiring secretary, outlined in her report that 5 general meetings had been held during the year, one at St. Catharines and three at the Parish Hall, Church of the Ascension, Hamilton. Committees were successfully sponsored during the year on the following: Camp, Conference, Devotional Development, Extension, Future Policy, A.Y.P.A. Monthly, Suggestions and Service, Nominations, and all reported splendid progress. Minutes of all general meetings have been sent to all members of the Dominion Council, members of the Provincial Council, Local Council Presidents or Secretaries and to Sunday School superintendents in unorganized territories.

Miss Thompson expressed her deep appreciation for the fine assistance given her by local Council officials during her term of office.

Following Hungarian "Annexation"

Impatient at long-drawn-out border discussions at Komaro, Czechoslovakia, scattered segments of the 200,000 men Hungary called to arms, marched into Ipolysag to make a "symbolic occupation." The troops were followed by these civil backers of 'annexation,' who proceeded to smash everything Czechoslovakian they could lay hands on. This man is destroying a sign.

City Council To Meet City Trust On Monday Evening

FOLLOWING Monday night's special meeting of the council, the committee of the whole will hold a round table conference with the City Trust Commissioners for the purpose of presenting a request for the transfer to the treasury any surplus at present available.

The council is particularly concerned about avoiding a deficit at the end of the year. Estimates of relief costs for the twelve months were considerably short of the actuality, and although some assistance may yet be received from the Ontario government, the council may sound out the City Trust for prospective aid from that quarter.

Mountie Nabs Still On Simcoe Island

LINDSAY, Oct. 22.—A resident of Verulam township named Gendron appeared before Magistrate Gee Friday morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of having liquor illegally. He was fined $100 and costs or three months in jail. The charge arose out of a case of three Bobcaygeon youths who were charged a few days ago with consuming liquor illegally. It is alleged that Gendron was the party who furnished another resident of the village with liquor, and the latter in turn sold it to the boys. Another Bobcaygeon man, charged with being drunk in a public place, failed to appear and a warrant was issued for his arrest. Magistrate Gee made the statement that liquor cases had predominated the court for the past six months and the publicity given these cases did not seem to have reduced their number. "I'm going to step on them harder," said the Magistrate, "and perhaps do away with the minimum penalty."

Death, as a result of a fall, came to Mrs. Mary Linder, mother of Mrs. J. E. Hamilton, at Ross Hospital Friday morning. Mrs. Linder, who was eighty-two years of age, fell to the floor in her bedroom early Friday, and it is believed, injured her hip. Before an X-ray could be taken at the hospital, she passed away.

Corporal T. J. Woods, R.C.M.P., of Lindsay, accompanied by other police officers, paid a visit to Thorah Island, Lake Simcoe, on Thursday in a motor launch, where they seized a still and about one hundred gallons of mash. They also arrested three men, Fred Warren, Fred Carnagy and George Warren, residents of the island. These men are charged with having a still in their possession and will be given a hearing on October 24.

Provincial Constable Taylor, of Minden, has been appointed high constable for the counties of Victoria and Haliburton.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH HENRY KIMBERLEY

The death of Joseph Henry Kimberley, retired railroad man, occurred at his home at 488 Bolivar street on Friday, after a lengthy illnes. He was in his 75th year.

A resident of Peterborough for the past 37 years, he had been a bridge and building master for the Canadian Pacific Railway company for 43 years before his retirement eight years ago. Born in Harper, Ontario, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Kimberley and he came to Peterborough from Smith's Falls.

He was a member of Trinity United church and of the I.O.O.F., Royal Lodge 286, Havelock.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Christina Warren; two daughters, Mrs. John Lynch of Peterborough, and Mrs. Bert Lindley of Ottawa; two sons, Wilbert R. of Ottawa and Warren at home; and one sister, Mrs. Minnie Jones of Saskatchewan.

The funeral will be on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery

NEW MOON SUNDAY.

The new hunter's moon is due on Sunday. Possibly it may arrive with a powder horn dangling from it appropriate to the tenth month, but assuredly it will come bristling with icicles.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY.

Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne of the Prince of Wales Rangers will speak at Monday's meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club on "National Defence and the Part of the Militia Therein."

POLICE HOLD MEETING.

Members of the local Police Association held a meeting on Friday night, when the principal question under discussion was the annual police commission will be sought before any definite steps are taken in regard to sponsoring the event.

SIXTEEN LODGERS.

The arrival of cold weather is reflected in the applications for lodgings at the police station. Friday night no fewer than 16 transients asked for a night's shelter, by far the highest number since early last Spring. Box cars and jungles are chilly dormitories when the frost is on the pumpkin.

GETS THREE MONTHS.

Arrested some time ago in Percy Township by Provincial Constable David Silvester on a warrant from Hamilton for non-support, Fred W. McKee has been tried in Hamilton court on two charges of false pretenses originating in Peterborough and was sentenced to three months on each charge, the sentence to run concurrently.

FIRE AT INCINERATOR

A fire that broke out at the incinerator plant at a quarter to one this morning was caused by nothing but extreme carelessness, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett. Four or five piles of shavings and sawdust had been placed on the floor inside the building and caught fire. "I can't imagine why they should have been there at all," Chief Gimblett said. "They had no right there at all."

MOVING TO TORONTO.

Peterborough friends of Tom Shield have been learning recently with a great deal of regret of his intention to move to Toronto with his family on November 1. For himself his decision involves little change, for as manager of the Ontario Honey Producers' Co-operative Association he has been working in Toronto and arriving home only at the week-ends. It is rather that his family will be united with him in Toronto.

ANNUAL PENNY DAY.

To-day the Fire Department is holding its annual Penny Day, attempting to collect a mile of pennies along George Street. Funds raised will be used to pay for paints and materials used in repairing toys for distribution among the city's needy children at Christmas. Early in the day fire fighters were posted along the street beside their growing line of pennies, favored by good weather and hopeful of raising enough money to defray the expenses they will incur in bringing happiness to hundreds of children.

30 Canadians Win Sweep Consolations

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—(CP).—Canadians won two of the 50 residual cash prizes of £106 (530) to-day during the second and final day's draw in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes. Thirty Canadians were among the first to draw consolation prizes of £100 ($500).

One of the lucky Canadians was "First Offence" of Nova Scotia, with Ticket NH83139, while the other "R222," with Ticket BDO1855, was identified as living somewhere in Canada. Names and addresses of Canadian winners are not given out on account of the Dominion's lottery law.

Asks For Plans For Addition To Police Court

As a result of complaints made during the police investigation as to lack of storage and other accommodation in the police station building, Judge Smoke, Magistrate A. E. Gee and Mayor Hamilton of the police commission and Ald. James Dutton, representing the city council visited the building Friday afternoon and considered ways and means of improving the facilities.

It was decided that an architect should be asked to submit plans and estimates for the addition of three rooms to the present building.

It is planned to provide a room for the storage of seized liquor and other exhibits, proper quarters for the Crown Attorney and the magistrates and also a room for witnesses.

Toronto Trucker Is Fined $10 And Costs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 22.—His license had expired only four days previously when Sam Katz, Toronto trucker was picked up by provincial police here on a charge of driving without an operator's permit or chauffeur's license. It was claimed he had been driving for the past six years without a permit until he had taken out the temporary type two months previously. A plea of guilt was put in on his behalf by Provincial Constable D. G. Campbell who laid the charge and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Peterborough, assessed a fine of $10 and $4.50 costs.

Harry Suite, Bonarlaw, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of common assault laid by Clayton Ackey of this town, and was fined $1.00 and $4.25 costs.

Cyclist Escapes With Minor Injuries

Catapulted over the handle bars of her bicycle and over the radiator of an automobile after an intersection collision, May Gray, 20, of 243 Stewart street, was fortunate enough to escape with a cut lip and lacerations on the cheek and neck.

The accident occurred at Hunter and George streets about 9.40 o'clock Friday night. Donald A. Moffatt, 526 Chamberlen street, was about to driveeast on Hunter street and had stopped at the south-west corner of the George street intersection waiting for the green light to show, when Miss Gray, riding her bicycle down George street, swerved and ran into the front of the machine, being thrown over the radiator and striking the road heavily.

Mr. Moffatt picked the injured girl up and drove her to a doctor's' office where it was found that her injuries were not serious. Her bicycle was badly damaged.

"I was trying to get across the intersection before the green light went off,'" Miss Gray explained afterward. "I was riding at a good speed and was just passing the corner when the light changed and I tried to swerve into Hunter street but struck the automobile. There were several cars around the corner."

Girl Is Charged With Stealing $4

Marjorie McGregor, 17, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court this morning on a charge of stealing $4.00 from Mrs. D. Hamilton, North Monaghan.

The girl told the court that she was not ready to go on with the case to-day as she had not been able to get in touch with a lawyer.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., said that in any case he was not prepared to proceed to-day, and asked for a remand, stating that he had to get some evidence from Toronto.

The case was set for Wednesday next and bail was fixed at $250.

The Crown Attorney named $500 as proper bail, but Magistrate Langley demurred. "That is too much for a case involving $4.00," he declared.

Brazil is buying more from the United States than from any other country.

Questioned

Said to fit the circularized description of the kidnap-slayer of 10-year-old Charles Mattson in Tacoma, Wash., 1936, police of Columbus, Ohio, are questioning Francis Curivian, 37, of Brooklyn. Curivian, who told officials he was a Czechoslovakian and entered this country 19 years ago, denied all knowledge of the crime. Curivian is pictured after his arrest.

Moved by Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Hall, that Council adjourn, to meet again at Lakehurst on Saturday, Nov. 5. Carried.

Colonel Snell Inspects Ambulance Men

Following inspection on Friday evening of Peterborough units of St. John Ambulance Brigade and Nursing Division, Colonel A. E. Snell, C.M.G., D.S.O., Commandery Commissioner of the Order in Canada, complimented the members on improvement over former years in their first aid work.

Accompanied by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., Divisional Surgeon of the Brigade, Col. Snell inspected both units in bandaging, splinting, stretcher and transportation duties as well as in individual theoretical tests at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall. Stating this was his third visit to Peterborough, he requested an effort be made to increase local membership during the next few months, as an objective of 2,000 Dominion members has been set to greet Col. Sleaman, Overseas Commissioner, who will visit Canada in 1939. New divisions have recently been formed in Halifax, Ottawa and Fort Frances, he said.

The inspecting officer also congratulated the members on records showing a total of 183 first aid cases treated during the year as well as for public duties at the Exhibition, hockey and football matches, motorcycle and ski meets.

Honorary Secretary's report showed two new uniforms and a first-aid field kit had been purchased; donations received from the Lions' Club, C.G.E. Athletic Club, and P. and D. Football Association during the year; and an annual turkey draw at Christmas as being chief sources of revenue.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien of Sacred Heart Church, commenting on community work performed by Brigade, offered the free use of the hall on any future occasion.

Officers on parade were: Nursing Division, Lady Superintendent Miss Ivy Watkins; Lady Ambulance Officer, Miss Jose Tomkins. Ambulance Brigade, Divisional Superintendent L. E. Tomkins, Ambulance Officer J. Barnes.

Anonymous abusive letters have caused David Jones to resign as conductor of the Penryhn, Wales, male choir, which he organized and made famous when it took first place in the 1935 Welsh Eisteddfod.

Racing Season Ends Today On Ontario Tracks

By Foster Barclay
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (C.P.). — A banner 1938 racing season, one of the most prosperous in years, closes to-day, ending five months of active campaigning in Eastern and Western Canada.

When a field of thoroughbreds thunders down the stretch in the seventh race at Dufferin Race Track here to-day, frenzied fans will screech and scream for their choice, stand on benches and crane their necks for a glimpse of galloping horses for the last time this year. Racing fever will be over for another year.

Heralding the end, the larger stables 10 days ago started to van horses to the United States for fall and winter campaigns. Jockeys also headed for warmer climates. Thoroughbreds not scheduled for in-between-season racing have been unwound and taken to winter quarters.

Racing associations have not released figures, but it is understood the business achieves a peak in recent year. Generally, purses averaged higher and attendance figures increased. There was no lack of horses.

Performance of horses in the East was overshadowed by an exhibition of horsemanship displayed by a wiry, strong-wristed jockey. Sterling Young, a native of the United States, stole riding honors and was crowned the leading Canadian jockey. When he left for the United States a week ago he had scored 124 victories, most of them on Canadian tracks.

Young accepted nearly 600 mounts and ranks among the first twenty jockeys on the continent. He displaced Pat Remillard, who held the title for two straight years.

Three-Year-Old Crown.

Bunty Lawless, branded the best Canadian-foaled thoroughbred since Inferno, carried off the three-year-old crown. The sturdy colt, owned by Willie Morrissey of Toronto, sped to a handy victory in the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic, and retained his form throughout the year. He was taken to Saratoga during the summer and matched strides successfully with outside competition.

Archworth, owned by C. George McCullagh of Toronto, retired to winter quarters as the winter-book favorite for the 1939 running of the King's Plate. The chestnut colt dispelled all doubts to juvenile title rights when he captured the $5,000 Mrs. Orpen Cup and Saucer at Long Branch Race Track.

A pair of record-breaking performances were written into the records at Long Branch Race Track beside the name of Sir Marlboro, owned by Conny Smythe, manager of the Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League. Last spring Sir Marlboro clipped a fifth of a second from the five-eights of a mile record, covering the distance in 59 2-5. He came back at the fall meeting to run six furlongs in 1.11 1-5, clipping a fifth of a second from the record.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

There were 26 teams of girls and men, representing the Examiner, Johnson Motors and Brinton Carpet Co., taking a whirl at the maples last night in Duffus'. A successive bombardment for strikes and spares by Walter Firth of Brintons netted him an 810 score, the highest on record for a league bowler this year. Vern Dawson and J. Bascianno chalked up 685 and 606, while in the ladies' section Miss E. Jones teed off for 578 (258, S. Laing 577 (225), M. Parks 528, M. Lanfield 512 (217), E. Hodson 484, H. McFarlane 455, E. Laws 442 (206), B. Fitzgerald 430, Mrs. Ferguson 424 and E. Brooks 407.

Don Weese and Bob Wylie led the Examiner group with 641 and 620, and Mrs. Cowan with 501, Mrs. Hamilton 437 and Mrs. Ashton 401 looked tops for the ladies.

Eight teams from the outboard plant had a preliminary workout for their start next week. J. Collins got 645, V. Millikin 630, R. Stevenson 624 and E. Millar 600.

CLOSE AIR-RACE FINISH

In the annual air race of 192 miles from London to Cardiff, Wales, the first three machines landed within seconds of each other.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

FRED MARTIN, who is running the K. of C. bowling alleys this winter (well, it will be soon), tells us a new super-streamlined 5-pin loop will swing into action Monday night at eight chimes. Only bowlers with an average of 190 or better are eligible, but all these pin-smacking stars are invited to join. "The bowling in this high-powered circuit," says Freddie, who throws a mean ball himself, "will be quite scrumptious, and the prizes something to throw a rave over!" In a day of lopsided competition and dictatorships, etc., we will be as tickled as Tommy when the school burned to see the cream of the trundling crop strutting their stuff in the same circuit. By the way, a young chap of 16 or 17, named Eddie O'Brien, rolled a lovely 425 the other night at the K. of C. emporium—hitting 10 strikes in a row. A case of etcetera and etc.

* * * * * *

SEEMS TO US that there is no sawed-off word in usage today which is so comprehensive as that little "etc." thing. It saves a strain on two-cylinder brains when you write, for instance: "Sarnia used a varied system of plays, the kick, forward pass, extension, etc." You can explain to the boss where you've been the last two hours by saying: "Oh, at the 'Y', Chamber of Commerce, City Hall, etc." And every travelling salesman will agree heartily with us when we point out that "etc." covers a multitude of expenses on the swindle sheet. It and its twin "miscellaneous." It may be of Latin parentage but "etc." has become a naturalized Canadian term. And etc.

It's a Three-Year Plan

AND AS Ted Reeve remarked in his readable column the other eve: "Although they still have their shaky moments, Peterborough's O.R.F.U. entry is working out just as expected. Some good play, an improving young team and a good ground-work for next year. That is all they wanted." Well, maybe not all they wanted here, but at least about all they expected. The Orfuns are on what they call the three-year plan, meaning they hope to have a senior winner their third season. If enough building up is done before next autumn, the Orfuns—who looked right promising against Montreal and Balmy Beach, when not expected to be any opposition at all—might cut a season off their three-year plan. But we'll wait and see in the fall of '39.

* * * * * *

THE BIG FOUR, or Interprovincial Union—if you must be stuffy—is sort of overshadowed this year by the senior O.R.F.U. group. And after yearly refusing the applications of Balmy Beach and Sarnia, This year the Big Four is the Big Two, Ottawa and Argos—as Hamilton and Montreal Cubs are decidedly weak sisters. So the Big Four officials would like to bolster for next year, though Argos don't like the idea of Beaches, from the same city, being included. There may be some tall manoeuvring ere next autumn rolls around—but we trust the senior O.R.F.U. (which now has a fine group with a better one in prospect by sitting tight) will remember that a rolling stone gathers no moth balls. Or something. We hope Peterborough, after being admitted to the senior circuit, isn't dropped next season. On account of we might win it next year.

Kicking Has Its Place

ORFUNS' OFFICIALS SAY, with utmost in emphasis, that they will have an ace kicker next semester. They muffed one this time, or might be in the running right now. They waited too long before going after one and then missed out all around. Jack Dyte of Barrie was their last bet, but he went to Niagara Falls for his rugby and hockey. Down there, they didn't have a job for this fine young husky so they up and sent him to school in the meantime! It's an idea. He has only scored 20 points to date with his kicking in C.O.S.S.A. competition, not counting today's take. As a rule the world does not like a kicker, but there is an exception to every rule—and rugby is certainly the exception. We actually love a rugby kicker!

WITH AN AIR of confidence, the P.C.I. squads pulled out today for Oshawa, the juniors to joust in the morn and the senior gridders to play after a light luncheon. Looks like a win for the latter but the scraping of reverse gears for the younger Garnet and Gray gang. Local school fans will see the P.C.I.-ers in action again here in their schedule windups next Saturday 'gainst the Lindsay laddies. The Scugog scrivener bemoans the fact that Lindsay teams are idle this week, but there is no ruling at present which permits three teams to play against each other on the same day—and you can't take a thing like that into court. The schedule makers couldn't (like the hobo broiling a steak over a candle) make two at the same time. As Bugs Baer or someone once remarked.

Still Gruntin' and Groanin'

OUR OLD PAL, Alex Kasaboski had a tough evening in a Kitchener rasslin' ring Thursday. Trying to unmask the Mystery Man—who will probably turn out eventually to be an international spy or maybe Clark Gable—the Pitiless Pole stopped a pile-driver which, in turn, stopped him. Which made it fair enough all around, except for the cash customers. On the same card, the Great Baibo (also a former performer here) staged a sitdown strike in the ring and refused to leave till he was promised a return bout with a gee who did him wrong. He was promised it for next Thursday, regular rates for spectators being charged. We are glad to see the grapple gladiators making their ham-and-egg dough somewhere with a tough winter coming up. Even Barnum might have passed up Peterborough.

* * * * * *

ANNUAL MEETING of the C.O.B.I. will be held here this eve at 6.30 in the Chamber of Commerce. Delegates are expected from Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough—possibly R. A. Elliott of Deloro, life member of the loop and of the O.B.A., also attending. The ball moguls will take in today's grid game and then gather around the table to close up baseball's business for the year. Election of officers is usually held at this session in the autumn, but we dunno this time. President Max Swanston says he will not stand for office again, and also plans in the spring to drop out of the O.B.A. executive—claiming these offices interfere too much with his business. Probably a quiet meeting this gloaming.

To Get Together At Last

That famous "race of the century," the match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit, that was to have taken place last May 30, and petered out so ingloriously, will take place Nov. 1 at Pimlico track in Maryland. There will hardly be the glamor and hullabaloo that attended the original "race that wasn't" surrounding the coming event, but it may decide something or other. War Admiral is at the left, Seabiscuit, above.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

GET IN THERE AND FIGHT!

By LEW HAYMAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of articles on FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL, written for the Examiner by Lew Hayman.

In the preceding articles I have attempted to give you simple, sound, fundamental FOOTBALL FACTS. I am quite confident that if you practise diligently and put good, honest efforts into your work, you will be able to carry out the ideas we have talked over, and, in turn, you will be a better played out there on the gridiron.

However, when two teams are evenly matched, then it is not a question of how well you can play, but how great is your WILL TO WIN! Mental attitude is often described as 20 per cent. of any football game. I could easily raise that five or ten per cent. and still feel the precentage might be higher. Any lad that won't be beaten is a tough nut to crack, particularly if he is so determined that he puts extra effort into every manoeuvre.

It's Today That Counts

Once you have won a game DON'T REST ON YOUR LAURELS. You can't win today on what you did last week. Don't for one moment think you can rest during practices and then rise to great heights during a game. You might have the willingness at game time, but unless you have "put out" in practice, your body and mind are not prepared to carry out your desires. Preparedness is a necessity on any football team.

Once you are prepared and game time arrives, arouse yourself for a grand effort. Be aggressive but never lose self-control. Any foul play is detrimental in the way of penalties, but more tha nthat, it upsets the morale of both you and your teammates.

Never stop trying. Keep battling, but play fair. Treat your opponent with respect. If the game is going against you, DON'T QUIT. Keep your head up, set your jaw and dig in. "A winner will never quit, and a quitter will never win," is an axiom that holds true in no sphere more than football.

Selfishness is something that's ruled out in football. Not by the rulemakers, but by the very fact that, more than any other game, it is a team game. There are 12 men and each man has almost an equally important part to play. No member of a team can go it alone. Without every man pulling his share of the load success on the gridiron is impossible.

Any maturing boy is bound to receive valuable experience, both physically and mentally, playing football. There are knocks, bruises, bumps and aches, but these are more than offset by hardened bodies, alert minds and grand comradeships. A boy learns to take punishment, come up smiling, and still play fair. What boy or his family could ask for more than that from any kind of game or recreational activity?

Those that coach and play the game best are those that love the game with a spirit of work, determination and loyalty.

THE END

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, since my last Mister Eddie Murphy's boys has been oozed outa the senior ball race and old man Rugby is undisputed King of the Kastle. They aint no use saying I aint disappointed over the sad end to the baseball season for that wouldnt be true and if they is anything this column prides herself on is being 100 per cent. accurate. I don't want to try to take any credit away from them Stratford Nats but the simple fact is, old timer, our pitchers which had been fooling better batters all season, just couldnt do a thing against the Intercountry winners. Why I can't even guess unless the lack of work waiting for games took the edge off the boys' stuff but at all events in the 2nd and 3rd games of the final serious the Petes couldn't produce pitching that looked half decent and the result was although they scored a tota lof 11 runs themselves in the 2 games they didn't get a win in either and the championship went aglimmering.

Quite A Season

However the lads had quite a season and they deserve a few orchids for the way they stuck together in the face of a discouraging start, a lean schedule and long waits between playoff fixtures. They give us a lot of good ball and we're hoping they'll be back against next season and go through and cop the mug.

Our footballers Mac, made quite a hit with the home fans here last Sat. owing to them giving the well-known B' Beachers a tough battle. The Toronto gang tried to get through the affair on a 2nd string basis but it wasn't long before Mister Alex Ponton was running in his best performers and while the Beachers finally win 18 to 2.

It was a good ball game all the way and it went over big with a large section of the populace, many of which was getting their 1st glimpse of senior football and liking it.

Wanted—A Booter

Of course the Irwinites, as I call the Orfuns is handicapped no end because they lack a ace booter and football teams without a kicker who can plant his No. 12 into the pigskin and land it on a spot 60 yards away is just like a ball club what has a pitcher who can't get a hop on his fast one. It's an old saying in rugby that you can't out-think a 60-yard punt and aint it the truth? Orfuns is wining plenty of credit for their fight and form and they're selling the senior game in their home community and getting ready for a big build up for next year. And after all that was about all any reasonable-minded fan could ask of the outfit in the 1st season.

It Won't Be Long

Pro hockey teams is training Mac and predicting a great season for themselves so it won't be long before Mister Foster Hewitt's excited voice will be echoing through the land and keeping all and sundry glued in front of a loudspeaker somewhere. Of course they never was hockey just as fast and thrilling as Mister Hewitt makes it over the air but it is great Saturday nite entertainment and it sure makes the country pro-hockey conscious.

Well that is the works so its all yours, Mac.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Fights In 80's Were Usually Raided By Police

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (C.P.). — Bright-eyed and alert at 81, Jack Moriarty has the floor to himself when he starts to tell of the days of bare-knuckle fighting in Toronto, when you had to keep one eye on you ropponent and the other on the lookout for the police morality squad.

The youngsters who gather at the corner gymnasiums sit wide-eyed when old Jack tells of his associations with John L. Sullivan and Gentleman Jim Corbett, or of the fight that brought him the Canadian featherweight title.

The best story in his stock, though, goes back to a raid on Albert Hall in the 80's, when Jack stayed six rounds with gloves on against Charlie Lange and was sentenced to six months in jail for doing it. He never did serve the sentence.

Lange was a member of a side-betting troupe led by Duncan Ross, world's broadsword champion. Lange's part in the show was to offer $100 to any man who could stay in the ring with him six minutes.

Moriarty, who weighed 60 pounds less than Lange's 190, needed the money and grabbed the chance. He was staggering about the ring, holding on and bleeding badly from a ribboned lip when the finish came—but he earned the $100. For six months he had to wear a silver plate in his broken nose.

As the fight ended, the police descended. Someone smuggled Jack through a back door and he hid in Danny Stone's undertaking establishment downstairs until the fuss was over.

Appeared in Court.

Two days later he was hauled into Magistrate's Court and sentenced to six months in jail for his part in the fight. A hotelman appealed his case, and hired Nicholas Murphy, famous criminal lawyer, to argue it.

Moriarty brought a pair of gloves to court and when the psychological moment came Murphy asked him to produce them. The lawyer told Judge Rose to put on the gloves and hit him on the chin. The Judge decided gloved fighting wasn't so brutal after all and dismissed Moriarty then and there.

"In those days," he recalls, "most of the fights were made in barrooms. That's where I challenged Jack Dickson when he was featherweight champion of Canada.

"We fought in the old Labor Hall and we hadn't been going very long before Dickson decided he had had enough. He hollered 'Give him the blasted medal,' and left the ring."

John L. Sullivan took Moriarty into his touring troupe after watching Jack defeat Brooklyn Jimmy Carroll. He replaced Carroll in the troupe, whose other members were Kid McCoy and Professor Joe Poppe. Jack recalls that Sullivan used to hold out a portion of his weekly salary to send to Moriarty's parents.

The tour ended in Boston and Moriarty came back to Toronto, where he continue dto fight.

Author Passes

MACON, Ga., Oct. 22.—(AP). — Harry Stillwell Edwards, 83, noted author, died of bronchial pneumonia in a hospital here early to-day. He wrote the negro folk tale "Eneas Africanus," which exceeded 1,000,000 copies since its publication in 1919.

42 Canadians Have Horses On Cesarewitch

TORONTO, Oct. 22—(CP).—More than two score Canadians, their hopes for riches soaring, awaited today the harvest of dollars that will come with the running of the Cesarewitch race in Newmarket, England, next Wednesday.

From the Irish hospital sweepstakes draw in Dublin yesterday, 41 Canadian tickets on starting horses were plucked from steel drums.

Some of these tickets are held by groups, swelling the number entitled to participate in the melon. All have a chance of winning one of the three major prizes—$150,000 for the winning horse, $75,000 for second and $30,000 for third.

In addition, 66 Canadian ticket holders are assured of approximately $2,187 each for drawing non-starters.

Three Nurses

Only a few of the lucky ones revealed their identities last night. Among them were three Saskatoon nurses, who using the nom-de-plume "Tripleta" drew a ticket on the favorite, Dubonnet, a 10-1 shot. All unmarried, they are Laura Reynolds, Margaret McCardle and Edna Graham.

An unemployed carpet weaver, father of seven, was one of the three known Toronto ticket-holders. Philip Sims, whose ticket drew Malkowicze, listed in the betting as 40-to-1, said he hoped to make a payment on a farm so as he could put his three husky sons to work—something they've never had a chance to do.

Ald. William Croft, however, contended Sims should sell a half-interest in his ticket and turn the money over to the Toronto welfare department in return for the assistance he has received during the past few years.

To A. H. Scott of Toronto, who held a ticket on Earth Stopper, a 20-to-1 shot, the money will help him realize two things—help his daughter get married and enable him to undergo medical treatment to correct his crippleness.

A race track auditor, Alec Carmichael completed the Toronto trio. Carmichael's horse is Corofin; the odds, 33-to-1

One of Group of Ten

At London, Arthur J. Chapman, factory inspector, revealed he was one of a group of 10 fellow employees who owned a ticket on Goldenshore, a 100-to-1 shot. Their pseudonym was "Living in Hope."

Ross Myder of Echo Place, near Brantford, Ont., drew Miss Windsor, a 33-to-1 shot.

Twelve Great War veterans at Vancouver shared in a ticket on Queen's Shilling, one of the longer priced entries. Thomas W. Goode, secretary-manager of the army and navy veterans associations in South Vancouver, spokesman for the group, said its nome-de-plume was "Chicken Feed."

New Sarnia Star

Probably the lightest player at his position in Canada is Trip Trepanier, ABOVE, who holds down one of the inside wing berths with Sarnia Imperials, perennial champions of the O.R.F.U. Trip scales but 161 pounds, but his aggressiveness and durability more than make up for his lack of weight.

Salt Lake City. — Sandor Szabo, 210, Hungary, and Del Kunkel, 200, Salt Lake City, drew, one hour.

FROM SPORT TO GAS MASKS

Loud speakers told spectators at a football game in Brentford, England, to go to local centers next day and be fitted for gas masks.

Bingo Kampman Showing Up As Defenceman

TORONTO, Oct. 25.—All the time Toronto Maple Leafs have been looking for a high-powered defenceman, they may have had him right in camp. At any rate, Manager Conny Smythe is liking the looks of blonde Bingo Kampman more every day—and Kampman was with the club last season.

It is known that Smythe was probing around the rest of the National Hockey League for an experienced defenceman during the off-season. Then, with the training campaign at hand, he tried to trade Charlie Conacher for a Detroit defenceman. Unsuccessful, he sold Conacher to Detroit and decided to bank on his rearguard of last season.

Yesterday Conny declared: "Bingo is the most improved player in such a short space of time that I've ever seen in my life. He's checking better, he's hitting harder and he's not afraid of anything." Smythe may have the answer to his prayers in the Kitchener boy who had just about everything but finish in 1937-38.

Cooney Weiland, veteran centre who recently assumed the duties of assistant manager, will carry on as captain of Boston Bruins, Manager Art Ross announced yesterday that Weiland, his ace-in-the-hole, will lead the team when he is on the ice, while Eddie Shore and Dit Clapper will be captain when Cooney is off.

Wilf Cude, little goalie of Montreal Canadiens who suffered a six-stitch cut in his lip early in the week when hit by a puck from the stick of Wilf Hoch, won't be back at practice until Monday. The big slit and the heavy stitching were still causing him to much bother to return to the ice today.

Lorne Carr, right winger of New York Americans who was injured in Thursday night's exhibition with New York Rangers, was discharged from hospital yesterday and accompanied the team to Saskatoon. The Americans and Rangers continue their "wheat league" series tonight at Saskatoon and strained tendons in Carr's rigth ankle are expected to be ready for the game.

Charlie Conacher is getting the ribbing of his life from his newfound Detroit mates. The Red Wings' physician was inoculating players with anti-cold serfum when someone noticed big Charlie slipping from the room. Cornered, Big Charlie admitted he was scared to death of the needle.

Sarnia's Outstanding Grid Coach

No football coach in Canada has had such continued success as Art Massucci of the Imperials. The perennial winners of the senior O.R.F.U., and former Dominion rugby champions, owe much of their success to the canny coaching of this former Michigan grid expert. He believes in heavy teams, but persistently drills his squads in fast, tricky plays, and the Imps' forward-passing has won many games. While the loss of Orm Beach has hurt the Sarnia chances some this season, the Massucci squad is still a power to be reckoned with, and local fans will see why when the Imps and Orfuns tangle here this afternoon.

Teams Facing Elimination In Rugby Series

TORONTO, Oct. 22—(CP).—Ted Reeve rallied his Queen's tricolor in the vastness of Montreal's Molson stadium today for a final stand against the unbeaten, untied football forces of McGill University, prepared and favored to finish the overthrow of one of the section's 1937 champions.

The Tricolor have been beaten two straight by Western and Toronto. Another defeat—and there is nothing to indicate they can beat the classy Redmen—would leave them hopelessly out of the fight for a playoff berth in the intercollegiate union race.

The same situation faces Peterborough Orfuns, who must meet Sarnia's mighty Imperials at home and beat them if they are to hold any hopes for a place in the Ontario union sun. The Orfuns, organized for senior football only this season, could hardly have expected to get far their first year and their elimination would scarcely rank with the overthrow of Queen's.

Decided Leadership

It will be the end of title hopes, if either had any left after two straight defeats, for the loser of the Montreal Cubs and Hamilton Tiger interprovincial union game at Hamilton The Cubs rank as slight favorites because of better performances will decide the Big Four leadership against Toronto and Ottawa, who in the day's feature clash at Toronto.

A crowd of 20,000 is expected at Varsity Stadium for the first meeting of the swift Argos, featuring speed and excellent kicking, and the bulky Riders with their smashing ground attack and lightning passes. Neither has been extended so far, yet Riders' more impressive victories have stamped them favorites over the national champions.

Second place in the O.R.F.U. and the college circuit will be at stake with Toronto Balmy Beach invading Montreal Nationals home grounds and University of Western Ontario making a home stand against University of Toronto. Both college teams have been weakened by injuries and illness to some of their aces.

Pepper Martin And His Mudcats In Vaudeville – Claim It Is Tough

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 22—(AP).—There isn't even any ember in the "hot stove" league for Pepper Martin and his mudcats—they're in vaudeville now.

Pepper and his mudcats—Jim "Rip" Collins, Bill McGee, Bob Weiland and Stanley "Frenchy" Bordagary—made their stage debut here Friday and it was harder to get them on the subject of baseball than it is to hit "five for five" off Carl Hubbell.

Pepper first brought his mudcats to fame back in the days when the St. Louis Cardinals "Gas House Gang" was rough riding its way to titles but this was their first time in vaudeville.

Now the "Gashouse Gang" has to call on Collins who played first base for the Chicago Cubs (remember them? They finished second to the Yankees in the world series.) To be their straight man.

When the mudcats trouped back to their dressing room after their first show, they were perspiring more than after a mid-summer double header in St. Louis.

"Boy, that's tough," were the first words of the "wild horse of the Osage."

"In baseball you know when you're doing all right," he said. "When you make a hit, you know you've done the right thing, but out there on that stage, you never know."

To entertain the customers Pepper and his gang play a few tunes on everything from a "git-tar" to a washboard, sing some songs and then they talk a little baseball—but very little.

Peru's comprehensive public and private construction program is booming.

"Tops Or Nothing" Is Ambition Of Maple Leaf's Newest Rookie

By Allan Nickleson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 22 (C.P.).—Walter Stanowski doesn't want to be "just a fill-in" in big-time hockey. He's got to be "tops or nothing."

"If I'm not a star in hockey, I want to hang up my skates," the 19-year-old defence star with last season's memorial Cup champions said to-day. Then Stanowski pushed back his long blond hair, took a deep breath and added: "The greatest ambition of my life is to be a professional hockey player—and a darn' good one."

Stanowski is trying out with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and so praiseworthy has been his work in training camp this week he is expected to land a contract. He probably will play this season as a forward with Syracuse Stars, the Leafs' International-American League farm team, then jump to the majors in his regular position, defence.

That's all right with Walter. "I know I need more experience, especially around the nets," he said. "I've got to polish my rough spots."

The son of a Polish father and a Ukrainian mother, Stanowski keeps in shape for the ice wars by playing rugby between seasons. A junior, he was awarded a medal as the most valuable player to his team last year and was the outstanding half-back in his league.

Canadian Rugby Believed Best

George M. Hunter is editor of the Port Huron Times-Herald. He's been a football enthusiast all his life and he used to think that the American game was about all there was to look at. But Sarnia Imperials gave him a chance to see the Canadian game a couple of years ago and now he's one of its greatest enthusiasts. Here's his verdict on the two games:

"I wish every college coach, every rule-maker and every sports writer in this country could see a few of the games played by the senior teams in the Dominion.

"They would at once cry for a change in the rules and tactics of the game on this side, so that they could see the color, the dash, the gamble of the Canadian game.

"The difference between the two games is just enough so that the pep and drama which is so often lacking from our brand of the sport, is supplied in abundant measure for Canadian fans.

"College football in the United States is just about the most over-rated sport in existence. Most of the crowds who pack the big stadia every Fall, go there to see the color and display of the crowd. The rest go to see dramatic and thrilling football which is only uncorked once or twice a season. Most of the time they are disappointed; because the games' tactically are very dull.

"Why?

"Because in the college game, the possession of the ball is so valuable that field generals do not dare take any risks. They try a couple of line plays, they punt out of danger (usually out of bounds, so the punts can't be run back) and then settle down to a tight defence. Quarterbacks don't dare call fancy plays in their own territory, for they might lose the ball. One touchdown decides a game between two fairly well-matched teams.

Wide Open Football

"With teams composed of high-class playeds, somewhere about the equal of college players in the States, we see an entirely different brand of football, once we settle ourselves down for an O.R.F.U. contest, or, better still, a playoff for the Dominion title.

"We see triple passes, quick tosses imp.. rised during a running play, long and short forward passes, quick kicks, lateral tosses from one side to the other, and with all this aerial bombardment, we see a remarkable lack of fumbling. How these boys can toss that pigskin around!

"We see giants like Hugh Stirling disporting themselves like featherweights, we see the occasional line smash for a few needed yards, we see smart quarterbacks force the opposing teams into fan-wise formation to stop a rain of passes, then a back slap through an open line for a big gain.

"These are things that delight the heart of the real football fan, and the more football the fan knows, the more he likes these thrilling exhibitions of the open game.

"I have seen Big Ten football since I was a kid. I hate to think how many years back. Except during the World War I have seen every Michigan team in four different decades. I saw Heston, I saw Eckersall, I saw the Craigs, I saw Germany Schultz, I saw Jack Blott, I saw Red Grange, I saw the Four Horsemen, I saw George Gipp, I saw Friedman and Osterbaan, I saw them all.

"But I would just as soon see a senior Canadian rugby contest as any of them. And that is a mighty broad statement, as you Canadians who are also college football fans, will realize."

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 — (AP). — Mike Jacobs, back from the coast, makes no bones about it—he's having trouble finding guys to fight Joe Louis . . . One and all are willing, but the crop ain't what it ought to be for a heavyweight title setup. . .

James J. Carroll, the big St. Louis Turf Commissioner, reports plenty of action on War Admiral at 1 to 2 against Seabiscuit in their match race . . .

Gents, it would amaze you how quick baseball got off these New York sports pages . . . Why, you wouldn't know the Yanks or Giants—much less Brooklyn—were in the league . . . All you read here now is the football doing of Fordham, and the members of the Ivy League . . . Without taking a thing away from Fritz Crisler, don't forget that Harry Kipke predicted his 1937 Michigan team—that was the year before he got the old heave-ho—would drop four games (which it did), and that his 1938 outfit would be a darned good one.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

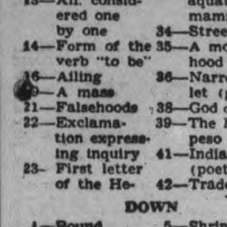
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

ASK FOR SUGGESTIONS

DON'T BE ABOVE asking your partner for advice. The successful defense may hinge upon what he holds. He knows and you don't. So if you can get him to say something about his cards, by means of a signal, strive to give him a chance to extend it to you, instead of guessing what will fit his holding.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

Bidding on this deal began with East's 1-Club. South called 1-Spade, North 2-Diamonds, East 3-Clubs, South 3-Hearts, and everybody passed.

Acting upon his partner's bid, West led the club K. East properly overtook because of the singleton possibility and led the Q. His partner's 3 made it clear West held no more of the suit, as he would have played a middle one then instead of the bottom.

Thinking West might want leads through South's spades, East now laid down the A of that suit, receiving the discouraging 2. Deciding then to build a ruffing possibility, he led the spade 9 to the K. Declarer now knocked out the diamond A and his contract was easy, no matter what East returned, by ruffing a club, dropping trumps and running spades and a diamond.

Had East, after two club tricks, led a third, West would have discarded the diamond 8, declarer ruffing in dummy with the heart 2. Now follow through the various styles of play and you will see that declarer had no remaining way to prevent losing the setting tricks.

All Evidence Is Concluded In Damage Case

Mr. Justice Keller Mackay adjourned until next Thursday morning hearing of argument by counsel in the action of A. L. Taylor, Toronto contractor against D. V. Ketcheson, for whom the plaintiff built a house in the west-end in 1936-37.

Mr. Taylor's claim is for wages and damages, and Mr. Ketcheson presented a counter-claim bulking largely of moneys paid by him to complete the work after he had torn down the walls and torn up a lot of the flooring and made other changes. A. L. Elliott represented Mr. Taylor, and G. N. Gordon was counsel for Mr. Ketcheson.

Percy Graham, carpenter, said the bricks had been taken off the whole building when he went to work at the Ketcheson house. Some of the floors were uneven, in places an inch off level. A window frame in one bedroom was from ¼ an inch to ⅝ out of the perpendicular. Two door frames had to be readjusted because the original openings "were not left large enough." The ceiling in the library was 1½ inches off level in one place, Mr. Graham said.

To Mr. Elliott witness said that in some instances alterations had to be made to a new house before the trim was put in, but not to the same extent as in this case.

Mel Turner, heating, plumbing and sheet metal contractor, said his firm had been engaged with the C.G.E. Company to install the heating, air conditioning system in the house. He related that the concrete base on which the furnace was set up, had cracked. "The ground in the cellar was frozen, and when the base was laid nothing else could be expected.

Don Clarke, carpenter, testified that water from the Weller Street hill had flowed into the cellar of the house toward spring, froze and heaved the walls, throwing partitions and floor out of line. Mr. Clarke said a weeping tile was not laid around the house "until afterward by Mr. Ketcheson's order." The concrete walls of the garage were built too low, and the window sills began to decay because they were below the grade.

Mr. Elliott objected that Mr. Gordon handed the witness a photograph of the garage while he was speaking about it.

"We cut off the 2 x 4" scantlings and added concrete to raise up the wall," witness said.

"We took up pretty much all the floors. We levelled off the joists and put down new floors. That was done in the dining-room and three bedroms, and the hall downstairs.

Mr Justice Mackay: "Could you use any of the flooring you took up?"

Mr. Clarke: "No. It was too much broken up. There were a few strips from the dining-room floor that could be used again."

Mr. Gordon stated that his evidence in defence and for the counter-claim was concluded.

Referring to an early exhibit in the case Mr. Elliott pointed out that specifications produced by Mr. Ketcheson were signed, he said, on October 22, 1936, but Mr. Taylor said he got an original copy signed on January 22, 1937. "He continued on the job from October to January until he wanted some money due him, and at that time Ketcheson presented him with the later copy and said they were an exact copy excepting some modifications written on the back."

Mr. Elliott requested Mr. Gordon to submit any evidence that would throw light on those dates.

Mr. Gordon replied that the different dates made no material difference. Mr. Taylor signed an agreement and began work, and the copy of the latter date related back to the work as carried on from the beginning with some modifications.

The Court took a recess of fifteen minutes while the defendant went home for his wife. Mrs. Gladys Ketcheson testified she had seen the specifications for the house signed on October 22, 1936, by her husband and Mr. Taylor. She said she could not recall when the modified plans were signed. Mr. Elliott asked her how many copies of the contractual agreement she had seen signed, and she answered that she had seen only one. Mr. Elliott then produced another copy which, he said, bore her signature as a witness. Mrs. Ketcheson identified her name and said she must have misunderstood which document he referred to.

"There were two copies of the specifications signed as well," Mr. Elliott said. "If you witnessed the signing of both the agreements, why didn't you witness the two specifications?"

"Evidently Mr. Taylor and Mr. Ketcheson told me that was all that was necessary."

When the case was concluded and the question of argument was being discussed, Mr. Jusitce Mackay said that he expected he might be able to give judgment next Thursday.

"At this stage, and not having heard argument, the main question seems to me how much, if any, of the claim of Mr. Taylor is to be allowed as set off against the counter-claim of Mr. Ketcheson," His Lordship commented.

Plaintiff's claim is for more than $5,300, and Mr. Ketcheson's for $8,500.

Mr. Elliott said there was the amount of $2,000 claimed by Mr. Taylor on his contract.

"Mr. Ketcheson may have to pay that or more on liens against the house," His Lordship said. "The defendant's claim seems to be pretty well substantiated by evidence. I shall have to read my notes to determine how the plaintiff's claim is supported."

Mr. Justice Mackay will be on circuit duty in Belleville and will come to Peterborough on Thursday morning to hear Mr. Elliott and Mr. Gordon in their review of the case.

Warsaw Buying Fire Equipment

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 22.—The at home given in aid of the fire protection fund on Tuesday evening, October 18, was well attended. The Leahy boys as usual provided splendid dance music.

There was a lucky draw and Miss Irene Frankish won the ladies' draw, a lovely pair of hose. Donald Forsythe won a safety razor.

The proceeds after all expenses were paid were a little over $36. This money is to pay for the truck recently purchased on which to carry the engine. It is felt that those whose fire are extinguished should pay for the chemicals used, as dances and public subscriptions are the only means of procuring funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Latta, Belleville, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Latta and will remain there for some time.

Warsaw people are quite pleased that Joe Watts won the cup in the boys' class for plowing.

Mr. Uriah Payne is over his attack of illness and was able to see the plowing match.

Rev. Howden Is Inducted At Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 22.—"In these troubled times—times of moral loss and world chaos—the task of a rector is even more difficult than ever. In these times when former standards are no longer recognized, I want you to know how much your priest needs the help and understanding of the people of his parish—how much he needs the people to understand his feelings, his aspirations and his sense of duty to them. There is no parish which does not reflect the present world unrest. Therefore the task of the church is harder than ever before, and likewise the task of the priest is harder than ever before," Dr. R. C. Blagrave, of the Church of St. Thomas in Hamilton, declared when he addressed a large congregation in St. John the Baptist Church, Lakefield on Friday evening on the occasion of the induction of Rev. Reginald Howden into the parish of St. John the Baptist Church, and into the Lakefield Preparatory School as chaplin. Dr. Blagrave, who preached the induction sermon, had also preached at the induction eleven years ago of Rev. W. J. Creighton, Rev. Howden's predecessor.

Occasion of Thanksgiving

'It is a special occasion of thanksgiving for me personally to be present on the occasion of Rev. Howden's induction into the parish and into the school. For years I have had close connection with the man and I am sure that Rev. Howden will be of great service and a guide to the school, as well as to the parish.

I have known Reg. Howden for seventeen years—during the years he attended Sunday School at St. John's Anglican Church, Peterborough where I was rector, and later while he was growing up, as a teacher in the Sunday School, and as a pupil in the Collegiate. I have followed his college carter where he headed his class in the first year as in subsequent years, and saw him make a brilliant record.

Discussing Reg. Howden with a group of business men in Peterborough, one day, I heard a lawyer say: "He is a brilliant chap. I am jealous to have him in law. He is the kind and the quality that the legal profession wants." In reply I said: "If it is the quality that the legal profession wants, it is the quality that the Church of England wants."

With only a suggestion of guidance and encouragement, Mr. Howden completed his studies at college with equal success in each year in honor classics, and carried off a number of prizes during his career as Theological College.

"You can appreciate that I am proud to preach at his induction, and to congratulate you that you have him as your rector, and chaplin. I say this with no qualms as to Rev. Howden's worthiness. I have no fear that he is not capable of the work here or anywhere that God may lead him."

The beautiful little Anglican Church lends itself to an occasion of this kind, and the crimson and black and white of the clergymen's robes silhouetted against the soft blue of the chancel, lent a note of colorful beauty to the impressive dignity of the induction service.

Took Oaths of Office

Rev. Canon J. D. Patterson of All Saints' Church, Peterborough led the opening prayer, after which Rev. Howden repeated the declaration and oaths of his office, and Rev. C. C. Moore of Young's Point, Rural Dean, read aloud the Letters of Institution and Licence.

Archbishop Owen, Primate of Canada, conducted the service of induction. While Rev. Howden knelt before Archbishop Owen's chair, the Archbishop commanded him to "Accept this charge which is mine and thine, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." The Archbishop then presented to Rev. Howden the Bible and the Book of Common Prayer, saying: "Receive these books; let them be the rule of thy conduct in dispensing God's holy word." After blessing the new rector the Archbishop led in prayer for him, and after inducting him into the real, actual, and corporal possession of the church, presented Rev. Howden with the Letters of Institution and Licence.

K. A. Mackenzie and Chas. Stenner representing the church wardens, presented Rev. Howden with the keys of the church.

Following the singing of a hymn, Archdeacon Simpson of Millbrook conducted Rev. Howden first to the font, next to the place where prayers are said, and then to the place where the lessons are read, to the pulpit and to the Lord's Table, admonishing the new rector in each case concerning use of the same in his work. To each admonition, Rev. Howden replied: 'I shall do so, the Lord being my helper.'

Then turning to the people, Archdeacon Simpson said in part: "We beseech you brethren to know and esteem them which preach the gospel and labor among you. And be at peace among yourselves."

Dr. Blagrave's address followed the induction service. On its completion, Rev. Howden spoke briefly, thanking the Archbishop, and Dr. Blagrave for his sermon, and all who had helped to make the service so impressive.

Archbishop Owen spoke briefly stating that those who believe in God and in the spiritual conception of the universe cannot be careless. "We ask you to do everything to support your new clergyman—stand by him, and give him your friendship. Help, interest and co-operation make a great difference in his, as in any sphere in life."

Visiting clergy included Archbishop Owen of Toronto, Rev. Canon Paterson of Peterborough, Archdeacon Simpson of Millbrook, Rev. W. J. Creighton, former pastor of St. John's Church, Lakefield, Rev. Canon W. T. Robertson of Peterborough, and Rev. George Bousfield and Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

Collegiate Notes

Literary Society

With the school year nicely started and with most of P.C.I.'s organizations already under way the Literary Society has decided to swing into line and will probably get started before many study periods have ticked away. The first meeting is slated for within the next couple of weeks and will be put on by the Academic third forms and 4A. These "Lit." meetings have always been a source of good entertainment and a good means of developing any hidden talents that our students possess. Probably, as in the past years, there will be one about every month, concluding about the end of February and including forms 3, 4 and 5 Academic, Special Commercial, and 3 Commercial. There is positively no end to the variety of acts which have been staged in the old assembly hall of late years. We can remember singing, imitations, plays, comedies, dramas and tragedies—yes, definitely some tragedies but not too many and there were some contributions that were really good. Who knows there may be a Deanna Durbin or a Robert Taylor wandering unnoticed through the corridors of old P.C.V.S. Who knows, indeed?

Camera Club Capers

The camera Club is swinging merrily along and despite the fact that this has been a subject worthy of note this year's club seems to be headed for bigger and better things. It has a splendid new executive and an enthusiastic group of followers, exceeding anything in this line to date. On the Camera Club bulletin board just outside the north exit of the assembly hall can be seen some fine examples of their work. Here there are some good action shots of field day and a good still picture of newly elected president of the Students' Council, Alex Young, a snap of Mr. Browne, an action picture of Bobby Parnell making a tackle in the Lindsay-P.C.I. game and a picture of "Frank Buck" Hooper with a full sized black squirrel on his shoulder. My! Oh, my! The Camera Club has now two fully equipped dark rooms and two of the best cameras and anyone interested in this line of research, no matter how limited your experience may be, is invited out.

Movie News

The second edition of the Collegiate News Reel was originally scheduled for last Friday but was postponed till Monday a.m. This one—on the subject of field day—was even better than the one previously shown. Perhaps because of the earlier delivery. But the other had it beaten in places, didn't it Ferg? There were good action pictures of the field day and some dandies around Bill Davidson's hot dog stand. The persons responsible for this splendid entertainment were John Hooper and Benny Ackerman. This column wishes to make the motion that these news reels continue. Someone please second that motion.

Rugby Ramblings

Well, it begins to look like good old P.C.I. has done it again. The Seniors have almost clinched their section championship for the fourth straight year and while the juniors are down they are not yet out, still having a narrow chance to squeeze in under the wire. Coach Bamforth's Senior squad has once again shown its superiority over anything in this neck of the woods, at least and they just might be away to another provincial title—or are we crawling out on a limb? We agree heartily with Coach Bamforth that the Garnet and Grey squad must not get too confident because this week they play in Oshawa and Oshawa teams have been known to upset the dope bucket more than once and are always tough when playing at home. Right here and now, regardless of what is to come, we would like to congratulate both Mr. Bamforth of the Seniors and Coaches David and Jim Hall of the Juniors. Mr. Bamforth, with only five or six of last year's team back has developed a good line and a fast, shifty backfield, something that has become more or less a tradition around P.C.I. since the advent of Mr. Bamforth. The juniors with Mr. David, a newcomer to this school and Jim Hall in his first attempt at coaching, have a young team that with a little luck in their first game might be well up in there now. Yes, verily the teams are a credit to the school, win, lose or draw. This Saturday they are in Oshawa for two very important contests and next Saturday they play their last scheduled home games against Lindsay. So next week lets see a real crowd down there cheering for your teams.

Sh! The Shadow

Yes, the Shadow my know, but as yet the police do not know who the marauders were who broke into the school sometime on Monday night. The unidentified amateur Al Capone forced their way into Dr. Kenner's office, tore the dials off the vault, probably in an attempt to secure some of the night school fees. Not being successful in that enterprise the thieves finally broke into the chemistry laboratory in what is thought to have been a search for some acid or explosive with which to force the stubborn safe door. Although it is thought nothing of great value was taken, the damage caused by the attempt was considerable. This was second entering of the school within a week. The previous time the thieves got some stamps from the office of the principal, Dr. Kenner.

Basketball

The hoo psport, one of the main events of the winter season is getting away to an unusually early start this year. Mr. Craig, coach of the junior basketball team, called a practice for last Tuesday and will probably continue to have two a week from now on. In previous years practices have not started until late in December or the early part of January and as the schedule opens on or about the end of that month, the teams have had to go into their opening games comparaively green.

Of course the rugby teams have several players who will probably also play basketball and this holds back things a little. Prospects for the teams look fairly good. The seniors only have two or three of last year's C.O.S.S.A. champions—Nels Foster, Harlow Cutting and Ralph Johnston, but they will have several of last year's junior Lakeshore winners—Gillespie, Craig and possibly Ascott as well as some newcomers. The juniors have several of last year's team back including Taylor, Clarke, Marshall, Amys, Ferguson and Rogow and should have a good year. More on this a little later.

Bugle Band

The Bugle Band, under the direction of the old Maestro Noel Barr, is coming along nicely now. They should be ready to do service at the Rugby team's next home game. Practices have been held nightly in the school armories and judging by the noise there after four they must have something. There are several of last year's members back and a bunch of newcomers and at least come Spring they should be ready for the Cadet corps.

Hither and Thither

We noticed where at least one of our graduates has done herself and her alma mater proud . . . Mary McPherson, who was senior girls' champion here, winning the girls' championship at the MacDonald Hall, O.A.C. track meet held last week . . . Two athletes whom many P.C.I. players will remember, McIlveen and Slemon of Bowmanville are in Guelph's Agricultural School rugby team lineup . . . The newly introduced "I've Got a Pocket Full of Dreams," was sung in Assembly Tuesday morning and Thursday we come right back with "Give Me the Ocean Wave" . . . We'll wager P.C.I. has one of the lightest backfields in the province with the average weight being about 140 . . . A couple of nice new cups would look alright in our showcase . . . Yea, verily!

Trenton Youth Dies Under Load Of Wood

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 22. — Twenty-one year-old Kenenth Moore, Trenton, was crushed to death when an automobile, loaded with cord wood, toppled over on him near the village of Stoco, five miles from Tweed, early Thursday evening. Moore was a passenger in an automobile, driven by Gerald Wycott, also of Trenton, and it is believed, Moore was outside of the vehicle attempting to prevent it from turning over when the heavy load shifted. He was instantly killed, Dr. M. G. Dales, Tweed, stated upon investigation.

A preliminary inquest was opened before Coroner Dr. Dales at Tweed, on Thursday evening, and following identification, the hearing was enlarged for one week. As a sequel to the inquest, however, Gerald Wycott was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence. The accused was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody.

The accident occurred on a concession road near Stoco when the men were returning in Wycott's car, with a load of cord wood piled in the rear of a sedan. In some manner, the load is believed to have shifted, Moore getting out and proceeding to the low side of the vehicle to assist in the righting of the load. In some unaccountable manner the heavy vehicle toppled over into a six-foot ditch, pinning Moore beneath the vehicle as it dropped. He was badly crushed, police revealed upon releasing the body. Wycott escaped with minor injuries, when the car turned over in the ditch.

Chief Constable J. C. Hayes of Tweed, and Provincial Constable William McBrien of Belleville conducted the investigation.

of his deputy minister and Hugh Plaxton, Liberal member of parliament for Toronto-Trinity.

Of all the subsequent negotiations between Hahn and the war office, facilitated by General LeFleche, the minister said he had a general knowledge transmitted to him by his deputy.

Canada needed 7,000 Bren machine guns and needed them quickly when Major Hahn, seeking munitions orders, was introduced to General LaFleche by Mr. Plaxton on Oct. 9, 1936, the minister said.

On his own initiative and aided by General LaFleche and himself, Hahn had obtained the confidence of the British war office. The Canadian officials were cognizant at all times of the need for speed in getting the guns and the savings that could be effected if the Inglis Company could get a complementary contract from the British war department.

Mr. Mackenzie readily admitted all he knew of Major Hahn and his company was what had been told him by his deputy minister and Hugh Plaxton. He did not know and does not yet know who Major Hahn's business associates were. He had the Bank of Montreal's reference as to Hahn's financial standing and only the best reports from those sources which had given him information.

Of details of the contract, Mr. Mackenzie said he left them entirely in the hands of his "trusted officals in whom I had and still have the utmost confidence."

Burglar Is Routed

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 22. — (CP).—A burglar working stealthily in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Rowe, Brantford, was routed early today without any loot after he had been struck on the head by a heavy willow waste paper basket. Mrs. Rowe threw the basket from the top of the stairway as she discovered the intruder ascending the stairs.

Hobo King Saws Wood In First Movie, Offered $108 But Sues For $50,000

Hollywood, Oct. 22 (AP).

HAVING seen the picture in which he made his movie debut, Jeff Davis, king of hoboes, is all the more certain he is entitled to the $50,000 for which he is suing a studio.

"Why, I appear in six scenes, and in one of them I'm sawing wood for about 10 minutes," Jeff said excitedly. "There's no mistake about it being that old bald head of mine."

Although pleased with the evidence of his histronic ability, he was just as elated over his work as technical adviser.

"I made them throw away about 200 blankets," he said. 'They had Bob Burns carrying a blanket. I told them 'He ain't no blanket stiff,' an explained the difference between a blanket stiff and a real hobo. They cut out all the blankets."

Davis' suit comes up in court Oct. 31. The hobo king claims he received only $108 for his work as technical adviser and actor, and that the studio offered him only $47 more, which he refused.

Hogg Sees Thunder Bay Expansion; May Buy Kam Power Out

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 22—(CP).—Proposals for purchase by the Ontario Hydro Commission of Kaministiquia Power Company contracts and equipment, long advocated by the Fort William Hydro Commission, were discussed with renewed vigor, here Friday coincident with the visit of members of the Provincial Commission.

Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario body, discussed the Kaministiquia situation last night in addressing 250 Thunder Bay business men at a dinner arranged by Port Arthur Public Utilities Commission.

The chairman forecast expansion of the Thunder Bay power system, explaining the system's primary load reached 95,824 horse power of the 100,000 dependable capacity in September.

"It may be desirable to commence another project comparatively soon so that within two or three years, depending upon expected load growth, it will be available for use," he said. "The interests of the Thunder Bay system are too large to be satisfied by small palliative measures."

"The fact that the Kam Power Company supplies the greater portion of the industrial load of Fort William prevents the Municipal Hydro Commission from getting the benefit of diversity between the industrial load and the lighting and commercial load and this involves a severe economic loss," Mr. Hogg said.

A Deal On?

"Efforts heretofore made to find a solution to this problem have not been under negotiation. While the basis which promises successful settlement has been visualized and has been unde negotiation. While the moment for consummation has not yet arrived, the Commission will endeavor to bring the matter to a successful conclusion as soon as the time is ripe."

(A Fort William report yesterday said purchase of the Kaministiquia Power Company, owned by Abitibi Power and Paper Company, is under consideration by the Provincial Commission, but a deal is not likely until the newsprint situation improves and the Abitibi Company is out of receivership.

Dr. Hogg discussed the question of power cost to the mining area east of Port Arthur, saying the element of risk in the life of a mine led the Commission to set a period of 10 years as the time in which payments for power would write off the capital expenditure. When a diversity developed between loads the question of reducing rates to mines should receive consideration, he added.

Power needs of Thunder Bay district are being surveyed by Dr. Hogg; Commissioners Hon. W. L. Houck and J. Albert Smith; R. T. Jeffrey, chief municipal engineer and acting secretary and controller; T. J. James, municipal engineer; and John Drelee, assistant chief engineer.

OBITUARY

JAMES HENRY SAVIGNY

Death came to James Henry Savigny, retired grocer and merchant, at his home at 116 McDonnel street on Friday evening. In his 68th year, he had caught a cold at Roseneath Fair a week ago and pneumonia had set in.

A grocer and merchant on Water street for many years, he retired about ten years ago. He was an elder in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and a member of the I.O.O.F., Peterborough Lodge.

He was born in Otonabee township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Savigny, and had lived in this district all his life.

Surviving besides his sorrowing wife, the former Mary Donaldson, are one brother, Lorne of Pennsylvania; and one sister, Mrs. R. S. Merrell of Montreal.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Japanese Typhoon Kills 226, Hurts 590

TOKYO, Oct. 22.—(CP-Havas).—Train services were disrupted, liner sailings cancelled and 23,000 houses in Tokyo flooded as result of a typhoon which struck Eastern Japan, including Tokyo and Yokohama, early today. (Reuters News Agency reported 226 persons were killed and 590 injured.)

(The Reuters report said thousands of homes collapsed and washed away in floods in the Kagoshima district of Kyushu, southermost main island of Japan, then struck the Tokyo and Yokahama district. An estimated 35,000 were said to have been left homeless.)

The 6,000-ton British freighter Hatterlock broke her mooring chains and drifted ashore but her crew was believed safe. Twenty-three fishing boats were missing off Chosi, in Chiba Prefecture. The typhoon passed northeast toward the Pacific.

The Japanese freighter Totei Maru also snapped her lines and grounded.

Traffic and communications in Tokyo suburbs were suspended.

Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First

Never Give Your Children Unknown "Bargain" Remedies To Take—Unless You Ask Your Doctor. Unknowingly You May Be Risking Their Health —Just To Save A Few Pennies

A MOTHER may save a few pennies giving her children unknown, unproved preparations. But the life of a child is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

When giving the common children's remedy, Milk of Magnesia, never ask for "Milk of Magnesia" alone—but always ask for "Phillips'."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation — marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—it is a fact that anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Hungary Sets Wednesday As Deadline

Demands Must Be Met Or Army To Move; Hint Poles To Aid

By Louis Matzhold
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BUDAPEST, Oct. 24—(AP).—Hungary was said by well-informed sources today to have set Wednesday as a deadline for Czechoslovakia to comply with her territorial demands.

Unless Czechoslovakia makes a satisfactory reply by that time, it was said, the Hungarian army would start marching across the border.

It was stated in diplomatic circles that the Polish army would march into Ruthenia at the moment Hungary starts an advance into Slovakia. (Official circles in Warsaw declared these reports were "false," asserting that Poland's aim was for a peaceful settlement with Czechoslovakia.)

The Hungarian government last night announced that Prague's latest territorial proposals had been rejected as unsatisfactory because they left important Hungarian towns under Czechoslovak sovereignty.

Street demonstrations took place all over Hungary with hundreds of thousands of participants demanding "immediate occupation" of the disputed areas.

Just A Bluff?

Foreign diplomatic observers were inclined to believe, however, that Hungary could not afford to endanger the peace of middle Europe at a moment when she already had been offered much territory by Czechoslovakia which, since the Great War, had seemed lost forever

Hungary objected to Czechoslovakia's most recent offer on the ground that cities like Bratislava were not included in the territory to be ceded and because her requests for plebiscites in Ruthenia and Slovakia were ignored.

It was understood the Prague offer closely resembled the "Hitler plan" which, however, was said to take into consideration numerous economic and strategic necessities for the new Hungarian-Czechoslovakia border.

According to German suggestions the Slovak capital, Bratislava, in which Slovaks, Germans and Hungarians are represented in almost equal numbers, should become a free city. This, Hungary and Slovakia were said to have accepted.

The "Hitler plan," it was said, did not include plebiscites in Slovakia and Ruthenia as Hungary demanded, nor a common Hungarian-Polish border at the eastern end of Czechoslovakia.

3 Officers Drown

BUCHAREST, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Three officers were drowned today when a seaplane of the Rumanian navy's Constanza squadron crashed in the Black Sea near Jurilofka. A fourth man swam ashore.

The plane, which had been ordered to investigate the sinking of another, with two men aboard, fell almost in the same spot as the first.

Death Upon Gambling Rabbi 'Feels Neck' As Wife Wins Sweep

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)

RABBI Samuel Sachs, outspoken opponent of gambling and sweepstakes particularly, admitted today he was "terribly embarrassed" when he learned his wife was among seven people sharing an Irish sweepstakes ticket that drew a non-starter. They will split about $2,175.

"I am terribly embarrassed by the whole affair," the Rabbi said. "If it were my money I would donate the whole amount to the United Welfare Fund, and I shall certainly do my best to persuade my wife to do just that."

An innocent game of mah jong for insignificant stakes caused the trouble. When the game was finished, the women decided to share 10 tickets, costing $25.

Eleven Million U.S. Workmen Get Wages Set

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP)—Far-reaching federal labor standards went into effect today, putting a floor under the wages and a ceiling over the hours of an estimated 11,000,000 workingmen in the United States.

This regulation of virtually all persons in interstate commerce represented the broadcast industrial legislation since the National Recovery Act was found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Administrator Elmer Andrews took time from cleaning up a multitude of details to tell in a broadcast address that the new program was not designed to "hound business," but should become a pillar of a sound economic system.

"Its purpose is to protect business," he said, "to guard decent employers against the ruinous competitors whose only weapon is low prices based upon low wages and long hours for those who produce their goods.

"Its further purpose, and I think its most far-reaching purpose, is to assure a steady stream of purchasing power in this country."

The New Law

The major provisions of the new statute follows:—

1. A minimum wage of 25 cents an hour is established. This will be raised to 30 cents Oct. 24, 1939, and to 40 cents after Oct. 24, 1945.

2. The maximum work week is fixed at 44 hours, to be reduced to 42 hours after Oct. 24, 1939, and to 40 hours after Oct. 24, 1940. Employment above those levels must be compensated for in cash at time and a half rates.

3. Employment is prohibited for children under 16 in a mining or manufacturing occupation, and for children under 18 in an industry declared to be hazardous. Limited employment is permitted for children 14 or 15 in other industries.

The act exempts either in whole or in part seasonal industries, certain agricultural occupations, professional men, executives, administrators, learners, handicapped persons and employees of companies regulated by the interstate commerce commission.

45 Indicted In Gigantic Fraud Issue

U. S. Loses 15 Million As Liquor Ring Cheates on Taxes

NEW YORK, Oct. 24—(AP).—Forty-four men and one woman were indicted by federal grand jury today on charges of defrauding the United States government of at least $15,000,000 in taxes through an illicit liquor ring operating in five United States cities and Canada.

Raymond P. Whearty, assistant United States attorney characterized the case as "one of the biggest of the alcohol tax unit has developed against illegal still operators."

The indictment was returned before federal judge William Bondy.

"Conservative estimates based on the treasury agents' investigation of this case have convinced us that this gang produced at least 3,500,000 gallons of 190-proof alcohol for illicit distribution," Whearty said.

The indictment set forth that the bulk of the liquor was shipped between 1931 and 1937 to Canada, Detroit, Boston, Buffalo, Newark and New York.

Federal agents, the indictment said, traced the ring's production plants to Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Rockland and Dutchess counties, with Newburgh, N.Y., named as the centre of the gang's activities.

Gales And Snow Lash Midwest

CHICAGO, Oct. 24—(AP).—Snow, gales and sub-freezing temperature marked winter's arrival to portions of the middle western United States during the weekend.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper Michigan peninsula felt the brunt of a storm that disrupted power and communication lines, impeded highway traffic and imperilled Upper Lakes shipping.

The snow ranged from wisps in Chicago to eight inches at Ishpeming, Mich. Snowplows went into action on highways near the Wisconsin-Michigan border.

A power failure caused a temporary shutdown of Redwing, Minn., factories. Phillips, Wis., was without power for 12 hours. Broken telephone and telegraph communication lines isolated several Wisconsin communities.

A 40-mile northwest gale churned Lakes Michigan and Superior. Michigan state ferry service at the Straits of Mackinac was suspended for a day.

Fog Blankets London

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(CP-Havas).—Heavy fog over London's suburbs caused one death today as trains, buses and private drivers were delayed. A motorcyclist was killed on the Maidstone-Wrotham road.

In some suburbs east of London the early morning visibility was only 90 feet. Somewhat better visibility at Croydon made it possible to continue air services from the airport there. The air ministry reported a heavy fog over Yorkshire and South Wales.

Freighter 26 Hours Late In First Storm

GODERICH, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP)—Two big lake freighters put into port here early today, hours overdue after the first severe storm of the fall.

Sultana, carrying corn from Chicago, docked at this Lake Huron port 26 hours late. The Superior, 20 hours behind schedule, arrived shortly afterward. Sultana rode at anchor off the harbor during the night, waiting for the sea to calm, but the Superior ploughed through.

During the weekend more than 75 vessels sought shelter off Detour, Mich., with others riding at anchor in St. Mary's River.

Skippers reaching here prophesied bad weather ahead, with the "glass" dropping. A stiff southwest wind whipped Lake Huron today.

FACES MANSLAUGHTER

HAMILTON.—As a result of the accident in which Thomas E. C. Shooter, 21, was fatally injured, J. J. Mackay, driver of the car which collided with one operated by Shooter, appeared in magistrate's court today on a charge of manslaughter.

Proved Possession

Perhaps the most poignant picture of the gridiron season was snapped off the field of play Saturday night. It shows Billy, 3-year-old son of Coach Bill Irwin of the Orfuns—who had just defeated Sarnia—as the photographer found the little fellow, sound asleep in bed, hanging grimly onto a football autographed for him by all the Orfuns' players. The picture tells its own story of proud possession. Billy was born three years ago, a few days before his dad, then playing for Balmy Beach, was due to meet the same Sarnia squad on the gridiron.

Jamaicans Rise Early To Welcome King Arriving For Three Weeks' Vacation

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 24 (CP)

JAMAICANS arose early today to welcome Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, as he arrived here for a vacation.

Mayor Robertson of Kingston, representatives of the governor and of the island military and naval forces were among the members of the reception party. The mayor said Jamaica was honored by Mr. King's choice of a vacation land and expressed hope the Canadian statesman would benefit from his stay here.

Accompanying the Prime Minister was Dr. O. D. Skelton, Canadian Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs. The Prime Minister and Dr. Skelton were driven through the city after their arrival, in compliance with Mr. King's wish to see Jamaica's public buildings.

Prime Minister King thought he would be here for about three weeks.

Cadi Dislikes To Part Newlyweds So He Lets Farmer Off In Theft

LINDSAY, Ont. Oct. 24—(CP)—Harvey Fleming, Hillhead farmer, was given two years suspended sentence by Magistrate E. A. Gee here today on a charge of stealing 35 chickens from the farm of W. A. McNevin, Reaboro, Oct. 3. Fleming pleaded not guilty. He was ordered to make resitution.

Louis Rice, local poultry dealer, stated that he had purchased the chickens, later identified as those stolen from McNevin, from the accused the night the birds were stolen. Fleming swore that he was at home in bed at the time Rice states he sold him the birds. Mrs. Fleming, a bride of three weeks, substantiated her husband's evidence.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Gee stated he did not wish to separate the newlyweds by imposing a jail sentence. "I believe you are the tool of an accomplished scoundrel," he told the accused.

New Steel Tanker

SOREL, Que., Oct. 24 (C.P.). — Largest of its kind every built in Canada, the all-welded steel oil tanker Petrolite glided smoothly into the waters of the Richelieu here on Saturday as cheering crowds watched the launching from both banks of the river.

Marilyn Grant Mechin, daughter of an Imperial Oil executive in Montreal, broke the traditional bottle across the bow. The ship will enter the Pacific Coast service of the Imperial Oil Shipping Company, Limited.

Hellebore for Ginger In Pumpkin Pie Gets Family Down

Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)

FIVE MEMBERS of a Port Hope family were back at home today after treatment in hospital for poisoning from hellebore used in error for ginger in a pumpkin pie, eaten Saturday noon.

Hellebore is used commonly for spraying plants and flowers and is the same color as ginger.

The five were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Wakely and their three children.

Experts Predict 4 Million New Cars In '39

DETROIT, Oct. 24—(AP).—New shiny automobiles rolling off the assembly lines in their hundreds of thousands, promise pay cheques for additional thousands of workers in the industry and its many associated businesses this fall and winter.

Competent observers predicted almost 800,000 cars would be turned out before the end of this year, and foresaw a drive toward 4,000,000 output in 1939.

That would be far in excess of the output for the present callendar year. Since Jan. 1, approximately 1,650,000 1938 models have been produced. If the manufacturers succeed in turning out 800,000 1939 models by Dec. 31, the year's total would approximate 2,450,000 units.

Developments of the past week in the automobile industry caused Ward's reports, one of the leading trade publications, to boost earlier estimates of 1939 potential output to "between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 cars and trucks." Motorcar makers said Ward's "have been too conservative in gauging their market."

The developments have been:

1. General Motors announced 35,000 workers would be added to its present payrolls by Nov 1, and salaries of those earning lees than $300 a month would be raised in a move designed to restore levels attained before cuts were made last winter.

2. Chrysler Corporation similarly announced an increase in working personnel and cut-restoring wage increases.

3. Ford Motor Company will recall additional thousands, the number unspecified. It has been adding about 1,000 a week for the last month. To-day the company exhibits its new models to newspapermen an trade journal representatives.

Trapped In Car Man Escapes From Little Lake

Trapped in a closed car after the machine had hurtled out of control into the cold waters of Little Lake, William Phillips of Lakefield had a miraculous escape from death Saturday night when he saved his life by breaking the rear window of the automobile and climbing out. The accident happened near the end of Crescent street, just opposite the residence of Frank Kitney, superintendent of the Little Lake Cemetery. Phillips was making a turn outside the main gate of the cemetery when in some manner or other, probably through his stepping on the accelerator instead of the brake, his car got out of control and shot off the roadway, mounted the curb, ran over the grassy embankment and down the rip-rap breakwater straight into the lake.

20 Feet from Shore.

Before it came to a stop almost on its nose it had travelled twenty feet from shore and was almost completely submerged, only the rear portion of the top and part of the back window being above the surface. The driver frantically striking at the window with his hands succeeded in breaking the glass and pulling himself out after which he climbed to the top of the car and shouted for help.

There were no eye-witnesses of the accident which happened about 9.30 o'clock but Mr. Kitney was in his back yard at the time and heard Phillip's shouts.

The driver was sitting on top of the car when he ran to the scene and was brought to shore in a short time in a boat. He was suffering from shock and chill, and his hands and wrists had been cut by glass but otherwise he escaped unscathed from a terrifying experience.

Fortunately for Phillips the water was shallow for some distance from the shore at the point where his car went in. Had the accident occurred a little farther west on Crescent street the machine would have been submerged in many feet of water.

School Costs Jump

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 24 (C.P.).—Consolidation of schools in Michigan has failed to halt the rising cost of education in Michigan, a state education survey released to-day showed.

School districts have been reduced from 9,000 to 6,604 during the ten-year period. Operating costs in 1933-34 were $61.60 for each pupil, and last year reached $77.87 a pupil.

Largest factor was $10,000,000 salary increase to teachers since 1933-34. Average salary for Detroit teachers was $2,453, in smaller rural areas the average salary was $795.55 a year.

Jap Army, Navy Vie In Race To Enter Hankow, Chinese In Full Retreat

British say Gunboat Bombing Negligence; Kai Shek Reported Disheartened And Ready to Quit for "Some Other Man"

SHANGHAI, Oct. 25—(Tuesday)—Japanese Army and Navy units were racing early today for the honor of being the first to enter Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Japan's spokesmen here professed to expect news of the fall of the city momentarily.

Japanese dispatches said thousands of Chinese soldiers were retreating en masse on all Yangtse river fronts and that the whole defence system of the Wuhan area, embracing Hankow, was crumbling.

Nowhere was effective Chinese resistance being offered, the Japanese declared.

Protest to Tokyo

LONDON, Oct. 24—(AP).—Officials said today that Sir Robert Craigie, British ambassador to Tokyo, had protested to the Japanese government the bombing of the gunboat Sandpiper without waiting for instruction from London.

The Sandpiper, 185-ton British river craft, was bombed by Japanese aircraft at Changhsha, 200 miles southwest of Hankow, and suffered damage to her superstructure but no casualties.

Sir Robert's protest, it was said, was made to the Japanese vic-minister for foreig naffairs, presumably orally.

An authorized spokesman said it appeared the bombing was due to negligence. It was added British naval authorities have given the Japanese day-to-day information on the positions of all British shipping in China waters. Thus, the spokesman said, it would seem that the Japanese naval authorities must have know the Sandpiper's position before the bombing occurred.

Kai-Shek to Quit?

HONG KONG, Oct. 24 (C.P.-Havas). — General Chiang Kai-Shek is disheartened by military reverses and ready to resign to let "some other man" attempt to save "what remains of China," Chinese sources declared here to-day.

It was said peace talks have started in this British Crown Colony between unidentified Japanese emissaries and representatives of Wang Ching-Wei, president of the Political Council of the Kuomintang and former Premier.

(At London, Chinese Ambassador Quo Tai-Chi said reports Chiang intended to resign were groundless. He also denied reports that Dr. Wang Chung-Hui, Chinese Foreign Minister, and Wang Ching-Wei had gone to Hong Kong to discuss mediation with diplomatic representatives of foreign Powers.)

Informed sources here said that the Foreign Minister and the Chinese Vice-Foreign Minister, Tseng Yung-Pu, were in this city.

A Chinese source attached to the alleged Chinese "peace group" told Havas to-day that Chiang "had virtually resigned" and was prepared "to retire to the interior."

Fires Threaten To Wipe Out All Of Canton

CANTON, Oct. 24—(AP).—A gigantic conflagration threatened to destroy this south China metropolis today as fires roared into residential districts after burning out the business sections.

Japanese dynamite squads blasted firebreaks around the burning areas in an attempt to halt the spreading flames, while foreign volunteers aided in trying to save foreign buildings.

Dynamite was the only weapon the fire-fighters could use since the blasting of Canton's reservoirs before the Chinese fled had completely disrupted water supplies.

Some small fires broke out in the international settlement on Shameen Island, but were quickly extinguished and a shift of the wind carried the flames away from the island after a mile of waterfront buildings across the 80-foot creek had been destroyed.

Many buildings on the island were damaged yesterday by three terrific explosions of munitions which the Chinese had abandoned in Wongsha railway station. The blasts scattered fragments over the entire settlement, breaking windows and blowing out shutters.

An Associated Press photographer near the station at the time was hit in the back by falling stones.

The Saichuen and Honan districts of the city were the worst damaged. Buildings destroyed included the ministry of finance, provincial and municipal headquarters, a Buddhist temple, several hotels and the post office.

There was no official estimate of the damage, but unofficially it was believed to run as high as $10,000,000.

Flames mounted 150 feet high during the night and today a vast,

Find Secret Of Long Life Depends On Calcium Your Ancestors Ate

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

CHAPEL HILL, N.C., Oct. 24—(AP).—A new secret of lone life—that it depends partly on the calcium your ancestors ate—was announced to the United States Academy of Sciences here to-day.

Prof. H. C. Sherman of Columbia University told the Academy that if a family is fed a rich calcium diet, the result add up in the second and later generations.

The amount of calcium in the descendants is increased, they live longer.

The discovery explains why scientists have been saying: "To live long you should choose long-lived ancestors."

This saying came from a study of human life statistics. The Columbia discovery shows how this can be put to practical use to produce a long-lived family or a long-lived nation.

It is a new development of previous studies by which Dr. Sherman five years ago predicted that the human life span can be lengthened ten years.

In that work he showed that a person can expect to lengthen his own life somewhat, even irrespective of an ancestor, by the right diet, not only of calcium, but of vitamins and other food essentials.

The present work was done by him in collaboration with H. L. Campbell and C. S. Lanford of Columbia's Chemistry Department.

Dr. Sherman emphasized that the discovery does not come from dealing with deficiencies in diet. The changes have been made with diets which are all to-day accepted as both adequate and good.

It has been found that there is a "range" within these good diets in which seeming miracles may be accomplished by varying the proportions, especially of calcium.

There were four sets of Ontario license plates in the car, the officer stated.

BUDAPEST. — The Hungarian government today demanded that areas in Czechoslovakia with preponderantly Hungarian populations be opened to occupation by Hungarian troops without further delay. A communique said Hungary's demands would be submitted to arbitration by a German and Italian jury if Czechoslovakia refused to meet them.

Balky Motor Strands 2 Families All Night As 20 Boats Comb Lake For Launch

ORILLIA, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)—Adrift all night on Lake Couchiching in an open launch whose engine went dead, five Orillia persons made their way to safety when the engine suddenly started up again early today.

The five were Reginald Lee, 60, grocery store proprietor, and his wife, their son Stanley, 22, and his wife Muriel, 21, and their four-year-old daughter, Beverley. The youngster slept all night in her mother's arms.

As many as 20 boats at different times during the night searched for them. At daybreak an airplane, piloted by Gordon Welstead, instructor of the Orillia Flying Club, joined the search.

Just before they were sighted by the plane on a rocky shoal close to Chief Island, opposite the Rama Indian Reserve on the east shore of the lake, the stubborn engine started to run. Stanley Lee got the boat off the shoal and it made its way back to the municipal wharf under its own power.

Stanley Lee, a bread driver, had his breakfast and immediately went out on his route as if nothing had happened. The rest of the adults, tired and exhausted from cold and the harassing experiences of the night, went to bed. The only exception was the little girl, who had been wrapped up with a piece of canvas sail cloth and slept most of the night in spite of the rocking of the boat. When she got home she said: "I want to play."

The party left Orillia at 1.30 p.m. for a Sunday sight-seeing ride. They turned at Washago, late in the afternoon, they said, the engine sputtered and stopped near Lighthouse Island, about three miles from Orillia.

Arctic Circle Sees End Of Daily Papers As Air Rates Jump To $1.40 a Pound

EDMONTON, Oct. 24 (CP) — Protests that increased air mail rates to northern points served from Edmonton will prevent receipt of newspapers were heard here Saturday from persons arriving by rail from northern points.

Mrs. S. Jenkins, who came from Fort Fitzgerald, said residents of that post "were up in arms It simply means there won't be any newspapers up there. We are so used to reading the daily newspapers now that it will be a great inconvenience."

Eric Nichols, returning to Edmonton after a summer's employment at Yellow Knife, said permanent residents of that mining town had protested the rates were prohibitive. He said "It certainly is hard on those who are living in the north all the time."

The new rates on second class reading matter to Alberta, Saskatchewan and Northwest Territories points went into effect Oct. 1. A flat rate of four cents a pound to all points was replaced by a new schedule with rates as high as $1.20 and $1.40 to Arctic points such as Aklavik near the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

The new rate to Fort Fitzgerald near the Alberta-N.W.T. boundary is 25 cents a pound while the cost of shipping newspapers and periodicals to Yellowknife and Fort Rae on Great Slave Lake, and Port Radium on Great Bear Lake was raised from four cents a pound to 70 cents a pound.

Reports from Goldfields, Sask., Saturday said the new rates made reading of newspapers "practically prohibitive," with cost of a daily newspaper for a year estimated at $25 besides the cost of subscription.

British Gunboat Bombed By 6 Jap Planes; Crew Escapes Injury

Naval Officers Doubt Attack Accidental; Japs Force U.S. Liner To Yield Silver Cargo Before Leaving Shanghai

By Morris Harris (Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 24.—(AP).—Japanese aerial bombing of a British warship and a customs dispute over an American passenger liner to-day added two new incidents to the long list of international complications in the China war.

Bombs from six Japanese planes fell about and damaged the super - structure of the British gunboat Sandpiper, anchored at Changsha, about 200 miles southwest of Hankow. There were no casualties.

The bombing damage to the British gunboat was the most serious to a foreign man of war since the United States gunboat Panay was sunk in the Yangtse River last Dec. 12, with death to four foreigners, and the British gunboat Ladybird was shelled with one seaman killed.

British naval officials said they "vigorously protested" the bombing of the Sandpiper.

The incident followed a Japanese warning to foreign vessels Saturday to withdraw from the Hankow area to avoid dangers of a massed aerial bombardment.

Japanese planes bombed Hankow rail centres all day Sunday and to-day's 20-mile advance brought Japanese naval forces to within 20 air miles of the China capital, but the foreign warships remained at their Hankow anchorages.

British naval officers here doubted the bombing was accidental. (The Admiralty office in London and the naval office in Tokyo early to-day had not received a formal report of the incident.)

U.S. Liner Held Up

A customs dispute arose over Japanese refusal to clear the Dollar liner President Coolidge early to-day for San Francisco, with a cargo of silver valued at more than $4,000,000 which the Japanese-sponsored government apparently considered its property.

The Dollar Line agreed to unload the silver, whereupon permission was granted to sail at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Chinese customs officials on Sunday issued permits for export of the silver and for departure of the Coolidge, and passengers took the tender to board her in midstream before Japanese officials cancelled the permits.

Clarence Grauss, United States Consul-General, was understood to have referred the matter to Washington.

The silver, loaded under United States Marine guard, was reported consigned to the Chase National Bank of New York.

The Japanese-sponsored Government of Shanghai with the co-operation of Japanese military and naval authorities effected cancellation of the clearance papers.

The President Coolidge was the first American passenger liner to call at Shanghai since the President Hoover was bombed during the Japanese siege of Shanghai in August, 1937.

Hankow Chinese To Dynamite Jap Property

HANKOW, Oct. 24. — (AP).—Chinese began wiring Japanese properties for retaliatory explosives today as the Japanese offensive reached to within 20 miles of Hankow.

To Japanese protests, the Chinese replied they would give 24 hours' notice if they decided to destroy the mined buildings. Some are in a proposed safety zone.

A Chinese officer directed workmen who drilled holes into the foundation of one building, the Yokohama bank.

Authoritative informants said other Chinese-owned structures similarly were wired so they could be blown up.

The capital was preparing for the worst but order prevailed despite steady aerial bombardment all day Sunday of railroad terminals on both banks of the Yangtze.

Foreigners took heart that foreign warships remained at their anchorages despite a Japanese request that they leave the danger zone. They intended to maintain their anchorages, the naval commanders were understood to have informed the Japanese.

Majority Of Troops Quit Old Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Oct. 24 (A.P.). — The bulk of British troops withdrew from the old City of Jerusalem today after smashing the grip of Arab insurgents. British military machine gun units still occupied strategic positions on the ancient walls, while police replaced troops.

The insurgents' campaign of arson and terrorism continued unabated, however, in other parts of the Holy Land. A Jew was injured in a Jerusalem suburb yesterday when an unidentified assailant attacked him with an axe.

Authorities placed a 24-hour curfew on Hebron after the slaying of a policeman and the burning of a synagogue and a Jewish school.

The great Moslem fast of Ramadan began to-day after a week-end in which 40 Arabs were slain and scores wounded. British losses were confined to one dead and several wounded.

Would Give Hitler All But Tanganyika

LONDON, Oct. 24 (C.P.-Havas).—Sir Arnold Wilson, Conservative member of Parliament, yesterday proposed the return of all Germany's pre-war colonies except Tanganyika as part of a general international settlement.

Writing in the Observer (Conservative), Sir Arnold said that all nations, including Germany, should be asked to make some contribution to the general settlement.

"Others than ourselves are, of course, involved, notably France and the Dominions," Sir Arnold said. "I cannot believe that their statesmanship will prove unequal to the occasion."

He expressed the hope that return of its former colonies to the Reich will satisfy Chancellor Hitler's expansionist aims and reduce international tension to the vanishing point.

3 Saved In Boat

SANDUSKY, O., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Three men adrift in small boats in Lake Erie were rescued yesterday by United States coastguardsmen from the Marblehead Station. C. A. Weingates, 73, president of the Sandusky City Commission, and former Police Chief, and a man companion were rescued after the freighter Riverton reported their drifting boat to the coastguard.

Wrist watches from America are to be sold in East Africa.

Opposing Leaders In Mexico

Here are the opponents whose quarrel precipitated Mexico's second rebellion of this year. On the LEFT is General Jose Tafolla Caballero, military commander of the Pacific coast state of Sonora. On the RIGHT is General Roman Yocupicio, governor of the state. Conservative-radical friction is the root of the present trouble with General Caballero and his Agrarians and labor unionists lined up against the Conservative regime of Governor Yocupicio. At latest report General Caballero was marching in open revolt at the head of a numerous "farmers'" army.

Lots Of Pheasants Left For '39 Shoot As Few Hunters Bag Quota

TORONTO, Oct. 24 — (CP). — There will be plenty of of pheasants for Ontario nimrods to hit or miss when the season opens next year. There was plenty of missing as huntsmen in 50 townships took advantage of a two-day shoot at the week-end and cagy birds took protection from shot-gun fire in thick underbrush.

There was probably a record turnout of hunters who took advantage of springlike weather but there was also a record for wasted shells as few hunters were reported to have bagged the legal limit of three birds.

Most of the pheasants who survived the barrage will have a year's rest but at Pelee Island, the birds will have to be on their best dodging behavior again next Thursday and Friday.

The quota on the Lake Erie isle is five birds and huntsmen are hoping the protective shrubbery will be stripped by frosts to make their task easier in the next two-day shoot. For the shoot just concluded nimrods came by air and water and few bagged the full quota.

Only One Mishap

Only one shooting accident was reported. Bertram Graham, 22-year-old Toronto duck hunter practically severed his index finger when he reached for his gun which accidentally discharged as he was seated in the bow of a skiff being pushed through the marsh at Mud Lake, 10 miles east of Orillia. The finger was amputated in Orillia hospital.

Norfolk county's shoot, confined to the townships of Windham and Townsen, attracted more than 500 sportsmen. The concensus was that birds were plentiful but hard to get. The two townships netted about $348 through issuing licenses.

Regulations appeared to be followed thoroughly by hunters, with few cases of infractions being reported. Game wardens at Pelee Island said several hen pheasants were taken from over-eager nimrods—one of the five birds allowed may be a hen. No arrests were made.

In Toronto D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of Game and Fisheries for Ontario, said the hunters were "well behaved." Reeve Clayton Hunter of Windham said he thought a one-day shoot would have been sufficient.

Jail Spiritualists For Killing Maid

HOUGHTON, Mich., Oct. 24. — (AP).—The sheriff of Houghton county to-day held a man and his wife accused of killing their 19-year-old housekeeper with a flat-iron at their residence in nearby Dollar Bay to satisfy a spiritual urge.

The victim was Marian Doyle. In custody are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pichette, each 35 years old.

The slaying was dicovered after the Pichettes went to a Calumet, Mich., priest and informed him that they exerted a mysterious "power" over a victim at their home. The priest notified Sheriff John G. Salmi of Houghton and he went to the Dollar Bay home, found the young woman dead and arrested the Pichettes.

Sheriff Salmo said Pichettes talked incoherently and appeared to be suffering from delusions based on the idea they possessed strange spiritual powers.

Investigators said they were informed that Pichette once paid $2,000 to some gypsies in exchange for a mystic power he believed they conferred upon him.

Sea Mystery Probe Decides Ship Broke in Centre

London, Oct. 24 (AP)

A GOVERNMENT court of inquiry probing one of the deepest mysteries of the sea today decided that the British freighter Anglo Australian, missing seven months, probably broke in half "from dec kto keel" after her shelter-deck buckled.

The 5,456-ton vessel, carrying a crew of 39, disappeared last March in calm weather in mid-Atlantic while on a voyage from England to Vancouver, B.C She was last reported off the Azores March 14. No trace of her has been found.

The court of inquiry pointed out that more than half the freighter's deadweight was concentrated amidships.

Even Bells on Toes To Get By In Coming Fashions

Hollywood, Oct. 24 (AP)

LOTS OF JEWELRY and a return to the primary colors are the two dominating notes in milady's winter styles.

Movie designers are burdening their clothes wearers with many pounds of costume pieces and decking them out in brighter colors than they have worn in many seasons. And, say Hollywood, all women naturally will follow.

"Women — at least smart women—will pay more attention to jewels and costume pieces this season," says Orry Kelly, Warner designer. They will wear as many bracelets as the arm will hold below the sleeve.

"They will wear bells and jewels on their toes—don't laugh—and jewels in their ears, at the waist and literally 'in your hat.' This year will make jewelry more important to fashion than it ever has been before."

France Puts Guard Over Lindberghs

LANNION, France, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A special police inspector was appointed today on permanent assignment here, apparently to watch over the security of Colonel Charles Lindbergh and his family.

Lannion is 12 miles from the small town of France's northern coast, Port-Blanc, where the American aviator takes a launch back and forth to his home on Illiec Island.

Authorities refused to disclose whether the special protection was requested or was merely a precautionary measure taken on their own initiative.

(Colonel Lindbergh spent the day in Berlin inspecting plans for the rebuilding of Berlin and looking over construction work already completed.)

Fishermen speeded up sturgeon fishing in Siberian rivers before winter caused the water to freeze.

Boy Scouts Placed Nickel On Sidewalk Then They Watched Closely the Finder

IF THREE OR FOUR earnest little fellows started to dog your footsteps a few minutes after you had picked up a five-cent piece on downtown George street on Friday night, they were not bent on robbing you, you may be sure, but were learning fine points in the art of scouting.

It was all part of a plan to train youngsters to be observant, and it originated because the A. Y.P.A. convention had taken over the St. John's First Peterborough Troop quarters in the church and the lads had no place to meet. Divided into groups of three or four scouts, and each group given a five-cent piece, the youngsters took themselves downtown at shortly after seven o'clock.

Placing the five-cent piece on the pavement, the group would separate, look in store windows out of one eye while they watched the nickel out the other. Some whistled lively tunes nonchalantly, some tied and re-tied shoelaces. Then along would come an alert-eyed pedestrian who would stoop and pocket the coin. Allowing him to get a discreet distance ahead of them, the youngsters would trail after, making mental notes on his appearance, his walk, little oddities he might have. They trailed some of their victims for several blocks. Next Friday night all the youngsters must give descriptions of the lucky persons at the regular scout meeting at St. John's Church.

Smith Boys Winners In Judging

Two Members Of Norwood Club Win At Guelph

Two Smith township boys, Gordon Stalker and Braden Mann, winners of the foal club competition at the Ontario Agricultural College, arrived home Saturday afternoon with Frank C. Paterson who accompanied them and the two beef cattle club contestants, Jack Bolin and Keith Pimmett of Otonabee.

"The boys brought back a silver cup and replicas which they will own themselves and were modestly delighted with their accomplishment," Mr. Paterson said. "In fact I was getting some congratulations myself at Guelph, but Art Runions happened along and I remarked that he deserved most of the coaching credit because these boys had been under his instruction before they ever saw me."

Mr. Paterson said the results should give much satisfaction to the directors of the Norwood and Lakefield fairs.

"Gordon Stalker and Braden Mann have been members this year of the foal club sponsored by the Norwood fair, and Keith Pimmett and Jack Bolin were members of the beef calf club carried on by the Lakefield fair," Mr. Paterson said. "They entered the competitions, you may say, as representatives of those agricultural societies. The two Smith township boys competed with the teams from thrity-six clubs from all parts of the province, and they certainly acquitted well. Our other boys were fifth in the same strong field of thrity-six contesting teams, and although they didn't land on top, I want to give them full share of credit for they certainly did well."

Thebaud Grabs Lead In Fourth Race

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The Gertrude L. Thebaud, American challenger for the International Fishermen's Trophy, wrested the lead from the Canadian defender Bluenose today, after trailing by four lengths at the first turn in the fourth race of their series.

The challenger showed surprising speed in working to windward when they tacked and Bluenose fell about four lengths under Thebaud, an hour and 10 minutes after the race started.

It was real fishermen's weather with decks awash and with spray flying from one end to the other aboard the competing vessels.

The U.S. boat rounded the second marker and headed down the last leg of the race course with a commanding lead over the Bluenose.

Iroquois Tribesmen Thank Great Spirit

OHSWEKEN, Ont., Oct. 24 (C. P.). — Religious rites, which find their origin in the sun, moon and stars, were celebrated here to-day by members of the once-mighty Iroquois tribe at a three-day festival which opened near Atkins Corners on the Six Nations Reserve, three miles from here. The reserve is some 20 miles from Brantford.

One hundred and fifty tribesmen, including some from the New York State Reserves at Akron and Syracuse gathered in the ancient clapboard long house of the Seneca tribe to give thanks to the Manitou or Great Spirit for bountiful crops. Many of them came in sleek motor cars.

After the morning ceremony, the tribesmen feasted on corn cake and berry wine at noon.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $7.50 to $7.65.

Lamb trade was slow with good ewes and wethers delivered by rail at $7.75, some making $8. Truck lambs were mostly $7.50. Bucks and heavies sold at $1 discount. Culls went at $6 cwt. Sheep ranged from $1.50 to $4.50 cwt.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24 — (CP). — Winnipeg Grain Market experienced one of the dullest sessions in many weeks to-day with operations virtually at a standstill throughout the session. Prices moved within a very narrow range and closed ⅝ to ½ lower, October 60⅞, November 60⅝, December 60 and May 63⅜.

Operations were confined chiefly to minor local trade and routine spreading. Market eased most of the day more of its own weight than increased offerings.

Demand did not appear keen in cash wheat trading, but mills and exporters were credited with some fair purchases, chiefly No. 2 Northern. Durums were neglected and spreads were unchanged.

Coarse grain futures moved narrowly.

World wheat shipments last week totalled 12,732,000 bushels compared with 9,884,000 the previous week and 10,132,000. Canada's shipment reached 7,222,000 bushels.

Miss Joan Fahey visited with friends in Belleville on Sunday.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. George Weller, of Warsaw, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Willis.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. F. Corrigan, of 529 Homewood avenue, were in Belleville on Sunday where they visited with Mrs. T. J. Hurley.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Willis, of Sutton, West, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Willis, Princess street, during the week-end.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. Cress Billings, of Toronto, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis, Park Hill road.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Vivian Milburn, of Smith Township, left to-day for Winnipeg, where he will attend the Canadian Chamber of Commerce convention.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. George Masters of Aylmer street are to-day observing the fourth anniversary of their wedding.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nolan, Mr. E. Crough and Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson of this city were in Toronto on Saturday for the MacPherson-Leahy wedding.

◇ ◇ ◇

Miss Elizabeth McAdam, president of the Anglican A.Y.P.A. Local Council, Ottawa, attended the Conference in this city on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

◇ ◇ ◇

Miss Phyllis Reid, of Niagara Falls, was a representative of Lambeth and Wellington Counties at the A.Y.P.A. convention. Miss Reid was a guest at the home of Mrs. W. Wheeler, Stewart street, while in the city.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Charles Curtis celebrated his 80th birthday on Saturday, October 22. Among the fifty relatives and friends who called during the afternoon and evening to extend their best wishes were members of the Gold Lake Hunt Club.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barnes of 28 St. James street, and their daughters, Miss Grace Barnes, and Mrs. C. V. Woods and baby, Robert, have returned from a week's visit in Cornwall, Ont., where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Johnston.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. Albert Matthews, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, will be guest of honor at a reception to be given in Lindsay on Thursday, October 27. She will be entertained by her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. P. Ryley, and Mrs. F. C. Vrooman, at the latter's home on Cambridge Street North.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. T. F. McArthur, 454 Weller street, has graciously lent her home for a Hallowe'en Tea to be held on Thursday, October 27, under the auspices of the Central Group of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid. The tea will be held from four to six p.m., and there is to be a sale of home-made jellies.

◇ ◇ ◇

Rev. W. H. Moore of Colborne, moderator of the Baptist churches of the Peterborough Association, presided at the regional rally held in Port Hope Friday afternon and evening. Friday's meeting was one of about 20 rallies which are being held in both Ontario and Quebec in preparation for the golden jubilee in 1939.

Miss Weir Given Surprise Party

A pleasantly spent evening of croquinole and other games was enjoyed on Friday evening at the home of the Misses Weir at Villiers, when, following a happy community custom of holding surprise parties, friends and neighbors gathered to do honor to Miss Ethel Weir on the occasion of her birthday. This custom forms the basis of many delightful social gatherings in the community.

Presentation Made At Farewell Party

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Calladine, of 455 Chamberlain street, were host and hostess Saturday evening at a farewell party for Mr. Bill Calladine, who leaves shortly for Baltimore, Maryland, where he will play hockey during the winter with a Baltimore team.

He was presented by his family and friends with a Gladstone bag and other gifts.

Guests included: Mr. and Mrs. S. Calladine, Mr. and Mrs. P. Calladine, Mr. and Mrs. L. Calladine, Mr. and Mrs. H. Darling, Mr. and Mrs. I. Hamilton, and the Misses L. Darling, M. Mycroft, M. Hynes, Mr. F. Calladine and Mr. J. Tobin.

We Noticed

. . . bright sunshine and a crisp, cool air, made for an excellent football day on Saturday, and the usual gay crowd of enthusiastic rooters was swelled by the addition of many A.Y.P.A. Convention delegates.

◇ ◇ ◇

. . . lots of motor rugs gave evidence that fans are wise to the vagaries of October weather, with its moments of bright sunshine that are too often alternated with brief, nippy breezes.

◇ ◇ ◇

. . . a number of fupr coats had been dragged out of mothballs for the occasion, and two pretty enthusiasts we noticed, each with her rug, looked as if they could cheer any team to victory! One was wrappel up in a handsome muskrat coat, and a jaunty brown felt hat had a bright feather that soared sky-high from the centre back! Her companion wore a trim black wool reefer over a black wool suit, and the only spot of color was a scarlet, light-weight wool scarf knotted loosely at the neck.

DINNERS OF THE WEEK

By MARY MOORE

SUNDAY

Roast Chicken
New Apple Jelly (see note)
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
Brussels Sprouts with Drawn Butter Sauce
Individual Bartlett Pear Salad with Cherries in Depression on Lettuce with Cheese Wafers and Cheese
Coffee

NOTE: The above meal is very good—I know for I served it last Sunday. It is seldom I give in to the urge to suggest chicken for Sunday—for everybody can't afford it and above all things we don't want a reputation for being high hat—'cause we ain't. We bought a 6½-pound boiling fowl and steamed it after it was stuffed and trussed for 2 hours. Then put it in the roaster and finished it off in the oven—basting it uncovered for the last 15 minutes, every 5 minutes. There was enough left (after I had warned the head carver to slice with care) for Monday's dinner.

MONDAY

Casserole of Chicken and Rice (see note)
Salad Bowl of Lettuce, Celery and Sliced Tomatoes
Deep Apple Pie Cheese Coffee

NOTE: Two cups cooked rice, 1½ to 2 cups cut up leftover chicken, 1½ to 2 cups chicken gravy or broth. Combine these ingredients in buttered casserole, and sprinkle top with ¼ cup finely sifted crumbs, and dot with butter and sprinkle ah with paprika. Bake at 350 until heated through and golden.

TUESDAY (Vegetarian)

Potatoes au Gratin
French Fried Egg Plant
Broccoli with Hollandaise or Mock Hollandaise
Celery Hearts
Pumpkin Pie with Whipped Cream and Honey
Coffee

WEDNESDAY

Pork Chops Creole (see note)
Spiced Apple Sauce
Baked Sweet Potatoes in Jackets
Shredded Cabbage and Tomato Salad
Diced Pears in Orange Juice
Hot Tea

NOTE: Pork chops creole are baked in a sauce of canned tomatoes, with sliced onions, with a liberal sprinkling of chili powder for flavoring.

THURSDAY (Economical)

Baked Tomatos Stuffed with Ground Beef
Baked Irish Potatoes
Sliced Boiled Chinese Lettuce with Cream Sauce
Apples Stewed in Syrup or Squash Pie
Coffee

FRIDAY

Fried Scallops. Tartar Sauce
Broiled Crumbed Halved Tomatoes
Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce
Fruit Cup of California Grapes
Sliced Peaches and Bananas
Coffee Cookies

SATURDAY

Baked Sausages
Baked Squash Squares
Green Beans in Drawn Butter Sauce
Apple Crumb Pudding Cream
Coffeee

WHEN—AND IF—WAR COMES

LONDON — (CP). — The Blood Transfusion Service of the British Red Cross Society is planning to store human blood in thousands of milk bottles for use in event of war.

Hilda Leahy Weds R. M. MacPherson

The marriage of Miss Hilda Rose Leahy, B.A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stephen Leahy, Toronto, to Mr. Ronald Michael MacPherson, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. J. MacPherson, Peterborough, took place Saturday morning in Holy Family Church, Toronto, Msgr. P. J. Coyle performed the wedding ceremony, wedding music was played by Miss Angela Breen, and Mr. Walter Stephens was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a royal blue chiffon velvet dress, with a small navy hat trimmed with royal blue velvet. She had a small veil, and wore a corsage of butterfly roses and lilies of the valley'

She was attended by Miss Peggy Heavener, who wore Viennese blue crepe with lace inserts and vintage wine accessories. Her corsage was of talisman roses. Mr. Elmer Crough, Peterborough, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Leahy receiving in a gown of blue crepe.

For travelling the bride chose a mulberry wool ensemble with wine accessories and trimmed with fitch. After a motor trip to the United States, the couple will live in Peterborough.

The bride attended Loretto Abbey college and the University of Toronto, and the groom is a graduate of St. Michael's college and the University of Toronto.

Two Sisters Marry Two Brothers

An unusual wedding ceremony took place at two-thirty o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when two sisters, Miss Winnie Perry and Miss Mable Perry, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Perry, Peterborough, were united in marriage to two brothers, Mr. Harold Little and Mr. Matthew Little, sons of Mrs. George Faden and the late Mr. Wm. Little, Maple Lake.

The wedding took place at the home of the grooms' aunt, Mrs. M. Dwyer, 231 George street, and the marriage ceremony was preformed by Rev. C. C. Boyter of Park Street Baptist church.

Given in marriage by their brother, Mr. Charlie Perry, the brides were frocked in street-length dresses of blue. Miss Winnie Perry wore a coronet of tiny gold flowers, and carried a bouquet of Autumn flowers, and Miss Mabel Perry wore blue and white flowers in her hair, and carried a bouquet that matcher her sister's.

The wedding attendants were Miss Flo Nicholson of Peterborough, and Mr. John Perry, also of Peterborough, brother of the brides.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy young couples left for Maple Lake, where a wedding dinner was served at the home of the grooms' mother.

Walter-McLaughlin

Cambridge Street United church, Lindsay, was the setting for an interesting wedding on Saturday, when Miss Alice Brydon McLaughlin, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McLaughlin, was married to Mr. Arnold Graham Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Peter Walter of Toronto. Rev. J. J. Black officiated, and wedding music was played by Prof. W. E. Fletcher, Mr. Stafford Pelton of Toronto was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in Alencon lace over old ivory satin, the skirt falling into a sweeping train. Her full-length veil of ivory tulle was held in place with tiny clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. Robert Cozzens of Philadelphia was her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Dr. Margaret McEachern of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Brenda Rich of Lindsay. Mr. John Walter of Sheboygan, Wis., brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Barrett, Mr. Bert Gooch, Mr. Pat Montgomery, and Mr. Robert Sanderson, all of Toronto.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter left by motor to New York, where they will sail for Cuba. They will live in Toronto on their return.

ARE a career and married happiness compatible for a woman? Can a woman make a success of both marriage and a career? This is one of the problems that thousands of talented and ambitious girls are called upon to solve nowadays, and that makes them realize what a complicated job being a modern woman is, and that causes them to wonder if, after all, it isn't better when the good Lord creates a woman for simply biological purposes, and doesn't clutter up things for her by endowing her with brains and talents.

Of course, the women of the past did not have to decide between a husband and a career because they were one and the same. Marriage was a woman's predestined career and all she had to do was to make good in it to the best of her ability. Nor do men have to choose between taking a wife and following their professions, because when a man marries he merely annexes a wife and home and children to his other possessions, and goes on with his lifework.

And the greater success he makes of his marriage, the greater success he is likely to make of his career. For there is nothing that is such a spur to a man's ambition as his desire to provide things for his wife and children and to make a place in the sun for them. Nor is there any atmosphere in which a man can do his work so well as in the calm and peaceful air of a happy home. A good wife who keeps her husband in love with her, who keeps him pepped up and always on his toes by her faith in him, and who looks after his health, adds 50 per cent. to his efficiency.

But no such rosy matrimonial situation faces the talented woman who contemplates marriage. Having a head doesn't keep her from having a heart. Being a successful lawyer, or doctor, or business woman doesn't keep her from falling in love, or desiring a husband, children and home. But when she thinks of getting married she can't delude herself into thinking that she can fit these things simply into her life as a man can.

Nearly always she must give up one for the other, and if she doesn't, if she tries to have her cake and eat it too, she is pretty sure to find out that it has slipped between her fingers and she has lost it altogether.

The reason for this is simple enough. It is merely that the business of being a wife and mother isn't a part-time job, nor one that only calls for one lobe of a woman's brains to perform. On the contrary, it is a twenty-four-hour job and demands all of the intelligence, and all of the energy, all of the ability in every line that she has, and if she makes a success of it she has neither time nor strength for outside work.

Nor is domesticity an aid to success in her profession as it is to a man. In times of household stress, or when the children are ailing, he can go off to his work with a free mind, knowing his wife is at home looking after everything and taking care of the youngsters. But how can a woman concentrate her mind on an argument in a lawsuit if her very soul is torn in tatters by the thoughts of the sick baby she left crying at home for Mother, and how can she be the perfect secretary if one-half of her mind is in the office and the other half is in the fireless cooker at home?

The trouble with women is that when they undertake to do a man's work in the world they don't escape a woman's work, particularly if they marry. The bachelor girl may evade domestic responsibility and be free to come and go as a man is, but this is impossible for the wife. She has her obligations to her husband, and no matter how brilliant she is in public life, he expects her to make a satisfactory private life for him. This is a virtual impossibility for the woman who follows a career.

If a woman is a success as a concert singer, she must be away from home on long tours; if she is a success as a buyer, she must be ready to grab her hat and be off for Paris at a moment's notice; if she is a success as a doctor, she must live on the end of a telephone wire and be ready to go day and night at any call; if she is a success in any line of occupation, she must give to it her time, her thoughts, her chief interest, and leave her husband and children, if she has such encumbrances, to shift for themselves. And that kind of a home is not what men marry for.

Of course, there are women who claim to have made successes both as wives and professional women, and there are a few lucky women who have husbands who have sacrificed their own careers to their wives, and who pinch-hit for their wives in the kitchen and the nursery; but these are few and far between, and most of the women who have tried to combine matrimony and careers have landed in the divorce courts.

Undeniably it is hard on a talented woman that when she gets married she practically has to decide which she would rather keep, her husband or her job, but that is the way nature seems to have ordained it, and there isn't much we can do about it.

Mission Band Rally Held By Presbyterial

The first Mission Band rally to be held in Peterborough Presbyterial, was sponsored by the Band secretary, Miss Helen Bannister, on Saturday afternoon.

St. Andrew's United church was the scene of this new venture, when a fine representative band of children met to celebrate their first rally.

With Miss Bannister presiding, the rally opened with the hymn, "Tell Me the Stories," followed with prayer by the Band secretary. The roll call was responded to by delegates from each of the city churches and Springville.

St. Andrew's Mission Band led the worship service and the offering was received and dedicated by members of St. James' Band, after which a splendid musical program was enjoyed.

Recitation, "The Spider's Web," by Dorothy McNNeally, Mark street.

Vocal solo, "Once Again, Dead Lord We Pray," Ernest Lee, St. James' Band.

Reading, "It Isn't the Thing You've Done," Eleanor Bowles, Springville.

Violin solo, "Danny Boy," and "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," by Mary Jane Wharry.

Vocal duet, "Life's Railroad," by Edna Dunford and Viola Neals, accompanied by Velma Staples, Springville.

Recitation, "The Measles," by Lorence Bradley, Trinity.

Vocal solo, "Come Unto Him," by Joe McMahon, St. James.

The speaker, Miss Luella Rorke, was introduced by Mrs. W. H. Morton, with greetings from the Presbyterial "world friends," particularly friends of Japan was Miss Rorke's theme, which was full of interest to the chillren. She made these Japanese friends very real by telling stories of her own experiences in kindergarten work and by singing in Japanese many familiar hymns. Her costume was a beautiful "houri" given to her by a friend in Japan.

The thanks of the rally were extended to Miss Rorke and to those who assisted in the program, by Mrs. Doig of St. James and Mrs. Rehill of Trinity. Mrs. A. H. Radford accompanied the hymns.

Mary and Jean Lillow of George Street Band contributed a pleasing piano duet and this succesful first Mission Band rally was brought to a conclusion by singing "The Mothers of Salem," prayer by Mrs. A. I. Brown and the benediction.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

The man has to hurry through life all the time, lacks something Hurry is an evidence of excitements. It is a lack of organization, an evidence of shortage of money, or proof that ability is taking a vacation."—Van Amburgh

Dear Friends:

Sure, the ones that hurry through life lack something, and if they did not hurry but sat back and took it easy, where would they be?

For, just as soon as ones slacks off, some other has to carry a double load. That is evident in all around us, the hurriers and the slackers.

Certainly it is an evidence of shortage of money, and how many out of the population of any city, town or village, do not suffer from that same shortage? Mighty few.

We were born into an age of haste, where everything is speeded up, and we too must use speed to keep up with the procession, for, "the devil take the hindmost" seems to be the creed of this day and age.

There is no real markets now for the handcrafts, the knitting and the weaving, the crotcheting of lovely wools into things of use and beauty.

Men are always howling that "womeh's place is in the home", yet she is expected to carry her share of the load. Yet men and their machine have taken away the occupations which women used in the home.

And most of the burden falls on the women, blind yourselves as you will. Even the men with a supposedly decent salary do not seem to earn enough to pay decent wages if help is needed in the home, so that his wife has more leisure to enjoy life.

It is bad enough if a woman is young, but when she gets older, so many doors are closed against her. She may be capable, she may have experience, she may be a very good worker, but her age or her white hair mitigates against her when she seeks a position.

And so she hurries from one store to another, saving a dime here and a nickle there, she buys the cheaper cuts of meat, then hurries home because it must be cooked longer to be palatable.

When she is younger and there are children, she hurries to feed and dress them. Later she hurries to get them off to school and hurries around to clean house, get meals, wash and iron clothes, and her leisure is generally taken up with mending.

And she thinks that when they are grown up and able to look after themselves, maybe life will not be so rushed and she will have time for the beautiful things in life. But she has been so busy and so hurried looking after her family, that she forgot to look out for herself, and so there is no money for these things she wants to do.

And so, she must go hurrying until one day it all stops for her, and she gets a slow ride, but cannot enjoy the scenery because she is closed up in a satin lined box.

Hurry is not so much an evidence of excitement "Van Brugh," but an evidence of trying to survive. Most of the poor people are just one lap ahead of the bailiff, and sometimes one can feel his breath on the back of one's neck.

And if there is anything in the world that makes one hurry, it is the feeling of living so close to the edge of the precipice of want, or debt, or getting behind in this business of living.

I told you before that poverty is the one thing people will not forgive in us. It doesn't matter that it has come about through being unselfish, it doesn't matter that we have made many happy.

All that matters is that we have not the where-with-all to keep up with the rest, and so we hurry, hurry, hurry, towards the grave. Heigho what to do about it?

Your friend, ROBERTA.

LUXURIOUS FUR BUT AT LOW COST

By ALICE ALDEN

This is the season for short fur coats, as bulky as they are luxurious in appearance. Somehow, every gal who likes to look smart and who goes places will contrive to drape a short fur coat around her dainty shoulders. And she fares forth for furs she makes careful inquiries, and knows just what to look for. Gladys Parker, pint-sized beauty, one of America's greatest dress designers, contributes to the happiness of womankind by designing this magnificent chubby of timber wolf. It is supple and silky, and is —a luxury coat at an incredibly low price. Miss Parker's dinner dress is her own creation, too.

BREAD PRICE REDUCED

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—(CP). — The retail price of bread has been reduced one cent per loaf in New Brunswick. It is the same here as in Ottawa and Toronto, despite extra freight charges paid by local bakers for raw ingredients.

Do You Know?

Ironmould can be removed from linen? Cover it with salt, and squeeze lemon juice on top. About half an hour later rinse out in a weak solution of ammonia, and then wash out in clean water.

◇ ◇ ◇

Tomatoes that have become soft will harden if soaked in cold water with a little salt for a short time?

◇ ◇ ◇

Do you long for a different appetizer or salad? Try an alligator pear-tomato combination for a delicious change. Cut pears and tomatoes into thin slices, marinate in French dressing and chill for an hour. Sprinkle with lemon juice and serve on salad greens.

We Just Leave It Alone

The farmers' market in Peterborough is getting larger and better. This season has probably registered a high mark on account of the unusually favorable conditions for growth and also the length of the season. This season there have been more people bringing more material to our market and there have been more people there to buy it.

But right now we are again facing straight into the season when it is not going to be comfortable or convenient for those who will be forced to patronize the outdoor market. Our city officials talked the matter at length earlier in the season, but the question of financing the project of a closed or covered market seemed to be too formidable, so the matter was dropped. And yet it was and still is one of those plans which would of itself produce revenue. It is also in the rather unusual class where there is every good reason for going ahead with it and no substantial cause for allowing it to drop.

The extent to which the farmers themselves come to the market in this city shows they must consider it a good place to dispose of produce, but their desire to sell their goods is in itself not sufficient reason for making it necessary for many of them to carry on their business in the open in a season when snow and rain and ice and cold will be with us. It is only a matter of time until our upstairs market will have to be revamped. It is not so long ago that police considered it advisable to stop more people from entering on a crowded day.

We realize the opportunity of doing anything has gone for this season and many of the farmers will have to carry on as they have been doing previously—out in the open. The question should be revived because it is one of those things which is sound business. As far as developing business through an improved farmers' market our city is living away in the past.

Ready To Pay

There are sections where hunters pay $5 for each pheasant they shoot. Perhaps it is the sense of accomplishment for which the hunter is willing to pay, for a dead pheasant or a live one is not worth $5.

But there were thousands of people out with guns and licenses for a couple of days shooting pheasants. One member of a Game Advisory Board in Middlesex found it necessary to stop by the way and pick pellets of shot from his neck. A school teacher going along the road near Burlington with five of her pupils found shot stirring up the road in front of them. Two men in Lincoln county claimed they shot the same bird and one smacked the other on the nose.

On Pelee Island there was one hunter to each five acres of ground and there was a plane ready to take injured shooters away for treatment. That's where they pay $5 for each pheasant shot, and if the 650 hunters packed into that small place shot two each the township revenue would be $6,500.

We have no way of knowing the outlook of these folk when they are called upon to donate to any worthy object at home, but it is plain as a pikestaff they are ready to reach deep into the pocket when the time comes to shoot a pheasant.

The Idea Is Not Sound

The Sasktechewan section of the United Farmers of Canada is in session at Saskatoon, and the resolution which is drawing the greatest amount of interest is "the setting up of a western autonomous state within the British Empire governed by a single western government, elected democratically by the people."

Which means of course that these Westerners want to run their own affairs and be cut off entirely as far as government is concerned from the rest of the Dominion. Perhaps the easiest answer to that might be that if it had not been for the financial support of the East the Western people would have been in a bad way in recent years, but that is not a sufficient answer nor is it a good one. It is the repetition of that statement by Premier Hepburn who refers to Ontario as the "milch cow" for the West which causes the United Farmers to talk as they are doing. Just because they have been going through a rough session financially is no reason why we should continually throw it in their faces that we have been helping to keep them.

We doubt whether there is a great section of public opinion in the West which thinks in terms as those which were made openly public as the Saskatoon convention. There is nothing to indicate in parliamentary returns that they have exercised voting strength to elect members to the legislature or the federal parliament. Nor do we think they would get very far if they were to cut themselves off from the rest of the Dominion. Their complaint is that they have to do their selling in an open market and do their buying in one which is protected. The first of those conditions they cannot correct because they will have to continue selling in an open market and if they were left to themselves they could not today be claiming a price of 80 cents for good wheat because they would not have the ability to finance such a scheme. Right now they are not exactly selling in the open market, but in one where a preferred price is given by reason of Dominion financing.

We do not believe this minority would desire to detach itself from the rest of the Dominion if they realized that their problems are very much our concern. We admit candidly enough that the East wants any business it can receive from the West, and on the other hand we have no wish to withdraw any assistance we can extend to the Westerners. When the West was doing well a few years ago it is common knowledge that the East was receiving its full share of that advantage. We do not wish to see a section cut out from the centre of our Dominion and thus make two countries. Nor do we believe there are many others who desire it. By helping to solve the problems of the West we would be possibly be going quite a distance in getting rid of our own major troubles.

The Highway Schemes

Communities along the western section of No. 7 Highway have organized themselves into an association. They have—and apparently with good enough reason—gazed at the long miles of excellent road which carry all too little traffic. Likewise they have looked upon many miles which have never been paved and therefore are not attractive to tourists. All these things have come to pass since the opening of the new bridge at Sarnia. The No. 7 people desire to get the tourists well into Ontario rather than have them scoot across one corner and be away out of the country before the home folk have had opportunity to bid them welcome and assist them in leaving a few dollars in our expectant midst.

They have another highway in the western section of our province called the Blue Water, and now the people along that road are becoming active. They seem to look upon the incoming traffic like another Czechoslovakia; if the No. 7 folk are going to get their share then the Blue Water advocates are going to do the same thing. And they are going to ask the government to spend some more money on paving, the idea being to make the Blue Water live up to its name. That road runs along the shore of Lake Huron but for many miles there is no blue water visible. It is pretty much a summer road and has not anything like the mission of No. 7, which is the logical connection between Sarnia and Ottawa. Given that additional cut-off from Port Perry to connect with No. 28 and then again at Peterborough to No. 7 it would make the ideal straight and direct route through the central part of this province. And it would be a route which would be in demand for a full 12 months in the year.

He Did Something

David Croll, member of the Ontario Legislature for Windsor-Walkerville, did something which needed doing. He read in the newspapers about a woman from Detroit being unable to enter her home city after making a short visit in Windsor. Her four children were alone in Detroit, so the family was split.

Mr. Croll reached for the telephone and called the United States immigration officials, and said he had known these people for years. He also urged that the mother be allowed to go back to her children without any delay even if she had to do so on parole pending final consideration of the case at Ottawa. The result was that the mother was allowed to enter Detroit and be united with her children.

It may not have been Mr. Croll's particular business because he is a member of the legislature and affairs of this kind are in the hands of the federal government. But the thing we liked is that he stepped out and did something which needed doing whether or not it was in his particular field. The result he secured was a sensible working of a law which had not worked sensibly before. The idea of keeping a mother in Windsor while her four small children were waiting for her in Detroit was simply ridiculous.

The Weakness of Russia

During the recent European crisis one found it difficult enough to believe that Russia would play much of a part were she to join France and Britain in restraining Germany and Italy. There was little enough said about it apart from the bare announcement that Russia was prepared to act. In the recent diminutive-war with Japan, Russia did not appear ready or eager for conflict. We have noticed too that many European critics who write sensibly have expressed doubt regarding Russia's ability to muster forces and be certain of their strength.

The Soviet army organ "Red Star" now reports there has been another large-scale "cleansing" of military and political personages in the far east of the Soviet country. Marshal Vassily Bluecher, commander of the Russian armies in Eastern Siberia, has not been seen for many days and several other high-ranking officials cannot be located. The answer to it all is that they have participated in the "cleansing" process, which is perhaps a more refined way of saying they have been shot.

Each one of these "cleansing" operations makes the outside world suspicious about the plan of life, living and government which they have been trying in Russia and which so many poorly-informed people persist in telling us is quite superior to anything we have tried.

The people whom the Soviet finds it advisable to shoot—and there have been thousands of them—are the very people which their own system is making and developing. They are accused of being traitors against the very system which has made them and placed them in positions of trust and authority. The system is making of them neither patriots nor men who can be trusted and for that reason the Soviet plan constantly finds itself weak when it apparently thought it was strong.

That is undoubtedly the reason why so many people in England were sceptical of what Russia might do in an emergency. They were not at all sure the country could be depended upon in a crisis to carry out its share of a military alliance. So when any person starts mentioning the superiority of the Soviet system we cannot help thinking of the number of men in leading positions whom it is found necessary to shoot.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is reported that a merry-go-round has been stolen at Grimsby and police are looking round and round for it.

Charlie Chaplin settled a tax claim of $254,000 for $60,000. And there were times when people used to laugh at this little man.

New York has a prison for sale with the rather drab name the Tombs attached to it. The Old Boys' Association might like to get it but they are a little short of funds.

Reports from Britain say the government would be glad to get rid of the mandate for governing the Holy Land. Probably for the same reason why one would wish to be rid of a permanent headache.

We noticed where a man was fined $5 for assault. He found his wife in a car with another man. His idea was good enough but in the dark he hit his wife in the eye instead of the other man on the nose.

It is easy to explain the increased attendance at plowing matches. Now that the young ladies are starting to participate in them you couldn't keep the young farmers away if you tied them with a halter in a box stall at home.

United States treasury finds it now has 14 billion in gold, which is 55 per cent. of the available world supply today. Perhaps in the same paragraph it should explain that U. S. also has a national debt of 40 billions of dollars.

Possibly it all depends on how one reads the news. The optimist would explain there are 1,000,000 more men working in United States now than in June, and the pessimist would note there are about 9,000,000 who are not working.

It is reported young people between the ages of 20 and 30 are organizing a new club with the purpose of restoring some of the quiet dignity of the 19th century, and there are good and sufficient reasons why the idea should spread.

One estate in Toronto which is now subject to renewed litigation has been pretty much in that condition for fourteen years. And the gentleman who left the estate to his relatives probably had the kindly belief that he had not lived in vain because he was able to leave something to them when he passed on.

Simple Life

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The folk today will scoff I know, at things we wore quite long ago, and say they're out of date; at dickies they would laugh out loud, and call together quite a crowd, to chant the hymn of hate.

¶ But I recall it with delight, because it seemed then only right, we shopped then at the store; I'm thinking not of ties for spring, but only of one dandy thing, the collar that I wore.

¶ And we were gay and stylish men, our collars were of rubber then, no better ever seen; nor was the wearer ever stuck, nor find himself clean out of luck, by one that was not clean.

¶ I'd do my chores through hours of day, and soil and dirt would come my way, my rubber collar soiled; and one might think to see it then, I could not wear the thing again, it was completely spoiled.

¶ I got the basin and some soap, a little rag and also hope, the implements were few; my rubber collar had a bath, it took a minute and a-half, and then it looked like new.

¶ And on my neck that collar went, I was at once the well-dressed gent, and hence my word of praise; my wants were very few back there, and life seemed such a glad affair—in rubber collar days.

West Has Most Of Our Acres

(Prepared by Bureau of Statistics)

A NEW TOWN

YELLOWKNIFE BAY is situated on the north arm of Great Slave Lake. It was named after the Yellowknife tribe of Indians, a tribe whose numbers have dwindled to about 150. They were named after the knives of native copper which they once carried.

The prospect of new discoveries of minerals in this area has caused an increase in population, mostly miners and traders. In order to accommodate the incoming settlers, the Department of Mines and Resources is endeavouring to plan an orderly settlement by surveying an area of approximately forty acres to be subdivided into 125 lots.

During the winter months there were 350 people in the settlement and since the spring break-up the number is increasing. Already a drug-store, a post office, three wireless stations, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment, a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, several small stores and restaurants and a hotel are located at Yellowknife. Two licences to operate motion picture theatres have been issued. A lawyer has opened an office in the settlement.

Yellowknife is accessible by both water and air. The bay provides a good aeroplane harbour for both winter and summer use.

The Yukon and Northwest Territories are now supplying silver, gold, copper, lead and radium ore to Canada's vast mineral industry. Last year's mineral production from this area was valued at close to four million dollars, a gain over 1936 of 1½ million dollars.

55,700,000 ACRES IN WEST

A comprehensive outline of the difficulties and problems which are being successfully combated by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Board in the rehabilitation of the Prairie drought areas was given in a recent issue of "Scientific Agriculture" by Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director, Dominion Experimental Farms Service and Chairman, Land Utilization Committee, Prairie Rehabilitation Act.

The agricultural area in the Prairie Provinces comprises 55,700,000 acres of the 74,000 000 acres of cultivated land in Canada. Fully 54,600,000 acres are in grain and fallow, of which 13,000,000 acres are fallowed annually. Again, of the 40,000,000 acres of range and unimproved pasture in Canada, fully 33,000,000 acres are in the Prairie Provinces.

It should be remembered, states Dr. Archibald, that the drought area of recent years has been settled during the last 20 to 40 years during a cycle of years when rainfall was normal. The past eight years have been subnormal, yet it should not be forgotten that this area has contributed the largest percentage of wealth in wheat alone during the past 20 years to the sum of $7,000,000,000. Vast values of other grains, beef, sheep, bacon, and poultry products also come from this area. What has been done, will again be produced. Hence the great national importance of replanned, readjusted, and rehabilitated agriculture in this area.

Succeeding years of disastrous drought, grasshopper damage, soil drifting, and necessary large scale relief to farmers in central and southern Saskatchewan, southwestern Manitoba, and southern Alberta, covering a period of five years, inclusive of 1934, convinced the Dominion Government that drastic and large scale rehabilitation measures were necessary if the enormous earning power of Western Canada, due to a population of most capable farmers in their particular type of production, was to be retained.

SAWDUST FOR HEATING

Until lately sawdust has been more or less a waste product. With the discoveries made in the Forest Products Laboratories of the Department of Mines and Resources in co-operation with combustion engineers, a very practical and profitable use has been found for it.

With the aid of an auxiliar grate, sawdust can be used for fuel in any standard heating unit. It burns freely, requires little attention and makes a fire which is easily controlled. Other points in its favor are its cheapness, lightness and the fact that it is very low in ash content.

Already in British Columbia more than 15,000 homes, offices, theatres and other buildings are using sawdust for heating purposes.

Think of the amount of sawdust produced by the trees cut down and sawn into lumber every year in Canada. The Forestry Branch estimates that two billion cubic feet of standing timber is the annual harvest. That amount of timber would make a pile as big as 800,000 box cars piled together.

Formerly regarded as unavoidable waste, sawdust can now be turned to a profit for millowners. It is estimated by the Forest Products Laboratories that the sawdust produced annually in Canadian sawmills is sufficient to cover fifteen or twenty city blocks to a depth of one hundred feet. Thousands of dollars will now be saved from the refuse burners.

THE EVENING LAMP.

(Sarnia Canadian Observer)

THE LONG winter evening was once a time when people would settle down in their living rooms and enter on prolonged courses of study. They drew out big learned books from some library or book club, and were determined that the winter should not pass without some added culture. Or they borrowed some of the good old-fashioned 1,000 page novels, and set themselves down to prolonged enjoyment of those fascinating but wordy tales.

Today people are no longer satisfied to settle down around the fireside. Modern life keeps us going so fast that we have forgotten how to say "whoa." If there isn't something to do almost every night, the people say they can't stand the boredom.

But the long winter evening under the living room lamp produced a quiet mind for next day's work, and people learned many things they needed to know.

• There Are Some Great Men Left

EVERY ONCE IN a while news comes out of Canada's Northland of an act of heroism that makes the blood of us more effete Southerners run cold. Such an incident has just filtered down from the Yukon Territories. It concerns the courage of one, Harold Ostrude, says the Winnipeg Free Press. Let the terse R. C. M. P. report give the background:

"Ostrude is an American citizen of Scandinavian stock. He is not robust and is about 50 years of age. For some eight or ten years he has resided here engaged in trapping, for the past two or three years on a tributary creek of the Black river, about ninety miles south of Rampart House. What supplies of provisions he took to his location during last Fall he packed in, in his own, and his dog's backs. That region is not easy of access during the Summer months. During January he calculated that he had about six weeks' meat and provisions left and would have to go to his cache in Rampart House in early March for more."

That was the situation and condition of Harold Ostrude when he was reached by John Thomas, an Indian, and his starving family. They were, in fact, in a serious condition. One son was already dead. All the dogs of the family were dead. Let the R. C. M. P. report tell what happened:

"Upon being reached by these starving Indians, Ostrude gave them his meagre supplies, and realized that in their condition he had better try to get them back to Rampart House. This he tried, but soon discovered that the daily mileage made with only five dogs was so small that his supplies would not last and that soon he would be in the same state as the Indians. Therefore he had John Thomas established in a camp on Bluefish Lake and told him to wait there with his family until assistance was brought. He gave the family the bulk of his remaining provisions and dog feed to use as long as possible.

"On February 9 he left for Rampart House, taking with him Charlie, the eldest Thomas boy, Charles Linklater, Paul George and son. They made Rampart House in three days And according to the Indians, as well as admissions from Ostrude, Ostrude travelled those three days on no other nourishment than tea, nor did his dogs have a thing to eat. What provisions he had not left with the Thomas family were fed to the Indians accompanying him.

"During these three days it was necessary for Ostrude to go ahead of his dogs, breaking trail for the dogs and the Indians to follow through the whole Winter's snow over a route which had had no trail opened this year. The thermometer was between 30 and 56 degrees below zero at Old Crow, in the vicinity of the route. Thus was the R. C. M. P. apprised of the circumstances of the Thomas family, and took them provisions."

This account of "just another Northern incident" does the heart good. There are men left in the sub-Artic yet. Ostrude's magnificent act was no spur-of-the-moment, flashing act; it was a calculated and courageously executed effort, undertaken when the hardships were well known, to succor fellow human-beings.

• Bombs Would Be More Effective

CHINA OFFERS ONE of the most illuminating examples of what unpreparedness can inflict on a nation, that the modern world has ever witnessed.

The latest reports from the Orient are to the effect that Japan is now invading South China, and today entered Canton, one of the country's richest cities and the principal gateway for arms and ammunition for China from the outside world.

After fifteen months of warfare, says Woodstock Sentinel-Review, during which a nenormous area of China has been invaded and devasted by Japanese forces, the Chinese are fighting doggedly and at a great disadvantage because they had no preparation or equipment comparable to that available to their numerically insignificant assailants.

The Chinese have for years been inviting what is happening to them now, and most of the outside world feels sorry for them because they are the victims of notoriously corrupt government that was tolerated for years during which conscienceless grafters despoiled the nation's finances and shattered the morale of the people.

The Chinese, even today, appear to be pursuing a policy of inertia in their defence that is pitiable. They take characteristic pride in the fact that in reply to the devastating Japanese bombardment from the air, by which hundreds of thousands of helpless Chinese civilians, men, women and children were blown to atoms, the Chinese retaliated by sending airplanes to scatter leaflets over Japanese cities, emploring the populace to throw out the cruel, militaristic administration at Tokyo which is gradually leading the nation to destruction.

While this spirit is to be admired from the standpoint of esthetic decency, it is not likely to have much effect on the greedy, acquisitive Japanese who are likely to keep on murdering the Chinese as long as the latter reveal that they are unable to defend themselves.

A few powerful bombs dropped from Chinese planes on the most populous cities of Japan would be more effective in bringing the Tokyo warmakers to a realization of their offences than all the pleading leaflets that China can shower from the skies in the next decade.

• What Are the Dictators Like ?

(Paris Soir)

FIRST, WHAT DICTATORS eat and drink. Mussolini: No coffee or tea. Every afternoon, a dose of camomile. Very little wine or alcohol. Twice or thrice monthly confines himself to sugared water. Takes very little meat. Favorite dishes risotto and vegetables without sauce.

Hitler: No coffee or tea, but mineral water, lime juice. Sometimes ends a hard day with a drop of brandy in milk. Vegetarian, favorite dishes, macaroni soup, spinach, potatoes, mayonnaise, eggs. Confesses to weakness for chocolate eclairs, does not smoke.

What they like.

Mussolini: Motor racing, driving by night, piloting an aeroplane. Likes to leave work abruptly, fence with Count Rudolfi, the champion. He likes boxing, skiing, yachting, swimming, music (particularly the violin after lunch), children's films, modern novels, history books, cats, dogs, lions, political jokes, highly summarized reports. He likes concise style in writing (he summarized the Fascist creed in 12 pages), journalists, Rome, peasants and the lives of Caesar and Napoleon, whom he calls Italians.

Hitler: He likes architecture (he boasts to be able to draw from memory the principal monuments in the world), pictures, machinery, children, friends, music, films (particularly new ones and one of his great favorites is "The Bengal Lancer"), dogs, Berchtesgaden, Baltic cruises, rotund style of writing (he needed 600 pages to sum up his creed), Kaiserhof Hotel, his former headquarters, where he often takes a cup of chocolate, and, finally, the Goebbels family.

What they dislike.

Mussolini: He is annoyed when he has on his desk more than three reports daily, and when his staff boasts about things going well. He dislikes small rooms, aristocrats, money, age, particularly aged women. No one dare remind him that he is a grandfather since 1933, and on the subject of his age the newspapers are silent.

Hitler: He dislikes speed (his train never exceeds 40 miles an hour), driving a car, receptions, Berlin and intellectuals.

THE CZECH CHILDREN.

(Letter in Toronto Star)

TO THE EDITOR of The Star. Sir: Urgent representations have been made to the British Save the Children fund on behalf of the children of Czechoslovakia. Its administrator at Praha states that, while an estimate of numbers is at present impossible, the majority of those in the country around Praha are in grave need, and immediate help is necessary. The Czechoslovak authorities are faced with an overwhelming task, and it is imperative that generous help for the children should be secured as speedily as possible. In this appeal the Save the Children fund is associated with the lord mayor's national appeal for relief in Czechoslovakia, and the Czechoslovak minister in London, Dr. Jan Masaryk, has already expressed his gratitude for the effort and what he hopes it will achieve, in a letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, a patron of the fund.

Canada shares in great thankfulness for deliverance from the nightmare of war, and in deep sympathy and admiration for the people of Czechoslovakia so sorely stricken and so courageous, dignified and restrained in these dark days of sacrifice and surrender. Canadians will surely be glad to share in the response to a plea for their help.

Contributions may be sent direct to the Lord Mayor of London's Czech Refugee Fund, Mansion House, London, E.C. 4, or they will be transmitted without expense if sent to R. J. Dilworth, Esq., honorary treasurer of the Canadian Committee of the Save the Children Fund, 588 Huron St., Toronto 5.

ANNIE L. YEIGH.
(Mrs. Frank Yeigh, Canadian Representative, The Save the Children Fund.)

A TOAST.

(John O'London's Weekly)

SIR HARRY PRESTON gave a dinner in honor of Gene Tunney, during the latter's stay in England, and the first toast proposed was, as usual, "The King." The guests all stood while the band played "God Save the King." Then the host gave the toast, "The President of the United States," but the band, unfortunately, had not been instructed on his point of international courtesy, and were taken completely by surprise. Pulling themselves together, they struck up "Ol' Man River." The guests proved equal to the occasion—not a man smiled!

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND THIS IS THE blessing, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death. . . .

And of Asher he said, Let Asher be blessed with children; let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him dip his foot in oil. Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be.

There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun, who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky.

The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms; and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; and shall say, Destroy them.—Deut. xxxiii, 1, 24-27.

It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing.—John vi, 63.

To The Editor

WHY DOOR WAS LOCKED

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I was somewhat surprised that Mr. Gordon should take offence because of the locking of the county council chamber.

When Miss Batten drew my attention to the fact the clock had been stolen I gave Mr. Brownlee permission to lock the doors until the council met in November. I certainly had no idea of attaching the theft to anyone in particular. I never was a ho-bo but I cannot see what a tramp would want with a clock.

I'm sorry if I have caused anyone any mental distress or inconvenience by locking the lawyers out.

Yours truly,
E. L. McDONALD.

THE WAY TO PEACE.

(Christian Science Monitor)

HERR HITLER on his part has always insisted that Germany must have British friendship, although at times he has adopted strange methods of winning it. Just after Godesberg he spoke of the democracies "we despise," and at Saarbrucken on Sunday he attacked "a Duff Cooper, an Eden or a Church" as ready to start a war. And the Berlin press, which never runs contrary to official wishes, is denouncing British arms plans.

This is not, of course, the surest way to make peace. It does not create the atmosphere for friendly consultation. Moreover, it seems to misunderstand some essentials of the British position. Arms increases are not the policy merely of a Duff Cooper or a Churchill; they are part of the Chamberlain policy. And to say that those who would refuse to make concessions under pain of violence want to start a war is as mistaken as to believe that Germany wants to precipitate a war.

In Britain similar feeling is expressed. In the absence of Mr. Chamberlain, what is described as the official response to Herr Hitler was made by Mr. Robert H. Bernays, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministy of Health. Among other things he said, "Clearly there are still powerful influences in Germany who attribute concessions to cowardice."

Rumors Of Snag In Treaty With U.S. Are Discounted In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Oct. 24 (C.P.).— Possibility that the next session of Parliament will begin within five weeks and speculation on progress of Washington's ubiquitous trade negotiations dominated the Federal political scene here to-day.

The impression has grown in the past week that the Government will call Parliament before Christmas. Justice Minister Lapointe said an early session might be held in order to allow Parliament to prorogue by the time the King and Queen arrive in the Dominion early next summer.

If Parliament meets around the end of November, the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne might be concluded and the debate on the pending Canada-United States Trade Treaty revision started before adjournment for Christmas and New Year's.

Progress of trade negotiations in Washington will influence the Government in calling the session. It is understood that the Canada-U.S. pact is about ready for signing, but is being delayed by the negotiations still going on for conclusion of an Anglo-U.S. Treaty. The two agreements are complementary in many respects, and it has been expected they would be signed at the same time.

Reports that the Anglo-U.S. negotiations have encountered grave difficulties which might lead to a stalemate are largely discounted in well-informed circles here, although there has been no official comment.

There has been no information received by the external affairs department from the Canadian legation in Washington concerning any danger of a break in the negotiations and most authorities here expect they will be completed satisfactorily.

King to Sign on Way Home

Prime Minister Mackenzie King is still holidaying in the West Indies and will return to Ottawa by way of Washington where he will participate in the signing of the Canada-U.S. treaty. With the U.S. elections being held Nov. 8, some sources here indicate this treaty, at any rate, might be signed Nov. 11, Armistice Day.

It is understood there will be a Canada-U.S. agreement whether or not its terms are to be influenced by an anglo-U.S. pact.

Pre-session forecasts heard in the capital contend there probably will be long debates in the Commons on the government's wheat policy of guaranteeing western farmers 80 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern at the lakehead, on national defence issues, on Empire relations and Canada's position on the question of peace and war.

A new penitentiary bill and possibly an unemployment insurance bill might be introduced by the government. The session promises to be a long affair with likely more controversial debate than any other of the present parliament.

The Commons will be brought up to full membership of 245 when the by-elections are held Nov. 14 in London, Waterloo South, Montreal-Cartier and Brandon. Conservative leader Manion is running in London. His speeches and reception during his tour of Western Canada are being followed closely by political experts in this capital.

Injury Denied

Emerging from his Belgrave Sq. house is the Duke of Kent, en route to the country for a trip. Very noticeable is the sandal which the Duke is wearing on his right foot. A few minutes earlier, the Duke was seen entering the house wearing shoes on both feet, and very quickly talk was that the Duke had injured his foot in the interval. A London paper making enquiries was told that the Duke had not hurt his foot. He must have just been absent-minded.

Rightist Gains Aid Daladier

PARIS, Oct. 24.—(AP—The Nationalist victory in Sunday's French senatorial elections appeared today to have opened the way for Premier Edouard Daladier to shift his government majority from the leftist parties to the right.

Extreme right parties gained 10 seats, winning 34 out of the 97 contested. There was a slight trend to the other extreme as well with the socialists gaining one seat and the Republican socialists two.

But the outstanding fact in the senatorial election—not usually considered highly significant in France—was the unmistakable shift to the right. Daladier's supporters interpreted this as approval of his part in the four-power Munich conference to partition Czechoslovakia and his efforts to reach an understanding with Germany.

The fact that the rightists gains were made at the expense of the premier's own middle-of-the-road radical socialist party strangely enough strengthened rather than weakened Daladier's position. Members of his party who lost were left-wingers who had remained loyal to the people's front.

The premier threw overboard former Premier Leon Blum's socialist party he previously had been trying to keep as part of his majority in the Chamber of Deputies. At Daladier's orders radical socialist electros voted for rightists wherever it appeared Blum's followers had a chance of winning.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"YOU MEAN," Knarf exclaimed in surprise, "that ants keep cows just like regular farmers?"

The friendly ant to whom Knarf, the shadow-boy, was talking nodded her head. "Yes, just like regular farmers. Only our cows don't look like regular cows. They're called aphids."

"Aphids?"

"They're really insects."

Some of the other ants were now rushing about their cows, waving their sharp nippers at them.

"Are they going to hurt them?" Knarf asked. He noticed that the cows looked very frightened. They all crowded together in a knot at the end of one of the narrow corridors inside the ant-hill.

"No. Those ants are the aphid tenders. They're going to feed them."

Leaves Are Food

Just then some other ants came in, dragging several fresh green leaves after them. These were spread out on the floor of the corridor and the cows were driven on them. They began to feed on the leaves at once. Knarf noticed that they didn't eat or chew the leaves, but simply sucked on them. By and by they turned quite green. Then they were driven off again.

"Now they're going to be milked," the little ant said to knarf.

"My goodness! never knew ants got milk to drink."

"Well, not all the ants get it. The milk is very precious. It is saved.

So they hurried back to the main corridor, which was very wide.

For the queen and the little princes and princesses. But, come along now! The queen is expecting you. We can't keep her waiting."

So they hurried back to the main corridor, which was very wide and handsome. Finally they came to a very wide room. In front of the entrance stood a number of fierce-looking ants who had long, sharp nippers. "They're the soldier-ants. They guard the queen," the little ant explained in a low voice. "But don't mind them. They know the queen is expecting you."

Sure enough, the soldier-ants stepped quietly aside as Knarf and the little ant entered the queen's special apartment. And there, in the middle of the room, sat the queen!

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 29

Abbey's Hands did not loosen their hold on Judy's arms. "Promise you'll not say one word about this to Phillippe. Promise! Promise, Judy?"

"Of course I won't!"

The voice said more: Don't judge me by your code! What you do, whom you see, is not my affair!

Abbey sensed it, and became apologetic.

"I didn't mean that. Of course you won't talk. It's just that this wasn't important at all, and the count— Oh, you know the jealousy of foreign men!"

Her voice broke, much as a frightened, bewildered child's might have done. For the first time in the weeks she had been a member of the Boland household, Judy felt sorry for Abbey.

What was it Ronald had said? She had had no background of real values—

Judy spoke with a genuine rush "You needn't marry Count Phillippe, Abbey. No one will misunderstand if you've changed your mind. When love comes, don't be afraid. I was. . . ." She broke off.

The amusement on Abbey's face was genuine. She spoke slowly, not believing she had heard correctly if her tones were evidence.

"You mean you think I should not marry the count?"

"Not unless you love him, Abbey. Marriage needs so much—so much more than silver and gold. . . ."

Now Abbey's voice was faster and anger beat through its silken, light fabric.

"Whoever told you I didn't want to marry him? Where did you get such an idea?"

I'm sorry. I was being sentimental, I guess." Better to get out of it as quickly as possible, Judy decided.

"You are entirely misinformed. I'm marrying Phillippe. I want to marry him more than—than I ever wanted anything in my life!"

(Yes, Abbey, I know. You want to marry him because he has the crested key that will open closed doors, because you think life is a long, gay tour and he knows the routes as you go. Remember, Abbey, you can't leave your heart behind. . .)

Oh, it was ridiculous to muse in such a fashion. Yet the terror in the purple eyes, for a moment, was so real that Judy could not be angry.

"No one in my life is important but Phillippe! Don't forget that ever!"

Don't forget that ever! When all the time she was remembering that a warm-hearted young attorney, who had embroidered a few words with Valentine messages, was somehow interested in the heiress.

When the girls returned to the carnival, they discovered that another guest had come. In silver edged green flounces, a mile of them, Mrs. Bedford was holding a miniature court. She had not drawn near the count, but across the room Judy saw the eyes of the two meet, laugh together, acknowledge the situation, and share an appreciation of life—its daring, its intrigue, its blondes and its mad quest for pleasure.

Marjorie saw that glance, too. It made her a little ill. She had felt that way ever since she had first greeted the representative of European royalty tonight. In two years Marjorie had learned much. She was able to analyze that month by the Adriatic sea very clearly. She had been in girls' schools in Switzerland, France, Italy and New York most of her life, before her mother left her at the Lido that magic month. She did not believe in the reality of love because she had witnessed its disappointments so repeatedly

Then along came the count.

He was not flesh of the flesh. He was a story book creature, a count with a castle and a silver sword on his ancestral hall, and a scarlet banner on the tower wall. She had taken her dreams, woven a shining mantle of them, draped it on his shoulders, and somehow believed that when the summer ended the dream would fade away in the clouds without hurt. She had not analyzed the plan. She merely knew.

But she fell in love that month, and she thought the count did, too. Only one thing came true in the silly drama. He did go away. But first he told her he loved her. . . .

Marjorie had had her debut in the autumn and she had grown up very quickly after that. Never again would a man's voice sweep her heart from its moorings. She was wondering tonight how this count could have done so. She acutely disliked him. He wasn't the way she recalled him.

She felt contemptuous of both Mrs. Bedford and Abbey.

Ronald was standing by Marjorie as the famous skater began another group of numbers. She smiled at him, whole-heartedly and radiantly, because he was real and clean and honest.

Abbey, who could be charming when she chose, was smiling, laughing, talking, now with one person and now with another. She looked liked a golden-haired princess sweet and gracious, moving among her court. Marjorie who knew nothing of the tyrannical grasping of the white jeweled hands, shook her head.

"She's too sweet for the count. Why doesn't somebody stop her?"

Ronald's heavy eyebrows were lifted in perplexity. "You doubt the royal manner, too?"

"Oh, he'll be all right. But a husband on your order could make a real person out of the girl."

To Judy, who came along at that moment hunting a place to sit and watch the flying figure that winged its way over the ice, Marjorie repeated her words.

"I was telling Ronald he would make a much more suitable husband for Abbey than the count. Then the count could marry Mrs. Bedford and they would always understand each other perfectly."

"Do you believe there's a bond between the count and Mrs. Bedford?" asked Ronald.

He asked it eagerly. Judy thought. So she wandered on to a place near the door and presently slipped away because she was not needed now. She was nearly asleep when she heard the guests going home. So the evening had wound its streamlined, glittering way into the morning. The band had signed off, the revelry was done.

She slipped deeper into the warm blankets, smiling at the cool air that spattered an occasional snowflake on her titled nose. When you were very tired, very sleepy, nothing much mattered. Tomorrow, along about noon, she would face reality again, and wonder about Ronald and Abbey—Ronald and Abbey. . . .

It was 12 when she wakened. There were no sounds of life in the great house. The snow had fallen steadily in the night. Now it had stopped. She decided to take a walk. She found a thick sweater and heavy skirt, a rust tam and mittens to match. She was glad she had her heavy hiking shoes along.

There was no breakfast prepared in the dining room. The servants had expected no one to be up for another hour or two.

Coralee called to her as she was slipping out the door.

"Miss Rogers, I'll bring you some fruit juice and coffee and toast. Won't you sit down? I'm eating in the kitchen.'"

To have eaten in the kitchen was something which Abbey would have scorned. But Judy had had more than one piece of bread and butter, richly spread with jam, in the kitchens of her father and mother's homes. So she said:

"Oh, may I eat by the kitchen stove, too? I'm cold."

"Certainly, only—why, of course!"

The kitchen was a long, low room, shining with its copper and pewter pans and bowls and platters, scrubbed to the meticulous whiteness of a Dutch kitchen itself. At a long table, near the great fire, a man was sitting, his back to Judy. But she recognized him at once. Ronald was up early, too. And he was being equally democratic.

He grinned at her. "I feel at home. I always ate in the kitchen until I was 12—didn't know houses had more than one room."

She was finishing her toast when he asked: "What are you doing now?"

A Peace Conference?

LONDON, Oct. 24 (A.P.). — An official source said to-day that Sir Archibald Kerr, British Ambassador to China, soon would fly from Hong Kong into the interior of China to confer with General Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese leader.

Officials said the purpose of the Ambassador's visit to the General's unnamed headquarters would not be to seek to mediate in the Chinese-Japanese War. Nevertheless, it was said any request from General Chiang for British assistance in bringing the war to a close would be acceptable to Great Britain.

JUDGING BY the lunar transits, this may be a day that will be encouraging to all manner of new projects of a highly-constructive nature and this despite certain detriments, obstacles or opposition. The latter may come from elders or those in important positions, but determination, energy and enterprise are likely to win the day and with flying colors. Tact, diplomacy or strategy would not be amiss.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves in a year of opportunity for engaging their initiative and skill in constructive lines of a rather important character. This is forecast despite the hostility of influential personages. Enterprise and determination may win support of the "opposition camp".

A child born on this day may be enterprising, aggressive, persistent and practical, winning its way by hard work and application rather than through financial aids or speculative enterprises. Its manner may incite hostility.

$100,000 Lumber Fire Hits Rutter

RUTTER, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP).—Residents of this village 30 miles south of Sudbury today viewed the ruins left by a fire that caused damage estimated at more than $100,000. The blaze early Sunday destroyed more than 750,000 feet of green lumber, two box cars, five flat cars, 2,000 railway ties and a quantity of creosoted culvert timber.

Ony a few days before, pumping equipment of the Ontario forestry branch had been withdrawn after being in service during the summer season. A fire pump was brought from Sudbury but the fire had caused its greatest damage before the necessary half-mile of hose could be laid.

Owners of the lumber were Hill, Clark and Francis, Ltd., Sudbury contracting firm. A. Rancourt, who held a contract for hauling and piling most of the lumber, said he thought the fire was incendiary. "I believe the fire was set," he said.

"The fire was first seen at the northeast corner of the lumber," he added. "In just the right direction for the wind to blow the flames over the entire yard and sweep it clean."

Canadian Pacific telegraph communications were disrupted for about three hours and railway traffic was delayed for the same period. The ties and box cars were owned by the C.P.R. Six empty box cars were towed out of danger as were three caroads of ties.

Greatest Need Of Youth Is To Have Sense Of Christian Ethical Security

A sense of security, of financial security, or social security, but most of all of christian ethical security, is the greatest need of the youth of this country today, according to Judge H. S. Mott of Toronto.

He was speaking here on Saturday evening at the closing exercises of the provincial conference of the Anglican Young People's Association, as guest speaker at a monster banquet that crowded the Collegiate gymnasium. More than 450 delegates to the three-day conference were in attendance and the dinner was said to have been one of the most successful ever held by the association.

"Why are you at this gathering?" Judge Mott asked his audience. "What part in the great economy and scheme of things are you to take? What are you searching for?" And he answered his own question with the assertion that "every man and woman here tonight is searching for a sense of security." Children cling to their mother, youths form into little groups, because they want security, similarly, as maturity advances, a young man or woman grasps ideas, one after another, still in a search for some kind of security.

He urged all to strive for a sense of financial security. "You have got to pay and work for more than you will get in order to square yourselves with those who gave yesterday that you might have today," he warned. There is still a place in the world for young people, he said. "This world needs you—it needs the application of live Christian men and women to the world's problems. I don't know what particular occupation challenges you, but unless you can stamp a bit of your personality into the things you do, you are not worthy of the A. Y. P. A.

"There is a security needed in social matters," Judge Mott continued. "What a happy thing it is for young people to learn to understand each other socially in kindred organizations to this. It is imperative that you should learn to understand each other."

Service Rendered.

Life at its best, he said, is a service rendered. "What are you doing to make yourself socially alert, to make that mind of yours keen, analytical, energetic." He told his audience they must read intelligently and think intelligently. "The development of the emotional nature comes through much effort."

"I am asking you to build up a sense of social security by building up your social sense," he said. "A sense of security will lift you until you feel that you are a part of the things that are—you can feel a bit of the divine being in whose image you are created."

"I am presenting to you tonight a supreme security—a religious ethical security," the speaker declared. "You can build it as you grow and it will grow as you build." If scripture is true each one ought to find something in his spirit to say that it is strue, he continued. "The final court of appeal is your own conviction. Every individual is a bundle of desire; every desire you have in you carries also a sense of satisfaction. The greatest desire of every human is to find his creator, Judge Mott maintained, and declared that "the great values of life are not reached through the intellect, but come from the spirit." "It is in that field of love that you are going to find the divine."

Chairman of the meeting was Miss M. McNichol, retiring president of the Provincial Council of the A. Y. P .A. Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto, said grace. A toast to the church was proposed by Gordon Haram of Ottawa and Rev. A. H. O'Neill of Gorrie responded.

"The world is full of anti-Christian forces and we are here to bring honor and prestige to the church militant," declared Mr. O'Neill. "We must hand to the next generation the Christian church strengthened by our efforts." The conference would be a failure if delegates returned to their homes carrying with them memories of good times had only, he said.

A toast to the association, proposed by Bill Georges of Windsor, was responded to by Tim Regan of Hamilton, incoming president of the Provincial Council. He urged delegates to give every assistance to the Council. Charles Belliss, Dominion president of A. Y. P. A., introduced Judge Mott to the audience.

The resolutions passed were as follows:

That a hearty vote of thanks be extended to all who contributed to the success of this conference; to the Mayor and people of the City of Peterborough, the hosts and hostesses for their cordial welcome and kind hospitality; rectors of the local churches for their co-operation; Peterborough District Local Council for the excellent preparation made; to the Peterborough Examiner for the publicity given proceedings; the authorities of All Saints' church and St. John's church for the splendid co-operation in making Conference a success; to Miss Clemena Long and her committee, also the ladies of the various churches, for the splendid arrangements in connection with meals served; to His Grace, the Primate, for his patronage and his inspiring address; to Very Rev. R. H. Waterman, Dean of Niagara, for preaching the Conference sermon, also to Judge Mott, for his address at the banquet; to the Metropolitan of Ontario, the Most Reverend J. C. Roper, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., for his sympathetic co-operation during the past year.

That the Provincial Council do all in its power to assist the Dominion Council in its efforts to deepen the spiritual life of the individual A.Y.P.A. member.

That this Conference, recognizing the A.Y.P.A. Monthly as the official magazine of the Association, recommend that greater responsibility be taken by Local Councils and Branches to increase the interest.

Since we are a religious body, a Christian, Anglican organization, be it resolved that we urge upon our members their personal obligation to active participation, individual and corporate, in the defintely religious acts associated with our A.Y.P.A. programme.

Whereas there has been some confusion regarding the interpretation of our second principle, Work, be it resolved that this Conference is of the opinion that the term, Work, in our forefold principle, should be retained, with a broader interpretation, stressing the ideal of service.

Whereas there is an evident lack of knowledge on the part of members regarding the various auxilary organizations of the church, as avenues of service, be it resolved that this Conference request the A.Y.P.A. Monthly to publish articles providing the desired information.

Whereas A.Y.P.A. Fellowship has been defined by this Conference as a deep, spiritual relationship, existing between those who uphold a common ideal, and true Fellowship results in following Christ, be it resolved that we test our possession of that true Spirit of Fellowship by the usage in each branch of the suggestions outlined in Section IV of the Leader's notes on the discussion of Fellowship.

Whereas there is an evident desire on the part of young people for the study of ideas for personal and world betterment, be it resolved that this Conference recommends the immediate formation of Study Groups under Branch or Council auspices.

That the findings of the Discussion Groups be carefully tabulated and mimeographed for distribution to the branches within the Province—provided the incidental expense be not too great.

That the thanks of this Conference be conveyed to the Discussion Leaders and their Secretaries.

Lakefield Enjoys Parr Travelogue

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 24.—The travelogue on Rev. Parr's trip to Europe, which was presented in the Lakefield United Church here on Friday evening under the auspices of the Mission Band of the church, was well attended.

Rev. M. Parr, pastor of George Street Church, Peterborough, showed on the screen pictures taken by him and outlined for his audience interesting and historic details concerning the subjects pictured. The travelogue was interspersed with sparkling anecdotes which delighted the audience.

Rev. G. T. Kelly, pastor, introduced the speaker.

Junior W.I. Dance

A large crowd attended a jolly dance in the Memorial Hall here on Friday evening when the Junior Branch of the Women's Institute of Lakefield acted as hostesses, and provided a full evening of fun for those in attendance.

Red Moncrief's orchestra from Peterborough provided music for both round and square dancing and a number of tag dances and Paul Jones' tended to mix the crowd up and get things going merrily.

The Ladies' Institute catered, serving the lunch in cafeteria style.

The party broke up about 2.00 a.m.

Mystery Grave

TORONTO, Oct. 24. — (CP).—Scarborough township authorities announced last night they will investigate the reported discovery of an unmarked grave in the grounds of the abandoned Alexandra school for girls.

Councillor B. L. Clutterbuck said he had been told of the grave by a former caretaker of the school, abandoned two years ago when a new school was acquired. The burial supposedly took place several years ago.

TWO MINDS—ONE THOUGHT

LONDON — (CP). — Sir Charles Sherrington, authority on monkeys, leaving a zoo, wondered what they did when unobserved. Looking back he saw a chimpanzee evidently having the same thought about Sir Charles.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Hired Boy Steals Car From Street Arrest Made Before Theft Reported

A SOUTH MONAGHAN farmer parked his automobile on Hunter street on Saturday night and dropped in to see a picture show. When he came out of the theatre at 11 o'clock the automobile was gone and he hurried to the police station to report its loss. Meanwhile things had happened. Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton was travelling down Water street when he noticed a car proceeding north with its lights out and engine behaving badly. He investigated, found a 16-year-old boy at the wheel, and discovered that he was driving his employer's car without permission having taken it from where it had been parked on Hunter street. The lad was taken to police station with the result that when the farmer arrived to report a car theft he found the case already solved with his own hired boy as the culprit.

low-flying cloud of smoke partially hid the sun.

Poor Flee Hiding Spots

The fires drove from hiding thousands of poorer Chinese, the only remnants of a population of 2,000,000 living in the metropolitan area a short time ago.

Thousands of panic-stricken Chinese were still fleeing in river junks and other thousands huddled in terror opposite the international settlement.

Foreign authorities arrested one Chinese attempting to ignite gasoline opposite the settlement. Elsewhere piles of paper and wood were found in buildings and many foreigners said they saw Chinese lighting fires.

The flames failed to halt looting. Hundreds of Chinese beggars looted shops, especially rice stores. A few corpses of looters were seen in the streets, their heads smashed.

Only a small force of Japanese, estimated at 1,500, had reached the city. The Japanese commander told the British consul Chinese looting would be checked with the arrival of reinforcements.

Foreign advices indicated, meanwhile, that the Japanese attack along the Canton River south of here still was in progress. It was believed the Japanese would soon blast their way through the Bocca Tigris forts.

Great Armada Nearing

A tremendous naval armada was reported forcing its way up the river, aerial observation indicating as many as 150 vessels were participating in the drive.

Once the river is clear, the Japanese can land their man forces at Canton and continue their inland invasion. One column was reported by Japanese sources already to be advancing up the Canton-Hankow railway unopposed.

Only one Chinese soldier was seen in Canton. He was a prisoner, peacefully eating rice among the enemy troops with his face swathed in bandages.

There was evidence the fires were being started by Chinese soldiers, who took off their uniforms to apply China's "scorched earth" policy which may give the Japanese a heap of ashes instead of a city.

It was reported thousands of these soldiers were swarming, disorganized and desperate, through the innumerable waterways of the Canton River delta, confiscating junks and sampans and commandeering food while the countryside was in panic under constant Japanese aerial bombardments.

The shifting flames brought relief to exhausted foreigners on Shameen Island where for 24 hours shirtless volunteers, including businessmen, naval officers and clerks, worked in relays against falling sparks and small fires.

Betrayal Hinted

(The Hong Kong Telegraph, commenting on the fall of Canton, said it was too early to state definitely that "traitors were involved although in view of the circumstances there seems to be no other explanation."

("Never in its centuries of history," the editorial continued, "has Kwangtung's capital fallen to an invading army with such ridiculous ease and the only logical conclusion that can be reached is that silver has been used in the greatest betrayal the world has known for 19 centuries."

(Dispatches from Hong Kong said the departure of Sir Archibald Kerr, British ambassador, for Chungking, Chinese capital, has checked rumors he might act as mediator in the conflict, but Hong Kong newspapers continued to give attention to rumors that some sort of peace negotiations were under way.)

Apple Day Held At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 24.—Boy Scouts sold 2½ barrels of apples on Saturday when they held their second annual Apple Day here. There were nine members of Campbellford's Boy Scout Troop out in full uniform to offer along with their most engaging smile delicious apples. Billy Nesbitt was the most successful salesman of the day, and although the number of times his basket was replenished was not checked, he handed over close to $7 at the end of the day. The boys took in about $35 which was slightly lessthan the amount collected last year, according to Scoutmaster C. Coliard.

Needs His Tools

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 24. — (CP).—Claude Weber can't go to work until thieves or practical jokers return his tools, a handcart and window-cleaning ladders. He told police they disappeared during the week-end.

Apsley Red Cross Post Has Fine Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Oct. 24. — The annual meeting of the Apsley Red Cross was held last week in St. George's Parish Hall. It was in the form of an open meeting, with the Rev. C. A. G. Spence in the chair.

The president, Norman Lean, was re-elected, and Mrs. G. K. Fraser honorary president. Mack Hastings was again elected vice-president. Rev. G. McMullen, who has served in the capacity of secretary, resigned at this meeting, and Bert Munro was elected in his place. Mrs. James Downing, who has been treasurer for as long as the post has been open, was returned to office. The officers of the board were elected as follows: F. Hampton, Mrs. G. McMullen, Miss L. Ashenhurst, Mrs. T. H. Lean, W. James, Dr. Carr-Harris, Rev. F. McMulken, and G. K. Fraser. Rev. C. A. G. Spence was named auditor. After the business was concluded a short program was given by school children. Three girls, Audrey Windsor, Jean Bullied, and Irene McOmoyle from Miss Laura Ashenhurst's School gave a demonstration on "First-aid to the Injured," and children from F. Hampton's School gave a folk dance and put on a small playlet entitled, "The House That Health Built."

The Red Cross in Apsley has just closed another successful year, and has as always proved a great benefit to this community. The finances for this year are very encouraging: Receipts, local, $569.50; grand total, $706.50; expenditures, $390.80; balance $215.20. The singing of "God Save the King" brought a very successful meeting to a close.

Mrs. Morley McDonald was in Bancroft on Thursday.

Among those who attended Mrs. Watson's funeral in Lakefield on Thursday were Mrs. Stanley Windsor, Mrs. James Downing, and R. F. McMulken.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Windsor and Stanley Windsor attended the funeral of the former's brother, Howard Windsor, held at Havelock on Thursday.

Rev. C. A. G. Spence motored to Havelock and Keene on Thursday to officiate at the funeral of the late Howard Windsor, a former resident of Apsley.

Mrs. Thackery of Roseneath is on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Simon Windsor this week.

Mrs. Simon Windsor and Mrs. Thackery were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Lean on Thursday.

Just Before Riot Injured Scores

Here is a section of the picket line outside the plant of the Aerovox Corporation in Brooklyn, where 400 strikers and sympathizers rioted when non-strikers attempted to enter the struck plant. A score of persons were hurt in the melee that ensued. Seventy-five police rushed to the scene, arrested 15. According to placards carried by the pickets, the strike is in protest of long hours and wage cuts.

Thirty-Six Veterans Given Jewels In Havelock Rebekah Ceremony

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 24. — An event of decided importance in the history of Ontario's Dorcas Rebekah Sisterhood was marked on Thursday when the largest group of veterans ever to be presented with their "jewels" on the same occasion assembled for this impressive ceremony in the large rooms of the Havelock Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 96. Guests were present from Timmins, Toronto, Kingston, Trenton, Campbellford, and Peterborough.

The lodge rooms were beautifully decorated with baskets of carnations, 'mums, asters and fern in special honor of the lodge veterans. Highest praise and thanks was extended P. N. G. Sister Minnie Williams, to whom a large part of the credit for "putting over" this memorable event was due.

In a beautiful ceremony, under the direction of P.N.G. Sister Minnie Williams, the thirty-six veterans were presented to President Sister Bertha Suttan of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario, who made the presentation of the veteran jewels. Those receiving jewels were as follows: James Barlow, James Colquhoun, W. J. Ranton, all charter members; P.N.G. Sister Sarah Campney, P.N.G. Sister Eliza Wright, Sister Leah Wright, P.N.G. Sister Nellie McIntyre, Sister Eva Cooke, Sister Margaret McAdams, P.N.G. Sister Jean Green, Sister Anna Goheen, P.N.B. Sister Margaret Jones, P.N.G. Sister Hazel McQuigge, Sister Rhoda Campney, Sister Flossie Masters, Sister Ethel Williams, P.N.G. Sister Grace Copp, P.N.G. Sister Jessie Green, Sister Mamie Little, P.N.G. Sister Rose Easterbrook, P.N.G. Sister Hazel Iles, P.N.G. Sister Minnie Williams, Sister Jessie Rice, P.N.G. Sister E..a Woodbeck, Sister Nellie Davies, Sister Lucinda Cummings, Sister Nellie Spinks, Sister Lena Forsythe, Sister Etta Crawford, Sister Esther Whitney, N.G. Sister Ada Russell, P.N.G. Sister Pearl Gordon, Sister Bertha Breckenridge, William Rice, George Iles.

Degree Conferred.

A degree was conferred during the afternoon by the Dorcas Degree staff under the captainship of P. N.G. Sister Minnie Williams. Following this the presentation of a certificate of perfection for the Ritualistic and Secret Work was made by the president, Sister Bertha Suttan to N.G. Sister Ada Russell.

Gifts were presented to President Sister Bertha Suttan and D.D.P. Sister Nellie Beatty, with love and best wishes from the local lodge, the presentation being made by P. N.G. Sister Russell and P.N.G. Sister Sarah Campney.

Among the officers of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario present were: President Sister Bertha Suttan of Trenton, Grand Inside Guardian, Sister Olive Milliken of Toronto, and District Deputy President Sister Nellie Beatty of Peterborough.

D.D.P. Sister Beatty and her committee of District 28 installed the following officers for the ensuing year: N.G., Sister Muriel Poste; V.G., Sister Jessie Rice; Recording Secretary, P.N.G. Sister Hazel Iles; F.S., P.N.G. Sister Hazel McQuigge; Treasurer, P.N.G. Sister Ella Woodbeck; Conductress, Sister Betty Wilde; Warden, Sister Madeline Armstrong; Chaplain, P. N.G. Sister Rose Easterbrooke; Jr. P.N.G., Sister Ada Russell; R.S.N. G., P.N.G. Sister Luella Hubbel; L. S.N.G., P.N.G. Sister Eliza Wright; R.S.V.G., P.N.G. Sister Pearl Gordon; L.S.V.G., Sister Elva Thompson; Musician, P.N.G. Sister Addie McCutcheon; Inner Guard, Sister Ethel Draper; Outer Guard, Sister Nellie Davies.

A sumptuous banquet was catered to almost a hundred guests at 6.30 p.m. in the basement of St. John's Anglican Church by the members of St. John's Parish Guild.

Refreshments were also served by the lodge members at the conclusion of the meeting that evening, when a social period was enjoyed. The flowers used for decorating were afterwards distributed among the sick, and an assorted basket given to each of the United, Presbyterian, and Anglican Churches.

great rejoicing on the Collins farm on Friday and the family is still a little bit in the clouds about the whole thing. May is expected home any time now.

"Are you sure she has her ticket?" Mrs. Collins was asked.

"Oh, yes, there's no doubt about that," was the answer.

Always Used Same Name

Her daughter has bought a ticket on the Irish Sweepstakes for several years now, always using the name "Peggy O'Shea." The horse she drew offers the best odds of any starter drawn by Canadians, bar one, a ten-to-one shot.

Within a few hours of the time she was notified of her daughter's luck, Mrs. Collins' telephone was ringing and a Buffalo syndicate was offering to buy the ticket or a half interest in it. There was no sale, Mrs. Collins said, nor was there going to be. She knew her daughter well enough to know that she would take her chance and keep sole possession of the ticket, gambling for an uncertain $150,000 against a certain increase over her $2,185 of only a few hundred dollars.

14 Of An Addition

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP). —"Queenie," Max Frankel's Scotch collie, has set some kind of a record for the dog world, in these parts anyway. When Max set out from Goderich yesterday for Toronto, "Queenie" had given birth to six puppies. When Max returned he found the big Scotch collie nursing 14 puppies, seven male and seven female and all, including mother, were doing well.

Keep Fit at MIDDLE AGE

A good many people are dismayed to find they're developing a "middle-aged sluggishness". There's no mistaking that tired, jaded feeling. If you feel a twinge of Rheumatic Pains, too, don't be surprised. Uric Acid is usually the cause. Luckily a daily ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water aids to drive Uric Acid away and helps put your liver—the real culprit—into order again. Just watch that sluggish feeling go when Fynnon Salt takes charge!

In Fynnon Salt are combined the elements of three remedial "Salts of the Earth". They are Sodium, Potassium and Lithium. Wealthy people seek them far and wide in the "waters" of famous European Spas. But now you can have similar benefits in your own home, from a large 75c bottle of Fynnon Salt! The effect of these elements in Fynnon Salt is most beneficial. They aid in dispersing painful Uric Acid crystals. They help clean the system of poisonous waste matter that causes Uric Acid. They assist your liver to work at full strength once more. Ask your druggist today for Fynnon Salt and start to get rid of Rheumatic pain. Large bottle 75c at all druggists'.

Two Thieves Surprised

TORONTO,— Police reported today two thieves were surprised yesterday in an attempt to "blow" a safe containing $10,000 in a Danforth avenue shop. The men were reported to have fled when Constable Alfred Wooley tried the lock on the door while patrolling his beat.

Seek Federal Aid

TORONTO,— Mayor Ralph Day said today Toronto would ask the Federal Government to contribute half the cost of the city's proposed $25,000,000 sewage plant. "We shall ask Ottawa to go into it with us as a relief work on a 50-50 basis," he said.

Peterborough Chinese Awaiting Word From Canton Area Where Their Families Live

Thoughts of Peterborough Chinese were far away in their home land today in deep and abstracted anxiety for the safety of relatives in the Canton sector directly in the path of invading Japanese who have occupied the great industrial city on the Pearl River with hardly more effort than firing a shot.

"Ninety per cent of the Chinese in Canada and the United States are Cantonese," Jim Hum told the Examiner. "Their homes are in the province of Canton and within a radius of one hundred miles or a little more from the big city. We can't understand what has happened. All the news of late was that a strong army of 125,000 with modern equipment was prepared to defend Canton, to sacrifice everything, even great damage to the city itself. But, the Japs walk in and take it without firing a shot. Cables were sent from Toronto on Friday and Saturday for information, but not a word has come through. We can't understand why no resistance was made."

Most of the local Chinese came from little villages up country about ninety miles from Canton. Japanese airplanes have for weeks past been flying over that area, but there were no reports of any injuries to members of families of the men living here. Now that whole countryside is open to the invaders who control the last of the great ports on the Chinese Pacific coast.

"We don't know anything more than has been printed in the Ontario papers," another of the local colony said. "If the League of Nations had only done something back in 1931 all this wouldn't have happened. China was a member of the League and trusted in it, but it just flattened out. Now Japan can do anything it likes and the west doesn't say a word. Most of us in Canada were from the country, but we have all been in Canton and know it well, just like here. Our people are farmers or they live in the village. And the sad thing is our people were making great improvements under the New Youth movement of Chiang Kai-shek, modern roads, transportation, education, everything like here. Now the Japanese are in there, and that is all we know about it."

Husband Is Guilty Of Common Assault

"Invariably a woman will lay a charge of assault against her husband and when I find him guilty, she doesn't want him sent to jail," remarked Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., when Daly Detlor, 25, of Peterborough pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault.

Mrs. Detlor called into the courtroom by the Magistrate said she did not want her husband sent to jail, although she still bore signs of the assault in a discolored eye. Mr. McElderry, Crown Attorney, agreed to two years suspended sentence, with the prisoner putting up his own good conduct bond.

Edward Alberico of Peterborough was fined ten dollars on a charge of being found in a common gaming house. The charge had been adjourned many times but was finally disposed of this morning.

Arthur White, charged with non-support had his case adjourned for two weeks.

Pierce Nicholson, 632 Union street was charged with a serious offence involving a member of his own family, and was remanded without plea or election until Friday, October 28.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HARD TO BELIEVE.

The news that Peterborough Orfuns had trounced Sarnia Imperials here Saturday afternoon was news that most people had difficulty in believing. The Examiner's switchboard was kept busy for hours after the game had ended and the amazed expressions which people uttered when they received the score gave operators many a chuckle. Many would not believe, had to be told twice. One coller asked for the score, then said, "You know I just wanted to be sure. I was at the game myself but I couldn't believe my eyes."—P.

FOOLED BY BELL.

If there is one railway crossing more dangerous than one which has no wig-wag, then it is the crossing on Reid street near the corner of McDonnel. Motorists have been fooled by the warning so often that many no longer pay any attention to it. The bell always rings for at least three minutes before a train crosses, and by that time the patience of even the meekest motorist is exhausted and he has nearly always taken a chance and stepped on the gas. On Saturday the bell rang for four solid minutes, then stopped without a train having ever made its appearance.—P.

ABSENT-MINDED

Married life is evidently not conducive to one's peace of mind. A young fellow who used to live in the north end took unto himself a wife and moved into a house near the C.G.E. where he works. After he had been in the new house for a few days, he left the C.G.E. at closing time, and instead of going home, started to hike northward. As he crossed Brock street, still heading for the house where he used to live, the thought suddenly struck him that he had forgotten about moving to the new location near his work. He sheepishly explained his lateness to his wife, but the latter thought the story was too good to keep and now the fellow workers at the C.G.E. have dubbed him "Corrigan."—McG.

QUITE A SHOCK

A few merchants are in the habit of having a radio playing on the street directly in front of their store, which in itself is a very commendable idea, because it gives the customer a better chance to judge tone. It had, however, rather astonishing results on Saturday afternoon. A lady shopper loaded down with parcels and very intent on her work, was passing one of these radios just at the time a hair-raising murder story was on. As the woman sailed by the girl on the air let loose with a blood-curdling screech, and the shopper promptly unwound, tossing parcels in all directions. Grinning pedestrians helped the woman assemble the parcels and she went her way, but not before she had switched off the radio.—McG.

Soot And Ashes Smoulder 5 Days

Proof that soot and ashes will keep smouldering away for days was given on Sunday when the fire department was called to extinguish a blaze that broke out in the home of G. Whatley, 335 King street, shortly after one o'clock in the afternoon.

"They had cleaned the stove pipes five days before," Chief George Gimblett said. "There is no telling how long such stuff will smoulder away; this is an indication."

Although no damage was done by the fire, which was extinguished before it had made any headway, "it should be a warning to other householders," said Chief Gimblett. "Ashes and soot must not be placed in wooden or cardboard containers. We have a city by-law that requires all ashes and soot to be placed in metal containers." Two fires within the past week have been caused by violation of that by-law, he said.

Balloons Start Popping In Airplane When Too Much Air Blown Into Them

FRANK ARMITAGE is an experienced aviator with hundreds of hours in the air, but the other day he received his first taste of aerial bombardment and he didn't like it.

He had just returned from Trenton, where he underwent reexamination for his flying instructor's license at the Air Force base, and he may have been a little bit war-conscious as a result of seeing so many war machines. In any case he took aloft, from his Chemong Lake seaplane base, a Peterborough grocer bent on scattering pamphlets over the city in advertisement of a business anniversary.

They were climbing high into the air when the grocer commenced to inflate balloons which he intended to throw from the cabin with small weights attached and carrying advertisements. Soon the space in front of the grocer became filled with balloons and an occasional one floated back past the aviator.

Suddenly Armitage heard a noise like a pistol shot. Startled, he looked all about him. He leaned forward and asked his passenger how his balloons were flaring. "Fine, fine," came the answer. A few minutes later there was another sharp explosion and this time Armitage was certain that either someone was firing at him or else his engine was behaving in dangerous fashion. Two explosions later, he was on the verge of turning back towards his base when his passenger turned around with the plaint that he had blown too much air into his balloons, that they were popping all over the cabin.

Addressed Dinner

JUDGE H. S. MOTT

Durham County Boys Win Twice At O.A.C.

The winners of the beef cattle judging competition, held at Guelph last week by junior farmers from all over Ontario were William Allan of Newcastle and Ned Malcolm of Nestleton from Durham county with a total of 1,125 points. The Victoria team was fourth with 954 and Peterboro fifth with 930 point. Ned Malcolm was high boy, with 563 points and Wm. Allan second, 562 points.

A Durham county team composed of Fred Rowan of Millbrook and Allan Dawson won the competition in grain judging. They were also the individual winners with the highest scores.

Gordon Stalker was high boy in the foal club contest with 526 points. The team score was 1,053; the Brant team was second with 1,001 points.

Richard Lees Laid To Rest

A man who was firm in what he believed, yet who never made an enemy of anyone with whom he differed, was the way Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr described the late Richard Lees, former Public Schol Inspector for Peterborough East, at his funeral service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Friday afternoon.

While life is a struggle, and Mr. Lees was a fighter from beginning to end, yet his life would never have been the success it was had the fight itself been his life's main end, Dr. Barr said. One of the essentials of greatness is a loyalty to one's convictions and to one's faith. Of such a spirit was Mr. Lees, said Dr. Barr.

He outlined four characteristics which he said were dominant in Mr. Lees' life. They were frankness, loyalty, courtesy, and modesty. "He was a man who never paraded his virtue, yet he was never afraid to state his convictions."

A man deeply interested in education, he had strong religious convictions. "He was loyal to the very best traditions of the Presbyterian eldership and faithfully supported his minister. He had some of the characteristics of another great elder, Earl Haig of Bemersyde, who lies in a hilly cemetery not far from the place Mr. Lees' forefathers left to come to this country—Selkirk. Mr. Lees was not permitted to be buried there because it was his lot to serve the county and city of Peterborough, in another land. He will sleep in Little Lake, but he will never leave the hearts of a great many of his friends here.

Pall-bearers at the funeral were H. B. Cowan, Sr., W. S. Hill, Warden E. A. McDonald, Ald. James Dutton, Dr. J. A. Bannister, and R. F. Downey.

U.F.O. Organizes Study Groups

Dr. R. W. Frank and other representatives of the Peterborough Co-operative Society attended the U.F.O. meeting Thursday night at which Earl Tully of Smith, president, and Vernon Campbell of Douro were appointed delegates to the provincial convention of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company in Toronto November 22-24.

Organization of study groups in the townships to promote an understanding of the co-operative movement was one of the decisions of the meeting, and the leaders named were Willard Waterman in North Monaghan; Earl Petrie and W. W. Dawson in Otonabee; James Gifford in Ennismore; Vernon Campbell in Douro; Haroid Lewis and Earle Tully of Smith.

Reeve Gifford gave an interesting talk on the progress of co-operation in Nova Scotia mining towns, in the lobster canneries and through the medium of the new credit unions. E. H. Brown discussed the community of interest of rural and urban consumers and the basis on which they could work together.

MUST PRESENT CARDS.

Membership cards must be presented this year at the door, the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Concert Association announced to-day. Officers of the association also said that receipts would not do.

A BIG POTATO

John Schweier, of 516 Wolfe street, must have thought he was digging in the wrong section of his garden, or that his turnips had got crossed with his potatoes, when he dug up a tuber that tipped the scales at one pound and 16 ounces.

C.C.F. ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Peterborough C.C.F. will be held in the Moose Hall Thursday evening for the election of officers, the appointment of committees and for other business that may come up. This meeting is confined to members of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

HIGHEST PLOWING SCORE

In revising the scores at the county plowing match, Roland Dixon found that the best card of the day was turned in by James Lee of Greenbank in the utility class in stubble. He was credited with 82 points, and John Medd of Port Perry was actually second with 81½ points. Harold Collins of Otonabee was third for 81 points.

FOUR CASES TREATED.

Three cases of shock following auto collisions that occurred during the A.Y.P.A. tour on Saturday were treated by St. John's Ambulance Brigade officers. A fourth call came when they treated W. Phillips of Lakefield, suffering from hand lacerations and shock after his car had plunged into Little Lake Saturday night.

PETERBOROUGH MALE CHORUS

The Peterborough Male Chorus will meet for its regular rehearsal at the Paragon Hall, corner of Brock and George streets at 8 o'clock for this week only. All members are asked to be prompt in attendance. Prospective members kindly make application at once to any member of the chorus or to the director, Charles Renaud.

"PROBATION AFTER DEATH"

"Probation After Death" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden text was, "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil." (Ecclesiastes 12:14.) Selections from the Bible included the following from John 20:19: "Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following, "Our Master reappeared to his students—to their apprehension he rose from the grave—on the third day of his ascending thought, and so presented to them the certain sense of eternal Life."

Violin Reported To Be "Strad" Made Years After Stradivarius' Death

To Oliver S. Downer, who lives on the 6th Line of Otonabee, the Examiner has to report a bit of bad news.

This morning Mr. Downer walked into the office, handed a piece of paper to a reporter, who read: "Antonius Stradivarius Cromonenpis, Faciebat Anno 1764."

"I have a violin with that written on it," the visitor said. "Is it worth anything. I've heard the name means a lot in violins." The reporter thought it did too and he began to ask a good many questions.

He found that one of Mr. Downer's wife's family had bought the instrument somewhere in Chicago many years ago as a gift for another member. It came into his wife's possession and she prized it highly all her life. Then, after her death three years ago, the violin fell into disuse. Hard luck pursued the widower. He prepared to move from his farm and had sent three trunks of belongings, including the violin, to his brother's farm on the 6th Line of Otonabee, when fire broke out about three o'clock in the morning and razed the house.

If his violin had turned out to be of great value, he did not intend to sell it. He was going to keep it for his daughter, and teach her to play it, that she might have a good start in life.

It was the Examiner's editor who later showed the reporter that the violin was not genuine. "One of these violins supposed to be made by Stradivari turns up about once every six months," he said. And then he looked up some information on the Italian violin maker and furnished absolute proof that Mr. Downer's violin was not one of the thousand fashioned by Stradivarius.

"Stradivarius, Antonio, 1644-1737," a note on the man in an encyclopedia read. Stradivari died in 1737, and the date on Mr. Downer's violin was 1764.

Asks For Plans On Addition To Hospital

The trustees of the Nicholls Hospital have decided to engage architects to draft plans and prepare estimates of the cost of an addition which they realize has become an acute necessity. The hospital has been so over-crowded at times that even the operating room has to be used for patients, moving them out when the room was required for operations. It was also reported that many persons have had to be turned away because of the lack of accommodation, their number ranging from two to 10 a day. Trustees have been giving their problem a great deal of thought, and as a preliminary step they intend to obtain plans, costs and other information for expansion from architects who are to be appointed.

Penny Day Nets Firemen $156

Firemen and boy scouts, standing all day on crowded George and Charlotte streets, collected a total of $156.71 in their annual "Penny Day," Fire Chief George Gimblett said today.

He expressed thanks on behalf of himself and members of the department to the citizens who "so generously came to the aid of the city's poor children." Funds collected will be used to buy paints and other materials used in repairing thousands of toys for distribution at Christmas.

While the drive is dubbed "penny" day, a large portion of the receipts were not in coppers. One $5 bill headed the list of subscriptions, followed by a $2 bill, three $1 bills, and one fifty-cent piece. There were $30.75 in quarters, $31.50 in dimes, $34.60 in nickles, and $49.36 in coppers.

The total compared favorably with last year's collection and Chief Gimblett promised that his staff will stretch the last penny in an attempt to provide more toys for more children this year than ever before.

Marjorie Lawrence Here On Wednesday

Marjorie Lawrence, one of the youngest prima donnas of the Metropolitan Opera, is coming to Peterborough on Wednesday to sing at the first program of the second season of the Peterborough Concert Association in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Not only is she a leading soprano of the popular Wagnerian wing—alternating with Kirsten Flagstad in some of her roles—but sheer versatility enables her to sing in entirely different operas. Last season she scored a sensational success in the title role of "Salome"—the Metropolitan being jammed to capacity for all three performances of this opera.

In concert, too, Miss Lawrence has been establishing a wide following throughout this country. All this is the more amazing in view of the fact that she has been singing in public for only six years. A native of Australia, she began her musical studies in Melbourne, then went to Paris to work with Mme. Cecile Gilly. After only three years of coaching she made her debut at the Monte Carlo Opera, singing Elisabeth in "Tannhaeuser." A few weeks later she made her appearance at the Paris Opera in "Lohengrin." She continued singing at the Paris Opera during the three subsequent seasons.

50 Years Wed

"Short and sweet" was the way Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, 33 Lansdowne street, described 50 years of married life on their golden wedding anniversary to-day. They farmed in the Westwood district for years. However, they are now retired, although Mr. Carter, 75 years old, still works nearly every day on the old farm.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carter Marking Golden Wedding Anniversary

Fifty years of married life have been "short and sweet," according to Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, 33 Lansdowne street, who are today celebrating their golden wedding anniversary.

"We've never had a quarrel in our lives," was the proud boast of the two 75-year-old people who were raised within a few miles of one another and who went to the same Presbyterian church in Hastings half a century and more ago.

Mr. Carter was born in Percy township, in Northumberland county, a mile south of Hastings and went to the Hastings school. Mrs. Carter was Janet Fife, descendant of those same Fifes who gave a great wheat to the world. She attended Fife school near her home.

Farmers all their lives, neither would have any change. "Did you ever get tired of farming?" Mr. Carter was asked.

"I loved it too much ever to tire of it," was the answer.

For thirteen years after they were married Mr. and Mrs. Carter farmed a mile south of his old home; then they moved one mile west of Westwood in 1902 and they remained there until his retirement in 1926. Now they live in Peterborough, but Mr. Carter goes back to the farm regularly and does nearly as much work as he ever did. "My wife says I'm still a farmer even though I've retired," he said. His son, Harry Carter, still operates the old farm, 200 acres in extent.

There is still money to be made in farming, according to Mr. Carter, but the farmer of today must have a keen mind, a willingness to work long hours, and, most of all, a deep love of the land.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter are both members of St. Paul's Presbyterian church here and are regular attendants. Mrs. Carter goes every Sunday to the Sunday School in the south end, because the mile and a half jaunt to the church is getting a little too much for her. They have two children living: Harry Carter, on the farm near Westwood, and Mrs. Alex Graham of Lakefield.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES RIGDEN

The death of Mrs. James Rigden, Nova Scotia Apartments, George street, occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Sunday after a short illness.

Born in Ramsgate, Kent, England, she had lived here for a quarter of a century and was a member of St. John's Anglican church. Three brothers and one sister survive in England.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 306 Water street, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Man And Wife Both Die Within 12 Hours

Death struck twice within twelve hours in the family of John Brightman, well-known hide and wool merchant of this city, last night and this morning. Mrs. Brightman suffered a seizure at four-thirty Sunday afternoon, and died at seven o'clock Sunday night, while her husband, John, was found dead at the Tannery on Aylmer street by Don Mackay, an employee, shortly before eight o'clock this morning. Dr. J. C. Smith, county coroner has ordered an inquest.

The hide and wool business was started in the spring of 1895 by the late Tom Brightman, who died in October, 1934. The son, John, has carried on the business ever since that time. John was a quiet, friendly fellow and very popular among those who knew him. During the past few years he has been financing the marketing and advertising of a soap flake preparation called "Super-Suds," and at the time of his tragic death was still interested in this product. He was born in Rochester, N.Y., and was 46 years of age.

Mrs. Brightman had been ill for some time. She was born in Rochester and her maiden name was Muriel Burkholder. There are three children surviving: Robert, Hugh and Donald, the oldest being twelve years. She died in Nicholls Hospital. Surviving are her father, two brothers, Ivan and Lloyd Burkholder, Rochester, and one sister, Mrs. Iola Zeemer, Rochester. Both she and her late husband attended St. Andrew's United Church.

John Armstrong Brightman is survived by his mother, Mrs. Fanny Brightman, and one sister, Mrs. Mildred Carr, both living at 345 Hunter street west.

A double funeral will be held on Tuesday, October 25th, from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, at 3.30 in the afternoon, to Little Lake Cemetery.

P. C. I. SENIORS WIN AS JUNIOR GRIDDERS LOSE IN OSHAWA

Garnet And Gray Seniors Clinch Group Section As Juniors Eliminated

OSHAWA, Oct. 24.—Taking full advantage of a couple of breaks in a hard-fought grid battle, Peterborough Collegiate seniors defeated the O.C.V.I. team here on Saturday afternoon by a score of 12-1 and by so doing clinched the championship of their section in the group. Lindsay and Oshawa have both lost two games and the undefeated P.C.I. team has only one more game to play.

Oshawa juniors won their game in the morning, 17 to 6.

A large crowd of students and citizens turned out to see the annual Peterborough-Oshawa grid joust and they were rewarded with a bang-up battle. Battling grimly every inch of the way and tackling so hard that numerous fumbles were being made, the two teams battled on even terms for the first quarter and well into the second session. Leether lofted a long punt into Oshawa territory and Moldaver, going down under the kick to make the tackle, snatched up the loose ball when Halfback Kovacs fumbled the catch and before he could be halted, Moldaver had crossed the line for a touchdown, which was not converted.

Oshawa Scores

Before the quarter had ended, Oshawa pushed deep into Peterborough territory and scored a single point when Diplock was rouged behind his own line. Scriver kicked for a point to the deadline and Dionne was dropped by the Peterborough tacklers for another rouge, making the score 7-1 at half time.

The third quarter provided the best rugby of the game and was scoreless, with Oshawa trying hard to cut into Peterborough's lead and the Garnet and Grey squad holding grimly to their advantage.

In the final quarter, play roughened up and penalties were handed out, Fetchison for the homesters and Ward for Peterborough being the worst offenders caught. Peterborough's victory was cinched in the last quarter when an Oshawa kick was blocked and Ward broke through to grab the ball and sprinted across the line for a touchdown. It was not converted and there was no further scoring, Oshawa pressing hard at the last but unable to get much success.

P.C.I. JUNIORS DEFEATED

The junior game in the morning saw the Peterborough students open the scoring, take the lead in the second quarter and then fade before a withering attack launched by the Oshawa gridders in the second half of the game. Ackford booted a nifty field goal for Peterborough to open the scoring in the game but a few minutes later Peterborough fumbled the ball on a backfield catch and Murphy swooped in and grabbed the oval, sprinting across the line for a touchdown. The convert failed and before the quarter ended, just after Douglas had been put off for rough play, Ackford kicked to the deadline for another single point.

In the second quarter with the wind at their backs, the Peterborough team commenced an aerial attack and their kicking brought results. Walker was rouged behind his own line to tie the score and then Ackford kicked another single point to put his team in front at half time 6-5.

Put On Pressure

In the third quarter, the O.C.V.I. students began to put on more pressure. Working into favorable position, Daniels booted a placement to put his team in front again and they were never headed. A kick to the deadline by Daniels made the score 9-6 at the quarter mark and in the last quarter Oshawa asserted their superiority and had a decided edge in the play.

Brisebois tackled the Peterborough halfback for a rouge and then when Peterborough desperately took to the air to even up the score, Furey grabbed off a Peterborough forward pass and kept right on going to score a touchdown which Daniels converted. Another rouge completed the scoring. Oshawa 17 and Peterborough 6.

With The Boy Scouts

Attention, all scout officers, troop committee-men, members of the local association:

A general meeting and election of officers of the local association will be held on Wednesday, October 26, at 7.30 p.m. sharp, in the headquarters on George street. All reports of the various groups will be received.

Scout, cub and rover leaders should have these reports in the hands of their group committees as the chairmen of those committees are the ones to give the reports of the group activities at the meeting.

Any man interested in the scout movement is cordially invited to attend.

On Tuesday last a joint meeting of the All Saints' and St. John's rover crew was held to listen to a talk on civic affairs from W. F. Huycke, K.C.

The talk was one of great interest and was given in a very pleasing way by the gifted speaker, and is a new departure by the rovers. It is hoped that the joint meeting is but the first of a series. After the talk a social time was completed with food to which the young men did justice.

District Commissioner Hornsby visited the All Saints' troop and asked for a few volunteers to assist the firemen in their penny day on Saturday, and eight boys offered their services.

Eighty-six per cent attendance was recorded at the meeting and the games of Knot Relays and Push Pole were enjoyed, followed by an instruction period.

At the camp fire a new negro spiritual song was learned. It was reported that Reg Burns sold the lucky ticket on the quilt for the Mother's Auxiliary. The Court of Honor meeting decided to hold a Parents' Night and banquet for both the scouts and cubs in the near future.

The Pow-Wow patrol is holding a meeting at the scouter's home tonight, Monday, at 7 p.m. sharp.

The St. John's pack had a very interesting and educational visit to the Bell Telephone plant last Friday night, and next Friday they are holding a Hallowe'en party. Put on the most original costume you can for that will bring some boy a prize.

The group Mother's Auxiliary of St. John's will meet next Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the parish hall, and all scout and cub mothers are cordially invited to attend.

Last Friday night, four or five people were lucky enough to pick up five cents off the sidewalks downtown, but little do they know that in picking up the nickels they were immediately under close observation by a group of scouts, and maybe if they could attend a meeting of St. John's scout troop next Friday they would hear a more or less accurate description of themselves being given.

It was the troops night's activity last Friday. The troop split into four or five groups, each of whom set the five cent bait on the sidewalk, then waited for someone to lift the coin. Immediately any person picked up the bait, the scouts followed at a discreet distance and took stock of build, wearing apparel and actions. These are to be reported upon next Friday. The evening finished with pie-eating at the rover den.

Dont forget local association meeting Wednesday, October 26, 7.30 p.m. sharp. Headquarters, George street, corner of Brock. — The Skipper.

Find Canadians Want Their Zoo

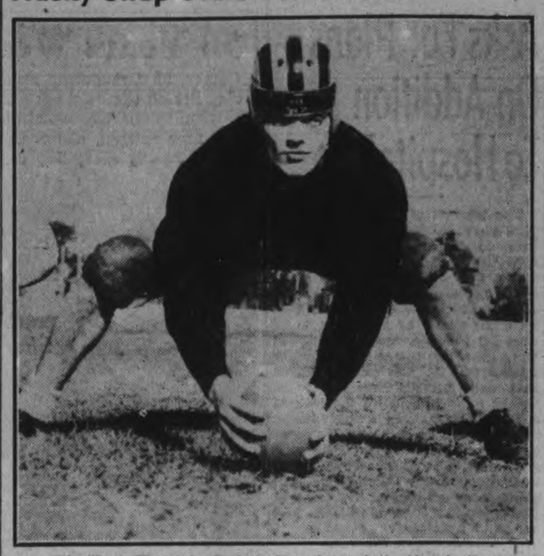
LONDON, Ont., Oct. 24—(CP). — Are municipal zoos losing their popularity? The answer as given here and in Winnipeg not long ago is "no."

A civic official recently suggested the zoo at nearby Springbank Park might as well be abolished if it could not be put on a "big-time" basis with up-to-date cages and lions and tigers to supplement the present assortment of so-called domestic animals and a cageful of monkeys.

Letters to the press and telephone calls from indignant citizens indicated to the official he was wrong. Londoners just didn't want to lose their zoo, no matter how homely its surroundings or commonplace the Canadian bears and bison and elk.

Winnipeg's situation was somewhat similar. There it was found lion cubs were growing far too fast for safety. They outgrew their cages and someone in authority suggested the lions would have to be disposed of. Like in London, a stream of indignant dissent arose.

Husky Snap Stars For Orfuns



Big Herb Hendrie, Balmy Beach contribution to the local gridders this season, played a whale of a game in the line here Saturday to help hold the Imps of Sarnia. The classy Peterborough centre was a tower of strength in blocking Sarnia plunges through the middle, and he was ably assisted by other local linemen as Orfuns pulled their surprise win. Stars And Rookies Alike Are Battling For Job With Leafs

PRESTON, Oct. 24 (CP)—Toronto's Maple Leafs settled down to business today. The occasional "following around" that cropped up during the National Hockey League champions' first week in training camp is a thing of the past for Coach Dick Irvin says "We really bear down from now on."

As the Leafs and Syracuse Stars, Toronto's International - American League farm team, skate into the second and final week of training, stars and rookies alike are battling for jobs. The hoster of neither team yet has been selected and Irvin says it won't be until the end of the week.

Irvin "cracked down" on his hockey men and warned all must be in "splendid"—not just good—physical condition for the opening of the N.H.L. season Nov. 3 'or I'll know the reason why." However, he added "I've no complaints as to conditioning so far as it takes some of the older fellows more time to get into shape than the young bucks."

Among the "older fellows" Irwin places Harvey Jackson and Bill Thoms. "They aren't handling the puck well yet—but they will. Red Horner's still a little short on condition. Syl Apps and Gord Drillon are flying and Bingo Kampman, a much improved player, has eyes in the back of his head on defence."

The team practices here until Friday when they play an exhibition game in Owen Sound. A game will be played in Galt Saturday then the teams jump to Syracuse Sunday; Toronto, Monday and Midland, Tuesday, before opening the season against Boston Bruins at Toronto a week Thursday.

One Crooked Toe Defeats Racoon

SEAL COVE, N.B., Oct. 24—(CP)—This is a story of drama involving Old Crooked Toe, a heroine duck so called because of a malformed hook—like toe on her left foot, and a villain racoon which went out for dinner and took too much of a mouthful.

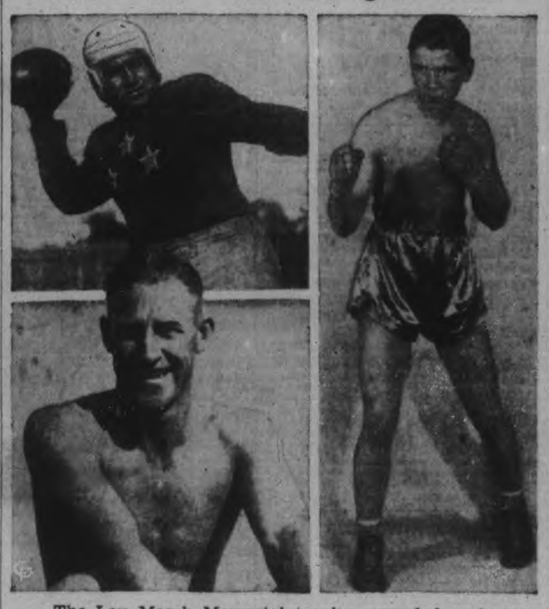
One morning William Brown noticed a disturbance at his farm in this village on Grand Manan Island. He found Old Crooked Toe the centre of attraction for the rest of his prize ducks as they continued a din of quacking.

Then farmer Brown noticed the famous toe was missin. Beside the old duck was a big black racoon—very dead. He figured it out this way:

The racoon, scouting at night for a duck dinner, set upon Old Crooked Toe as the first victim. A bite at the left foot sent the sharp-pointed malformed tae through the marauder's tongue and in his frantic efforts to dislodge it the toe became more firmly imbedded, in fishhook manner. A night-long battle followed, ending in victory for the fighting old duck.

Farmer Brown has the toe and duck available for examination, if any doubter wants to investigate.

Nominated As Outstanding Athletes



The Lou Marsh Memorial trophy, awarded each year to the athlete deemed outstanding in Canada, already has four nominations in for the 1938 award, representing rowing, rugby, track and boxing. Ormond Beach, TOP LEFT, Sarnia's mighty gridder, who met death in an oil explosion this fall, is one of the nominations. Another is Bob Pearce, LOWER LEFT, world's champion professional sculler, who successfully defended his crown this year against the challenge of Evans Paddon, of Australia. Pearce originally hailed from Australia himself. Joe Gagnon, Montreal's outstanding amateur boxer, RIGHT, is a third, and Eric Coy, Winnipeg track star, a fourth nomination. The latter two are also in line for the Norton Crowe trophy, presented to the outstanding amateur athlete of the year by the Amateur Athletic Union. The Lou Marsh trophy embraces both amateurs and pros.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

DAVID SLEW GOLIATH and the Orfuns beat the Imps. And 16 grid experts went out and hanged themselves on a lamp post! It was as upsetting as boiled lobster and beer at half past midnight—and the Orfuns' season is a huge success if they don't turn another wheel all autumn. They outgamed and outsmarted the great Imperials to clearly earn the 3-2 decision. Since when did that all-Canadian Bummer Stirling have three kicks blocked on him in one game? One resulting in the locals' field goal and the other robbing Sarnia of a tie in the last minute. That, mes hearties, is downright sheer fight on the part of the Petes. Golly, won't the big bruising Imperials flinch all week now under the sarcastic tongue-lashings of Coach Art Massucci? Great are the Imperials, but the Orfuns are greater....

• • • • • •

PODDEN PLISS if we take a modest bow and have a quiet gloat. We came closer than any of the so-called experts ("Sarnia to swamp the Orfuns") when we predicted a close score with an upset possible. A rugby expert is a desk appendage with a bulging forehead and a penchant for picking teams he has never seen to lose by a big score. The Galt guy said, like a dozen other writers Friday, "Sarnia will swamp Peterborough." Baz O'Meara of Montreal wrote: "Sarnia can loaf through their game against Peterborough and still have a big margin at the finish." And so they wrote themselves right out on the limb and then sawed it off. A radio commentator Saturday eve tossed an aerial apology for over-rating Sarnia and under-estimating the Petes. We are open to apologies from local gees who called us wacky all fall for boosting ye Orfuns.

• • • • • •

One More Ex-Expert

GIVE A LISTEN to Red Burnett's drivel in the Star Friday: "The one stick-out bet for tomorrow is Sarnia to beat Peterborough. The only thing that could bring about the downfall of the Tunnel-Towners is to have Stirling break his right leg and McWatters, Moroz, Hayes, Golab and a few others miss the train for the Liftlock City." Looks like Red missed the train. Coach Massucci of Sarnia said afterward that "those fighting fools" deserved to beat the Imps. He was amazed at the line work, the speed in the rear division, Crowe's kicking and the Orfuns' scrappy spirit. The Sarnia scribe couldn't recall when Imps had been held scoreless for three quarters—"and by Peterborough, too, for gosh sakes!"

• • • • •

IT WAS NO FLUKE, the Orfuns were due to hit their true stride and they outbattled the cocky Imperials. Blasted through to block three of Stirling's kicks and our line, with Herb Hendrie a veritable Horatius at the bridge, hurled back the champs repeatedly—though Golab got yards twice through the line. Only break our squad got was when VanHorne butter-fingers a lovely long forward pass by Stirling when he was all set to gallop over the line. In bad humor, he later tangled with Magee in a short scrap and suffered a cut lip. Young Pup Curtin played a whale of a game again—earning a bushel of adjectives. Showing the devil-may-care spirit of the Petes (who were rated under-dogs and thus had no pressure on 'em) Curtin threw Clawson back once and then looked down at him and said: "That's a heck of a place for an all-star player to be!" Leo Deadey shone throughout, and he's a sweet player. McNulty was travelling. Marsh was aces on secondary defence Shields and Magee were shining. And Earl Spencely. All of 'em, in fact.

• • • • • •

Two Named Don and Mike

A SPECIAL MENTION for two starry backfielders, unknown before to the so-called experts of senior O.R.F.U. competition, Don Crowe and Mike Loucks. They've been shining all season and were really burning up the amps Saturday here. Crowe kicked on practically even terms with Stirling all afternoon—and we'd better quit yelling for an imported kicker, eh?—with his 70-yard snap kick in the third quarter catching his rivals as flat-footed as a police convention! It was potent punting and smart thinking. Loucks coolly kicked the winning placement, from a hard angle, after Magee had blocked Stirling's boot and Deadey had run it to the 15-yard mark. It was a sweet field goal and Mike said afterward he wasn't jittery nor did he expect to miss it. No pressure on him or the rest of the Orfuns. We really ought to thank the so-called experts for letting the locals relax!

• • • • • •

GUESS SARNIA were over-confident. They missed Moroz and McWatters, no doubt, and Stirling wasn't at his kicking best. But they looked dazed as they left the field as a jubilant crowd swarmed around the exuberant Orfuns, some of the fans hoisting Loucks on their shoulder. We'll admit we hollered like a fool in the press box the last quarter and, when Loucks kicked the three-pointer, the Messrs. Begley and Lamb of the Lindsay Post (Mike hails from Lindsay) stood on the chairs and fairly bellowed. Ah, yes, folks, it was quite a game—but most of a certainty!

It's a Wicked City

WITH AGONIZED YELLS of "we wuz robbed," the Beaches returned from Mo'real over the week-end on the short end of a 4-3 score. Outplaying the Nats most of the route, they had a field goal—which Gray kicked, according to Toronto players and some of the Montreal men—ruled no score by Referee Hal DeGruchy of Toronto, who said it was wide of the uprights. Another point they tallied earlier was called back for an infraction, so the Balmies are burned up like autumn leaves in a bonfire. But it shows how tough this group is when Nats could hold the Ponton pack so closely. As the dispatch states: "Peterborough's stunning reversal of the champion Sarnia Imperials enabled Nationals to step to the top of the class and left them the only unbeaten team in the Union. Defeat levelled Beaches to a last-place tie with Peterborough." We're half a game back of the Imps.

• • • • • •

AND OUR P.C.I. FOOTBALLERS had a busy day of it, too, in Oshawa. After a gallant fight in the morn, Coach David's junior P.C.I.-ers fell before the Motor Citizens by a 17-6 score to be eliminated, Oshawa clinching the group. In the aft, Coach Bamforth's senior Garnet and Gray gridders won their group section and rubbed out Oshawa with a 12-1 eraser. Thunder of acclaim over Orfuns' win kinda drowned out the applause for the P.C.I. senior school's nifty victory, but we'll hear more of that squad ere Santa Claus hits the headlines. The Bamforth band will meet the Cobourg-Port Hope winnah in a couple of weeks. Meantime, the school schedules end here next Saturday with Lindsay teams playing the locals.

Orfuns' Victory Starts Fan Mail To Scribe Who Called Them To Win

In the wake of the Orfuns' surprise 3-2 grid win over Sarnia Imperials, the following letter by "O.L.F."—addressed to Mr. Seesall Perdue of The Examiner—was received this morning.

Dear Seesall—While you are handing out the laurel wreaths on Monday, don't forget to hang one over your own neck, if you can get it over your great big ears. Gosh darn it, man, you must be psychic! Of all the sports writers in these parts, you were the only one to call the tune on Saturday, almost to a man. Meby I'm mean, but did you really believe what you wrote on Friday night or were you just "whistling in the dark,"

I always read your column, even when it does not refer to my favorite sport, rugby. 'Cause why? I'm looking for one of your cute little "pomes.' Even Lou Marsh couldn't write "pomes' like yours.

Seriously, Seesall, you are getting better every day, but your effort Fri. nite I tho't the biggest piece of tripe in years. "Something might happen to the Imps," sez you. MIGHT? "Lightning mike strike." "It WON'T," sez I, "they won't let it." "Bummer Stirling has to break a leg and five Imps have to miss the train," says the Star. Well, well, they missed it all right but not from Toronto.

I haven't had such a thrill since away back when we beat St. Mike's at Riverside Park. No, not even when our P.C.I.'s got the championship at the Oval last fall, tho' goodness knows that was grand and glorious enough. It was bekus everyone said Orfuns didn't have a chance, not one, that is everyone but Seesall. Good luck! Read your Bible summore; mebby now tho', you'll decide to whittle down that three-year plan a bit. Yours,

O. L. F.

Quiet In Spain

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 24 (A.P.)—Calm continued on Spain's Civil War fronts to-day but both sides were reported putting finishing touches on plans for new offensives. Activity over the week-end consisted of occasional skirmishes between raiding parties seeking prisoners for questioning by the intelligence services.

His Field Goal Won For Orfuns

Mike Loucks, Orfuns' starry backfielder, was carried off the field here Saturday on the shoulders of admiring fans a few minutes after he kicked a difficult placement to give the locals a 3-2 nod over Sarnia. In the biggest upset of the current grid season, Loucks turned in another brilliant performance, he and Don Crowe kicking and running like big league rugbyists all afternoon. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Wally Hammond Retained Batting Honors

LONDON, Oct. 24—(CP).—W. R. (Wally) Hammond, 35-year-old cricket star who captained England against Australia in the test series this summer, is winner of the British cricket batting title. It marked the fifth time in the past six years he headed English county championship batsmen.

He made his debut to first-class play in 1920 as a schoolboy amateur and one year later turned professional. He forsook pro ranks at the end of the 1937 county campaign.

In 42 innings during the season concluded early in September, Hammond had an average of 75.27 and was the only English player to exceed 3,000 runs. Final compilation showed him with 3,011 runs, the third time in his record-studded career he had achieved this distinction.

Joseph Hardstaff, Nottinghamshire, repeated his performance of 1937 by finishing second in the standing. His average of 60.90 in 37 innings barely edged out Leonard Hutton of Yorkshire who wound up the campaign with 60.45, representing a similar number of innings.

The 22-year-old Yorkshire player, however, leaped into prominence in the fifth and final test match when he astounded the cricekt world with a record-smashing score of 364. It was the year's outstanding individual achievement.

The Pudsey-born youth who joined the northern county four years ago, pounded Aussie bowlers for more than 13 hours to become the world's highest scorer in international competition. He eclipsed Don Bradman's eight-year-old record made at Leads, England, by 30 runs.

Bradman, Australian test captain and the greatest batsman in the game to-day, recorded the formidable average of 115.66 with a total of 2,429 runs in 26 innings during the Aussie tour. His nearest teammate was W. A. Brown, Queensland player, who in 37 innings showed an average of 57.93.

Bowling honors again went to Austin Matthews of Glamorgan who headed the list in 1937. His mark was 13.16, but he captured only 30 wickets throughout the four-months schedule. William Bowes, tall Yorkshire fast bowler, placed second with an average of 15.23. He took 121 wickets.

Residence Rule Be Enforced In Title Game

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24.—(CP).—As three powerful football machines prepared today for the gruelling western interprovincial union playoffs they learned the union champion will not necessarily represent the West in the Dominion final.

Regina Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers meet here next Saturday in a sudden-death semi-final, the winner to engage Calgary Bronks in a home-and-home final Nov. 5 and 11, total points to decide the union champions.

Frank Hannibal of Winnipeg, union president, announced last night a post-season game No. 1 between the union finalists will decide the western representative in the national final. For this game Canadian rugby union residence rule will be enforced, barring players who have not had continuous residence in Canada since Oct. 1, 1937.

Calgary won the bye into the union final Saturday when they defeated the winless Edmonton Eskimos 4-0 at Edmonton. Bombers defeated Regina 19-6 in Winnipeg to finish the schedule tied with Calgary, each with six wins and two losses, but Bronks outscored Bombers 14-6 in their two meetings and union rules give them the bye. Regina finished third, Winning four and losing four.

ORFUNS UPSET THE SARNIA IMPERIALS WITH A 3-2 VICTORY

Placement Kick By Mike Loucks, Orfuns Effecting Blocking Of Stirling's Kicks Wins Game

Sheer Grit and Bulldog Courage Cops Contest For Bill Irwin's Under-rated Players Orfuns' Line Repeatedly Threw Back Invaders

(By Cec Perdue)

Providing the biggest gridiron upset of the season in Eastern Canada, Peterborough Orfuns defeated Sarnia Imperials, 3 to 2, here Saturday. A crowd of 2,500 frantic fans carried Mike Loucks off the field on their shoulders at the end, just three minutes after he had kicked the field goal which shocked the Sarnia champions and football followers throughout the East.

The amazement of the Imperials and the noise of the home rooters grew as one quarter succeeded another with the perennial senior O.R.F.U. titleholders unable to score a point against the fourth quarter did the great Bummer Stirling kick two singles to give battling Orfuns. Not until the the Imps a 2-0 lead. It looked as if the grand game would end that way, but the "fighting fools" on the home squad refused to quit. They blocked a kick on Stirling and followed it up with an angular placement with barely three minutes of the game left. And they held onto that one-point lead.

Gritty Gang

Sheer grit and bulldog courage copped the contest for Bill Irwin's young and under-rated Peterborough players. They fought bitterly from start to finish and earned the win. They actually outplayed the Massucci-men, their tackling proving deadlier, their end runs speedier, and Crowe's kicking practically equalling that of Stirling throughout. They outsmarted and outfought Sarnia when not given a chance by grid experts throughout Ontario and Quebec. The local line was heroic and repeatedly threw back the invading giants, while the backfielders played a starry brand of rugby. The loss of two regulars alone could not explain the Imps' reverse, the visitors just being unable to cope with their conquerors, though it was a tight tussle and a fine fray from start to finish.

Golab, Geary, Stirling and Hedgewick were the big guns with the Sarnia squad, but Stirling's kicking was somewhat below par. He only averaged 46 yards to Crowe's 44, despite a big hoofing reputation. Hendrie was a tower of strength in the local line Saturday and was ably bulwarked by his shock-troop buddies. Curtin, McNulty, Marsh and Deadey did some lovely tackling and Crowe and Loucks starred in the backfield. Every one of the Orfuns turned in a four-star performance in a winning cause.

First Fumble

Stirling kicked off and Butler fell on the ball when Marsh fumbled on his 35-yard line. A buck netted four but an end run was nailed, so Stirling hoofed it to Loucks. On the kick back, Shanks got possession at midfield. Golab plunged for five with Hendrie hauling him down. A buck was halted, and on Stirling's kick, Norris interfered with Loucks and Sarnia was penalized. Loucks booted and Hedgewick was felled on the Imps' 35, with Orfuns penalized 10 for interfering with signals on the next play. On a bad snap, Hedgewick recovered on his own 25-yard chalk. Marsh blocked a kick by Stirling and Orfuns pounded on the pigskin on Sarnia's 20-yard strip. Geary intercepted a forward pass by Crowe. Golab bucked twice to gain eight yards, and then Loucks raced back five yards on Stirling's hoist to the Sarnia 45. Loucks skirted end for nine, but a buck was blocked and Hedgewick wiggled out with Crowe's kick to the one-yard line. Golab dove through the centre for five, Marsh stopping him. McNulty got him next time and Stirling booted to Loucks. Interference on the kicker gave Sarnia the ball on their 35. Crowe took the kick. They failed on an end run and forward, Crowe kicking to Woodcock on the 12-yard line. Golab plunged for six and Stirling kicked to Loucks on the Sarnia 40 as the frame ended.

No Score Yet

Magee limped off hurt and Shields buck netted six feet. Crowe bumped the ball to the Imps' 10-yard mark with Curtin tackling Shanks. Don Crowe received a long boot by Stirling in his 50 and he gained four on a fast end run. Shields plunged in for three and Crowe's kick was corralled by Hedgewick on the visitors' 15-yard chalk line. Stirling hoisted a tall one back and Crowe was grassed on the 45. In kicking exchanges through this frame the local hoofer was gaining a little. Loucks tore into the middle for three, but Hedgewick leaped in the air to snare Crowe's forward heave and then ran it 15 yards to Orfuns' 50. Hendren recovered when Geary fumbled on an end run, and Sarnia was penalized 10 for interference. A buck and end try flopped so Crowe booted to Stirling. Orfuns drew a 5-yard penalty for "no yards" and Stirling threw a flat forward to Norris on the Imps' 50. Loucks ran back the kick six yards to his 15 and Shields bucked four more. Shanks got Crowe's towering punt and was nailed by Kearns and Curtin. Stirling's buck and forward failed so he hoofed it to Loucks on the home 10-yard sign. A high tackle cost Sarnia 15, but Geary recovered a fumble on a pass from Crowe to Loucks on Orfuns' 20. They lost a down for delay in the huddle and their forward was incomplete as the whistle went for half-time.

Still Held 'Em.

Imperials tried hard to break the scoreless deadlock without success in the third stanza, the scrappy locals holding them. On a kicking exchange, Crowe gained 15 on Stirling. Curtin tackled Stirling neatly for no gain and the Bummer booted to Loucks on the home 25. Crowe threw a 15-yard forward to Deadey and then Crowe romped around right end for nine. Another forward was incomplete and then Hedgewick was downed on his 35 on the toed try. Golab twice moved the sticks—for the first time on plunges in the game—with terrific tunneling through the line on four successive bucks. Then Marsh intercepted a forward by Stirling on Orfuns' 40. A buck failed and Shanks took Crowe's kick on his 30, Deadey dropping him. Geary on a criss-cross gained 18 yards, but they lost 10 on a bad snap. Golab running it back eight. Shank was stopped by Pulkinghorn for no gain and Loucks gathered in Stirling's high boot on his 30. Crowe faded back for a forward and then changing his mind, punted a 70-yarder that had the Imps cold. Sarnia lost a down for delaying and Golab's buck netted three. A high short hoof by Stirling gave Marsh the leather lemon on the 25, but it was handed over to Sarnia on a holding penalty. McNulty nailed Golab on a three-yard drive. Andrews recovered a local fumble on Stirling's kick as the frame finished.

Orfuns Win.

Crowe raced 10 yards after taking a long kick by Stirling, and then Golab intercepted Crowe's forward on Orfuns' 45-yard chalk. Stirling got no gain on an end run as the battling homesters tore into the rival line hard. A long forward was incomplete when VanHorne muffed the ball when in the clear and headed for a try. Wickware rouged Loucks on a good kick by the Bummer from the 50-yard line. It was the first point of the game. Shanks took Crowe's kick on his 35, McNulty tackling and Crowe was grounded on his 20 after a return bump. Magee bucked for four and Louck got two through the line. Kicking a hort one, Geary took Crowe's punt and ron it back to Orfun' 40. Golab bounced off Hendrie on a buck and Geary rouged Crowe on Stirling's kick, Loucks passing to Crowe, who was run out. A home forward was no good, being taken out of touch. Crowe went through centre for seven and his kick went to Hedgewick, with Curtin doing the smearing on Sarnia's 45. A buck was haled and Geary was yanked to earth by Hendrie and Marsh on a short ploughing sortie. Stirling's kick was blocked by Magee and Deadey scooped up the ball and raced 15 yards to the Imps' 15-yard line before being forced out. Loucks bucked for two and Irwin's plunge was stopped. Loucks then kicked a field goal from an angle as the crowd went wild as Orfuns took a 3-2 lead with but three minutes of play left. Stirling's kick was grounded on Orfuns' 20. Crowe bucked three and a local fumble was not costly as Orfuns got the ball when it went out of touch. Crowe's kick was roped in by Hedgewick on the home 45. Spencely blocked Stirling's kick, which might have tied the score, and Irwin pounced on the ball on his 40. Irwin held it on the last play, and VanHorne and Magee traded punches at the last whistle, the players being pulled apart in a few minutes. The teams:

Regina Dales Win Saskatchewan Title

REGINA, Oct. 24.—(CP).— Regina Dales, Western Canada junior football champions last year, won the Saskatchewan junior title Saturday by swamping Moose Jaw Millers 18-1. Dales will meet the Winnipeg junior league winners for the western title.

Dales lost in the Canadian final last year to Hamilton Italo-Canadians.

Playing Coach of the Orfuns

Coach Bill Irwin led his local gridders to the season's biggest upset victory here Saturday when Orfuns nosed out a 3-2 win over the previously undefeated Sarnia-Imperials. Irwin's outfit wasn't conceded a possible chance to win by any of the grid experts, but a battling display turned the tide. Bill not only guided the Peterborough crew to victory but his stellar quarter-backing also aided materially. He was a star for some seasons with Balmy Beach before coming here this autumn. Crowe Matched Great Stirling With 50 To 60-Yard Punts; Line Had Best On Day's Play

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The shocks in the East's most thrilling football Saturday of the season reverbrated over the section today amid the confusion resulting from an upset unrivalled since Winnipeg Blue Bombers slapped mud in Hamilton Tiger faces to win the national championship in 1935.

Experts were still trying to put themselves together after the amazing 3-2 victory Peterborough Orfuns, a first-year senior club built around intermediates, scored over the mighty Sarnia Imperials. The thrills in Toronto Argonauts' 10-6 triumph over Ottawa Rough Riders and a 4-3 win for Montreal Nationals over Toronto Balmy Beach still had the fans dizzy.

These were the outstanding results in a day that saw Queen's Tricolor all but dethroned as intercollegiate champions by losing 17-5 to McGill while University of Western Ontario took a 3-2 decision from University of Toronto at London and Hamilton Tigers scored their first win of the season, 17-3 over Montreal Cubs.

Imperials, champions of the O.R.F.U. for seven straight seasons, had been expected to route Peterborough, coached by a one-time Balmy Beach star, Bill Irwin. Orfuns, who plucked an odd veteran from Toronto teams to lend a measure of experience to the youngsters, had set themselves a three-year campaign to rise to the calibre of Imperials.

Everything Imps Had

But they had everything Imperials possessed Saturday. They fought for and made their break with three minutes to go when the heavy, hard-charging line smashed through to break up a Stirling kick on the Imperial 45. Leo Deadey raced 30 yards to the 15 with the loose ball and Ford (Mike) Loucks, with 3,000 home-town fans dead silent, calmly booted the winning placement field goal.

Loucks and Don Crowe, the backs, and the whole line, which broke up another kick early in the first quarter, were the Peterborough stars. Crowe matched the great Bummer Stirling through the air with 50 to 60-yard punts, something the acknowledged eastern kicking stars have been trying to do for seasons.

For a while after Stirling got the wind at his back in the fourth quarter, it seemed Imperials would scrape through on the strength of two singles Bummer lashed behind the Orfun line. But Peterborough, whose feat in holding Imperials scoreless for three quarters would have rated attention itself, were playing for the win—and they got it.

Argos Win 10-6

Annis Stukus paced Argonauts to the victory that gave them leadership of the Big Four and sent Roughriders, 7-5 pre-game favorites, into second place. Stukus, a big quarterback whose steadiness has featured Argos' play for five years, scored all their points on a field goal, single, touchdown and convert.

Stukus waited until four minutes remained and the 18,000 fans jammed in Varsity Stadium had conceded Riders a 6-4 win to pull off his thrilling touchdown play. He picked off a 26-yard pass from Doug MacPherson at centrefield, shook off three Rider tacklers and raced 55 yards for the try.

The teams had fought 56 minutes with Riders holding a slight advantage along the ground when the pass play, something that beat Riders in last season's playoffs, whipped them again. Ottawa held a 6-3 lead at half time, on Murray Griffin's touchdown after Riders blocked Johnny Munro's kick on the Argo five.

Figures showed how evenly the teams were matched. Riders gained 176 yards from scrimmage to 129 for Argos and both teams completed only one pass. The kicking, especially Bob Isbister's for Argos, was disappointing, and Ottawa's Rocky Rocano held him even during the second half.

Only Unbeaten O.R.F.U. team.

Nationals remained the only unbeaten O.R.F.U. club and held first place by two points over Sarnia by their victory, taken on Ray Mullins' placement field goal with three minutes to play. That didn't end the thrills for the Montreal fans as Beaches passed their way to the National 10 and brought Barry Gray out for a placement attempt on the second-last play.

Gray's shot went wide by inches for a single and Beaches protested futilely that it was good. Beaches had dominated play on Ab Box's kicking and Teddy Manorek's plunging until a centrefield fumble paved the way for Mullins' placement. Johnny Atcheson ripped off 15 yards on an end run and Johnny Ferraro fired a 25-yard forward to the Beach 18 immediately preceding the placement.

Jack Kennedy's long booting scored all Western's points as they edged past Toronto into second place in the college circuit. In position three times to kick singles, Toronto gambled for field goals and each time Cam Gray failed. More than 10,000 Montreal fans watched McGill, led by Herbie Westman, hand Queen's their third straight beating. Westman kicked four singles and Alex Hamil and Bob Kenny scored converted touchdowns for the Redmen.

Tigers and Cubs played loose football at Hamilton, Tigers moving into an early lead on Turnbull's 30-yard touchdown dash. They were never threatened seriously.

Two Big Teams Unconquered In U.S. Football

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP).—On a day when one-point and one-touchdown margins of victory were the rule rather than the exception, the unconquered football teams of Pittsburgh and Fordham performed Saturday as if under orders to furnish added build-up for a game that already shaped up as one of the best on next week-end's United States college program.

The Panthers, making good their threat to mix passes with the customary power, swamped Southern Methodist 34-7, striking through the air for two touchdowns. Fordham, goaded out of an obvious inclination to let a 13-0 lead stand by a last-period injury to star sophomore Len Eshmont, let go with both barrels to crush Oregon 26-0.

Provided Eshmont's twisted knee responds to treatment, the Rams' invasion of Pittsburgh next Saturday should be a sight worth travelling miles to see.

The Wolverines, launching their winning drive after gaining possession of the ball on an Eli penalty for roughing the kicker, nosed out a gallant Yale team, 15-13.

Notre Dame continued unbeaten and dropped Carnegie Tech from the undefeated ranks with a 7-0 triumph accomplished in the last quarter when the referee lost count of the downs and Tartans lost the ball; Louisiana State scored in the last quarter and Duke in the first to beat Vanderbilt anl Wake Forest, respectively, by 7-0 counts; Rice, playing its first Conference game, gained its first victory and handed Texas its fifth straight defeat, 13-6, and California, ringing up its sixth consecutive triumph, scored on Washington for the first time in three years to down the Huskies, 14-7.

C.O.B.L. Trophy Given To Petes

League busines sof the year was cleared up at the autumn meeting of the C.O.B.L. here Saturday night, and the Johnston Trophy presented to the league champions, Peterborough. Delegates were present from Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough, with President Max Swanston in the chair. The election of officers was laid over till an early March meeting, and a committee appointed meantime to check on possible entries for the 1939 Central Ontario Baseball League. The committee will consist of Art Casterton of Kingston, Newt Thompson of Belleville, J. A. Lane of Oshawa and Vern Dawson of Peterborough.

The financial statement showed a slight balance for the year, a satisfactory showing under the circumstances. The usual honorariums to the president and secretary were voted, and minutes and correspondence passed upon. Vice-president Art Casterton presented the trophy to Vern Dawson, president of the Peterborough Baseball Club. The latter thanked him and, discussing the league's future, pointed out that combined interests in Port Hope and Cobourg might consider importing some players and placing a good team in the senior circuit. Mr. Casterton stated the Ponies would not re-enter next year but the Locomotive Works had promised to come in, provided work was good next spring and the league would be a four-team one. Oshawa delegates felt that, if necessary, Peterborough and Oshawa could line up in a Toronto league.

Considerable discussion followed regarding an understanding with the E.O.B.A. — and that association will be approached—as well as lighting equipment for the C.O.B.L., similar to that in the Inter-County League. Figures will be checked on this point. O.B.A. grouping of teams or a possible O.B.A. semi-pro setup were discussed and seemed to meet with the approval of the gathering. With the appointment of the committee to check over various angles and report with a definite plan for action to the league early in March, the session adjourned.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—Some of the New York scribes reported that Fordham's smashing win over Oregon was just the answer to the Rose Bowl snub....We had a wire from California last night that Don Budge is typing it out....Waite Hoyt, the pitcher, is doing a nifty job as sports spieler over a New York station....The Pirates must do something about it, so Pie Traynor has started by bidding for Al Lopez (and here's a modest $1 bet he doesn't land him).....Fight fans should not forget this: Gunnar Barlund wil ibe back in the heavyweight picture almost before you can say "Jack Robinson."

Ceferino Garcia's fight with Henry Armstrong likely will be the toughest the little colored boy has ever had....Garcia can hit like nobodys business (if he can get set.).....Any takers? .... Barney Ross, who has fought both of them, sticks to Armstrong....Joe Louis will be at the ringside when the thing comes off....

You could have knocked us for a loop the way the Yales went after Michigan in the first half Saturday....You'll see one of those football games you read about when Fordham goes out to Pittsburgh this week....Both are primed....

Penalty Shot Rule Made To Aid Scoring

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 24. — (CP).—Bill Stewart, back from umpiring in the National Baseball League, followed by a stay in hospital where they removed his appendix, to-day was in the thick of preparations to guide his Chicago Black Hawks—he hopes— to a second consecutive Stanley Cup.

He began his National Hockey League season last night by calling the players together for a discussion of the five rule changes made since last season.

It was agreed that the change in the penalty shot should result in more gaols from that play. The rule now allows the player taking the shot to skate over the 30 foot line instead of coming to a dead stop.

Centenary Church Holds Anniversary

ROSENEATH, Oct. 24.—Anniversary services were held at Centenary United church on Sunday morning and evening, October 23. Rev. M. L. Hinton of Castleton United church was the speaker at both services. The male section of Roseneath United church choir led in the service of song during the morning service, with the full choir singing at the evening service.

Mr. Hinton's subject in the morning, was "Jesus Christ". His place in church, home and world life; Christ older and greater than all things, Christ, the owner of all. Two selections were sung by Messrs. L. Roberts, A. Kelly, W. Dowler, M. Macklin and R. Joyce, "Sweet Chiming Bells" and "I am Thine, O Lord," and W. Dowler sang a solo, "He Understands and Cares."

At the evening service, two anthems were sung by the choir, "I Will Sing," and "We Will Rejoice," and the male section sang "Make Some Other Heart Rejoice."

Mr. Hinton's subject was "The Mission of the Church."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

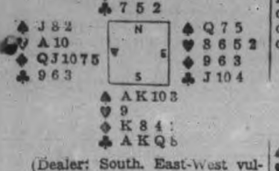
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

TELL HIM THE STORY

DON'T LEAVE YOUR partner groping in the dark if you are able to tell him the news he wants to know. When the declarer starts to run a suit which is solid except for the ace, your partner, if holding it, wants to know whether to hold it up or take it at once. You can tell him. Indicate the length of your holding, and he then knows how many cards the declarer has. If you have exactly three, play the lowest and next the middle one; if any other number, play something higher on the first round, reserving your lowest.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable)

Three tables of duplicate produced different play at no trump game contracts by South, West in each case leading the diamond Q. At the first table, the declarer, after winning with the diamond A, led the heart K to the second trick, East played the 2 and West held up his ace, reading his partner for three cards, declarer two. Declarer then ran four clubs, two spades and another diamond for game.

At the second table, East played the heart 8 on the second trick. West could tell that this was not East's lowest, as then South would have had four and would have raised hearts. If East played a higher-than-lowest card, therefore not having three, he had either two or four. If two, West's play made no difference, but if four, declarer had a singleton. So West won the first heart trick, returned a diamond and the contract was now impossible.

At the third table, declarer forgot hearts and finessed the spade 10 to the J on the second trick. He thus got three tricks in spades, two in diamonds and four in clubs, without counting on any mistake by the opponents but on a lucky division of two suits.

Potatoes Prominent On Market With Price Ranging From Eighty Cents To A Dollar

Special mention for notable displays of produce on Saturday's market was earned by Fred McMahon of Millbrook for an exceptionally attractive bench of cauliflower. They were fall fair quality, firm and chalky white and most of them of broad diameter. Mr McMahon had a big supply of them, selling at 15 cents up to 25 cents a head. Smaller ones along the row were quoted at 5 and 10 cents, and prices generally were graded according to size.

The balminess of recent weekends was gone with late autumn flowers, and there was a pneumonic nip in the wind that was uncomfortable, advising the comparatively recent practice of systemic fortifying with cod liver oil in one or other of its various forms. Attendance of buyers and sellers seemed as large as usual, although the number of buyers was probably under the mark for the Thanksgiving Saturday. Business was brisker, the breath of frost in the air tending to discourage the easy going pace of September morns.

However, the market is already reconciled to the passing of the more favorable weather for unsheltered trading. Ambitions and good intentions of those who own the market and control its methods afford no protection against extremes of weather, especially for the producers who have to stand out in the cold. At that, they take conditions as they find them, without vocal complaint.

Potatoes Steady

Potatoes were more prominent than for weeks past, the price extending from 80 cents to $1.00 a bag. F. Clarke of Cavan quoted White Stars at the dollar mark. The Stars seemed most plentiful, and their growers were all asking the hundred cents. Benson Brothers of Bewdley had Dooleys at 80 cents, and Delbert Olan of Cavan included in his offering the Katahdin variety at 90 cents a bag. Mr. Olan told the Examiner this potato was introduced by the Department of Agriculture three years ago. He recommends it to buyers as comparing quite palatably with the most popular varieties. Mr. Olan said his potato crop, grown on a sand blown section of his farm, was turning up well, and with no signs of rot or blight.

The Examiner asked him what he thought of the White Winter variety. That name had cropped up in several places recently, and a news man had come into a generous sample of them and decided that they should rank near the potato top.

"I don't know the White Winter," Mr. Olan said, "although I have heard about it, and I'm mighty doubtful about it. I know one man who had a lot of Dooleys and they were not moving as fast as he liked, so he called them White Winters and sold the whole lot. He told me that as a fact, and all I can tell you is that apparently the so-called White Winter is nothing more than the Dooley."

If you wish to change your potato diet, a bag of those "Katahdins" would at least introduce them to you, and if they are any better than some "White Winters" that can be vouched for they would certainly be appetizing. That is if you like potatoes and are not afraid of their calories.

Eggs Are Firm

Select eggs sold up to 40 cents Saturday and were fairly strong at that level. Other grades began around 30 cents the dozen, with intermediate sizes at 35 and 38 cents. Roland Dixon of Otonabee told the Examiner he brought in close to 120 dozen, and the bulk of them were gone by 11 o'clock. That seemed like a lot of eggs to hustle over the temporary outdoor counter in a short time, and at the day's prices suggested that the little red hen is holding up its end of present farm revenue.

Another Otonabee man said one of his customers who keeps a boarding house had found that eggs were cheaper than meat; helped to lighten the bacon bill. He said that might be one explanation of the upward prices. However, the local market reflects the trend in the wholesale trade, and perhaps that explains the current strength of prices as the season of light production approaches.

The lower benches were almost bare. They were reduced for the most part to bittersweet at fifteen cents a bunch, liberal bunches, too. Well, white linen, crystal and bitter sweet,—boy, bring on that T-bone steak and cauliflower or make it roast chicken with broccoli.

Don't Know It Yet

"I introduced broccoli to this market five years ago," C. A. Hope of R.R. No. 7 told The Examiner and every Saturday people ask me 'what's that stuff?' It would surprise you if I told you the names of some of them. You'd think they'd at least have tasted it by this time.

Well, Mr. Hope, Peterborough people, generally speaking tred along in the beaten path, the groove, especially prandial paths, clinging to the tried and true "grub" ham and eggs, steak and onions, etc. with all the monotony of it. They may do a lot of adventuring in other paths, but at the table you might put broccoli across, like spinach, if you can tie it up with vitamin Q or some other pseudo-scientific lure.

Apples Plentiful

Apples contributed splashes of color to the market. Some of the prices were: Talms $1 a bush., Spies $1.25 and $1.50; Alexanders 90c; Scarlet Pippins 30 cents a peck; McIntosh Red 25 cents a peck and up.

Wm. Ogston of Bowmanville had a hogshead of cider made from Starkes and selling at 50 cents a gallon. It was sweet and wholesome, but they are cheap and simple ways, when it hardens a bit, of putting goofiness into it.

A farmer from north Smith was one of several selling young pigs. His price was $8.50 for a pair of Yorkshires. "What's the use of feeding and raising them to sell at 7½ or 8 cents a pound?" he remarked to the Examiner. "I figured that letting them go now at from $8 to $10 will make me more money than holding them and getting them ready for market at $7.65 a hundred, as they are today, or thereabouts."

A small boy occupied a boy's wagon space at the south corner with a box of citrons and turnips. His price was two for five cents.

Some of the other prices were: pickling years 6 quarts for 25 cents; carrots 6 quarts 15 cents; onions 10 pounds for 20 cents; clover honey four pounds for 55 cents and amber four pounds for 45 cents; brussel sprouts 10 cents a quart; kidney beans 15 cents a quart.

Pork 14 and 16 cents; green onions 5 cents; cabbage and turnips 3 for 10 cents; pickling onions 3 quarts for 25 cents; peppers 25 cents the dozen; celery 10 cents a bunch; yellow danvers onions $1 a bushel.

Sage 5 cents, savory 5 cents, table queen squash 5 cents, big citrons 15 cents; hubbards 5 to 15 cents.

Chickens 23 and 25 cents; ducks 20 cents; butter 21-22 cents.

Whither the Jew? World Wonders As Italy Also T ightens Race Barriers

Premier Mussolini . . . tightens race barriers

Oppressed in various ways in Germany

Tel Aviv, Palestine—even here Jews are troubled with Arab clashes

The Jew . . . where will he go?

Whither the Jew? His problem is a big one. Oppressed on all sides, driven out of one country after another — even now being terrorized in the Holy Land by the Arabs—the Jew today is a forlorn figure, unable to find a home. Italy is the latest to clamp down on its race barriers, approving a severe program for dealing with the Jews. The Fascist Grand Council has approved the program, which affects 70,000 Jews. In Czechoslovakia it is expected that a program against the Jews will be launched very shortly by Chancellor Hitler and his satellites and again the Jew will be forced to resume his wandering in search of a home.

Rev. Porter Is Called To Milton Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 24.—Rev. Gordon Walsh Porter, of Canton, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Porter, Lakefied, has received a call from the United church in Milton. Rev. Porter will take over the duties of the Milton pastorate on December 1.

Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Renwick of Lakefield, were called to Durham on Friday by the death of the former's mother. The funeral was held on Monday.

Miss Etta Garbutt, on the staff of the Ontario Hospital at Mimico, is spending three weeks' vacation the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Garbutt.

The ladies of the various churches of Lakefield are to hold a tea and sale of home-made cooking on Wednesday afternoon next, Oct. 26, at the home of Mrs. W. W. Leonard. The proceeds are to be devoted to the work of the local Boy Scouts group, which is headed by Scoutmaster, J. W. McKerchar.

Belmont W.I. Holds Pot-Luck Supper

HAVELOCK, Oct. 24—Over seventy persons were present for the "Community" pot-luck supper held by the Belmount Branch Womens' Institute Thursday evening in the Belmount town hall. The Institute members and their families sat down to a very fine supper at 6.30 p.m. and afterwards the regular meeting was held in addition to interesting program.

An especially important item on the program was the presentation to Mrs. Joreph Seabrooks, who retired from the executive of the Institute this year after serving for eleven terms as secretary of the organization. The presentation was made by Miss Iva Smith, president, the address being read by Mrs. H. L. Scott.

Following the usual Institude opening, with hymn and prayer, the following program was given: musical number, Cassan sisters; reading entitled "Thinking", by Mrs. Will Smith; piano duet, Mrs. H. L. scott and son Jim; Clifford Kennedy; reading, Mrs. George Hartin; community singing.

A old-fashioned spelling bee conducted by Miss Marion Olmstead, was won by the side lead by Mr. Bert Haryett. The losing team was lead by Mrs. H. L. Scott.

Dancing followed with music being supplied by the "Quarry" orchestra, composed of Messrs. Wes Smith, Bert Haryett, Osborne Aulthouse, and Mrs. Wm. Anderson.

Selwyn's Bride and Groom Honored By Nearly One Hundred Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Oct. 24.—One hundred friends and neighbors of George McIlmoyle gathered at the home of his mother, Mrs. Herbert McIlmoyle, to bestow their good wishes and congratulations upon George and his bride of three weeks, (Sylvia Clysdale). Completely unaware of the "shower," the bride and groom arrived home at 9.30 p.m. and were ushered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, to their seats in the dining room, where a beautiful Westminster chime clock and a purse of money were presented to them by Clayton Fitzgerald, accompanied by a short address, read by Harold McImoyle. Included in the address were the names of all those who had contributed to the gift. As the clock was placed on the table its mellow chimes rang out to strike the hour of ten.

George, in a few words, thanked everyone and invited them to visit him and his bride again in the near future. The Young People's Society of the United church, who never forget any of its members who enter the ranks of the benedicts, also presented the honored couple with a handsome pyrex pie plate in a silver stand, the presentation being made by Miss Opal Preston and a few words addressed to them by Victor Thuaves.

Refreshments were served including the bride's delicious wedding cake, after which a few hours were spent in card-playing and dancing.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bell and daughter Beverly, who have spent the summer at Selwyn, have taken up residence in Peterborough.

Miss Josephine Galvin of Peterborough spent a few days at the home of her mother, Mrs. Albert Hughes.

The many friends of Mrs. Allan McIlmoyle, will regret to learn that she has been ill for the past month at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Sanderson.

Campbellford Girl Oratorical Winner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 24.— Telling in the form of a biography the story of aluminum Yvonne Hollings, 13, a pupil of the Campbellofrd Public School was judged winner over a field of thirteen entries in the annual oratorical contest open to pupils of the public and separate schools here each year.

The High School Auditorium was packed to capacity for the occasion which was to pick a winner to represent this town at the district finals to be held in Warkworth on Nov. 18. Five winners were picked by the judges R. W. Umphrey, E. Maycock, Owen Findlay, Arnold Bates, K. Crosson, F. M. Carrol and Miss F. Lynch teachers in the school in neighboring rural districts, and each received a special prize as well as a book to each contestant presented by the school board. The first three winners were each given a cup which they will be permitted to hold for one year. They were Yvonne Hollings, Patricia Robertson, and Pauline Cassan. Fourth and fifth prizes went to Gerald Sloggett and Connor Milne respectively. F. C. Bonnycastle was chairman of the evening. Several musical and instrumental numbers were on the program as well as the speaking and St. Mary's Orchestra offered a musical interlude at the opening of the program. Mr. Arnold Bates gave a piano solo and Misses Pauline Cassan and Melba Ferguson danced the highland fling. On the program also Gloria Anderson and Frances Hendy gave vocal solos and Miss Bernice Clark who offered a piano solo. The other speakers were Helen Beatty, Jack Connor, Marjorie Kerr, Irene Young, Leila Mitchell, Frances Holmes, M Wilson, and Margeret Phillips.

Broken Collar Bone Idea Allows Work As It Knits

San Francisco, Oct. 22 (AP), BROKEN COLLAR BONES fixed while you wait. Go back to work tomorrow!

That is the tempo offered to the medical professional to combat a type of acicdent becoming increasingly common in the machine age and which always has been a bogey of the football season.

The instrument which does the trick was demonstrated today before the Western Orthopedic Association by its inventor, Dr. Roger Anderson, Seattle bone secialist.

He and other surgeons reported the apparatus permitted freedom and immediate use of the arm normally rendered idle by a broken collar bone. It is called a suspension hammock.

Lakefield W.A. To Aid Families

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 24. — The Womeh's Association of Lakefield United Church is making plans to adopt three northern Ontarion families to be recommended by the Home Mission Board of the United Church, and are hoping to be able to provide them with needful clothing during the winter and with Christmas cheer, it was learned at the October meeting of the Association, last October 18.

Members were added to the executive committee to complete arrangements for the visit of Mrs. H. M. Aikens, well known radio broadcaster of Toronto.

The report of the financial secretary showed the net proceeds from the Thanksgiving dinner to amount to $182.27. It was moved that the necessary amount be added to make the sum up to $200, and that that amount be turned over to the official board of the church. The motion carried.

Care For Lulu

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22—(AP). Lulu, a favorite at a local zoo, will have expert care for her blessed event next month. The city fathers appropriated $200 for a giraffe maternity specialist. Lulu and her mate, William, are said to be the only breeding giraffes in the United States. They already have one colt, born last year.

OBITUARY

JEAN LENORE TURRIFF.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Oct. 22.—Great sorrow was felt throughout the entire village when it was learned that early Tuesday morning Jean Lenore Turriff, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Turriff had passed away at the age of 11.

She had contracted pneumonia three weeks before, and in spite of every medical care and attention she died at 2 a.m. Tuesday morning. Jean was a very winsome child, whose kindly ways and lovable personality endeared her to all with whom she came in contact.

Rev. A. C. McCullum of Coe Hill United church, conducted a short service at the house, after which the remains were taken to Detlor United church, where Rev. W. J. Dawes of Bancroft, conducted the funeral service. The hymns were: "There's a Friend for Little Children," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." The choir rendered "God Forbid Her Longer Stay."

Floral tributes were many and beautiful. The pallbearers were Messrs. Earl Smith, Ross Foster, Cecil Currie, Clayton Price, Guy Price, Elvin Woodly. Interment was made in the family plot in the Egan Creek cemetery, Detlor.

MRS. LILLIAN NILL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 22.—A former resident of the Macklin Settlement in the person of Mrs. Lillian Macklin Nill, was removed by death on Monday. Mrs. Nill, following a prolonged illness, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. David Mills, Whitewood avenue, New Liskeard. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Macklin, pioneer settlers in the Macklin Settlement. During her young womanhood she was the first organist in the Macklin's (Bethany) church and some years afterward, following her marriage to William Nill, she again filled this office, while her husband acted as choir leader. Mrs. Nill was a highly esteemed citizen. She was a member of the United church and as long as health permitted a regular attendant.

Following the death of her husband some years ago Mrs. Nill made her home in Port Hope. About six months ago she went to live with her daughter at New Liskeard.

After a short service, held at A. W. George's Funeral Home, Port Hope, on Wednesday at 2 p.m., the cortege proceeded to Macklin's church, where a second service was held, conducted by the pastor of Port Hope United church. Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery.

The bearers were A. Nill, Roseneath, W. A. Nill, Cavan, Bruce Macklin, Andrew Macklin and Harold Karper, Fenella, and Gordon Kellogg, Welcome.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. David Mills of New Liskeard, a step-daughter, Mrs. John Knight of Invermay, Saskatchewan, and one sister, Mrs. J. Creighton, of Verrun, Manitoba.

Five Persons Meet Death In Crossing Crash

Five persons met death in this car when it collided with a lumbering freight train in the little Laurentian village of Lesage, Que. The accident victims were five of a party travelling in two automobiles through heavy rain from Contrecoeur to Sainte-Agathe to visit a relative in the hospital at the latter town. This accident was the second of its kind to happen in Quebec Province within the last week and raises the death toll for level crossing fatalities to 10 in a week. Gelinas Fortin, 65, his wife, 62; Ernest Lavigne, 55; Mrs. Joseph Fortin, 57, all of Contrecoeur, and Adelard Jessaume, 55, of Fall River, Mass., lost their lives in the ABOVE crash.

Pt. Colborne Picket Line Fails

Ninety Run Gauntlet Enter Plant After Street Battle

PORT COLBOURNE, Ont., Oct. 25 (C.P.). — Fists flew, stones were thrown, faces were scratched and bruises suffered as more than 100 employees of the Humberstone Shoe Company, Limited, attempted to battle their way through lines of picketing strikers of the Canadian Shoe Workers' Union, shortly after seven o'clock this morning.

Fifteen Provincial constables, in charge of Sergeant S. W. Scott, Niagara Falls, were on hand to protect the employees who wished to return to work. They removed the strikers from in front of the door of the plant and kept them on the march to and fro. When the group of employees attempted to march into the plant, the ranks of the picketers broke and a general melee ensued.

When the smoke had cleared away about 90 employees, a number with their faces scratched and many others suffering body bruises, had succeeded in getting into work.

A number entered by a back door. Provincial Police refrained from using force as long as possible, but finally were forced into the fracas to prevent serious injury.

One group of employees was cut off by the picketers and forced away from the company plant. About 25 of them remained for an hour in a group on the opposite side of Highway Number 3 to that on which the plant is located, and then dispersed.

It was apparent later that there was to be no further attempt made immediately to get other employees into the plant. The picket lines thinned, but a substantial number of the 200 or more strikers remained ready to repulse any further advance of employees.

The ranks of the strikers were swelled by a number, estimated at between 20 and 30, of members of the Canadian Seamen's Union from nearby points.

It was expected that an attempt might be made later in the day to get the remainder of the employees rushing to go to work, through the picket lines.

The plant had been closed down for seven weeks, until operation was resumed on a small scale the end of last week.

Suspect Race Drivers In Girl's Slaying

LARCHMONT, N.Y., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three auto race drivers from nearby New Rochelle were questioned today in connection with the attack slaying of Mary Coyle, 17, two weeks ago.

Police who brought the young men here after they were picked up at Topsfield, Mass., yesterday by Massachusetts state police said no charges had been filed against them.

The body of the girl, ravished and brutally beaten, was found in a parking lot the morning after she left her houseboat home to attend an evening novena at a Catholic church.

War Planes 'Bomb' Windsor Castle In Precaution Raid

London, Oct. 25 (CP)

WINDSOR Castle was "bombed" last night in an air raids precautions workout.

The state apartments and the Sovereign's entrance were 'struck' in a test of arrangements for the safety of the 500 people who live and work in the castle.

One hundred volunteers recruited from palace servants were on duty during a forty-five-minute blackout. Old furniture, representing castle valuables, was stored underground immediately reports were received the building was under attack.

Teller's Hunch Nets 2 Robbers

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25.—A bank teller's suspicions of two men loitering near a branch of the Bank of Commerce here resulted yesterday in the arrests of two men on charges of robbery with violence.

The men under arrest gave their names as George Alfred Martin, 38, and Paul Marcel, 34. The two, charged with robbing the bank of $2,711, were arrested as their automobile was pulling away from in front of the building.

H. L. Hobbs, the teller whose brother was killed in a Bank of Commerce holdup in 1936, became suspicious of two men outside the bank and he asked Bob DeGraves, assistant, to call police.

Constable Donald Maxwell answered the summons. He appeared while the bandits were leaving the bank after looting the tills. The constable was able to block their getaway in a taxi which DeGraves fired at four times.

Police said they found $3,711 on one man during a search at headquarters.

Seven-Point Program Presented To The City Trust Projects Involve Spending $50,000

The council made another reaching gesture toward the funds of the City Trust Commission last night, presenting at a conference of the two municipal bodies a seven point program of spending projects aggregating $50,000, and received from the Commissioners their cordial promise to reconsider their authority and legal responsibility in the making of any grant to the city treasurer at their next meeting on the first Monday of November.

The seven proposals listed by the aldermanic board, in committee of the whole, and recommended to the trustees of the debentures' sinking funds for their sympathy and possibly any ingenuity they may devise to circumvent, legally of course, the obstacles that tend to deter them were: the pedestrian bridge at the Quaker Oats dam, a new market site, a two room addition to the police court building, a paving plant adequate for the needs of the city, additional machinery at the quarry on the Lakefield road, a grant toward the expected overdraft for unemployment relief, and a reduction in the City Trust Commission's requisition for current payments.

In regard to that last item of debenture payments, the sum of $263,000 is due and payable out of the city treasury to the Commission on December 14 to meet interest and sinking funds for the year.

Ald. Bradburn suggested the Trust might consider retiring the bonds of the city which it holds, and thereby materially reduce the annual demand on the treasury.

All the members of the council were present with the exception of Alderman Dutton who is in Quebec for a week or ten days. Mayor Hamilton presided and the members of the City Trust present were Vincent Eastwood, chairman, E. A. Peck, K.C., G. A. Gillespie, W. R. Morris, A. A. McIntyre, and their secretary, Arthur Stevenson.

Towards the end of the conference which took up most of an hour, Mr. Gillespie remarked that he had heard the council was considering abolishing the Commission, referring to Alderman Gordon's proposal to submit that question to the ratepayers.

"If that was done," Mr. Gillespie said, "then your treasurer would be in the same position as the City Trust. I feel that no one can see any better than we can what the debenture situation will be at the time when our debentures retire. If any one could see ahead to that it would all be very simple, but there is no way that can be done. So, we have got to follow the law that governs us as trustees, and do nothing that would make us personally liable to the people who bought the city's bonds."

"That is it precisely," Mr. Eastwood added. He encountered several brief but comparatively mild criticisms of his position from Alderman Gordon, but with the unanimous support of his fellow Commissioners Mr. Eastwood merely replied that the Trustees were adhering to the

Robber Tackles Cafe As Cop On Case Drinks Coffee There

Detroit, Oct. 25 (CP)

ALBERT SAGE probably should be rated the most obliging thief in the United States.

Detective Walter Clinton, assigned to a series of robberies and hold-ups, was puzzling over them as he drank coffee in a cafe at 5 a.m. Sage came in, Clinton said, and tried to hold-up the cafe. Clinton arrested him. Clinton gleefully related that Sage confessed 16 other thefts, many included in the list he was investigating.

Hungarians Ease Demands Under Pressure

BUDAPEST, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Diplomatic circles said today that pressure by Germany, Italy and Poland inspired the moderation of Hungarian demands in a new offer to Czechoslovakia to compromise their territorial quarrel.

The Hungarian government cut its territorial demands by about 30 per cent in a note which the Prague government was requested to answer by tomorrow.

Premier Bela Imredi in a press statement termed the proposals "really conciliatory."

Informed persons here thought it likely Prague would reject even the compromise note. In that event, Premier Lmredi said Hungary would "enforce its justice by all means available to the nation."

A half million soldiers remained at the Czechoslovak border today while the Hungarian government awaited the answer from Prague. (The cabinet was convened in Prague to draft a decision today.)

The New Proposals

The offer, seventh to be advanced from Budapest, deals with four points:

1. Hungarian troops without delay would occupy Czechoslovak areas over which there now is no dispute. This would be about 3,860 square miles.

2. Plebiscites would be held in disputed districts by Dec. 1.

3. Ruthenians, Slovaks (now autonomous parts of Czechoslovakia) and other nationalities of Czechoslovakia would be given the right of "self-determination," presumably by an election to determine to what country they would give allegiance.

4. If Czechoslovakia cannot accept these points, a German-Polish-Italian commission would arbitrate the dispute.

Premier Imredi said a map attached to the Hungarian note divided disputed areas into eight sections, in which plebiscites would be held separately.

Auburn Mill Closes Friday Night

125 Employees Are To Be Affected By Company Order

The Auburn plant of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds is to be closed on Friday night, F. C. Cobourn, secretary-treasurer of the company told The Examiner this afternoon. The machinery which is suitable will be moved to the Hespeler plant. Some of the office staff and also the odd employee will be taken," Mr. Cobourn said.

Asked why the move was being taken, he said:

"It is an economy measure, for the plant has been operating for the past few years at a loss."

It is estimated that approximately 125 employees would be affected.

H. S. Leybourne, superintendent of the plant, was out of the city today, but it was reported that extra spinners had been employed this week to finish up the work on hand.

Hope For New Company

An "optimistic" hope that some progressive company may take over the vacant Auburn mill and provide work for the majority of those workers who will be thrown out of employment, was expressed here this afternoon by Mayor James Hamilton.

Mayor Hamilton said that for some months past he and members of the council had been in constant consultation with the executives of the company in an attempt to improve conditions so that the plant could continue to operate. Recently the Mayor was informed by those executive that their decision had been made and that the plant would be moved. In the meantime he and the council members have been searching about for some other company that would be willing to take over the property. They found such a company and are extremely hopeful of inducing its heads to move to Peterborough. Negotiations are progressing favorably and will move at a more swift pace now that the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds company is definitely moving, Mayor Hamilton said.

France Frowns On Foreign Industry

PARIS, Oct. 25 (AP)—Conservative elements in the Chamber of Deputies today urged stringent restrictions upon foreign industry in France as the latest indication of an increasing nationalist feeling exhibited in Sunday's senatorial election.

The rightist deputies drafted a bill which would apply strict quotas to foreign business in each section of France and would, in effect, place these establishments under the supervision of their French competitors.

Political sources predicted, meanwhile, that Premier Edouard Daladier would abandon the popular front to form a rightist majority bloc.

Tried, Convicted 3 Times, B.C. Killer To Hang On 8th Execution Date

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)

CABINET COUNCIL, it was announced today has refused a repreive to Vincent Macchione, sentenced to be hanged tomorrow at Oakalla prison, in Burnaby municipality, near Vancouver for the slaying almost two years ago of Michael Hudock, near Fernie.

The appeal was made by Clement Carmichael, counsel for Macchione, a 36-year-old Sicilian railway section man.

On Oct. 5 Macchione's third appeal from the conviction of slaying Hudock and the death sentence was dismissed by the British Columbia court of appeal sitting in Victoria.

Hudock, also a sectionman, was found dead on the ice-rimmed edge of Elk River near Fernie on Feb. 9, 1936. Macchione was tried three times, convicted three times and won two appeals before the appeal court handed down its final decision on Oct. 6.

Eight different dates had been set for his execution. Seven times it was changed pending further court action.

18 Die On Australian Peak As Airliner Crashes, Off Beam, In Heavy Fog

Member Parliament, Noted Attorneys Among Victims Flung to Death Or Trapped in Ruins of Blazing Craft

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 25.—(CP).—Eighteen persons, including a member of the Australian Parliament, were killed to-day in the Commonwealth's worst airliner crash on mist-shrouded Mount Dandenong, 40 miles southeast of Melbourne.

Seven persons were thrown from the cabin. The others were trapped in the ship which burned.

C. Hawker, member of the House of Representatives and a former Minister of Commerce; L. S. Abrahams and A. V. Gain, prominent Sydney attorneys, were among the victims.

The machine, with crew of four, including a hostess, was bound from Adelaide to Melbourne. It was operated by the Australian National Airways.

A storekeeper at the town of Kilorama said he heard the plane roaring through the mist.

"A few seconds later I heard an awful crash and ran out of the store," he related. "I could see the wreck not far away. It was smashed to smithereens and blazing like mad."

Out of Contact for Hour

For an hour before the crash wireless operators at Melbourne airport attempted unsuccessfully to communicate with the airliner which was off its directional beam. At the time of the accident the summit of Mount Dandenong was enveloped in a dense cloud.

Mr. Hawker was reported enroute to Canberra for a conference with government leaders. Persistant reports had indicated he was to reenter the government in the near future.

Commenting on his death, W. M. Hughes, Commonwealth minister for external affairs, said "at this juncture Mr. Hawker can ill be spared in the defence of the country; his advice and cooperation would have been vital."

Hawker was educated at Cambridge University and during the Great War was a captain in the Somerset Light Infantry. He had been member of parliament for Wakefield, South Australia, since 1929 and was minister of commerce in 1932.

Other passenger victims included T. M. Hardy and Hugo Grant, two of Australia's best-known wine exporters. Members of the crew killed included the pilot, Captain Webb, and air hostess Hones.

Actress Injured As Dogs Tangle

LONDON, Oct. 25 (C.P. Cable).—Mystery concerning the injuries sufferd by Margaret Bannerman, 42, Canadian actress, in an accident last night was cleared up to-day when she regained consciousness.

It was explained the leads of her boisterous Great Dane and Alsatian crossed while she was exercising them, causing her to trip. She fell headlong over one of the dogs and slid down a steep pathway.

Her face was badly bruised and her front teeth driven through her upper lip. Plastic surgeons hope to be able to remove the disfigurement and say she will be out of hospital in a fortnight.

Even Dogs Lost In Peasoup London Fog

LONDON, Oct. 25 (C.P.).—Londoners groped their way to work today in fog so thick that even dogs got lost.

Road, rail, sea and air traffic was slowed to a crawl or stopped in grimy darkness that enveloped a 40-mile circle around the capital.

Six greyhounds racing at the North London Track lost their way on a far curve and kennel boys had to go out to find them.

Five persons were killed in 24 hours as a direct result of fog. Three of them were motorcyclists and the other two a young married couple from Birmingham who fell into a canal and were drowned.

Special regulations for controlling rail and highway traffic in time of fog were enforced. Trains arriving in London were several hours late.

Jap Troopers March Into Hankow

Flames Light Sky As Chinese Fire Fallen City

By C. Yates McDaniel
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

HANKOW, Oct. 25—(AP).—Great fires were burning tonight in this former Chinese provisional capital, abandoned by the Chinese army to approaching Japanese.

Japanese were said to have entered Hankow's environs, but were still far distant from the heart of the city.

One hundred British sailors were policing the former British and Russian concessions which comprise the refuge of most Britons and Americans here. They were joined this afternoon by 30 bluejackets from the Luzon, United States navy Yangtse patrol flagship.

Two British gunboats moved down the Langtse river to anchor off the British area near the national city bank building and the American consulate general.

Station is Blown Up

Terrific explosions rocked the French concession as the Chinese blew up the Peiping-Hankow railway terminus a few hundred yards outside the French barricades.

Fires in Hankow and adjoining cities of Wuchang and Hanyang apparently were started by retreating Chinese to hamper the Japanese advance.

The fires spread rapidly in Wuchang. In Hankow, fire in the Japanese concession spread toward the former British and Russian concessions.

Italian sailors were on guard in the former German area. Entry of armed Chinese soldiers into the former foreign areas was forbidden.

Landing of the American and British contingents occurred as the last units of Chinese gendarmes vacated their billets and boarded tugs ferrying them across the Yangtse to Wuchang.

Safety zone districts teemed with refugees, many of them carrying, pushing and dragging their belongings in search of shelter.

French Close Barriers

Early in the afternoon French colonial infantry and a French naval landing party manned long prepared defences and closed entrances through barricades guarding the French concession. The population of the concession had increased tenfold and every available room was packed far beyond capacity.

The Japanese concession area, however, was practically deserted. Streets there were littered with debris. Doors and windows of most buildings were smashed and apparently they had been looted.

General Chiang Kai-Shek and Mme. Chiang were understood to have left the city.

British, United States, and Italian gunboats have each landed 100 men

Won't Wait Too Long On Colonies Goering Is Reported in Letter

By Paul-Louis Bret
(Copyright, 1938, The Havas News Agency.)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(CP-Havas).—Informed conservative circles today said Field Marshal Hermann Goering has sent a "semi-official" memorandum to the Marquess of Londonderry containing Germany's views on its former colonial empire. The memorandum was said to have stressed the following five points:

1. The German Government, while fixing no specific date for satisfaction of its colonial demands, is not disposed to wait indefinitely inasmuch as the colonies were fraudulently taken from her and must be restored.

2. The Reich expects the British Empire, France and Belgium to return such African colonies such as Togoland, the Cameroons, Southwest Africa and Tanganyika.

3. The Reich would be disposed to accept in place of Southwest Africa and Kanganyika other colonial com-

Flight Of Wild Geese Is Interrupted When Airplane Appears

Hastings, Oct. 25.
(Examiner Correspondence:)

A LARGE flock of wild geese, flying southward over this village yesterday, postponed their trip, when their path of flight was interrupted. Residents witnessed the flock almost directly overhead when an airplane appeared from the east. The flock had been in perfect "V" formation when the "big bird" appeared but they broke up formation and flew northward again at a greater speed and disorganized. They flew as far as the eye could see.

Hands In Pockets, Laborite Talks To King Who Scratches Head—So They're Even

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Robert J. Watt of Boston today answered joshing of fellow labor delegates at his appearance before royalty with the assertion he was about even with the King on the score of informality.

Watt, wearing ordinary street clothes and a red tie, visited Buckingham Palace yesterday with some two score other members of the governing body of the international labor office at Geneva who talked with the King and Queen for more than an hour.

"The King and Queen made me feel perfectly at ease," he said. "It was a very informal visit and I noticed the King himself once scratched the back of his head just like anybody else. So I guess we're about even."

He said both King George and Queen Elizabeth were so absorbed in the conversation on labor conditions in the United States and other topics that he did not realize he talked to them part of the time with his hands in his pockets.

"Doubtless I did have my hands in my pockets for I usually do when I'm talking," he said after other delegates joshed him about it.

He said he was not embarrassed because he wore street clothes while several others were in formal attire.

Jamaica Reports Premier King May Sail Home Wednesday

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 25—(CP Cable).—Reports in Kingston to-day said Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada might return to the Dominion by steamship tomorrow. The reports could not be confirmed as the Prime Minister and his party were touring rural districts.

Mr. King arrived here yesterday on a vacation trip, accompanied by Dr. O. D. Skelton, Canadian Under-Secretary for External Affairs. It was also reported that if the Canadian Prime Minister did not leave tomorrow he would remain in Jamaica for a week.

Russia Sees Britain Feeble, All For Peace Losing Hong Kong, Singapore To Japs

Moscow, Oct. 25 (CP)

LE JOURNAL DE MOSCOU, which frequently voices the views of competent Soviet circles, printed a front-page appeal today to peaceful nations of the world to unite for collective action against aggressors.

Under the caption "The hour of reckoning strikes," the newspaper said Japan quickly took advantage of the four-power Munich settlement Oct. 1 to move ruthlessly into China regardless of British interests.

"And why not?" Le Journal demanded. "England is feeble, isolated and penetrated with a 'love of peace.'

"Why not once more give Prime Minister Chamberlain opportunity to rescue peace by surrendering Hong Kong and thus achieving a new triumph?

"If he does, Japan naturally will demand Singapore, too. Naturally Japan also is adopting a firmer tone toward France, possessor of Indo-China.

"And why hesitate? Has not France recognized itself powerless to defend its own interests?"

The editorial concluded: "The question is this: Will the world fatalistically await the final development of the Munich tragedy or will the powers which still have their independence make a supreme effort and unite, at least for discussion and collective actions? Will they unite before Hitler has forbidden international assemblies?"

Pole Friendship Great Boon To Hitler's Aims

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

WARSAW, Oct. 25 — (AP). — Chancellor Hitler sets out on his campaign for economic and political dominance over central Europe and the Balkans with the great asset of Polish friendship, albeit this is tempered with a highly independent attitude of watchfulness.

This is of vita limportance to the Fuehrer for Poland is a force to be reckoned with, especially since many military experts figure that she holds the balance of power between Germany and Russia.

Poland had been leaning away from France and towards Germany for some five years with intervening periods of rather hard feelings between Warsaw and Berlin.

During that time Paris worked hard to win the Poles back. The Franco-British acceptance of the German demand for annexation of Czechoslovakia territories made the scale hit the floor in favor of Germany.

The Polish people as a whole thought that France should have backed up Czechoslovakia. They held that Czechoslovakia would have adopted different policies long ago had she known that France wouldn't fight.

In explanation of their having demanded and obtained a part of Silesia from Czechoslovakia the Poles say they intervened only after the partition of Czechoslovakia had been determined upon. Warsaw admits to being practical.

Japs Claim British Ship In Wrong Spot

TOKYO, Oct. 25—(AP)—Japanese imperial headquarters indicated today that the British gunboat Sandpiper, damaged by Japanese bombs at Changsha yesterday, had failed to give her correct location.

"According to a British communication received just prior to departure of Japanese plane, the Sandpiper was moored about 500 metres (1,640 feet) downstream from the Hankow Custom House instead of at Changsha," said a communique. Changsha is 200 miles southwest of Hankow.

The communique said shell fragments presumably hit the Sandpiper accidentally, explaining that "at 10 a.m. Monday six Japanese naval planes bombed many Chinese junks with troops aboard. Therefore, it is presumed fragments of shells may have damaged the British vessel."

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)

WALTER TREALONT, Windsor, asked Windsor police aid today to solve the mystery of the missing bridegroom who failed to appear at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to marry Trealont's daughter, Ruth Trealont.

Trealont told police George Warman, a Canadian oil tanker employee, had visited Ruth Trealont every time his boat visited Windsor throughout the summer. Recently he sent her a $41 money order to pay her expenses to Sault Ste. Marie where, Trealont said, Warman was to marry Ruth.

She went there but was unable to find Warman. She wired home yesterday saying she was stranded there without funds, and requested assistance to return to Windsor.

Bluenose Loses By 5 Minutes

BOSTON, Oct. 25 — (CP) — The storm-weary crew of the schooner Bluenose, losers in a race against time, turbulant waters and the Gloucesterman Gertrude L. Thebaud in the fourth race of a series for the International Fisherman's Trophy rested today while minor repairs were made to their vessel. The fifth and deciding heat will be held tomorrow. Each vessel has won two races.

Captain Angus Walters of the Bluenose wouldn't discuss yesterday's race in which Thebud overtook his boat in a blinding rain off Boston and beat her to the finish marker by approximately five minutes.

Meanwhile in Gloucester, Mass., Captain Cecil Moulton of the Thebaud and his crew expressed dissatisfaction over the postponement of the final heat until Wednesday. The postponement was called after storm warnings had been hoisted along the coast.

Backstay Parts

The big Canadian fisherman lost several lengths after rounding the second buoy when her backstay parted and she was forced to come up into the wind while crew memmers doused her jib topsail. Two topmen, clinging to precarious holds in the windswept rigging, were momentarily endangered before the manoeuvre could be completed.

Ross Varty Dies At Christie Street

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 25.—Following a lengthy illness death claimed Ross Varty, who passed away in Christie Street Hospital on Saturday. The funeral cortege which left his late residence on Wellington street on Monday afternoon for St. John's United Church reached proportions rarely seen in this vicinity as hosts of friends gathered to pay their final tribute. A veteran of the World War he enlisted in 1915 with the 6th C.R.T. Regiment and while at the front was gassed. From the effects of this he never completely recovered and he had been steadily declining in health during the past few years. His condition became critical on Friday last when he was taken to Toronto. Born in Belmont township 42 years ago, he was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Varty, late of Havelock. Left to mourn his loss besides his wife, are two brothers, Stewart of Marmora and Edison of Havelock, and one sister, Mrs. Charles Blakley of Meyersburg. A barber by trade he worked at this vocation in Campbellford, health permitting, for the past 15 years. An Orangeman for over twenty years he was a member of the Campbellford Lodge L.O.L. 526, and has served in various offices in the organization. He took an active interest in the work of the Legion of which he was also a member. An adherent of the Pentecostal faith, the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. S. S. O'Brien, with both members of the Legion and of the L.O.L. attending the funeral in a body. Major J. V. Belford assisted in the service at the graveside. Members of the Legion and of the L.O.L. were flower bearers and pall bearers. The members of the L.O.L. who acted as bearers were Messrs. James Goacher, Thomas Hay, Robert Belshaw, Arthur Redden, Sam Wilson and Wallace Varty; of the Legion—Messrs. R. C. Ramsden, James Nobes; Charles Duncalfe, R. Jarvis, and Fred Lang. Interment was at Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

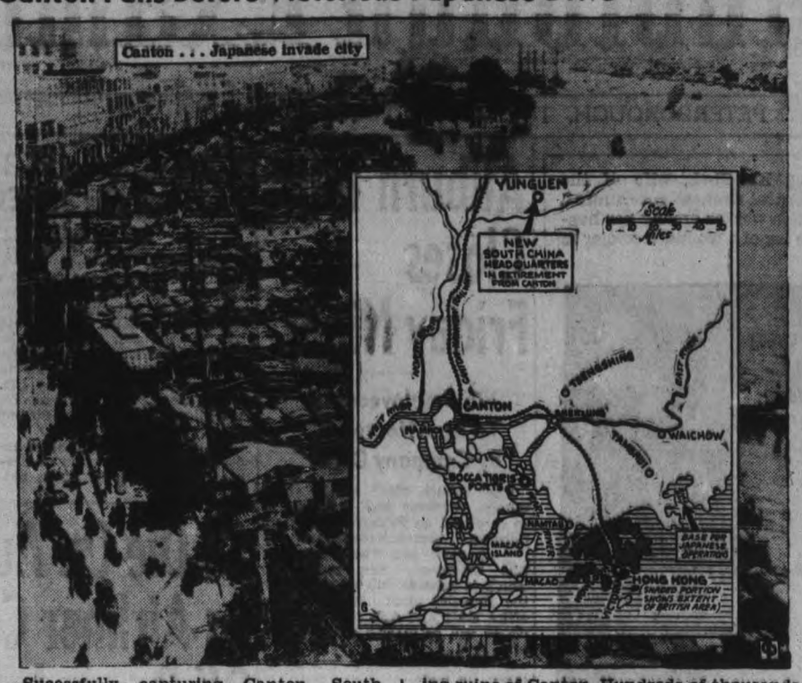
Canton Falls Before Victorious Japanese Drive



Sucessfully capturing Canton, South China's metropolis, Japanese forces are continuing their drive toward Hankow, as thousands of refugees flee from the burning ruins of Canton. Hundreds of thousands had fled the doomed city before the Japanese, on the march for more than a week, gained their objective.

pensation in Africa provided the territory be equal in size and value and would comprise a single and unbroken geographical unit.

4. In exchange for Southwest Africa and Tanganyika, Germany would be disposed to accept a part of the Belgian Congo and Portuguese Angola, enabling it to set up a German African colony adjacent to the Belgian territory there.

5. Germany would accept no restriction of its right to establish air, military and naval bases in these colonies as long as other nations refused to accept similar limitations.

A Personal Message

Confirmation of the terms of the memorandum from Field Marshal Goering to Lord Londonderry was impossible inasmuch as it concerns a communication between personal friends.

Lord Londonderry is perhaps the foremost exponent of Anglo-German friendship and is a close friend of several of the German leaders, particularly of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the Foreign Minister.

It is reported a compromise settlement may be offered Chancellor Hitler when the South African Defence Minister, Oswald Pirow, visits Berlin in mid-November.

South Africa, as it has indicated on numerous occasions, is firmly opposed to the return of former German Southwest Africa or Tanganyika. Well-informed sources here said, however, that South Africa would be willing to discuss extension to Germany of an international mandate over a part of Central Africa, including Ruanda-Urundi (formerly part of German East Africa and now Belgian), and possibly a portion of the Belgian Congo and Portuguese East Africa, a small slice of Tanganyika, and Togoland and the Cameroons.

Calling on Portugal

MARSEILLE, Oct. 25. — (C P-Havas).—Oswald Pirow, South African Defence Minister, arrived here to-day from South Africa and announced he was proceeding directly to Lisbon to discuss German colonial demands with the Portuguese Government.

Mr. Pirow said he would later go to London where he would report to the British Government on the results of his talks in Lisbon. He added he might go to Berlin after London to talk over colonial problems with Chancellor Hitler.

Jay Walking Pedestrian Worst Offender In Detroit Anti-Accident Drive

Detroit, Oct. 25 (CP)

JAYWALKING pedestrians constitute Detroit's chief traffic problem, officials of the Detroit police accident prevention bureau said today. The bureau has reduced the number of fatal traffic accidents 47 per cent in its 13 months of operation, but without power to regulate pedestrians, they feel unable to make much more progress.

Since Oct. 1, 15 pedestrians have been killed in Detroit and, police say, only in one death was the car driver responsible for the accident. Only two persons riding in automobiles have been killed this month. Not since Sept. 17 has a fatality resulted from the collision of two automobiles.

Just 140 people have been killed here so far this year, compared with 267 at this time last year. Of the 140 killed, 102 were pedestrians.

"Pedestrian control laws have been found virtually useless in the large eastern United States cities," said a bureau official.

Convicts To Fill Devil's Isle Cells Again As Old French Custom Is Revived

Paris, Oct. 25 (AP)

THE newspaper Paris Midi said today Premier Edouard Daladier's government had decided to revive the practice of shipping French convicts to the dreaded French Guiana Islands.

It reported the practice, banned by Leon Blum when he became premier in June, 1936, would be resumed Nov. 20 when the prison ship La Martiniere will transport prisoners from St. Lazaire in its iron cages to the three notorious islands, including Devil's Island, off South America.

The Paris Midi said a second voyage was already scheduled for La Martiniere.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, October 25 — (CP). — Cattle trade was fairly active on Toronto Livestock Market to-day, with prices generally steady. Calves, sheep and lambs sold at steady prices while no hog price was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,400 head.

Receipts reported by Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 1,460; calves, 380; hogs, 1,150; sheep and lambs, 530.

Medium to good butcher cattle sold at $4.50 to $5.25, with some common as low as $3.50. A few weighty steers brought $4 to $5.25. Common to medium butcher cows made $2.75 to $3.50, a few good cows reaching $4.25. Canners and cutters were $2 to $2.50.

Good bulls traded at $3.75 to $4 with bolognas generally $3.50. Fed calves ranged from $6 for medium up to $9.50 for choice. Good stockers made $4.75 to $5, common going as low as $4.

Choice veal calves were priced at $9.50 to $10, with common heavies downward to $5. Some grass calves went at $4.75.

Good ewe and wether lambs were $7.75 by rail and $7.50 by truck. Other grades sold from $6 to $6.75. Sheep brought $2 to $4.50 cwt.

BACON-HOG MARKETS

TORONTO, October 25 — (CP). — Four points reported declines of about 25 cents in dressedweight bacon-hog prices to-day while other markets held steady. Losses were noted by Barrie, London, Kitchener and Stratford.

Liveweights. — Chatham, $7.25; Brantford, $7.10; Hull, $7.15; Peterborough, $7.25.

Dressedweights.—Chatham, $9.90; Barrie, $10.10; Hull, $9.80; London, $9.50; Kitchener, $9.50; Stratford, $9.50; Peterborough, $9.65.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat market experienced its second consecutive day in the doldrums to-day and prices drifted narrowly most of the day. Values closed ⅛ to ¾ lower, with October at 60¼, November 59¾, December 59½ to ⅝, and May 62⅝ to ¾ cents.

General weakness in all outside markets together with minor selling and continued absence of support were responsible for losses during the session.

Export business was at a minimum with no business reported overnight. Operations mostly were routine in the pit with a suggestion of light selling by the government agency.

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, sunk, "all bogged down"? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble!

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible: you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Bride-to-be Honored

In compliment to Miss Reta Deyell, whose marriage to Mr. Wallace Darling of Peterborough takes place this month, about one hundred and thirty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of the bride-elect's father, Mr. Robert Deyell, where a surprise miscellaneous shower was held. An address expressing gratitude for the splendid community service rendered by Miss Deyell was read by Miss Grace Coulter before the gifts were presented. Dancing and games of cards were enjoyed during the evening.

Miss Deyell was honored by the Mount Horeb W.M.S., when she was presented with a fernery and fern at the home of Mrs. Eric McLean. The presentation was made by Mrs. W. R. Jackson, and an address read by Mrs. Russell Brooks. The bride-elect was also the recipient of the gift of an Aladdin lamp as a token of appreciation from the choir and congregation of Mount Horeb church for the services she has given as choir organist. The presentation was made by Mrs. O. Grandy, and an address read by Mrs. Howard Jackson.

Collins-O'Keefe

A quiet wedding ceremony took place on Monday morning, at nine o'clock, in the Church of Our Lady Help of Christians, Victoria Road, Ontario, when Frances Catherine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. O'Keefe, Lindsay, was united in marriage by Rev. Father Cleary to Cornelius Collins, son of Mr. Timothy Collins and the late Mrs. Collins, Lock street, Peterborough.

Miss Frances Collins, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Joseph Healey, uncle of the bride, attended the groom.

A wedding breakfast was held at Ye Olde Cottage Tea Room, Lindsay. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Collins will live in Peterborough.

Hancock-Randall

White chrysanthemums banked against a setting of palms and ferns decorated Port Hope Baptist church for the wedding on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock of Miss Mildred Emily Randall, only daughter of Mrs. Randall and the late L. B. Randall, who was united in marriage to Mr. Beverley John Hancock, son of Mrs. Hancock and the late George T. Hancock, Rev. E. K. Smith officiated. Miss Frances Johnson played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Lester Randall, the bride was charming in a silk taffeta dress in two tones of blue. She wore a flowered doll's hat of blue velvet, and carried a bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Miss Muriel Simpson of Toronto, bridesmaid, wore a cerise taffeta dress with a doll hat and slippers to match. Her bouquet was of white roses. Mr. Harold Hancock of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Melville Hancock of Toronto, both brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Immediately following the wedding reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hancock left on a wedding trip to Truro, N.S.

Out-of-town guests attended from Peterborough, Toronto, Colborne and Montreal.

Russell-Sucee

St. Paul's church manse, Port Hope, was the scene of a quiet, pretty wedding when Myrtle Irene, only daughter of Mr. L. C. Russell, Port Hope, and the late Adeline Russell, became the bride of James Ernest Sucee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moyeas Sucee, Peterborough, the Rev. J. W. Foote officiating.

The bride was becomingly attired in a frock of navy blue with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of sweetheart roses and the gift of the bridegroom, a beautiful cameo brooch.

Attending the bride was Miss Ethel Roberts of Toronto, and Mr. Garnett Russell, of Port Hope, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sucee left by motor for eastern points. They will reside in Peterborough.

Ames-Ivatt

CENTRETON, Oct. 25.—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Colborne on Saturday, when Miss Muriel Ivatt, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe. Ivatt of Centreton, was united to John Ames, eldest son of Mrs. Ames of Baltimore.

The bride wore a blue velvet gown with accessories to match. The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to St. Catharines, Niagara and Detroit. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Baltimore.

Baxter-Macklin

CENTRETON, Oct. 25.—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the United Church Parsonage on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, when Marjorie Emma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Macklin, Fenella, became the bride of John Edgar Baxter, third son of Mr. James Baxter of Centreton. Rev. D. M. Smith officiated.

The bride chose a gown of blue velvet, with blue accessories to match. Miss Audrey Macklin, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was attired in a rust knitted suit with accessories to match.

The groom was supported by Mr. Hadyn Giddings of Baltimore. After a brief honeymoon at Toronto and points West, the happy couple will reside at Baltimore.

HEARD IN CRISIS

SEAFORTH, Scotland—(CP). — Yes, she had obtained her gas mask and had "been out that afternoon to buy a hat to go with it," said one housewife to an inspector on his rounds during the war scare.

We Noticed

. . . This Fall's correctly ensembled costume will give definite emphasis to gloves. Black costumes will be "set off" by contrasting gloves. Rich, colorful gloves will add a trimming note to many basic shades in coats and suits.

❖ ❖ ❖

. . . Gloves match shoes, hat or perhaps the trimming note of the frock, in other ensembles. And in many smart ensembles gloves will be worn in brown to match the rich warm hues of brown furs. The effect is distinctly smart, especially when the coat or suit is in black with brown fur.

❖ ❖ ❖

. . . Always considered an "accessory," gloves now take on the importance of a "trimming" to the beautifully and correctly ensembled costume.

Fashions

You'll look as slim as well as up to the minute in this youthful buttoned-front cotton dirndl home frock. The "nipped" shirred elastic waist, falls into an all-around gathered skirt. It has such a becoming scalloped neck and brief sleeves that repeat the scalloped edge.

It's such fun to sew. It's so simple. To make the elastic waistline, merely thread machine bobbin with elastic thread, then stitch in the usual way. The pattern explains everything in detail. There's no reason, why you couldn't use the pattern again in wool jersey, rayon crepe, plaid woollen, etc., for a town dress.

Style No. 2716 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 1½ yards of binding.

Dinner Party At Kawartha Delightful Event

A delightful dinner party was held Monday evening at the Kawartha Club by the Peterborough branch of Queen's University Summer School Association.

John Londerville, the president, presided over the meeting and brief program, which included community singing, led by Arnold Noftall.

The dining table was attractively centred with a deep blue bowl of bittersweet flanked by blue tapers in pottery holders.

Miss Fern Rahmel, secretary-treasurer of the association, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Verna Burgess, M.A., an honor graduate of Queen's, as one who has brought scholastic honors to Peterborough.

"Modern Irish Poets," was the interesting theme chosen by Miss Burgess for her after-dinner speech, which was both witty and charming with its wealth of Irish humor and romance.

The president voiced the thanks of the association to Miss Burgess for her splendid address, and the remainder of the evening was spent in court whist and dancing.

Among those present were: Misses Verna Burgess, Fern Rahmel, Margaret Lytle, Marion Moore, Phyllis Moore, Eileen Young, Constance Wagar, Margaret Whitaker, Thelma McMillan, Hilda Thompson, and Messrs. Joe Barnard, John Londerville, Gordon Davis, John Willan, Jack Staples, John Thexton, Arnold Noftall, Bob Spence, Roy Dunford, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Windrim.

Mrs. G. Spicer Presides At Conference

Mrs. G. A. Spicer presided at the regional conference held Friday in Belleville, when Home and School clubs from Peterborough to Belleville inclusive met in that city. Sessions were held during the afternoon in the King George School, with a dinner served by the Comrade Club in the Tabernacle United Church at six o'clock and the evening session in Queen Alexandra School. Eighty delegates were in attendance, with 37 members registered from Peterborough.

Mrs. R. Parnall, president of the Peterborough Home and School Council, was in charge of the devotional exercises. Mrs. Spicer, in opening the conference, said that eight of such sessions were held throughout the province at this time of year to better equip members with the ability to handle the problems of parents and teacher education.

Discuss Programs.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of program planning for a smoothly functioning club. Mrs. L. M. Richardson, past president of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, Peterborough, spoke on the objective of a meeting. It is necessary to have an object before one can have an objective. The main object of the club is to foster a sympathetic feeling between parent and teacher. The mother shows her sympathy with a teacher by loyal co-operation, such as seeing that the teacher is regarded with respect, or stressing punctuality and regularity. Study groups are of major importance and there is a wide range of subjects from which choice can be made in training better citizens. A good meeting, the speaker pointed out, doesn't just happen. It is planned.

Procedure of meetings was the second topic under Program Planning, and was capably handled by Mrs. H. Darling of Peterborough, who advocated opening of the meeting with The Lord's Prayer, and opening it promptly at eight o'clock. The president welcomes members. Business should be brief and the speaker's talk about 20 or 30 minutes in length. The meeting should close with the National Anthem.

The duties of each officer was then outlined. Mrs. S. Gillespie of Peterborough assisted with this part of the program.

Home Education.

Mr. A. Mowat, Peterborough, delivered a most interesting address on Home Education. Parents, he said, should have a general knowledge of the child's school life and of his growth. The proper environment for the child is of great importance. The first seven years of his life are the most important.

During the first period in a child's school life he learns the art of adjusting himself to others, and takes an interest in playing games. Then comes the age when he grows lazy. This must be watched and counteracted by the wise parent. The collective tendency is the next to develop, followed by the constructive age when the child can be interested in useful handicraft work.

Must Interest Men in Meetings.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, Belleville, discussed ways of interesting men in the meetings. She suggested having the meetings in the evening so the men may attend, and that special fathers' meetings be arranged so that men could assist in the programs.

Mrs. R. J. Ashbury, president of King George Home and School Club, Belleville, contributed a paper on "Type and Time of Entertainment," in which it was stressed that the main object of the club is to promote parent education.

Mrs. Spicer presided at the banquet, where attractively decorated tables were bright with red tapers and blossoms. Following the dinner the members heard with interst a talk by Mrs. W. R. Morris of Peterborough. She told some of the outstanding features of the annual meeting recently in Halifax of the Dominion executive. She spoke of the sorrow the member felt at the retiring of Dr. Kirby of Calgary, long the national president. His successor, Mr. L. A. de Wolf, director of rural education for the Province of Nova Scotia, was informal, pleasant, with a well-trained mind, one who would be a real leader.

At the conclusion of her address a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. P. Black of Peterborough, while Mrs W. Finkle of Belleville expressed appreciation to the ladies responsible for the fine banquet.

The evening session of the Regional Conference was held at Queen Alexandra School: Mrs. Spicer, Peterborough, presiding. An interesting paper on the new course for Grades 7 and 8 was given by Mr. A. A. Martin, Inspector of Public Schools, Brighton. The speaker had a large number of interesting articles showing the project undertaken by the students.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A., Inspector of Public Schools for South Hastings, address the members on "The Wider Area of Administration." A keen discussion followed both addresses, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: A year or two ago you published a recipe for a white cake (fruit) which had been sent in by one of your subscribers.

The cake was a 2-egg cake which contained crushed pineapple and juice, cocoanut and fruits and almonds.

I regarded this as the best white fruit cake I know, so if you have any recollection of this cake or can conveniently look it up in your files, I should be pleased to have you send me a copy.

If you can't find this please send me the recipe which you regard as best.—Mrs. C. W. J.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

I think the following recipe is the one you want, although we have not printed it for years, readers often refer to it.

White Fruit Cake

Two cups sugar, 1 cup butter, 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons soda completely dissolved in 1 cup buttermilk, 3 cups sifted flour, ½ lb. each bleached sultana raisins, finely sliced citron peel, ¼ lb. each dessicated cocoanut and candied cherries, 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, 1 teaspoon mace, 1 cup blanched almonds or sliced Brazil nuts. All fruit and nuts must be dusted with ½ cup sifted flour. Cream butter and sugar very well together, then add beaten egg and 2½ cups flour sifted together with mace, alternately with the buttermilk and soda mixture. Then add the crushed pineapple. Add other fruits and nuts and mix well. Bake in paper lined and buttered pan in oven at 250 deg. Fahr., for about 2 hours.

QUESTION: I still read your page as soon as the paper arrives and enjoy it as much as ever. I wonder if you could let me have a recipe for Mock Pumpkin Pie. I understand this is made with turnips instead of pumpkin, I canned some raspberries and according to your recipe they are wonderful. I am hoping to have a lot of raspberries of our own next year and certainly I'll can quite a quantity. I wonder if you could can strawberries exactly the same. We pick the strawberries from our own garden, so I can them up a few bottles at a time. I made 125 bottles of jam this year, I also made my pickles from one of your recipes. This week I am making Xmas cakes from your old tried and true recipe of English Fruit Cake, but almonds are very hard to get here so I substitute walnuts instead and find it extra good. I am enclosing a recipe for Mock Mincemeat, which I think is very good. Maybe some of your other readers might like to try it. Here's wishing you good health and that you will continue with the cooking page till my three babies are grandmothers.— A Newfoundlander.

Mock Mincemeat

One-half cup bread crumbs, 1 cup raisins, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon each allspice and nutmeg, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup chopped apples, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix the bread crumbs with the raisins, sugar and apples. Add spices and melted butter to beaten egg. Mix vinegar with the molasses, then combine all ingredients mixing thoroughly. Fill an uncooked pastry-lined pie, plate cover with top crust and bake. This is sufficient for one pie.

ANSWER: Thank you for such a charming letter.

I hope, when your children are grandmothers they will not need my help, but if they do I hope I get just as much fun out of hearing from readers then as I do now.

Mock Pumpkin Pie

Two cups mashed and strained turnip, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons finely ground cracker crumbs, 1 pint milk, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each mace, cloves, allspice, nutmeg, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 4 tablespoons melted butter. One cup of molasses may be used in place of sugar or brown sugar in place of white, this intensifies the flavor of the pie and masks the flavor of the turnip.

Keep out the whites, and mix all remaining ingredients. Then when ready to pour into unbaked pie shell, beat the whites until stiff and fold into filling and immediately pour into pie shell. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. having bottom oven on high when pie is first put in to bake bottom crust quickly. Reduce heat to bake filling.

While many people can strawberries just as they do raspberries so much of the flavor and color goes into the syrup after they have been canned three or four months they are so soft and faded they are not appetizing. Their juice is grand for puddings, jelly and ice cream, but on the whole I think strawberries are best made up into jam with commercial pectin.

Write again whenever we can help.

Something New For Upswept Hair

The latest for the lady who wants to wear her hair "up" is a series of hair nets in such colors as orchid, red, pink, blue and green, so that you may not only use it to keep your curls in place, but match it to your evening gown or accessories. It's an amusing innovation for the smart girl to wear on her way to an evening's entertainment so that she will arrive looking suave and smooth, instead of wind-blown.

Sickly Children Get Well and Strong on Haliborange
Vitamins A, D and C
"Haliborange" quickly strengthens weak, sickly children. It is a combination of Halibut Liver Oil (vitamins A and D) and fresh orange juice (vitamin C) treated by the Allenbury process. "Haliborange" has double the vitamin A and D strength of Cod Liver Oil. It is especially rich in the body-building, bone-forming vitamins and protects against scurvy.
Young babies and children like the luscious orange flavour of "Haliborange" and it is very easy to digest. When once they have tasted it, they ask for more. There is absolutely no fishy taste or odour about it. Children thrive on it. It is also excellent for adults who are rundown or anaemic.
Try Haliborange Free
Buy a 5-oz. bottle of Haliborange with the free sample attached. Taste the sample. Then, if you are not absolutely satisfied with its taste, return the bottle to your druggist and he will refund the full purchase price of 75c. The 5-oz. bottle contains two weeks' treatment for children averaging 10 years of age. The dose varies with the age of the child. Haliborange is particularly beneficial to women who are "run down" or at all anaemic.

The Killers Run Loose

The Examiner has referred to the existence of revolvers in the hands of people who have no legal right to have them. Possibly the authorities keep record of all such cases, but so far their methods are not strong enough to head off the revolver-toting section of our community.

Here is a partial record of what has been taking place in the month of October:

Hamilton, Oct. 9: Sixth victim was robbed by armed bandits within three weeks.

London, Oct. 14: Pair of heavily armed bandits wanted for bank robbery at Mount Brydges, although sought by police, are believed to have escaped.

London, Oct. 17: Two armed bandits held up the Maple City gasoline station and at the point of a gun forced the attendant to hand over the cash.

Owen Sound, Oct. 17: Sergt. McCaffrey was shot at by prowlers in the C. P. R. yards. The bullet struck the crown of his hat.

Windsor, Oct. 18: Melville Campbell was arrested. Two loaded revolvers were found in the apartment.

Toronto, Oct. 20: Burglar forced Mrs. Jean Grey into a chair at the point of a gun, bound and gagged her and ransacked a house at 9 Brookmount road.

New Westminster, B.C., Oct. 23: Magistrate H. L. Edmonds was shot at in his home by an armed man who secured admission. The bullet missed the magistrate by six inches and lodged in a chair.

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 24: Travelling in an allegedly stolen car, three youths were arrested. All of them were armed.

In not one of these cases would the persons involved have the right to bear weapons. They had them for the purpose of robbery, and if they were forced to use them they would do so. If they found it necessary to kill they would do that. They would have little difficulty if they needed cartridges for their weapons; they would not have to show a permit in order to purchase them. They would be requested to sign their name in a book, and if they were in a strange community they could sign any name they desired. Actually we have not made a respectable start in getting hands on these illegal weapons.

Just Plain Facts

A correspondent writes to say: "I noticed where you had been making inquiries about the price of wheat, and probably your figures were correct enough, but if the farmer is getting the benefit why should he be singled out as the one for complaint? And I do not believe that the loss on wheat selling will be anything near the mark often mentioned."

The truth is the facts secured and published in this paper were for the purpose of tracing a bushel of grain from the western farm to the market in Liverpool, and finding what the cost was and also showing who had to pay for the expenses of transportation. It was made clear that the western farmer was not getting a great price for his wheat even at the 80-cent mark because he had to pay elevator charges and freight to Fort William. The farmer is actually receiving from 60 to 63 cents for his best wheat and less than that for lower grades.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, was speaking in Alberta last night and he estimated that the Canadian Government would lose between 30 and 40 million dollars through the operation of the wheat pool. There is nothing at all in the presentation of such information which could be interpreted as any attack on the farming population of the West or elsewhere. It is the plain explanation of where public money is being spent, and we hold it is the duty of a newspaper to secure reliable information on such matters and present it to their readers.

Why Tolerate Her Nonsense?

Mrs. Saloma Cole is deaf and dumb; also she is described as being pretty. She has a husband, a couple of children, and she gets her name in the papers more frequently than do most people.

Saloma and her husband came from the West and took up a farm in Huron County, but Saloma did not like farming. She had a longing for the wide acres of the old home, and when her husband made known in their own hand-to-hand language that he would not go West again, the lady began pitching. Her aim and sense of direction were reported as being particularly good; she could send a dinner plate through a window without hitting the particular place where she had sent one through before, and in that way she wasted no shots.

She finally had her way and went back to the West, but found her mother meantime had gone on relief, so the visitor from the East was not welcome. Now she is back in Huron County, and for a time was placed in the Old Folks' home, but she began pitching there and was remarkably effective; she also demolished a rocking chair. Right now she is in jail, longing for a sniff of the pure air in the West. She has made three trips the distance of Alberta to Huron County, and now wants to make another. Using plain enough language, she appears to be a common nuisance. Just why courts are so lenient as to allow her to have full course for the display of an ugly temper, and why she should be riding back and forth the major distance of trans-continental trips while her people are on relief is difficult enough to explain. We'd be inclined to leave her in jail until her brains started to spin in the right direction.

Other Dictators

"The dictator is something new in the history of the world. He has made his appearance since the great war and today we have Russia, Italy and Germany with their millions of people under the rule of three men only. Never was there such a thing in world history. The system of government has never been operated in a similar way."

We clipped that from the report of an address given at a young people's gathering in a church. The truth seems to be that the world has known a number of people who were thorough dictators. England has had kings whose chief delight was to get along without parliament; others looked upon that institution as something convenient for the purpose of raising money.

If this young people's gathering in a church desired to take reference from the Bible, then it might have been well to consult the words of king Rehoboam in answer to the protest of the people against heavy taxation:

"My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add thereto; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions."

It will be noticed that verse speaks of what "I" will do, and that indicates plainly the outlook of the dictator.

Then they might have considered the case of Nehemiah who was bent upon the task of repairing the walls of Jerusalem. When the task was completed it was brought to the attention of Nehemiah that usury of too great a rate was being asked by the noblemen of his community. Nor did Nehemiah expend time or effort in calling together a session of the council. Not at all. He records it this way:

"And I was very angry when I heard their cry and these words. Then I consulted with myself, and I rebuked the nobles and the rulers."

The dictator is not a new individual in the world although admittedly we hear more of him today. In one form or another he is actually quite old, and his weakness has been that eventually he has found that his form of government lacked permanence.

It Would Not Help

There are deficits in several of the hospitals in Toronto and the provincial government is not going to help pay them, so it appears Toronto will have to provide the money. That means more expenditure and probably more taxes, and already the suggestion is made that there should be a taxpayers' strike.

And just how that would help matters is something which is hard to explain. As we see it the taxpayer would be playing with a problem which would after a while come around and sit on his own front steps.

When people do not pay their taxes they are piling up a bill with the municipality which is collectable. It is not one of those charges which is written off and put down against profit and loss. When the charges mount up the owner of the property will receive notice that the municipality is going to sell him out in order to secure its tax money. That sounds hard but it is exactly what takes place.

Considering the regulations as they stand at the moment a taxpayers' strike looks like a move which would eventually rise up and strike the taxpayer.

New Law In U.S.

The new hour-and-wage law has gone into effect in United States, and the first result announced is that 1,500,000 workers will have their hours immediately reduced, and 750,000 workers will receive higher pay. The new law provides what is called a "floor" of 25 cents an hour below which wages cannot go, and a "ceiling" for hours of 44 above which time cannot be worked unless paid for at price and one-half. The new law is looked upon as an agency which will do away with child labor in its entirety. There may be a few exceptions, such as boys who sell or deliver newspapers during restricted hours.

The law will have its major effect in the southern portion of United States where labor has been cheap; it will have its effect on industries from the northern states which within recent years have moved toward the south in order to have the full advantage of what cheap labor they could secure.

It is not expected the new labor law will function without its own troubles. Already some of the telegraph companies have announced they will get along with fewer messengers at all points. There are factories which have suddenly decided they will close for a while "until business conditions improve." Of course, the law can tell a manufacturer what wages and hours he must observe, but it has not taken to itself the power of telling the manufacturer that he must keep on operating his plant. Nor could it.

It is explained the law and its provisions are progressive and the ultimate object is 40 cents an hour for 40 hours of work or $16 per week. The 40-hour week becomes effective in 1940; meantime it is 44, and the 40 cents per hour rate is timed to be operative in 1945. Therefore, the law is planned so that it keeps on looking better ahead, and the politically wise people are already seeing something rather clever in that as a continued bid for more years in office for President Roosevelt and the Democratic party.

Whether employers can pay the higher wage and operate on the shorter hours and adjust their business to keep on selling goods in a competitive market is something which no one can promise. But it is a bold stroke of business to shorten the hours of 1,500,000 workers and increase the pay of 750,000 —all in one day.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that Hitler's newspaper organ has warned Britain what may happen in rearmament. And when that organ is played it is generally done with all the stops pulled out.

United States has a new anti-aircraft gun which it is said will shoot down a raiding plane as readily as a man shoots a duck. But we know of several duck shooters who don't.

When the pheasant shooting season was on there were 30 men banging away on one ten-acre lot. It would be too bad if some person had been raising some Red Leghorns in that district.

British Columbia rulers ordered a cut in gasoline prices ranging from 3 to 6 cents per gallon. After making some inquiries it seems we have not a similar department in Ontario.

United States wants another $200,000,000 to spend for munitions and intends to get it by increasing the income tax by ten per cent. And yet some people say the army and navy operate to protect the big fellows.

Hon. H. H. Stevens made an address in which he said we suffer from lack of leadership in this country. Without mentioning any names we fear there are leaders who also suffer from a lack of followers.

Brantford woman hit a burglar with a wastepaper basket when he was coming up the stairs in her home, and he fled. Some people who write things for newspapers also know how effective the waste basket can become.

A burglar went through the pants of a man in Linwood, Ont., when he was asleep and got away with $598. We never knew a pocket could look so much like a row of safety deposit boxes in a bank.

Ontario government borrowed $10,000,000 at an interest rate of 1.65 per cent., and the last time we were at the bank a loan seemed impossible to negotiate regardless of the interest rate. Which suggests possibly that the province of Ontario is regarded as a better risk.

One trucker was fined $10 and costs for loading 40 hogs in a truck which had a floor space of 9 x 5 feet. That would give fractionally more than one square foot per animal. It was called cruelty to animals, but it looks too much like a case of torture.

The people of Arnia are pondering the heavy question of building a new school house which is going to cost about $100,000. And when the youth of the community gather there perhaps instruction could be given to show the young folk it is possible for a new and fairly green team to defeat the mighty rugby team of that bailiwick.

Washing Day

¶ My Aunt Lucile won't change her ways, she's firm when comes to washing days, be Monday cold or hot; her washing must be on the line, at just a certain space of time, and right there on the dot.

¶ If it looks like a rainy day, she goes quite steady on her way, she knows her wash won't dry; but rain can't stop my Aunt Lucile, she sails upon an even keel, with firmness in her eye.

¶ And if her rheumatism's bad, and makes her limping like and sad, and she should stay in bed; why Aunt Lucile puts on the tub, and starts to lather up and rub, and just goes straight ahead.

¶ If she has relatives around, she never gives an inch of ground, nor is she ever late; on Monday she don't entertain, nor does she offer to explain, that washing day can wait.

¶ When weather freezes and is cold, and Aunt Lucile is fairly old, she goes ahead on time; at early hours why she's about, the washing must be done and out, a quarter after nine.

¶ She's been the same for forty years, she stops for neither joy nor tears, she comes of sturdy stock; so prompt is she on washing day, when neighbors see her so they say—they set the kitchen clock.

Facts Tell of Our Own Country

INDIAN MEDICINE

DR. HEAGERTY tells us that when the French reached Canada, accompanied as they were by skilful doctors and nursing Sisters, they found the Indians possessed of a knowledge of medicine and surgery that was in some ways the equal of their own. In their application of properties of the vegetable kingdom they were probably superior to the French physicians. They had remedies for each and every occasion, expectorants, emetics, purgatives and astringents, as well as other treatments that required advanced skill and knowledge. Their medicine man, much exploited by the writer of fiction, was only a concession to superstition and not the curator of their medical knowledge. Their system of medicine was an unwritten one that was handed down from generation to generation and, in spite of the manifold defects of such a system, was surprisingly complete. In the hands of the women of the tribe was placed the treatment and care of the sick.

In contrast with smallpox, which was brought here by the white man, mal de terre, or scurvy, might be described as a disease native to North America. Jacques Cartier lost almost all his people the first winter he passed in this country. It was a common disease and was called land disease. Scurvy broke out among the Pilgrims after their arrival in New England in 1621. In two or three months half of their company died. The Jesuits frequently suffered from it.

During the past century the presence of scurvy in Canada was associated chiefly with lumber camps. A continuous diet of bacon, beans and coffee, with an absence of fresh vegetables during the winter months, favored its existence. Even today we have scurvy occasionally but in most cases the disease is recognized before it has progressed very far and the horrible type of case seen by the early settlers is a thing of the past. It made its appearance in the drought belt of the Prairies last year among people on relief. It was to the scarcity of fruit and vegetables. Governmental action was taken at once. There were twelve deaths from scurvy in Canada in 1936.

We get a picture of the advance medical science has made since the days of the early settlers when we are able to say that in the last year or so there have been no deaths from leprosy and none from bubonic plague.

WHITE MAN'S DISEASE

It will be seen from the foregoing how powerful a part the white man's diseases have played in destroying and exterminating the great Indian tribes. The tragedy was that the Indians were unable to meet the requirements which the malady demanded to effect a cure. They had no knowledge whatever of that plague.

Leprosy is another of the very dreadful diseases. It has taken a heavy toll of life in days gone by. Robert the Bruce died of it. So far as is known it appeared for the first time in Canada at Tracadie, New Brunswick, in 1815. From 1815 to 1924, 319 lepers have been admitted to the lazarette.

Cases of bubonic plague were brought by the King's ships to Canada in 1710, 1718 and 1740, and caused epidemics. The fleas of rats and other rodents are the carriers, just as mosquitos are the carriers of yellow fever. At the present time the Department of Health is making a study in British Columbia and Alberta to ascertain if ground rodent fleas in these provinces are infected with the plague bacillus. Plague infected fleas have been found on ground rodents in California, Washington, Montana and Utah. About twenty years ago there were two cases on a ship sailing from Montreal to Bristol. The ship had sailed originally from Alexandria in Egypt. All ships entering Canadian ports are now obliged to undergo fumigation at least once a year.

Further elucidation of the advance of medical science which is reflected in the Vital Statistics issued by the Bureau may be obtained from Dr. Heagerty's two valuable volumes entitled "Four Centuries of Medical History in Canada." They should be read by everyone interested in the progress and development of this Dominion. They are a revelation.

WASTE NOT, WANT NOT

We all know the jingle which deplores the throwing away of potato skins, for—

"The skins feed the pigs and the pigs feed you,
Dear beloved brother is that not quite true?"

Canada has taken the juncture to heart and is applying the waste not, want not theory to her apples trees. A project is under consideration for the construction of a pulp and paper mill in Canada in which cetain expensive grades of paper would be produced from prunings of apple trees.

It is estimated that from 1,500 to 4,000 lbs. of prunings are produced on each acre of orchard each year, and that as the Dominion has millions of acres of fruit lands concentrated in closely planted areas, raw material might be laid down in the proposed mills far more cheaply than existing sources of material.

It has yet to be proved that the apple prunings are better adapted for such high grade papers as cigarettes and magazines than wood pulp, but the fact that the experiment is to be made at all shows how wide is the sphere of activity of the Canadian research worker.

LOG CABIN AGAIN.

(Wiarton Canadian Echo)

THE PIONEER spirit is not dead. Near Orangeville, Joseph Carson, father of eight, has built a log cabin. The logs were cut and hauled to a lot purchased from the town for $10. The logs were peeled by hand and placed in position with interlocking corners and chinked with mud. A tar paper roof will keep out the rain and snow. After all, why not? It was good enough for our forefathers when relief was unknown, and we believe that a revival of this spirit of independence will also revive the spirit of neighborliness, which was so pronounced in the time of the pioneers.

• Here's Some Interesting History

THE RECENT WAR CRISIS was apparently the end of the Versailles treaty, and marked the fact that the Germany of Adolf Hitler was at last free of the shackles then imposed, though after the annexation of Austria on March 13, 1938, a war to keep the German empire down appeared a very rash proceeding. The whole incident of hectic war preparation and 'face-saving' forcibly indicated that France was desperately afraid of another European conflict writes R. E. Hutchison in the Montreal Star and also that Russia, under the Soviet system, had ceased to have real political strength and had become a mere "geographical expression." Russia under Stalin may be an earthly paradise, as Soviet admirers allege, but it is fairly clear its ruler is not likely to fight unless his country is actually attacked. Russia under the Czars was the head of a league of Slav states, and had waged war several times from 1809 to 1914 for the Balkan countries, while Soviet Russia, having broken all the old alliances, shows no hurry to implement the promises of the new league with France. Beaten by Poland in 1930, the Soviet system shuns a foreign war.

The idea of keeping Germany down for years by fresh alliances against the Hitler regime was rather wild, because the Teutonic empire is peopled b ya race far tougher, as well as more resolute and patriotic, than the Slav races, and Hitler is not merely an able man, though a fanatic (what Carlyle called "a contracted hero") but also an astute and experienced man of action, who can be compared to Bismarck without any extravagance, or even to Cromwell, the English dictator. From 1919 the role played by France in Europe, as a result of English support, was one it was likely to lose if Germany recovered to any extent, since the population of France of 42 000,000 is so greatly inferior to that of Germany, and Italy, which has as large a number of inhabitants, had ceased to be friendly to France or to the League of Nations.

Czechoslovakia was of no great value as an ally to France, and neither that country nor Russia could have saved it from being overrun, as it was by Prussia in 1744, 1757, 1778 and 1866 (the seven weeks' war); but its importance was due to the fact that it became a symbol of the settlement of 1919 and it was hoped it would, with the western allies prove a bulwark of Slavdom against the Teutons. The bulwark was only a bulrush, a broken reed.

Europe is again faced by the Germany of Bismarck, and while Czechoslovakia is gone as a buttress against the Teutons, Russia under a reasonable government may yet recover lost ground and be again the head of a Slav league. The experience of Europe in the past has been that if Germany and Russia come to an understanding, Poland is likely to be partitioned again as in 1772, 1793 and 1813.

• The Hobo Business Looks Up

THE HOBO'S LOT is not a strenuous one. So easy, in fact, railroad police in Albany are complaining about the increasing demands upon their services by those who ride the rods. In Amsterdam, N.Y., the other day, says the Christian Science Monitor, shortly after a transient had been untangled from the rods of the night freight and hustled up to the local hoosegow, came this urgent telegram to Capt. Joseph B. Boyle of the New York Central Railroad Police: "Train rider arrested here says baggage still on train. Please meet train and recover it."

Judging by Captain Boyle's indignant outburst, the well-heeled hobo has only to make his wishes known and a uniformed attendant will make arrangements for the luggage. "It's the new vogue," the irate official finds. "Most of the 'boes we've encountered lately have their belongings with them. We got a fellow the other night with food as well as blankets in his baggage."

Could anything be more expressive of the subtle amenities which have come to mark the manners of the modern mendicant? Food and blankets, of all things! What will they want next—soap and towel with their finger bowls? Gone is the day when a tramp took to the road—or the rods—with his wardrobe compressed within the knotted span of a red bandana dangling from a stick slung on tired shoulders. No longer does the hobo humble himself before the farmhouse door to the threadbare tune of: "Please ma'am, may I have a cup of cold water? I'm so hungry, I don't know where I'm going to spend the night." Probably his hints are now more concerned with the merits of the mattress, and whether there's a radio in the room.

MR. KING'S HOUSE.

(Windsor Daily Star)

PRIME MINISTER KING owns Laurier House in Ottawa. Many people think that Laurier House belongs to the Liberal party and is to be the official residence in Ottawa of the leader of the Liberals.

The best explanation of the status of Laurier House comes from none other than Mr. King himself, who says: "Laurier House was given originally to Lady Laurier. It belonged to her, not to Sir Wilfrid. It was left to me by Lady Laurier in her will. I paid the succession duties at the time I became the owner of the house, which I named Laurier House, and, as the owner, have paid taxes ever since."

That should make it clear to anyone who may have wondered just who owns Laurier House in Ottawa.

SOCIALISTS IN A HURRY.

(Lethbridge Herald)

GEORGE WILLIAMS, C. C. F. leader in Saskatchewan, is going about the country preaching socialism but condemning communism. Most people are of the opinion that communists are merely socialists in a hurry—in so much of a hurry that they would cut the heads off all opposed to the socialist plan. The Soviet purge is proof of this fact. Mr. Williams very well knows that socialism cannot be brought about without taking away the liberties of the people, and that the communists are merely a little bit more impatient than Mr. Williams and Mr. Irvine and their socialist friends.

INVITING TROUBLE.

(Story City (Iowa) Herald)

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is spending every year money that not only has not been earned, but money that is not now in existence. All history shows that this sort of spending, if long persisted in, brings trouble to individuals as well as nations. With this difference: when the individual goes bust the consequences are largely local, but when the Government gets beyond its depth in the financial mire it may rip the civic order to smithereens. In other nations the clique that has control of the army usually ends up with the reins of government.

MISAPPREHENSION.

THIS STORY comes from the British Legion Journal:—The Commanding Officer of a new battalion, raised in 1916, quickly gained the high esteem of his N.C.O.s by his ability to handle any situation that arose. So the Sergeant-Major, who had been a Corporal about three months before and was now acting as Adjutant, was all attention when the C.O. gave him some verbal orders to issue on the following day.

"There will be an eclipse of the sun tomorrow," said the C.O. "I want the battalion formed up on the parade ground, and I will explain it. If the sky is cloudy, have the men assembled in the mess hall instead."

That evening the following order appeared on the bulletin board:

"Tomorrow morning there will be an eclipse of the sun. The battalion will assemble on the parade ground at 10 o'c., where the Commanding Officer will personally supervise the eclipse. If the sky is cloudy, the eclipse will take place in the mess hall."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself.—John v, 24-26.

✧ ✧ ✧

And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.—I John v, 11-13.

SECOND NATURE.

(Christian Advocate)

TWO FRIENDS sat on the sea sands at Long Beach watching the bathers. There was one among the latter who won their admiration by his expertness.

This person looked like an Indian. He dived beautifully and swam like a swan. But where he particularly shone was at treading water. Holding his head and shoulders above the surface he literally walked back and forth through the surf.

"Wonder, isn't he?" stated the first spectator.

"It doesn't surprise me," said the second. "He's only doing what you'd expect him to do. He used to be a letter carrier in Venice."

German Relief Paid Spies Court Is Told

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 — (CP) — A spy who turned informer and testified that Germany financed espionage activities in the United States by "borrowing" from the German Winter Relief Funds, resumed in Federal Court today a bizarre tale of plot and counterplot.

This disclosure was the latest of many startling "revelations" by the United States Government's star witness, Guenther Rumrich, 32, in week-long testimony intended to implicate a woman and two men now on trial as agents of a German spy network.

Rumrich, who has confessed abortive attemps to obtain vital United States military defence secrets for sale to Germany, said yesterday that Karl Schlueter, alleged "contact" man for the ring, had told him of the German Government's "borrowings" to finance its spying.

He said under cross-examination that this was just one of the things Schlueter told him which he considered "rather unusual for a German to mention."

Rifled Mail Pouches

Earlier in the trial Rumrich testified that Schlueter, who fled to Germany during the federal investigation in which he and 17 other persons, including three high officials of the German war ministry, were indicted, had boasted of rifling United States mail pouches aboard the German line Europa.

Responsible German quarters, although making no mention of the current spy trial, denied the allegation last night and said that "measures to safeguard the post are so exhaustive that illegal opening of the mail pouches is out of the question."

Rumrich struck a new high note by describing a fantastic "20-years-after" scheme to avenge Germany for America's entry into the Great War.

He said that his former friend, Erich Glaser, 28, one of the three on trial, agreed to join the spy plot because it would be "a fine chance to get even" with America for wartime bombings and "because America rang the death knell for us (in Germany) after years of fighting."

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Oh!" said Knarf. "So you're the queen?"

"Yes, indeed," the queen answered. "And you may consider yourself very lucky. There aren't many people who can come into my palace and look at me."

The queen was right. She wasn't an ordinary queen, you see. She was the queen of the ants and she lived in an ant-hill near the stone wall at the back of the garden.

"I'm very glad you've let me come in and talk to you," he said to her. She was sitting on the ground in her large room in the middle of the ant-hill.

"And I'm glad to talk to you."

"And I'm glad to talk to you," she answered. "There are a few things I'd like to say to you. Do you live in the big house at the other end of the garden?"

Hasn't Seen Them.

"Yes. I live there with the children and their mother and father. Have you ever seen the children? They often play here in the garden, just outside your palace door."

"I've never seen them myself," the queen said. "I hardly ever leave my room. But the rest of our family have seen them. I hear those children are enormous."

Knarf laughed. "They're not really so big. They only seem big because all you ants are so small."

"Well! I don't think I like them so much. They never take much care when they're walking. They're as likely to step on one of us as not. I don't suppose they'd like it if we stepped on them!"

"No, they wouldn't like it at all."

"And why do they poke sticks in ant-hills? Why! the other afternoon I was frightened half to death when a great stick came down through the roof. I guess they think it's a lot of fun. Well, it isn't fun for us."

"That's right. They ought to know better."

"Tell them we mean no one any harm. We go about our work, mind our own business and we always keep busy. Just tell those children to watch us for a little while. They'll see how industrious we are. They can learn a mighty good lesson from us."

And Knarf answered that he was sure they could. And I do think you really ought to watch the ants at work the very next time you're out in a garden.

Arabs Searched By Tommies

This tableau is an every day sight throughout the Holy Land as the British attempt to quell the Arab uprising by depriving the Arabs of the so-called sinews of war. Every Arab inhabitant—which the British can round up—must undergo a thorough search for concealed weapons. These picturesque travellers in the Holy Land are having their burnooses probed before historic David's Castle in Bethlehem.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—Your article about getting the children to leave the home nest gets a shout of praise from me, but how to do it? I married a widower with three nearly grown children. I was good to them and they love me. So well they are not willing to leave Mother and her cooking. The two girls married soon after leaving college and they chose fine, sensible, well-educated young men, but was it easy to get them out of the house? I should say not. They never would have gone if I had not kept moving into smaller and smaller apartments. Because they can't come home, where there is no room for them, they have settled down to a salutary routine of cooking and housekeeping and baby-rearing. Now the problem is the boy. He is now 20. Won't go to school. Won't work. Hates the slightest physical or mental exertion. Sits at home and does nothing but play solitaire and read newspapers and detective stories and smoke. How can I get him on his way out of the nest in a manner beneficial to him? MRS. B.

ANSWER:

Get the boy a job and tell him that henceforth he is his own meal ticket, and that if he wants to eat he will have to work. Then go to live for the time being in one room in a hotel so there will be no place for him. Evidently he is one of the birds that will never leave the warm home nest of his own accord. He will not only have to be pushed out of it, but you also will have to destroy the nest so he cannot return to it.

There is no problem that parents have to face that is more difficult than that of what to do with their lazy, purposeless children who settle down on mother and father to be supported, and who refuse to make the slightest effort to provide for themselves. It is a problem so complicated with a false idea of parental duty, and so mixed up with maudlin affection, that most fathers and mothers lack the nerve and backbone to solve it in the only rational way. Which is by turning the youngsters out on their own and locking the door behind them.

But few parents have the hardihood to apply such a drastic remedy, although they know it is the only cure. They can't bear to think that Mamie may be having to cook a poor meal over a gas jet, or Sammy may have no nice, comfortable bed to sleep in, so they let Mamie and Sammy sit around idle year after year, with nothing to do but play golf or pool or follow some sort of temperamental occupation which brings in no pay envelope.

All of us know dozens of cases like these. We know plenty of homes in which there are husky young men and women with plenty of intelligence and plenty of energy in amusing themselves, who positively refuse to leave home long years after they should have been out of it and about their own business. Sometimes they stay until they are old birds themselves, and father and mother have to scratch around and feed them as long as they live, and they die wondering what will become of poor, middle-aged Mamie and Sammy.

This tenderness on the parents' part that encourages normally healthy and sensible youngsters in a perpetual babyhood does as much harm as any other one thing in the world. It ruins its thousands of men and women who should be braced up instead of coddled, and who only need some compelling necessity to make them do their duty in the world. It is the knowledge that there is always home to stay in and three square meals a day that is responsible for nine-tenths of the no-account loafers that encumber the earth.

It is the boys and girls who know that they can always go back home and be taken care of who are the quitters and shirkers, who throw up a job the minute it gets to be hard sledding and there are disagreeable bosses to be contended with. The boys and girls who have no one but themselves to depend on, nowhere to go but the room their labor pays for, nothing to eat but what they earn, are the ones who stick to their work and put their hearts and backs in it until they win out to success.

So the parents who are afflicted with parasitic children who refuse to take an education or hold on to any job do their youngsters the greatest kindness they can possibly perform when they follow the example of the birds and push them out of the home nest and make them try their own wings.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married six years and have a daughter 2 years old. My husband is good to me and gives me plenty of money but he stays out two or three nights each week all night. I feel that I cannot go on staying alone nights, as I am very nervous, and the doctor warns me that I am on the verge of a nervous breakdown. My husband declares he loves me and is always saying what a sweet disposition I have, and he does not want me to get a divorce, but he will not stay at home. Can you suggest something for me to do?

DESPERATE.

ANSWER:

I do not know of any other one thing in the world that would be such a benefaction to my sex and turn so much sorrow into rejoicing as a good, reliable recipe for keeping wandering husbands at home. But so far no Solomon has yet arisen who has had wisdom enough to turn the trick.

The old wiseacres used to say, "Make everything pleasant for your husband at home. Give him the pleasures at home that he seeks abroad," but all such advice is just bunkum. Undoubtedly, a man who has a nice, pleasant, cheerful home, with a jolly little wife who sets a good table, is less likely to leave his own fireside than one who has a nagging wife. But the husband who has an itching foot will go, no matter what his home environment, and no wifely arts will stop him.

In your particular case I should say that the only thing to do would be to break up the home in which he will not stay and go to live in some pleasant boarding house or hotel, where you will at least have protection and good company, so that you will not have lonely evenings in which to brood over your wrongs. DOROTHY DIX.

AFRAID TO MARRY

CHAPTER 30

THE BOLANDS had a dog, a long-haired Dachshound, which belonged to Abbey. Now and then the dog was permitted in the house but no one paid much attention to him. Judy remembered him that Christmas morning, and asked the stable man if she might take him for a walk.

Ronald, amused, liking dogs, seconded the motion.

They walked through the white woods. Sometimes they were together. More often single file with the dog going ahead, grateful for attention. They said little. Maybe Ronald's hand helped Judy over a fallen log. Maybe he laughed as she cleared it of her own volition.

They sat on a stile and talked while the clear blue air grew darker with the swift coming of December night.

Ronald mentioned a case which he must try, one which had been Page One news for weeks. He went into the intricacies of law, and Judy, understanding little of it, listened eagerly, eyes shining. He asked her advice about some draperies he was choosing for the modest apartment into which he was moving. He mentioned a play he had seen, a book he had read.

Finally, he broke off to say: "Judy, it rests me to talk to you. You're the best listener I've ever found."

"Is that a compliment?"

"Decidedly! Most women want to tell you how they have shone, where they have been. They don't understand that a man pre-supposes that. He wants an audience."

(Sit in the gallery and applaud, Judy. He'll talk a while longer then!)

But there was one question she wanted to ask, and presently she did: "Ronald, where did your people hail from? How did they get into the mountains?"

He laughed. "So that puzzles you, too? They were Scotch-Irish. Somewhere around 1600, when a good king, James, sat on the English throne, he issued a command that the weavers of his Kingdom had to bear heavy taxation unless they lived in merrie England. So the Scotch-Irish had to migrate—couldn't live on what was left when James had passed the crown for the income tax.

"My great grandfather—remove him enough times to get the lineage clear—was the younger son of an earl. He had gone into business—been almost ostracized because of it—so he came to America with the others. And they crossed to the mountains. His strain married and well, we're mountaineers, that's all."

For no accountable reason Judy felt better. She called herself a snob for rejoicing that Ronald had known breeding and prestige somewhere in his lineage. After all, the native Scotch-Irish people were as clean, as fine, as morally sound as any group that ever had taken ship to the brave new world.

"Let's not go home for a long time." Ronald was saying with the gay independence of a small boy. "I'm hungry. Could you eat dinner?"

They found a small tea room in the heart of the white forest, and the proprietor offered to have his wife prepare dinner since tea and toast did not satisfy the two hungry callers.

There was a slice of ham, a golden brown color. There were hot biscuits and honey, home fried potatoes cottage cheese, a salad of crisp lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers, and a mince pie for dessert. The dog fed lavishly, too.

In the moonlight they started to retrace their path, but the forest was dark and they had to hunt the main road. They were trudging along, humming a snatch of one carol, now another, when a car drew up.

Abbey's voice called: "Say, you two wanderers! How about a lift?"

"It would be great!" Ronald answered.

"I'd adore it," sang Judy, wondering if it were truth or kindness that prompted Ronald's answer. "Can you take your magnificient pet?"

Already the chauffeur had opened the door, however, so the dog could ride with him.

The count was in the car. He said little. Abbey talked constantly her voice a provocative, lilting stream of velvet words. In some way she pulled her tones down an octave, made them low. Much later in the evening, when the household was assembled downstairs, yawning, bored, trying to chatter over unimportant events, Count Phillippe sought out Judy.

"You're wholesome. I don't need to pretend. I'm taking the 11:10 to the city for a few days."

"Yes?" Why did he tell her?

"Abbey and I have quarreled. Oh, not seriously. She thinks so though. I'll stay away until she relents. Then I'll be back.

"If she doesn't relent?"

"One always takes that chance If not—" He shrugged his shoulders.

"But its almost time for the wedding!" Had the two principals quarrelled over Ronald—Ronald who had been so young and happy in the white woods today?

"That's why she'll come to terms! I don't like having my affianced wife conducting secrets with young attorneys. I told her so. And she denied it. After the wedding that is different! You are suggesting aren't you, Miss Rogers, that I fear there wil be no wedding? I fear nothing of the sort!"

"But you can't—I mean you are perfectly disgusting. . . ." Judy was floundering in her words when Abbey, icy-eyed, velvet-voiced, came along. She said nothing but her chin went a little higher. Judy felt a pang of sympathy for her, another pang of contempt.

It was two days later that Abbey announced that her dog was missing. Since Abbey had paid such little attention to the animal, Judy was amused at her sudden concern. She had little time to think about it. Marie, the maid,who been ill, returned and Coralee had been dismissed. She told Judy before leaving that she would return to Danceland.

"I'll get you a job as soon as I get one myself," Judy promised. "I want to meet your family, too." She hated to see the girl leave. In some strange way she bound her to the outside world

Late the next day Abbey made her astounding declaration. She did it in the presence of her father, the chauffeur, the gardener, the assistant gardener, the housekeeper—Judy did not look beyond them. Everyone was here.

"I've had detectives tracing Boris"—Boris was the dog—"And we have found him."

"Oh, I'm glad!" breathed Judy, whole-heartedly.

The interruption was ignored. "He had been taken from home and sold, but we found out through advertising and investigation where he was. I have reason to believe that the party who stole him is in my employ. The dog fancier, who bought him said a girl brought him She had his license with her."

There was a low hum of conversation. Abbey ignored it, her brows wide and serene, her voice breaking a little.

"I'm so sorry, but I have every reason to believe it was—it was.... If that person will speak up, we'll let the matter drop."

There was silence.

Then Abbey turned to Judy: "Miss Rogers, did you sell my dog?"

"I sell your dog?"

If Abbey had asked Judy if she had confiscated the Hope diamond, ordered the sun to turn purple, or decided to walk on her head through Times squares, she could not have been more amazed. Then anger asserted itself, tinged with contemptuous amusment. "Of course I didn't sell Boris! It would be contemptible! And I think I deserve an an apology."

"You may have one—when we know the truth. You are dismissed."

Court adjourned. The seed of suspicion planted in every mind. If she left, it would be taken as a sign of guilt. But how could she stay with doubt watching her from every pair of eyes?

Mr. Boland interrupted: "Abbey, you can't mean that! I beg your pardon most humbly, Miss Rogers!"

Exciting to Tell Fortunes With Cards

Make a Hit with Your Friends

Everybody's interested as you tell Dot's fortune. "A telegram," you say, reading the Three of Diamonds. "Perhaps it's an invitation to an out-of-town party," you go on, as the Nine of Clubs and Six of Hearts pop up.

The Jack of Clubs indicates that Dot is to have a new beau. The Four of Diamonds predicts that she's going smooth sailing. "There's trouble ahead," says the Five of Spades. But the Nine of Hearts indicates she'll have her wish anyhow.

If you're looking for something different, try the old Romany method. You shuffle and cut the cards into three stacks, laying them out horseshoe fashion.

Or learn the Magical Method of Sevens to make the cards reveal strange fortunes.

Will wishes come true? What do the face cards tell about your future? Is success coming your way? Our 32-page booket gives meaning of every card in the deck. What your horoscope reveals. Tea leaf fortunes. Fortune games for parties.

Deal With Ford Would Regain Martin Power

DETROIT, Oct. 25—(AP).—United States Labor circles speculated to-day on what the future may hold for Homer Martin, the militant president of the United Automobile Workers.

Linked closely with this was another question: What was behind Martin's call on the top executives of the Ford Motor Company a fortnight ago?

Factionalism still exists in the big committee for Industrial Organization Union, desoite C.I.O. intervention to squelch it, some sources said, and there was a feeling that November may be a crucial month for the former clergyman who became a Labor leader.

These observers pointed to the meeting of the U.A.W. international executive board opening in Washington November 1, and the first convention of the C.I.O. in Pittsburgh Nov. 15, suggestion that one of these may bring a crisis for Martin.

Martin's control of the executive board faded when it accepted the C.I.O.'s terms for reinstating high U.A.W. officials Martin had had removed.

Close followers of the situation said they expect Martin to rely on the rank and file of the union for support if the board should act against him.

400,000 Behind Him

Martin will head a delegation to the C.I.O. convention representing a union which claims 400,000 members, making it one of the strongest groups at that assembly.

Rumors that the U.A.W. board might possibly start impeachment proceedings against Martin have been offset by others that the C.I.O. is opposed to his removal.

The reasons advanced for the C.I.O.'s purported attitude are that the C.I.O. feared Martin's departure would split the concerns which have U.A.W. contracts. Their executives are said to like and respect Martin, a factor strengthening his position with the unions.

The Ford company is the only major automobile producer which has no U.A.W. contract. Martin's call on Henry and Edsel Ford and their personnel director, Harry Bennett, started a number of rumors.

One of these, the Detroit News said, was that "Ford might be considering a sudden change of policy which might lead him to use Martin against John L. Lewis, C.I.O. head, and reach some sort of an understanding with the U.A.W." The News quoted unidentified union authorities saying "such an agreement, if reached, would probably dwarf all other U.A.W. contracts and restore Martin's prestige."

Bethany A.Y.P.A. Has Amateur Night

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Oct. 25:—The members of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A., Manvers, met for their regular semi-weekly meeting on Wednesday at the rectory.

The new officers for the year conducted for the first time with president Bob Reid in the chair, and Robert Sisson at the piano.

The major item of business was the forming of plans for attending the annual district conference in session last week at Peterborough.

The program was in the nature of an amateur night, Rev. A. R. Holden in his most genial manner, by special request of the president, acted as chairman. The first number was a reading by Harold Page, entitled "Our Worthy Heroes"; piano solo, Ben Page; duet, Marjory Page and Vera Strachan "Old Apple Tree"; recitation by Muriel Hannah, "The Usual Way"; full chorus, with Ben Page accompanist, "When I Grow too Old to Dream"; duet, piano and trumpet, by Ben Page and Robert Sisson; duet by Gordon Smth and Robert Sisson, violin and piano accompaniment; contest prepared by the president, the highest number of words written from letters in "Amateur Night". Prize won by Marjory and Harold Page, totalling 62 words.

The hostess served a delicious hot supper of weiners and buttered rolls, cakes and coffee and a very social time was spent over the refreshment table. Robert Sisson invited the young people to meet at his home for the next session of A.Y.P.A. on November 2.

JAMES HENRY R. CARL

The death of James Henry R. Carl of Millbrook occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Monday evening after an illness that had lasted for six years. He was thirty-five years old.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Carl of Fraserville, was a member of the Millbrook United Church and of L.O.L. 46, Fraserville.

Surviving besides his wife and parents are two sons, Reginald and Arthur, and two daughters June and Betty, all at home; three sisters, Mrs. James R. Jackson of Otonabee, Mrs. Delbert Hickson of Reaboro, and Mrs. Ernest Moore of Bailleboro; and two brothers. Earl of Peterborough and Clifton of Fraserville.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Home of D. Belleghem and Sons 190 Hunter street, Rev. A. L. Sisco of Millbrook United Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. MARY JANE GAYNOR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BALLYDUFF, Oct. 25.—An aged and highly respected citizen of Manvers passed away on Thursday in the person of the late Mrs. John Gaynor at the home of her son, Wilbur Gaynor, near Ballyduff, where she has lived for the past five years.

She was eighty-six years of age and had spent the last twenty-six months of her life confined to bed. Being a daughter in a large family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lathengue, pioneer settlers in the Ballyduff community, she was well known in Manvers, where she lived her entire life. Her husband, the late John Gaynor, predeceased his wife about twenty years ago. To their union was born one son, Wilbur.

Brothers of Mrs. Gayhor were: William Lathangue, John Lathangue, David and Andrew Lathangue. Sisters were: Mrs. John Parker, Ballyduff; Mrs. Henry Parker, Lindsay; Mrs. Joe Holmes, Ballyduff; Mrs. William Styles, Cameron.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon and a large assemblage gathered to pay a last tribute of respect. A brief service was conducted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gaynor, who recently retired from farm work.

The funeral cortege then proceeded to Ballyduff Presbyterian Church for a public service. Rev. V. Walker, pastor of the church, was in charge of both services. Mr. Percy Preston sang feelingly, "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye." A profusion of beautiful flowers surrounded the casket, which was conveyed later to the nearby cemetery for interment beside her late husband.

The pallbearers were nephews, including Norman and Melville Lathangue, William and Eddie Lathangue, Herbert Holmes and Gordon Holmes.

MRS. MARGARET PHILP

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Oct. 25—Funeral service for the late Mrs. Margaret Philp was held at the residence of J. C. Dixon Friday afternoon.

After a very brief illness Mrs. Philp passed away on Wednesday, October 19.

She was well known for her patience and kindness and her loss will be keenly felt by all her friends. She is mourned by one sister, Mrs. J. C. Dixon, Warkworth and three brothers, Charles Moffit, Brantford, and Mate of Lorain, Ohio, Oscar of Cobourg.

Darius G. Hall Of Harvey Dies Suddenly

Oldest member of Harvey township council in point of service, Darius Godfrey Hall of Lakehurst, died very suddenly at his home yesterday. He was in his 58th year.

Mr. Hall had been a member of the council for the past 15 years, was still in office at the time of his death. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Hall of Galway township, and had lived in Peterborough county all his life. A member of no fraternal organizations, he made farming and municipal affairs the chief interests of his life outside his family interests. He was a member of the Anglican church.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Isarah Irwin; three sons, John of Innerkip, Ontario, Charles and Henry at home; five daughters, Mrs. Winston Northey of Lakehurst, Ruth, Elva, Lois and Margaret, all at home; one sister, Mrs. Emma Aldred; and one brother, Wilfred Hall.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence on Lot 9, Concession 15, Harvey township, with interment at Lakehurst cemetery.

Four Appeals Heard On Assessments

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 25.—The Court of Revision adjourned until Nov. 9th, after hearing representations from four owners or their agents at the sitting held in the council chambers on Monday evening. Reeve C. H. Calver was chairman of the court which included councillors Dorie, Donald, Battisby and Locke. Only one case, that of the Campbellford Cloth Co. Ltd., received final dispension when through their representative, J. H. Cunningham they asked that their assessment remain the same as last year, $96,000.00. John O'Sullivan made representations to the court on two properties. The first, a house and lot on Queen street, and second the building formerly occupied by the Weston Shoe Company. The only other request for revision was made by Charles A. Mills, Sebastopol street. Each of the properties in question will be visited by the court in a body on Thursday afternoon and their decision will be given at the adjourned meeting on Nov. 9th.

Pole Friendship

Never Much Love

These events represented a turnover in sentiment, for despite the ostensibly friendly atmosphere of the past few years ,there really never has been any love lost between the Germans and the Poles. There is a history of centuries of conflict between the two peoples, and the Poles decline to forget a lot of things, including the three years of German occupation during the Great War.

The Polish turn-away from France started in 1933 when Marshal Pilsudski, the benevolent dictator, is said to have advised his friends, the French, to wage a preventive war against Germany, as they would have to do so eventually. When France rejected the idea Pilsudski, foreseeing the collapse of French influence in this part of the world, turned to Germany. The following year a non-aggression pact was signed.

Hitler always has spoken warmly of Pilsudski, and with good reasons. It is said that it was the great Pole who learned through his secret service of the proposed coup against the Fuehrer in 1934 and warned the latter.

The historic Nazi purge followed.

Relations between the two countries were good until Pilsudski died in 1935. After that there was some rocky going, due largely to Nazi agitation in Danzig. However, in November of last year Berlin and Warsaw again got together in a pact under which it was agreed that there should be an improvement in the treatment of the German minority in Poland, of the Polish minority in Germany.

Now the Munich conference has thrown up another Polish wave of sentiment in favor of Germany. The Franco-Polish defensive alliance still exists, but many responsible Poles express the view that it is just so much paper.

From the neighboring sections of the city loud detonations began to be heard. Valuable properties were being blown up to prevent them from being of any use to the conquerors.

The decision against defending Hankow also meant the Chinese lines would be thrown back a considerable distance and the Japanese might not push farther inland but first consolidate their gains around Hankow. This development would mean at least momentary peace.

Lieut.-General Robert Haining, commander of the British forces in Palestine and trans-Jordan, issued special warnings throughout the country that any person planning to travel by rail, automobile or otherwise must obtain a special military pass.

C Company Of Midland Regiment Forms Social Club In Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 25. — Officers and N.C.O.'s of "C" Company, Midland Regiment, met in the Millbrook Armories this week for the purpose of forming a social club in the interests of the men of "C" Company.

The following officers were elected, with Lieutenant W. R. Howard, 2nd in command "C" Company, occupying the chair.

Hon. President, Lieut.-Col. A. H. Bounsall, Midland Regt.; Hon. Vice-President, Captain P. J. Bigelow, O.C. "C" Company; President, C. S.M. J .T. Deyell; Vice-President, R. S.M. W. M. Theobald, M.M.; Secretary-Treasurer, Lieutenant W. R. Howard; Executive Committee, Sergeant R. G. Theobald, Sergeant Owen McCarthy, Private E. S. Edworthy.

It is the intention of the newly-formed club to furnish and decorate a room in the armories which will be for the use of its members.

McKnight Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Tupper street, celebrated the 27th anniversary of their wedding this week by entertaining twelve guests with an evening of euchre. First prizes were won by Mrs. F. J. Smith and Mr. W. McCamus, consolation prize going to Mrs. James Might and Mr. W. Barranger.

The gathering, arranged by the hostess, turned into a very pleasant surprise party when Mrs. Smith read an appropriate address, following which Miss M. E. eHtherington presented Mrs. McKnight with a handsome silk umbrella. Dainty luncheon served by the host and hostess culminated a memorable evening.

Fall Thankoffering.

Mrs. A. Coyte was hostess on Wednesday afternoon to the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian church, who motored to her country home for their Fall Thankoffering meeting. The chair was taken by the vice-president, Mrs. H. Seaton, in the absence of Mrs. S. E. Eakins, who read a portion of Psalm 103 as the call to worship. Assisting in the devotions were Mrs. J. R. Thompson and Rev. H .R. Williams.

Following the topic on "Thanksgiving" a splendid address was contributed by Rev. H. R. Williams, who took the Pslam, "O Give Thanks Unto the Lord" as his theme.

A verse of Scripture was used by the ladies in answer to the roll call. The question, "What shall we render unto God for all His Benefits towards us," was read by Mrs. Seaton, after which the following gave their answers in brief summaries: First, our service, by Miss Ruth Thorndyke; second, our possessions, by Mrs. H. Ball; third, our thanksgiving, Mrs. J. R. Thompson; fourth, our prayers, Rev. H. R. Williams

Miss Agnes Johnston, the treasurer, gathered the special Thank offering envelopes with a special hymn for dedicating the offering being sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

Discussion centered over the quilting which was arranged for a date early in November.

On motion of Mrs. H. R. Williams and Mrs. A. Coyte plans for the hostes tea will be completed November 18 at the Manse at 7.30 p. m. with Mrs. Williams in charge. Benediction pronounced by their pastor concluded the gathering, with interest centring around the talent table before they departed for their home.

Timmins Council Of '38 Sworn In Today

EXPERIENCE has taught me that dollars pay big dividends in increased sales when invested in consistent advertising in the local daily newspaper.

I believe that subscribers to our local daily have learned to look for my regular advertisements and to read them with the same interest as the local news, because my advertisements are news of the products on sale.

A close check has shown me that there is a definite increase in my sales of a nationally advertised product when the manufacturer advertises it in the local daily.

The local daily brings home my advertisement and the manufacturer's advertisement. It locates my store as the most convenient place for local consumers to obtain the articles advertised and makes it easier for the customer to buy.

No other form of advertising is so helpful to retail selling—so vital in completing the sale of a national product to a local consumer.

BEVERLY HILLS.—Trapped by fire on the second floor of his pretentious home here, Lyle Talbot, handsome leading man of the films, and his house guest, Franklin Parker, also an actor, leaped to safety early to-day. They suffered serious burns.

500 Oddfellows Attend Lindsay Dinner

Odd Fellows and their wives from seven districts in Ontario attended a testimonial dinner in the Lindsay Armouries last night in honor of Dr. G. S. R. Hall of Little Britain, who was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. at the annual meeting this past summer.

Upwards of five hundred sat in to the banquet and later enjoyed euchre and dancing, and the lodges of the Kawartha district who had charge of the affair did a very commendable job of entertaining.

Crown Attorney E. J. Anderson, K.C., P.G.M., of Lindsay, occupied the chair and tendered a cordial welcome to the many visitors. Dr. Williams of Toronto, P.G.M., presented Dr. Hall with a filing cabinet on behalf of the assembled delegates and William Brooks, Grand Secretary of Toronto presented Mrs. Hall with a large bouquet of roses.

Lauded Chamberlain.

Many Grand Lodge Officers sat at the head table and the member of the Sovereign Lodge who attended, James Powley, P.G. Sire of Toronto introduced the chief speaker of the evening, Albert L. Bruner, P.G.M. of Ruthven, Essex County. Mr. Bruner dealt with the recent crisis and the conditions in Europe at the present time, and in the course of his remarks lauded Premier Chamberlain for the manner in which he handled the situation.

Lt. Col. Moore, one time mayor of Lindsay brought greetings from the Kiwanis Clubs of Eastern Canada, and Miss Violet Pierce, Grand Secretary of the Rebekahs, spoke on behalf of that branch of the Order. Grand Warden C. M. Iredale of Brockville and J. M. Parker, D.G.M., Niagara Falls, also spoke briefly. Alex. N. Sage, D.D.G.M., voiced the good wishes of the Odd Fellows from the Peterborough district. Members attended from the following districts: Markham, Madoc, Port Hope, Durham, Ontario, Beaverton, and Kawartha, and more than fifty members and their wives from the Peterborough district motored to Lindsay for the event.

An unusual feature of the affair was the fact that Dr. Hall's mother and father were also guests at the dinner.

Reckless Driver Fined $10

Judgment was given in police court this morning in the charge against Michael Murray of reckless driving on June 26. The charge arose out of an accident on the Lakefield road and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., registered a conviction against the accused. In doing so he imposed a fine of $10 and $10.50 costs.

Murray is facing trial at the December assizes on a charge of drunken driving originating from the same accident and in giving judgment this morning Magistrate Langley stated that in setting a penalty in the reckless driving case, he had not considered Murray's condition as he was to be tried on that point later on.

He was satisfied, he said, from the evidence adduced that Murray had been guilty of reckless and negligent driving, declaring that the accused had stated that he had been blinded by the lights of an automobile proceeding in the opposite direction and that after that he had been driving blind. That in combination with the fact that he was on the wrong side of the road when the accident happened, the Magistrate said, constituted negligence sufficient to justify a conviction.

Hunt Diaper Thief

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 25—(CP)—Police are looking for a suspect in three-cornered pants on whom to pin the guilt as an accessory in their latest puzzle—the "diaper case." Wesley Underhill of Petersburg reported the theft. He said 16 pairs of diapers and three baby dresses were taken from his automobile.

Miss MacVannel Dies At St. Mary's

Hundreds of Public school teachers throughout the province learned with regret of the death of one of their former teachers, Miss Elizabeth MacVannel, who had been on the staff of the Peterborough Normal School from 1917 until August of this year.

Miss MacVannel was dean of women for many years and was instructor in home economics. Ill-health forced her to retire this year and she returned to her home at St. Mary's, where her death occurred on Sunday evening.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Charles Bowden, of Toronto, and three brothers, Douglas MacVannel, of London; Alex. MacVannel, of Ottawa, and Duncan MacVannel, of St. Mary's. Her funeral will be held on Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the family home in St. Mary's South, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

"Miss MacVannel had been long associated with the Peterborough Normal School as dean of women and teacher of home economics," said Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the school. "In her capacity as dean she was in a position to influence the students. Many of them look to their period at the Normal School as one of the most important in their lives. She was always devoted to the students, and it was this unselfish devotion which impaired her health and made it necessary for her to retire from active work.

"The staff and former students know how much she contributed to the well being of the school and all regret to learn of her death."

Nussey Is Charged With Having Liquor

Judgment was reserved by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning in a charge against Arnold Nussey of 82 McDonnel street of illegal possession of liquor.

Nussey, who was defended by H. R. Rose of Toronto, had already been acquitted on a charge of illegal sale of liquor and when this new charge was read this morning, Mr. Rose in his behalf made a plea of autre fois acquit, declaring that Nussey had already been tried and acquitted on one charge arising out of the same set of circumstances and therefore could not be put on trial on another charge originating from the same circumstances.

Magistrate Langley, reserving judgment on that point, ordered the case to proceed and evidence was given by four police constables against Nussey. Constables Clark and Sexsmith told of driving up Water street in a police car and of seeing Nussey and a man named O'Toole in a coupe driving south. The latter vehicle had turned on to Brock street and thence to George street where it was stopped by the police. By that time Nussey was not in the car and he was arrested on Brock street, a little later. The officers stated that when they saw him in the coupe he was wearing a uniform cap but when arrested he was bareheaded and the cap was hid under his coat.

Constable John A. Rogers told of driving the car back to the police station and of finding five cases of beer in the rumble seat and Constable Gordon Puffer testified to a statement made by Nussey after his arrest.

There was a long argument as to the admissability of this evidence but it was finally allowed by the Magistrate and Constable Puffer swore that Nussey had admitted the car in which the beer was found was his and that he had been moving the beer from his residence on McDonnel street because his father was coming to visit him and Nussey did not want him to find liquor on the premises.

The officer testified that he had opened a bottle of the beer this morning and he had tasted it and was satisfied it was vendor's beer and was intoxicating.

Two Duck Hunters Are Marooned All Day On Island In Rice Lake

BOB McCLELLAN, King street and J. Chambers, insurance agent of Trenton were marooned practically all day yesterday on an island in Rice Lake.

The two went duck hunting early in the morning and paddled out to the island in a 13 foot canoe. The shooting was good and they garnered a fine bag but early in the day, a strong wind whipped the water into white caps, making it impossible to leave the island. Twice the hunters pushed off from shore in the small canoe but each time, sweeping waves, almost swamped the boat and they quickly returned to the safety of the island. Late yesterday afternoon the wind died down sufficiently to permit a safe return.

Fire Smoulders All Night Around Chimney

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 25.—A fire, which had apparently been smouldering around the chimney all night, broke out at 6.20 o'clock Monday morning at the residence of Miss Anne Finnegan, Glenleg street. The blaze was noticed by a neighbor and was burning fiercely when the brigade arrived. Besides Miss Finnegan, another aged woman resides in the house, and had the fire gained further progress their lives would have been endangered. The firemen worked an hour at the blaze, and it was necessary to break in a portion of the brick walls and the roof in order to subdue the flames.

A former member of Victoria county council as well as a former reeve of Bobcaygeon, in the person of J. J. Devitt, passed away Monday in St. Michael's Hospital. He was well known throughout the district and was prominent in Orange and Masonic circles. He is survived by his wife, five sons and two sisters.

Leonard Hughes, of Kinmount, was brought to the Ross Hospital on the weekend suffering from injuries sustained on the farm of J. Hurst, about four miles east of the village. He was attending one of the horses on the farm when the animal kicked him in the face, which was badly lacerated and torn.

The wedding took place at the Church of Our Lady Help of Christians,, Victoria Road, Monday, of Frances O'Keefe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Keefe, of Lindsay, and Cornelius Collins son of Mr. Timothy Collins and the late Mrs. Collins, of Peterborough. Miss Florence Collins, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Joseph Healey, uncle of the bride, was groomsman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Cleary. Mr. and Mrs. Collins will reside in Peterborough.

Ingles Company To Sue Drew

OTAWA, Oct. 25. — Formal notice under the Libel Act has been served on Colonel George A. Drew, K.C., Toronto; Maclean's Magazine, Toronto; and Napier Moore, Maclean's editor, by the John Inglis Company, Toronto, in connection with Colonel Drew's article on the Bren gun contract in that magazine last September.

Similar notice has been served on the Financial Post, Toronto, which published comment on the Bren contract subsequent to the Maclean's article.

The legal firm of Blake, Lash, Cassels & Anglin, Toronto, acted for the Inglis Company in serving the notices mentioned to protect the company's legal rights should it decide to sue those mentioned for libel.

The libel law requires that formal notice must be served within six weeks of the occurrence of the alleged libel, and thereafter formal court action for libel must be begun within three months. The Inglis Company has until early in January to sue those mentioned.

RUGBY NIGHT WITH KINSMEN

Alex Ponton, coach of Balmy Beach, the team which the Orfuns will meet in Toronto on Saturday, is scheduled to address the Peterborough Kinsmen club on Thursday night. Coach Dick Irwin and several of the executive of the Peterborough club are expected to also attend.

CLOTHESLINE THIEVES

Thieves have been active in the south-end of the city, and this week raided the clothesline at the home of Birdgenaus on Braiwood avenue. They took every item of women's apparel, dresses, slips, underclothing and stockings, but left the men's clothing and other articles on the line.

FLORAL NOTE.

The summer's glory has departed from flower beds fronting the terrace along George street between Dalhousie and Sherbrooke streets, a stretch of main street that was transformed by a splendid show of border flowers and beds that attracted daily attention and approval. It was the result of some person's interest and industry.

SCHOOL OPENS

Queen Elizabeth School, on Barnardo avenue in Smith township opened its doors this week and 65 pupils are registered, with two teachers on the staff. The official opening of the school is scheduled for November 7th when Chief Inspector Greer, Ontario Department of Education, Toronto will be on hand.

TO ATTEND BAZAAR

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion invited last night the council to attend their bazaar in the Legion Hall November 3 and 4. The dates conflict with committee meetings but Mayor Hamilton said one of the evening sessions would be ended in time to look in on the Auxiliary's show, and Aldermen Stocker and Cotton moved that the invitation be accepted.

GIVE A MAN A JOB.

"The city streets are all cluttered with leaves and many a man needs his backyard cleaned up these days," commented Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada to-day. "I have lots of men available for the work at very reasonable rates and they'd be only too glad of jobs. Nothing is too little." He has had some calls for such work, "but I could stand a whole lot more," he said. Very little employment is available for hundreds of men registered with the service, yet they keep calling regularly, anxious for anything that will bring them in a little money.

JUNIOR FARMER JUDGES

At the Northumberland county junior farmer judging competitions the presiding judges included Harry McIntyre of Keene in the horse class and Ed. O'Toole of Peterborough in dairy cattle.

BULB DEMONSTRATION

A demonstration of bulb planting in pots will be given by W. H. Young at a meeting of the Horticultural Society tonight in the offices of Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Department of Agriculture.

PLANNING SPECIAL

The Orfuns Rugby Club is planning to run a special train excursion to Toronto on Saturday for the Peterborough-Balmy Beach game, provided enough fans will go. If sufficient applications are made by nine to-night to the Playmor Sports store or the C.P.R. station, the special will be arranged. It would leave here at nine in the morning and reach Toronto at 10.45 a.m.

CARETAKER PROTESTS.

Leonard Brown, caretaker at the incinerator, made a mild mannered protest to the council last night against the Examiner report of a recent fire which Chief Gimblett said was caused by shaving being left near the furnace. Mr. Brown said he always left the place neat and clean. Alderman McCannan endorsed that statement, and Mayor Hamilton said it was "all right," and further the council was not accountable for the newspaper stories.

LACROSSE DINNER.

"It's the first lacrosse championship Peterborough won in something like fifty years," Alderman Glover commented in a brief discussion on Monday night of plans for the winner the Council is preparing for the Senior B O.L.A. title winners. Some of the members are hesitating about the expense of buying windbreakers or something like that for twenty-eight men. They didn't think the squad was that numerous. The date and other details of the dinner will be announced in a few days.

BELOVED PROFESSOR DEAD.

Peterborough dentists were shocked to learn of the death on Sunday of one of the most beloved professors at the Paculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto, Dr. William George "Pop" Switzer, who passed away at the Private Patients' Pavilion after a lengthy illness. For generations dental students have come to revere "Pop" Switzer, who was known throughout the profession as one of its most able members.

ALL GRADS PLACED

All Peterborough graduates of the government's course in Household Arts have been placed in good positions, according to Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Peterborough branch of the Employment Service of Canada. "Jobs are open to these qualified girls almost immediately after they complete their studies," he said. "Another girl is going to be graduated soon and I hope to be able to place her without difficulty. Her services are still available for some lucky householder, however."

N. PARLIEMENT BEREAVED

Adam Leslie Parliament, 83, father of Nelson Parliament of Ottawa, died on Sunday at his home in the second concession of Amelias-burg township of which he had been a life long resident.

FALSE ALARM RUNG IN

A false alarm, first in several weeks, was rung in at half past eleven last night from a fire box at the corner of McDonnel and Cambridge streets, Fire Chief George Gimblett reported today. "Somebody thought he was being smart, I guess," the Chief said resignedly. Only other call the department had last night was to 82 McDonnel street at 2.15 o'clock in the morning. Fire was reported to be in the attic of the house, but when the department arrived with full equipment they found only the chimney was ablaze.

Material Witness Is Found Missing

"I am forced to ask for an adjournment," said Crown Attorney McElderry when a charge against Mrs. Max Vincent of illegally keeping liquor for sale was called in police court this morning. "There is a material witness missing and the police have been unable to locate him this morning."

H. R. Rose of Toronto, defense counsel objected to the adjournment, claiming that it was inconvenient to the defense and that witnesses present today might not be available at the next hearing.

"You can subpoena them; the police will look after them for you," said the crown attorney.

Magistrate Langley granted a week's adjournment, saying that it was the first adjournment the crown had asked for in this particular case.

Another charge against Mrs. Vincent of illegally selling liquor was also adjourned until next Tuesday.

Plea To Save Barnett Widows "Tepee" Is Carried To White House

Los Angeles, Oct. 25 (AP)

MRS. Anna Laura Barnett's fight to retain the palatial "tepee" left her by Indian Jackson Barnett, was carried to the White House today.

Mindful of apeals by thousands of Los Angeles clubwoman, Governor Frank Merriam telegraphed President Roosevelt to exert his efforts in Mrs. Barnett's behalf "If in your judgment and in the light of human understanding, such action appears justified."

The governor's message explained that the clubwoman, in petitions, had asked the government to "temper" the mandate of a federal court judgment depriving Mrs. Barnett of a colonial mansion on Wilshire Boulevard.

The mansion was one of a number of things that Barnett, a "one-blanket" Indian, bought with his Oklahoma oil royalties after his marriage to Anna Laura.

Upon his death, she fought a losing battle in the courts against a ruling that the marriage was invalid.

Ordered to relinquish the two-storey house to the government, she was granted a 60-day stay by the United States Attorney General, which expired a week ago.

Clubwomen claim Mrs. Barnett was a "faithful wife to the aged Indian for 15 years."

Question Of Enclosed Market Will Be Submitted To Ratepayers New Year's Day

"Are you in favor of an enclosed and sheltered market?"

That question will be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal elections on New Year's Day.

It was proposed Monday night by Alderman Gordon in a resolution, seconded by Alderman McIntyre. Alderman Gordon referred to the editorial in Monday's Examiner which touched upon the importance of the market under favorable weather conditions, and also alluded to the frosty season that is approaching for the week-end produce-vendors.

The council had taken up the question early this year, and had obtained certain information part of which had counselled delay.

The Dominion government had passed legislation providing aid for marketing schemes up to one-third of the cost, and it was expected the Ontario government would also give assistance. "But they haven't gone that far yet," Ald. Gordon said. "If we got a favorable vote by the people we would be in a position to go ahead and get a private bill that let us expropriate the property we need. With all the improved roads leading into Peterborough our market has become an important one, and it is growing. So, an expression of public opinion would be of value to us."

Information Needed

Alderman Glover said the council would have to present helpful information to enable the people to know what they were voting on.

"Yes, they wouldn't endorse a blank cheque," Alderman Gordon said, and intimated that the special marketing committee could get the information required.

"With an outdoor market we lose a lot of business from November until April," he continued. "I have watched the farmers on Saturdays going from the market to clothing stores, groceries and so on. I am convinced it is well worth helping as much as we can."

Just In Preliminary Stage

Alderman Wilson stated that the committee did not proceed beyond a preliminary stage because the question arose as to what assistance the Ontario government would provide, and its proposed legislation had not yet been passed.

In earlier discussion it was suggested that as the market was an outlet for much of the produce of the farmers of Peterborough county and district, some co-operation should be volunteered by them, and that probably the fairest means of making a contribution would be through the county council.

French Pretender

Pictured ABOVE is Prince Henry, 30, Count of Paris, pretender to the extinct French throne, who dashed by plane from Brussels, Belgium, to a Paris suburb, made a plea for restoration of the monarchy as the only means of saving the contry from decay or party dictatorship.

Enter Guilty Plea To Consuming Count

Roly Courneya pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning to illegal consumption of liquor and was fined $15 and $2.50 costs.

Another charge, arising out of the same set of circumstances, of illegal possession was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry stated that he would offer no evidence.

H. R. Rose of Toronto, who defended Courneya urged the minimum penalty declaring that it was Courneya's first offence.

"This charge arose out of the Nussey case," commented Magistrate Langley. "You were lucky that he pleaded guilty," he said to the crown attorney.

Gets 10 Years

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 25.—(CP).—Cliff Montgomery, escaped convict, convicted of rape at the fall assizes, was sentenced to 10 years in Kingston penitentiary by Mr. Justice Charles P. McTague today. Six other charges were set over for hearing at the next assizes.

The 21-year-old convict was accused of attacking the mother of a four-year-old boy in a sectionman's home at Waterfall, four miles from Burwash Reformatory, a few hours after his escape.

Fall Pasturage Best In Years

Warm Autumn weather has put dollars in the pockets of dairymen in this district and been a real boon to every farmer in the district who fast, to give added pasturage on

Farmers claim the pasturage is better this year than it has been in the past thirty years, and cattle are still feeding out of doors, with very little grain feeding necessary. Usually farmers are forced to feed live stock after the first of October, but this year feeding values have been kept down because the quality of the pasturage is such there is ample for the cattle.

There is exceptional growth in the new seedings of clover and in the Warsaw district, it is reported that oats which were shelled by the hail storms in August have sprouted again and are growing farmers had to contend with a poor some farms.

All in all it seems that the farmers and particularly the dairymen are getting the breaks this year. There has been no reduction in milk production. In other years, farmers had to content with a poor hay crop and saw pasture fields burned to a crisp, but this year nature was generous, making the hay crop exceptionally good and the pasturage excellent.

ORFUNS' WIN OVER IMPS SHOCKS GRID EXPERTS OF ONTARIO

Peterborough's Great Victory Draws Many Comments From The Football Writers

Following the local Orfuns' surprise senior rugby win over Sarnia Imperials here Saturday, gridiron experts throughout the province have written numerous comments on the game. Some of them have been clipped from newspaper exchanges which come to The Examiner, and are published below:

Tommy Munns
In Globe and Mail

Peterborough, in beating Sarnia, the O.R.F.U. champions, supplied the real surprise of the season. The voice of Red Foster as he announced the result over the loud-speaker system at the Argo game, sounded as though he were relaying the news with great misgiving, apprehensive lest a correction be required. The crowd greeted the news with startled gasps, fans asking one another if they had heard aright. It was, they maintained, no place for attempted humor.

It was no joke to Sarnia, but it will do the Ontario Union plenty of good. The Orphans, who had been content to trail the field in their first season while building for future years, will be greatly encouraged that their first victory should be over the champions. The result will convince Peterborough fans that they have a team worth supporting and attendances at the remaining home games should show a big increase. It will be a warning to the other teams, too, not to underestimate the Orphans.

Ted Reeve in Telegram

That Peterborough victory, though, stands out as the biggest startle of the season, any season. From what we hear Herb Hendry, Bill Irwin, Joe McNutly and other former Balmies who had played against Sarnia so often, had the Massuci system figured out very smartly. And the rookies on the new entry have not been around senior football long enough to realize haw famous these Imperials happen to be. They climbed all over them, walked on their feet and up their shins and knocked Bummer Stirling about in a most surprising manner. It may have been the old story that you can't out-guess a guy who doesn't know enough about the game to do any guessing. At any rate, it was a grand win for the Peters and Coach Bill Irwin and their season is now a success even if they never get off their five-yard line again.

The standing would now indicate that Sarnia and Montreal will be in the playoffs unless those Peterboroughs have gone completey teched in the head.

J. P. Fitzgerald in Telegram

Nobody wants to throw cold water on the win of Peterborough over the vaunted Sarnia Imperials 3 to 2. Still, any predictor who could call Peterborough on the performances up to this game would have been considered a bit balmy. Figure it out. Sarnia beat Beaches here in a close game, it is true, and managed to stage a late rally to tie Montreal Nationals 12 to 12 at Sarnia. Those two games were evidence that Imperials still ranked in the top flight. Balmy ran over Peterborough 18 to 2, and Montreal did likewise 26 to 6. So that this game at Peterborough was startling in its reversal of form to say the least. All of which may serve as an answer to the gentleman from the East, not Peterborough, who called by telephone some time around 1 o'clock Sunday morning to do some gloating. It scarcely is possible that Sarnia fell to pieces within a week, so one must seek refuge in the thought that Peterborough has come along amazingly.

Fred Jackson in Star

Leaving the rest of the Argo-Ottawa game for the Monday morning quarterbacks what did you think of that Sarnia-Peterborough earthquake?

That 3-2 victory scored by the Petes must go down in the books as one of the biggest upsets of all time . . those of us who saw the Imperials in action against Balmy Beach find it had to figure . . but there it is . . all credit to the so-called Peterborough Orfuns . . if they don't win another game all season their cup should be filled to the overflowing stage right now.

At the same time word came our way from neutral sources just last week not to take the Petes too lightly . . our informant claimed that the "Orfuns" had the makings of a really great line, while Mike Loucks was tipped off as a star footballer . . Loucks was the driving force in the Peterborough attack on Saturday, while the line is credited with holding "Bummer" Stirling and the rest of the Imperial plungers.

Sarnia Observer

Wise men of Peterborough who have watched their team go against Montreal's burly Nationals and Toronto's Bam Bam Beachers repeated the sayings of Montreal's football scribes in Sarnia a week ago. In their two previous games they lost by scores that in no way reflected the trend of play on those particular afternoons.

Both Montreal and Toronto were playing desperate football for from half to three quarters of the games that ended 26-6 and 18-2 respectively. Miscues and early timidity cast the Petes into holes too deep to clamber out in the regulation hour of play.

Bill Irwin, the moustachioed coach of the Petes, has launched a Three-Year Plan. In 1940, Bill says, the first O.R.F.U. championship since 1907 will come to this city which boasts 81 industries and a town clock with a wooden face. Bill may be wrong. If he can keep the teams aggressive fighting pitch up to Saturday's high mark they may upset the apple cart a year or two sooner than he expects.

Right now the Petes have an attack consisting largely of an end run, two plungs, a forward pass and a kick. Outside the kicking most of the offensive arms were fairly futile Saturday.

But the Peterborough ace is a defence that swarms all over th opposition, a driving line that never let the Imperials get set. The Petes beat the Imperial forward wall to the punch most of Saturday afternoon; and no team can do itself credit when pressed back off balance and on its heels.

Niagara Falls Review

Grid forecasters received two setbacks in eastern Canada senior tussles and a third contest also fooled many of the better informed. The weekend's biggest upset occurred at Peterborough where the very despised Orfuns outlasted the mighty Sarnia Imperials, and it will require many more days to clearly impress this score on the minds of rugby experts in big league centres.

Red Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review

Peterborough's senior ruby victory over Sarnia on Saturday again demonstrates that there is no such thing as a "sure thing" in horse racing or football, or any sport. Sarnia's defeat was the most complete upset of the pregame prognostications that we have seen in a decade. There is nothing to rank with it since Varsity Orphans whipped Balmy Beach in the mud one late fall day that we can recall. Not a soul expected that the Orfuns would make it close, let alone score a victory.

Perhaps we should qualify that and say that nobody outside of Peterborough had any idea the Orfuns would win. Cecil Perdue, sports editor of the Examiner of that city, made a pretty fair sort of call on the game. We still think it was a case of wishful thinking, but it came true and he rates credit for having nerve enough to lay down th idea in cold type. Said Mr. Perdue on Thursday of last week:

"Nevertheless, we hesitate to call Orfuns over Imperials this time. We will, however, come out of a huddle with the crystal ball and predict a closer score than was the case here last weekend. And this, mind ya, against the Sarnia champs. We do expect the locals to play better rugby and to make the visitors turn their sack of tricks inside out—and battle their very heads off—to gain the victory. And odd things are always happening in the sphere of sports. Look how Stratford beat the Petes when the bright lights got in the locals' eyes. Personally, we will not topple over in a dead faint if the Orfuns should win. No, no, take away the straight-jacket we're okay. We mean just that."

Righto, old boy We'll give the straight-jacket to the rest of the experts P.S. we've got one arm in it ourself.

Milt Dunnell, Stratford Beacon-Herald

The lamb slaughtered the butcher at Peterborough on Saturday.

Sarnia's Monday morning quarterbacks are in emergency session, while the taxpayers of Peterborough are burning the crepe that was hung over the city when the Jones Boys of our village picked the Ontario senior baseball title from under the Petes' noses at Hamilton more than a week back. It may have been that the Imperials beat themselves by under-rating the Orfuns, but there's no allowance for such mistakes in the pay-off. The scoreboard showed that the great Oilers of Tunnel Town were licked by a bunch of guys named Joe who are having their first gallop on the stamping grounds of the mighty. Fortunately for the Petes, it wasn't one of those games that are played to fill out a date in the schedule. The defeat knocked Imperials out of a tie for first place in the Ontario Union. So nobody can hint that they weren't playing for keeps in the Lift Lock City. There may be still more serious consequences coming up. Sarnia has to play in Montreal next Saturday, while Peterborough treks down to Toronto to play Balmy Beach. After what happened last Saturdays there's no such thing as a pushover in the Ontario Union' But it could happen very easily that Montreal would shade the Oilers and that the Beachers would take the Petes. Then Sarnia would have something unheard of to stew about—the possibility of not even being around when the title is being decided.

The badge-wearers of the O.R.F.U. can't be counted among the Sarnia mourners over what happened in Peterborough. Saturday's events helped to prove that the brass hats of the Union were smart fellows when they entered into a gang war with the Interprovincial Union.

Kingston Whig-Standard

Alex Ponton, coach of the Beach team, stated that the Peterborough club offered the Toronto paddlers tougher opposition along the line than any other rival this year and was on record several days ago of predicting that the Petes would score an upset or two before the schedule closes The Peterborough victory made the Senior O.R.F.U. race the toughest of the Eastern campaigns with the Interprovincial a two team

Leo Begley, Lindsay

The Orfuns are in Toronto on Saturday next for the Balmy Beachhome game. Lindsay fans, who were in Peterborough on Saturday in very large numbers, will be arranging carloads for that trip to Toronto. The Orfuns are more than a Peterborough team now: they belong to the whole district.

Jack Lamb, Lindsay Post

The game was clean and very few penalties were handed out until the last play of the game when Magee and Van Horne tangled for a few seconds but were quickly separated. One of the headiest plays of the game occurred when Crowe, attempting to throw a pass, was hurried and after considerable dodging he kicked one of the longest punts of the game on the dead run.

The crowd went wild when Loucks kicked the placement and they realized that their own team was apparently going to beat the famed Sarnia Imperials and when the game was over, Loucks was shouldered by his teammates and carried from the field amid the cheers of the rabid Peterborough fans.

Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer

When the Peterborough Orfuns upset the dope bucket and beat Sarnia on Saturday it was the most profitable thing that could happen. Football is now sold at the Liftlock City.

Bas O'Merra of Montreal Star

The hundred-to-one shot coming home at Peterborough when the Orfuns trounced Sarnia stunned rugby fandom. The selectors were shocked almost into insensibility. They seem to have won on their merits. Balmy Beach players here on Saturday night declared they would have suffered the same fate the week before had Box not been in phenomenal form.

This Loucks appears to be all Canadian timber while Crowe is not far behind. Seemingly Sarnia is dependent too much on the super punting of Stirling who seems to be getting too much work. The loss of Beach is now being felt in a manner that is causing Sarnia to be discounted as a Dominion final threat.

Globe and Mail

This looks to be the Ontario Union's year in football. They may or may not win the Eastern Canada title, but at this stage of proceedings it can't be denied that, for a change, they are the best-balanced union of any of the three senior organizations in the East.

It's a three-way fight for the playoffs among the unbeaten Montreal Nationals, Sarnia, and Balmy Beach, with Peterborough far from out of it as yet. It that victory over Sarnia Imperials was something more than a flash in the pan the Orphans yet may make it a four-way struggle.

Oshawa Times

We would liked to have been in the Liftlock City on Saturday night. They must have had a great celebration after that thrilling upset victory over the great Sarnia Imperials. The newly-organized Peterborough Orfuns were not conceded much chance to win a game this year—certainly not against the mighty "Oilers" but they did just that, to the tune of 3-2.

Peterborough blocked a kick in the dying minutes of the game, gained possession of the ball and "Mike" Loucks, the Lindsay boy who is proving a sensation in senior football ranks this year, booted a placement to make the score 3-2 and they held out to the finish.

In this column on Saturday, the Peterborough scribe closed by saying "See ya under the third table from the rear tonight if Orfuns should pull a dipsy-do on Sarnia." Well they did—but we venture that there wasn't room for any one individual to have a table all to himself, either at or "under."

Hal Walker, Globe and Mail

It must have been a grand night of celebration in Peterborough Saturday after the Orfuns' fine win over Sarnia Imprials...A lot of people are inclined to believe it was a big fluke, but from what we hear the Inwinites won strictly on their merits...They are heralded as a big, scrappy club with two good backs in Ford Loucks and Don Crowe...The Petes outplayed the Sarnia wingline, and because Crowe turned in a grand kicking effort and Stirling was rushed on nearly every kick so as to minimize his effectiveness, the Orfuns were not at a disadvantage in the air...Imps didn't have Quarterbacks Arnie McWatters and Alex. Hayes in action, but this still doesn't detract from the Petes' great effort..The strength this club has shown now gives the O R F U. four strong teams and the best-balanced league in the east.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

BEFORE PLUNGING into the line on football, let's give a couple of other games a mention today. Riverview A.C. is staging a mitt card at the Brock on Friday, Nov. 4th, and will dish up an all-star show. Main bout sees Nick Orlando fighting Scotty McDonald of Toronto, and another headliner has Dutch McIlmoyle tangling with Billy Amato of the Queen City. Semi-final is between Harry Low and Harry Kiel of Toronto. Prelims list: Ken Roy vs. Eddy Curtain, Mal Packenham 'gainst Bill Joiner, Buddy Redmond with Izzy McIntosh, and Gord Riel versus Dan MacGregor. Prices scale down from six bits, general being a quarter. Each bout consists of five two-minute rounds, except the first two which are three-rounders. It should interest fight fans here. More on the mitt-slingers later.

QUINTE GUY WRITES: "Just how the C.O.B.L. expects to operate with another three-team loop is hard to visualize. As a matter of fact, we would not be surprised to see Oshawa linked up with the Niagara loop. 'It is five miles farther from Oshawa to Kingston than it is from Oshawa to the Falls,' revealed the Motor City scribe some time ago when he confidentially informed us that the Oshawa crowd was soured on the Petes and were applying for a berth in the peninsula loop. The C.O.B.L. has lived in hopes of seeing senior ball revived in Belleville, but more recently fired (as the Liftlock City scribe gracefully admits) the only interested Belleville party who might have lent efforts toward such a revival. Something of a boomerang, huh?" Stop it, Ken, you're killing us!

Some Folks Like Figures

HAP WILGAR compiled a grid table of figures at the fray here Saturday. Licking the lead in his pencil, he jotted down 17 local kicks against 16 for Imperials, the latter gaining 800 to 726 yards via booting. Orfuns completed one 10-yard forward pass in five tries whereas the Imps got one for seven, out of three. The visitors collected 90 yards from scrimmage to the locals' 64. Our lads had a good edge running back kicks, totalling 89 to 48. Stirling's kicks averaged only two yards more than Crowe's punts. Sarnia intercepted three forwards and Orfuns one, both sides having three fumbles. We recovered one and they had two. Orfuns blocked three kicks and the Imps one, while the Irwin outfit was penalized 60 yards to Imperials 45. The Imps had three first downs to Orfuns one. 'Tis interesting, though with the closing of the bathing beaches our interest in figures waned.

AS THE SALES MANAGER SAID, ya gotta give credit in some cases. The Sarnia scrivener wrote this ere the game Saturday: "Cec. Perdue of The Peterborough Examiner dove off the deep end the other day in telling the folks of the Liftlock City that perhaps all the westerners were not so unfeeling as Stratford. Cec. holds out the hope that his prognosticating, which led Stratford to the Ontario baseball championship, might upset the Imperials long enough to allow the Orfuns of Kawartha Lakes district to squeeze out a win. The possibility, in view of Sarnia's threadbare playing roster, may not be as remote as some of the people of that wild country imagine." Well, sir, the folks in this wild district are now wilder than ever, Mister Wilson!

Just Take Your Choice

SINCE THE ORFUNS knocked off Sarnia here, most of the sports scribes in Ontario are somewhat stunned. They still wonder how it came about. Well, in an effort to be helpful, we will list some possible reasons. (a) Maybe the bright uniforms of Orfuns sort dazzled ye Imps; (b) possibly the locals were inspired by that poem: "Charge of the Light Brigade"; (c) perhaps the Imperials forgot to change to winter oil; (d) maybe Crowe, as some said, kicked over his head—well, he kicked over the Imps' heads, too; (e) mayhap VanHorne, who dropped that touchdown forward pass, had oil on his mitts: (f) maybe the under-estimated Orfuns, who had no pressure on 'em, beat the cocky Imperials by sheer fight.

JUDGE JOSEPH WEARING of London, former local lawyer, sent us this letter: "Dear Sir—Not knowing who happens to hold your job at the present time, I cannot call you by name, but I want to let you know of the wonderful thrill I enjoyed Saturday when the news came of your great football victory. I was attending the Western-Varsity game when the announcer spread the news over the loud-speaker and the shock to the big crowd would not have been greater if the news had come that Czecho-Slovakia had done in Germany. In this neck of the woods, the mighty Imperials are considered absolutely invincible and this defeat certainly means a big boost for Peterborough. I myself settled in Peterborough without having seen the place, simply because of the favorable impression which I had received from its record in the matter of hockey and football. Nothing boosts a city or town like a good team in a major sports activity. Ever interested in my old city, Joseph Wearing." Thanks muchly, sir.

Orfuns Ready For Beaches

ORFUNS aren't overly excited about the win and feel they earned it. They knew—as some of those clippings we've run elsewhere today state—that their games with Montreal and Beaches were much closer than the score indicated. Without letting their noggins outgrow their fedoras, the boys feel they can take the Beaches in Toronto on Saturday—and quite possibly make a playoff berth right this season! And few grid experts will laugh out loud at the idea this week-end! Two daytime drills are called for this week; and quite a gang of local fans may take the special train to Toronto to see what happens at the Leafs' Stadium.

OUR P.C.I. SCHOOL RUGBY SQUADS swing into action here this Saturday against Lindsay teams. In previous clashes with the Scugog lads, the tilts were tighter than four in the front seat. P.C.I. juniors were beaten that day by a single point, and our senior footballers nosed out a narrow margin over the Lindsay top team, also by a point. The visiting seniors have a couple of lovely backfielders—possibly nothing to brag about if a screen test came up, but smouldering dynamite on a gridiron. We trust our grid fans (who have multiplied amazingly in the past few days) will be on deck to give the students a great big hand Saturday.

Haggerman Heads Bowling League

HASTINGS, Oct. 25.—Lew Haggerman, Havelock, was elected president of the Trent Valley Bowling Association at the annual meeting held in Warkworth Community Hall. Delegates were present from all towns represented this past season in the league. It was with regret, the association learned, that Brighton would drop out owing to difficulties but two delegates were present from Campbellford and the association extended a hearty invitation for that town to join. Delegates present from Hastings are under the impression that Campbellford will join.

A. M. Smale, Warkworth, retiring president, told the meeting that a very successful season had just passed, from a standpoint of continued interest and financially.

Presentation of a shield to Havelock, first place winners in the loop and a cup to Hastings second place winners was officially carried out.

The following vice-presidents were elected: S. S. Brechin, Norwood; J. L. Doherty, Hastings and Morley Smith, Warkworth. Dr. H. Allen, Warkworth was re-elected secretary.

CALGARY, Oct. 25 — (CP). — Greeted by warm weather, No. 3 bombing squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force, a squadron of eight Wapiti planes under Squadron Leader A. The flight was grounded for half a day at Kapuskasing, Ont., where a heavy snow storm was encountered.

Panthers Picked As Best In U.S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Panthers of Pittsburgh are just as good in the ballot box as they are on the field. Of 100 sportswriters who participated in the season's second Associated Pres poll, 90 today chose Pittsburgh as the best college football team in the United States. Nine others picked them for second place and one for third. Pitt got 989 points, only 11 from a perfect score, to top the first 10 for the second straight week.

Minnesota, 309 points behind the Panthers, stayed ahead of California in the race for second, Texas Christian climbed from seventh to fourth and Santa Clara from sixth to fifth. Dartmouth, greatly harassed by Harvard's defence Saturday, fell from fourth to sixth, while Notre Dame dropped from fifth to seventh. Fordham and Oklahoma displaced Duke and Syracuse as the ninth and 10th teams.

Jackson's Reducing To Keep Him Hungry

PRESTON, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—Harvey Jackson's struggle to reduce seems to be one of the main items of interest around camp these days as Toronto Maple Leafs and Syracuse Stars prepare for their winter hockey campaigns.

Big Harvey who patrols the left boards for the Leafs in the National League weighed 197 today after eating a skimpy diet breakfast but he wants to lose at least five more before talking contract with Manager Conny Smythe. The team boss wants the Busher to do the same—so its unanimous.

Jackson doesn't relish the idea of dieting and says he can't see where he is going to take any more weight off, but added "It's O.K. with me, even if I do get hungry sometimes."

The rest of the boys have a keen interest in Harvey's campaign against extra weight, and Buzz Boll marked "210" on Jackson's weight chart yesterday. Coach Dick Irvin started to figure out more drastic reducing measures for the winger before Buzz confessed.

Washington Squad's Footwork Telling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25—(AP).—Bill Reinhart—the football coach who sent his George Washington team through Christmas shoppers to teach them footwork—beamed like a Santa Claus today.

"Some people laughed when the boys went out last December and hit the shopping line," said Bill. "We may lose all the rest of our games, but look what we've done to date."

George Washington University is one of the few teams in the United States which has been undefeated, untied and unscored on.

The coach admits his team's schedule hasn't been a bruiser, yet in defeating Furman, Butler, Colorado and Davis and Elkins.

Getting His Men Home To Play Ball Had Lincoln More Worried Than Winning War, Is New Version

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP) — There are going to be some startled movie fans as soon as the National Baseball League gets its new super-special, "The National Sport," distributed around the United States.

Abraham Lincoln, it turns out, couldn't keep his mind on civil war battles for wondering whether New York baseballers had defeated Illinois baseballers in their latest contest on the banks of the Manassas.

It practically drove General Grant nuts, because the general wanted to discuss battles, and he didn't like to have all his swiftest couriers tied up with dashing back and forth between the capital and field headquarters with the latest sporting extras for the president.

This new side of the much-biographed civil war president was disclosed to an impressed audience at the picture's preview here. Among those who saw the preview were Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, President Will Harridge of the American League and President Ford Frick of the National League.

The Sluggers Win

One of the biggest moments came when a lathered boy in blue burst into the tent and thrust the 6 p.m. Blue Streak Special, still damp from the presses, into Lincoln's eager hands. Quickly Honest Abe rifled through it and discovered the Illinois Sluggers had won. He turned on General Grant, who was eating a cigar and trying to get a word in edgewise about a battle he had in mind.

"There general," he said, "more important than winning battles is to get all these young men back home so they can play baseball."

It must be said to the credit of Ford Frick, who penned the scenario, that he did not have the President specify National League baseball.

The scene, though, is guaranteed to make any audience forget what happened to the National League's representatives in the recent World Series. The picture traces the history of baseball from the day Abner Doubleday had his "vision."

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Western Clock Company, Post Office, De Laval Office, Quaker Oats and Bell Telephone bowlers jambed Duffus Alleys last night, with Perce Johnson of the De Laval group chalking up the best individual score, 682.

The hot Westclox league of ten teams put out six men in the 600 or better class; W. Sharpe 659; J. Beckerman, 654; G. Gatfield 645; B. Goodson 631; B. Brady 618, and M. Star 602, while Art Carpenter with 659 was the hard hitter of four Post Office teams.

Miss Lawrence of the De Laval headed the list of lady bowlers with 483; Miss Pearson 437, and Miss Gohen 424. Six teams of Quaker girls had a two-game workout, and Miss M. McGuire, Helen Fee and H. White knocked off 254, 228 and 231 single games, while a 212 count by Miss H. Morrow was high for 15 of the telephone girls.

STUKUS, WESTMAN AND STIRLING LEAD THE FOOTBALL GROUPS

Stirling Leads Senior Rugby With 17 Points

TORONTO, Oct. 25. — Annis Stukus moved within one point of the eastern football scoring lead when he scored all Toronto Argonauts' points in a 10-6 victory over Ottawa Roughriders on Saturday, it was shown in the second Canadian Press summary of the season.

Stukus counted his points from a single, field goal, convert and touchdown, easily the outstanding individual performance in the east that day. He pushed his total to sixteen, only one behind Sarnia's Bummer Stirling, who was held to two singles against Peterborough Orfuns.

The big quarterback held the Interprovincial Union lead to himself, however, as all others in the top flight went pointless. Stukus was a point ahead of teammate Art West and Stan O'Neil of Ottawa, tied in second place with Tommy Daley, Andy Tommy and Tiny Herman, all of Ottawa, grouped next with ten points each.

Herb Westman, McGill's outstanding kicker, took over the college circuit lead from Toronto's Ben Shuken by booting five singles for a total of thirteen, while Shuken was held without a point. Lyn Thompson of Western and Cam Gray, Toronto's leader last season, were third with seven each.

Ray Mulling of Montreal Nationals, scoring four points, made the best gain in the Ontario Union, moving into a second-place tie with a teammate, Johnny Ferraro. They each were seven points below Stirling's seventeen points. Ab Box held fourth place alone with eight points.

Training Camp Notes

(By the Canadian Press.)

Heading west to join New York Americans are a couple of the National Hockey league's most experienced travellers, Leroy Goldsworthy and Art Jackson, obtained from Boston by manager Red Dutton in a last-minute effort to strengthen before next week's schedule opening.

Goldsworthy, one of the game's prettiest skaters, was bought outright and Jackson, a brother of Harvey Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs, was transferred on option, for at least a season. Goldsworthy has played with Montreal Canadiens, Chicago and Boston, while Jackson will be with his third club in three seasons, having gone to Boston from Toronto last year.

Dutton hopes the pair arrive at Saskatoon in time to appear in to-night's exhibition with New York Rangers. Jackson would replace the injured Lorne Carr on a line with Sweeney Schriner and Art Chapman, while Goldsworthy is expected to play on a new line with Red Beattie and Johnny Sorrell.

Alex Shibicky, who suffered a bruised hand in Saturday's mix, will not play in tonight's wheat league engagement. Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers has so many reserves he hardly minds when a regular gets hurt, for he can give one of the youngsters a try under fire.

The Bruins' sale of Goldsworthy and Jackson means manager Art Ross will form a new line of youngsters, none older than 24. The six candidates for the three jobs are Harry Frost, Roy Conacher, Pat McReavy and Terry Reardon, who have signed professional contracts within the last two days, and Red Hamill and Mel Hill, recalled from Boston's former International-American league farm at Providence.

Carl Voss may be through with big-time hockey after a widely-travelled career. The veteran was sent home to Toronto by Chicago Black Hawks yesterday with a knee injury that may keep him out for the season. Voss' N.H.L. experience has included jobs with Toronto, New York Rangers, eDtroit, Boston, the old St. Louis Flyers, and Montreal Maroons, and Chicago.

From Far Fields

Hugh O'Leary of Fort William, John Lalonde of Port Arthur and Smack Allen of Niagara Falls, round out the Ontario boys seeking a place with the Hartmen. The latter played for University of Michigan at Ann Arbor last season. Max Bentley, a right winger, hails from Delisle, Sask. In addition there are approximately a dozen boys from Montreal and the surrounding territory.

Gus Mancuso and Wilf Hoch, right winger and defenceman respectively, who tried out for a place with Montreal's pro team last year, but were farmed out to New Haven Eagles in the International-American league, are back for another shot.

Hart is never one to predict a championship before the season gets under way, but this year he's almost tempted to call the shot for his team. "Just say we'll have one of the strongest teams to ever represent the club and don't be surprised if we win the Stanley Cup and world's championship," is the way he puts it.

Hart Confident He Will Have Powerful Team

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—There are only about half a dozen Frenchmen left on Les Canadiens' roster but take it from Cecil Hart those Canucks are going to be the "Flying Frenchmen" of old when they step out on the Forum ice, Nov. 6 in the National Hockey league inaugural here against Chicago Black Hawks.

True, those great troupers Aurel Joliat and "Pit" Lepine will no longer sport the tricolor sweater in which they starred for upward of a dozen years. Having reached the end of their playing trail these two stout-hearted hockeyists will devote their time to coaching. Other Canadiens of last season who will be missing from the line-up next month include Marty Burke and Joffre Desilets.

To replace these departed stars Hart has a flock of high-grade hockey material in the ex-Maroons the Canucks grabbed up when the "Big Red Team" suspended operations. Such sterling performers on the ice lanes as Jimmy Ward, Bob Gracie, Herb Cain, Stew Evans, Cy Wentworth and Desse Smith should gladden the hearts of the most enthusiastic Canadien followers.

"Start 'Em Young"

Cecil Hart, who, like silver-thatched Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers, believes in the old adage about starting 'em young, has almost a score of hopeful amateurs fighting for berths with his team.

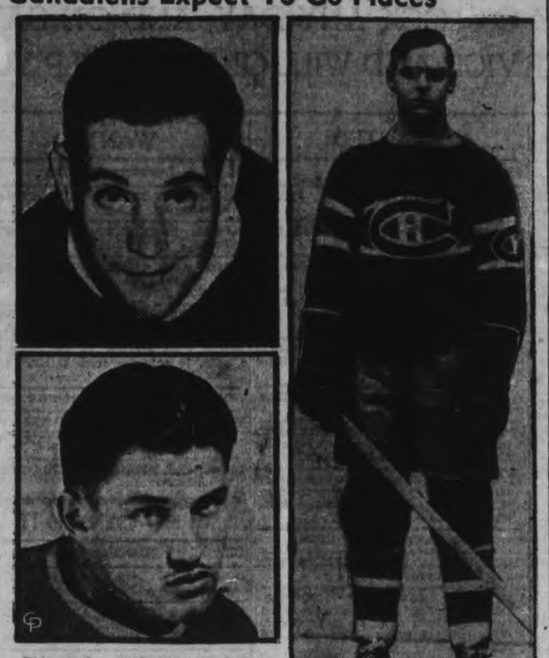
From Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada these young stars have come to Montreal full of hope and ambition, and chances are that one or more will make the grade. If Hart can develop one new man from the amateur ranks each year, he'll be more than satisfied. Fans remember last year when he brought Bill Summerhill up for the play-offs.

Here was a youngster who migrated from Toronto and wound up with Verdun Maple Leafs, amateur farm sponsored by Canadiens. When the latter were riddled by injuries as the play-offs rolled along Summerhill was called in to fill the breach and acquitted himself nobly, making a sensational bow in the monied ranks.

Hart believes the woods are full of counterparts of Summerhill or Toronto's Syl Apps, or . . . but why go on? There's a lot of good hockey timber just waiting to be developed and this maker of champions, Cecil Hart, is out to develop it.

From far away Flin Flon, Manitoba, there is Marcel Tremblay, a right winger, who comes to Montreal highly recommended. Toronto and Hamilton, which have produced some of the greatest players the game has ever seen, have a pair of amateurs apiece working out with the Canadiens. There are George Miller and Hubert Hardy, wingers from the Queen City; and Adam Brown and Bob Gardner, also wingmen, from Hamilton.

Canadiens Expect To Go Places



The coming hockey season looks like the best in a long time for Montreal's Canadiens. With a promising rookie crop and stars from last year's Maroons to add to their regulars, they expect to go places with a vengeance. Three reasons — LOWER LEFT, Bob Gracie, ex-Maroon; TOP LEFT, Cy Wentworth, hard-hitting defencman, also from the disbanded team; RIGHT, George Mantha, who's been patrolling the ice lanes for 10 years with the Flying Frenchmen.

King Edward Defeat Central In Second Game

After winning the first play-off in the Public School soccer championship, Central team failed to function in their usual fashion against the King Edward eleven that were playing their regular game and defeated the uptown boys two goals to nothing in second game. They will meet this Tuesday afternoon to play the third game. Best of three to count winner.

Smart Goal

The choice of goals fell in favor of King Edward, who took advantage of the wind behind their backs, and after Kiff, Central, had conceded a foul kick outside the goal area, Charlie Murduff converted from an oblique angle. Throughout this period Central played a smart combination style of play to hold the fast-moving southenders outside the shooting zone; while Parsons, Hanes and Burns intercepting and kept sending their forwards on the attack. However, they failed to make good use of the clever openings presented because the King Edward full-backs were repulsing the wing men at the first tackle. Time and again, Millen and Lee would break through to finish very poorly in front of goal. Palmer and Murduff on the wings harassed the Central full-backs repeatedly to get the better of the argument and often tested Drummond in goal. King Edward 1, Central 0.

An Unsavable Shot

On resuming, Central started with a bang, but wilted terribly when some of their players went into a happy-go-lucky attitude which was costly to them, although they had the wind at their backs. While King Edward boys settled down to make sure that they could play combination that was productive of goals and, in fact, they rattled shots on Drummond, who was in an unbeatable mood, and held the southenders on the scoreless list. However, he had to admit defeat when Palmer dribbled his way past the defence inside the full-backs and Jamieson diverted the ball away out of the reach of Drummond. This success to the winners resulted in Central being outplayed in every department through the lack of cooperation in their own ranks and never were dangerous thereafter. King Edward 2, Central 1.

Goal-scorers — Murduff and Jamieson.

Central—F. Drummond, goal; F. Kiff and P. Meiklejonn, full-backs; G. Burns, G. Hanes and J. Parsons, halves; B. Millen, W. Smith, S. Clarke, L. Batten and G. Lee, forwards.

King Edward—W. Curtis, goal; A. Lowes and F. Lawson, full-backs; G. Blackwell, K. Anderson and D. MacGregor, halves; C. Murduff, G. Reil, D. Jamieson, E. Close and C. Palmer, forwards. Subs—W. Ellis, C. Downer, K. Langton and E. Woodcock.

Referee—D. Buchan. Linesmen—J. Self and D. Lomax.

Tweed Defeats Stirling 16-6

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 25. — Tweed High School made it two straight wins over the smart Stirling High School rivals in an interscholastic rugby game at the Tweed Agricultural Grounds, winning by a score of 16-6. The first quarter saw the visitors go into the lead by virtue of an on-side kick by R. Richardson which resulted in a touchdown. They were held scoreless by the locals until the third quarter when Richardson kicked a single point.

G. Wager, Luffman and Courneyea were the point getters for Tweed, each crossing the Stirling line for a major score, none of which were converted. Wager also kicked a single point.

The game was featured by Courneyea's running. He was away for big gains every time he got the ball. Wager made a nice job of his kicking, and forward passing with Porritt and Luffman tackling and catching well.

Pyear, Woods and Beckel were best for Stirling with the two Richardsons also doing well.

The game did not start early enough to make it possible to conclude in daylight. During the last ten minutes players could not be distinguished.

Stirling — Bailey, snap; Lancaster and Brooks, insides; West and Martin, middles; Armstrong and McGowan, ends; R. Richardson, flying wing; Pyear, quarter back; Woods and Beckel, halves; D. Richardson full back.

Tweed—G. Morrison, snap; Price and Hawes, insides; Elliott and Shannon, middles; Rivers and Bailey, ends; D. Porritt, flying wing; G. Water, quarter back; Luffman and Cassidy, halves; A. Courneyea, full back.

Officials— Messrs. Hetherington, Calnan and Wells.

Only Horner And Jackson Remain Of Flashy 1931 Leafs; Stylists Fade For Balanced Unit

TORONTO, Oct. 25 (CP)—Carrying along a campaign to build a dynamic young machine, Toronto Maple Leafs will enter the new National Hockey League season with but two members of their brilliant cast of 1930-31, when their star was last in the ascendancy.

Only big Red Horner, defenceman who captained the club last season, and Harvey Jackson, who has held his own at left wing despite the challenges of young players, remain of the team of eight years ago. Other members of that combination of individual stars—the Clancys, the Days and the Baileys—have passed along with the seasons.

Last to go was Charlie Conacher, twice the league's scoring leader and always its unluckiest player. Brittle-boned Charlie, who might have been the greatest forward of his generation but for injuries and illnesses, was sold to Detroit this fall.

The best right winger to come around the bend since Conacher made his apearance, Gordie Drillon became the club's standout when ill-health forced Charlie out the middle of last winter. But Drillon's heavy attacking and opportunism, which brought him the league scoring title, detracted nothing from the fact the Leafs were changing from a team of stylists to a balanced, rushing unit.

Co-ordination Keynote.

Manager Conny Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin have stressed co-ordination in training sessions at Galt and Preston, Ont.—co-ordination and condition, youth and speed. Those things carried the Leafs to the League championship over Boston's favored Bruins last spring. And, though Chicago defeated the Leafs in Stanley Cup finals, the critics said then: "Watch Toronto next season."

This Toronto team will bear more than watching, for it will be alert and ever-aggressive. That could hardly be helped with so many youngsters eager to gain promotion from Toronto's Syracuse farm and from amateur ranks.

Key positions will be held by third-year men, notably Drillon, Sylvanus Apps, Jimmy Fowler, and Turk Broda. Apps' fine passing, his puzzling shift through the defence and his magnificent temperament helped make Drillon great. Fowler, a rushing defenceman and a game blocker, and Broda, a goalie who has risen to the heights on occasion, will be called on to carry heavier loads with the coming of rookies.

Smythe feels the defence problem has ended with an improvement in the play of Bingo Kampman, bumping blond whose main fault in his N.H.L. baptism last season was crudeness. If he measures up to the standard of Horner, Fowler and the hard-hitting Reg. Hamilton, Smythe will let that quartette ride for the winter. Otherwise, Jack Howard or Jack Church may have to be called in from Syracuse.

Forwards Undecided.

Irvin says the forward lines won't be announced until the end of the week. But it is certain Bob Davidson will be at left wing on the Apps-Drillon line. His persistent checking and trailing make him a safety valve.

Bill Thoms will start at centre with Jackson, and there the certainties end for the Leafs are under-staffed at right wing. Buzz Boll and Bill Cunningham are fighting for that place on the second line, and Pep Kelly seems a sure starter on the third, but none of them has started to look like a Drillon or a Conacher. Boll may draw the second-line assignment because of a big-league experience, of which Cunningham has none.

George Parsons, a pinch-hitter last term, is ready to go at left wing on the third string. The battle for the centre position is between Pete Langelle and Murray Armstrong, both up from Syracuse, both eager and confident.

Murph Chamberlain, a sophomore, and Nick Metz, a veteran, are having to struggle for forward positions, and one of them may be carried as a reserve. Metz's brother Don appears to be one of the best of the amateurs trying out and the only others still in the running are also forwards, Wally Stanowski, widely heralded member of the Dominion junior champions from St. Boniface, Man., and Bobby Laurent, quiet Toronto junior.

Famous Cricketer Likely To Retire

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 25.—(CP Cable).—Announcement of the retirement of Harold Larwood, famous international player, from county cricket, was made by Nottingham officials today. The 33-year-old professional has been troubled by a knee injury for some time and with no likelihood of improvement in the condition he requested release from his contract which had two more years to run.

At one time one of the fastest bowlers in the world, Larwood's "bodyline" bowling in Australia during England's 1932-33 tour resulted in one of the biggest controversies in the history of cricket. During that season Larwood took 33 Australian wickets in test matches. In recent years his speed has been reduced appreciably.

In August last year the coal-miner cricketer was suspended by Nottinghamshire country club for a breach of discipline but in the following December the differences were adjusted and he eventually signed a three-year contract.

Grid Star Studies

Our good neighbors across the line make many a joke about college football players, but some gridiron stars really do go to college to learn things and just happend to be good on the striped field, too. Here's Sid Luckman, all-star passer for Columbia, who defeated Yale practically single-handed this year, as he emerges from the knowledge factory, his arms laden with books which actually will keep him busy.

Trent River Honors Newlywed Couple

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 25.—A miscellaneous shower and dance was tendered Mr. and Mrs. J. Collins, formerly Marguerite Garneau, of Campbellford, Wednesday night at Whitehall Gardens pavillion.

There was a large attendance and Mr. and Mrs. Collins were the recipients of many lovely and useful gifts. A Campbellford orchestra furnished music fro square and round dancing. Lunch was served at midnight after which dancing was resumed.

Mrs. George Dart has left to visit friends at Toronto and Wingham.

Mrs. S. J. Sanderson and daughter Beverly of Oxford Station spent last week at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Inkster.

Messrs. S. J. Sanderson and Jim Inkster of Oxford Station were weekend visitors at the latter's parental home.

Mr. Lean and son of Camborne were Friday visitors with the former's son, Mr. M. T. Lean and Mrs. Lean and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Wood had as their recent visitors, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Knox of Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Langford of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Thompson, daughter Fleda and son Keith of Norwood road; Mrs. E. Hawley of West Seymour.

Mrs. Jacob Gardner and granddaughter, Miss Donna Gardner, and Mr. W. Cowell of Norwood road, were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. K. Thompson and family.

Group four of the Ladies' Aid are holding a quilting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. K. Thompson. A ten cent tea will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brownsell and family have returned from a delightful motor trip along the St. Lawrence highway, across the new Ivy Lea International bridge.

Miss Kay Cameron has returned to Westwood after a few weeks spent with her aunt, Miss E. Cameron, who is confined to bed through illness.

Group one of the Ladies' Aid, held a progressive crokinole party Friday night at the home of Mrs. Emerson Glennis; there was a large attendance. Fourteen tables were played. Mr. Harold B. Wood supervised the games. The prizes were as follows: Ladies' first, Miss Florence Shearer; ladies' consolation, Nola Green; gent's first, Milton McConnell; gent's consolation, Leslie Thompson. Lunch was served at the close of the games.

The big bridge has been repaired by a gang of local men, who replaced the stringers and the bridge is declared safe for heavy traffic again.

Lakevale L.A. Plans Home Cooking Sale

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Oct. 25.—The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Lakevale Presbyterian Church was held in the church on Wednesday afternoon, in charge of the president, Mrs. George Tully and there was a splendid attendance.

Prior to the meeting the ladies completed the quilt on which they had been sewing and it is now ready for sale.

During the devotional period, the scripture reading, Romans 12:1-21, was read by Mrs. Melville Deyell, followed by the reading of an item "A Practical Ideal," by the president.

On motion, the secretary was instructed to send a letter of appreciation to Mrs. E. Feir, for her interest in the society, donating a quilt top each year. A letter of thanks for fruit during her illness, was received from Mrs. Harry Fowler, Jr.

The society is planning to hold a sale of home cooking in the market hall on Saturday, October 29, and plans were completed for the same.

At the conclusion of other business, Rev. J. M. Young pronounced the benediction.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

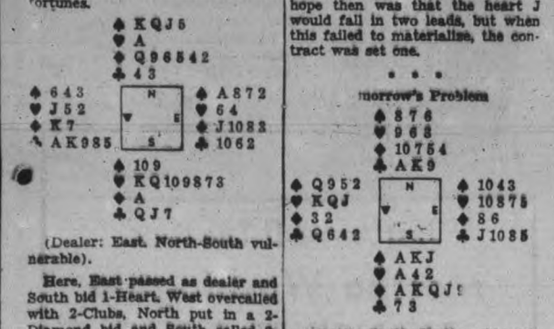
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DEVASTATING UNTRUTH

WHENEVER YOU SIGNAL to your partner, an alert declarer reads your message too. His play will be influenced by what you tell him about your hand. If your signal proclaims a falsehood and misleads your partner, that may mean disaster for your side. But if you false-card when it does no harm to fool your mate, the declarer may find your untruth devastating to his fortunes.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable).

Here, East passed as dealer and South bid 1-Heart. West overcalled with 2-Clubs, North put in a 2-Diamond bid and South called 2-Hearts. Over this, North went to 2-Spades, South to 3-Hearts and North to 4-Hearts.

When West led the club K, East stopped to consider that his side would undoubtedly cash two clubs and the spade A, so that in order to set the contract an additional trick was needed.

Figuring that no harm could be done in misleading his partner, East tossed the club 10 on the K and, when West played the A, discarded the 2. West carried out his partner's instructions and continued with the club 5. Declarer trumped with the heart A and to his dismay East was able to follow to the trick with the club 6. Declarer's only hope then was that the heart J would fall in two leads, but when this failed to materialize, the contract was set one.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

What is the best discarding by West against South's contract of 5-Diamonds, after the lead of the heart K, if the declarer then runs five trumps and two clubs?

Great Britain's Front Line Is Canada's Also Major Hicks-Lyne Tells Rotary

"Where Great Britain's front line is, there is Canada's also."

So declared Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne at the conclusion of an address to members of the Rotary club at their weekly luncheon Monday, in which he stressed Canada's need for a stronger defence force

Far from advancing in her defence policy, this country has gone backward since the years just before the Great War, the speaker said. He warned that although Canada may depend on Great Britain's fleet in time of war, yet that force is essentially for the protection of England and her trade routes and that Canada's protection, with that of other overseas dominions, must take second consideration. He did not place blame for the condition of Canada's defences on the people, so much as on the poor way in which the needs of the land had been placed before them.

Need for Defence Now Seen

The war scare through which the world passed a few weeks ago has brought the need for defence to the attention of every thinking man and woman, he said. "Democracy is fighting for its life." Dictatorships that have spread throughout Europe and in Latin America are emphasizing that need, and "democracies will have to awaken to their responsibilities."

Compulsory military training in other lands—and Great Britain and the United States are the only two nations in the world who have not compulsory military training in force, he said— is placing those lands in a far superior stand as regards the number of soldiers they can put on a field of battle But compulsory military training is a thing repugnant to the Anglo-Saxon mind. If it had been adopted in Great Britain, it would have cost the nation 100 million dollars a year, he said.

He told of the smallness of Canada's defence forces, told of a permanent militia force of 4,000 or about the same number as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; of a navy that boasts six destroyers and five mine sweepers; of an air force whose planes are all antiquated with the exception of a few bombers; of an artillery force that has few modern and no absolutely up-to-date guns. In the matter of spending money for defence purposes, Canada "stands at the bottom of the list, on a footing with Mexico, Peru and Brazil," he said. In Canada $3.15 is spent on armaments per capita, while in Great Britain the figure is $38.

Equipment Antiquated

"Our equipment is antiquated; the non-permanent militia has been starved. If the local battalion were called out to war we would have no modern equipment with which to fight."

In the past Canada has depended to a certain extent on the League of Nations, on the British navy, on the Munroe Doctrine. But she must assume her own burdens now, he said. As for pacifism, who wants war, he asked. "But we are living in an age of materialism. We must have the strength to talk back." Canada is pledged under the treaty of Westminster to assume her own defences, and also by the Munroe Doctrine is she expected to be capable of defending her shores, yet Canada's defences are weaker now than at the outbreak of the war.

Modern equipment has become so advanced that men must be thoroughly trained in order to operate it, he pointed out. "Unless you have a trained man operating your machine in your factory he is of no value to you." Similarly, he pointed out, the machines of war have become increasingly complicated and a soldier needs fully ten times as much training as he required in 1914. In Canada men have been trained to operate tanks, yet it is all theoretical because there are no tanks in the country other than three or four for demonstration purposes. "We are the only gas mask-less country in the world."

He paid tribute to Peterborough manufacturers and industrial leaders for their co-operation with the local militia unit, saying that in that regard this city is favored higher than most in the land. He expressed thanks through Rotary to those leaders.

Only Five Guns

Outlining the re-organization of the Peterborough unit, he said the only thing about it that is at full strength is its ranks. "We should have 36 vickers guns: we have 5 and one dummy. We should have four Bren guns: in Canada there are only three. We should have 19 anti-tank guns: we have none. We should have pistols, grenades, lorries, motorcycles, and we haven't a thing. It is pathetic, gentlemen."

He told of the work the officers and men of the non-permanent militia do here in Peterborough. "You see the parades, when they swing down the street, but that is nothing." Behind those parades is hour after hour of work, lectures, special courses, study. "There is nothing in it for anyone, but fortunately we have some men who have a sense of their responsibility as citizens."

In Canada, land of so many opportunities, we are prone to take everything for granted, giving nothing in return, the speaker said. He denied that military training breeds war, said neither he nor any other returned man wanted to go back to war. He praised the effect of military training on the bearing and outlook of youth, said discipline was a thing good for young men.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old Musterole —soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in quickly overcoming the local congestion and pain when rubbed on the aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster, Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Made in Canada, in three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong. All druggists, 40¢ each.

Charge Anti-Jewish Drive On In Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 25—(CP)—John J. Glass, Liberal member of the provincial legislature for Toronto-St. Andrew, said last night Toronto Jews were being denied the right to obtain employment and rent quarters in apartments, as a direct result of anti-semitic campaign by paid agents of Germany.

Glass, back from Hamilton where he had been elected chairman of a Canadian Jewish Congress committee to hand a boycott of German goods, said discrimination against Jewish workmen had been gaining ground "with great rapidity" in Toronto and the rest of Canada.

He believed the growth of anti-semitism in Canada was "no mere accident," but the result of "high-powered Nazi activity."

Seven-Point

legislation which set forth their powers and duties, and after the experience of last Spring in Toronto before the private bills committee of the Legislature he did not see any helpful end in harrowing over that ground again.

Alderman Gordon declared that the private bills committee had been influenced by a lobby of Toronto brokers, but Mr. Eastwood denied it.

The Seven Points

The seven projects reviewed by members of the council have all been considered by the council and their desirability and other phases have been published.

Alderman Cotton, speaking first, advocated a grant for the building of a footbridge over the London street dam. He said that if the money loomed in sight even now the Quaker Oats Company might open up the main bridge for the winter in anticipation of action by the city as soon as weather permitted. He said he was also in favor of purchasing a market site on Charlotte street as an accommodation to the large number of producers in the district who found Peterborough a busy marketing centre. The area from Charlotte to King street and from Louis street to the creek would also provide much needed parking space in the very centre of the city.

Alderman Wilson said that the council had made a good deal for the citizens in acquiring the quarry on the Lakefield Road, but for better results and greater output it needed some additional machinery that would improve the efficiency of the quarry plant and also provide road material at a lower cost.

"We also need a paving plant of our own," Ald. Wilson said. "It doesn't have to be a big one, but big enough for our needs. A small plant costing around $10,000 would do good work With a plant of that kind we could repave Water street, for example. Extra machinery at the quarry would take another $5,000. The total would be around $15,000 for this department of the Board of Works."

Alderman Bradburn said he wished to see a bridge across the Quaker Oats dam. It would not cost more than four or five thousand dollars and would be a great convenience for quite a number of citizens. "It could be built with money the City Trust might be able to provide for us, or we will have to take it out of the estimates next year."

Alderman McCannan said the citizens "appreciate 100 per cent. what the City Trust Commission has done in the way they have handled debenture funds. At the same time they would be tickled pink if the Trust could loosen up a little with a grant for one of those projects."

Money Voted For Bridge

Alderman Gordon said the money was voted for the London street bridge but it was spent on the Hunter street span. Incidentally he recalled in answering a jocular reference to himself that he was not a member of the council when the bridge was built. He was city solicitor. He mentioned the need of extra accommodation at the police station as recommended by Judge Deroche of Belleville in his report of local police affairs. It was suggested that two rooms might be laid out in a second story to be built over the police garage, and also a store room in the basement for filing city records and police court exhibits.

"It would be nice to get all these things," Alderman M. McIntyre observed, "but the legal point comes up as to what the Commission can do. There might be the other way of reducing the demand on the city council for debenture interest and sinking fund. That would be a great help to the council. and we could do a lot of this work then ourselves."

Would Be Prorated

W. R. Morris later explained that if the Commission's requisition to the council were reduced, proportional benefits would have to be allotted to the Utilities Commission and also frontage rate debentures.

Alderman Stocker said that a new paving plant would enable the city to lay pavement at $1.50 a square yard instead of $3. He also urged that a grant be made for the footbridge.

Alderman Juby pointed out that a paving plant would also immediately put the council in the position of accepting the federal governments promise of a grant of $5,000 for a permanent pavement on the road paralleling the canal from the C.P.R. and the old Norwood Road. Ald. Juby agreed that the farmers should have better marketing facilities, but the expenditure of a considerable sum of money for that project had the effect of setting up direct opposition to the city's dealers in provisions who had difficulties enough right now. "We all appreciate the good work of the Commission, and we would like to see them relieve us in some way."

Mayor Hamilton referred to the prospect of an expenditure for relief exceeding the council's appropriation for the year's aid to those unemployed.

Alderman Glover who especially urged the building of footbridge for the Ashburnham residents remarked that the council assumed the Commission would continue to pay the usual amount of $5,000 into the city treasury as an aid to the taxpayers.

Commission's Scope

"The whole question you are presenting to us comes down to where can we get the money so that it will be done in a proper and legal manner," Mr. Eastwood said, recalling the action of the private bills committee of the Legislature last March and the emphasis placed at that time on the necessity and the duty of taking care of debenture funds for the benefit of the bondholders.

Some years ago the Commission had other monies such as G.T.R. mortgage all of which had been transferred to the city treasury or spent for the benefit of the city. "From our experience during the last year and a half I see no way of using our sinking funds. We can't tell what demands are going to be made on our sinking funds by circumstances which was cannot foresee. Municipality after municipality has got into trouble by tampering with its sinking funds. We are in the same position as a corporation, there must be no interfering with the sinking funds which are for the benefit of the bondholders."

Mr. Eastwood declared that "if the Municipal Board says we may not do things that are proposed to us, then our hands are tied.' He added that the Commission would consider the council's requests and also in the meantime make further enquory about its authority in regard to the withdrawing of monies in the hands of the Trust.

Rentals To The City

Alderman Wilson asked what was done with the rentals from the city buildings administerd by the Trust. Mr. Eastwood replied that they amounted to $5,000 or $6,000 a year and were deducted from the amount of the Trust's demand on the city treasury.

"The Commissioner would be only too pleased to do anything we can to assist the council and the taxpayers," Mr. Eastwood said. "If you leave these requests with the Commissioners we shall consider what can be done and let you know the position we are in. Where the money is to come from and how it all may come out is not in my ken at the present moment."

The other Commissioners spoke briefly, endorsing the expressions by Mr. Eastwood and Mr. Gillespie. Mr. Peck remarked that the Ontario government could be a help in such matters if they designated the Municipal Board or some such body to advise municipal trustees on just such problems as that raised by the council.

Mr. Eastwood suggested that expending money on enlarging the police station would seem to be wasted because even then it would be only a patched up building. With a million and half debentures maturing within the next year or two the citizens might be in a position to consider some capital expenditure affording the accomodation needed by the city's staff.

When Alderman Gordon spoke of a grant of $20,000 to settle the judgment in the Ackerman suit against the city and $12,000 for the public lavatories on the market, and then asesrted the Commission should dip into its reserves now for a grant to the council "he speaks against something that he now says would be all right," Mr. Eastwood said.

"Mr. Gordon asks us to turn over our money now, but he condemns it in the Ackerman case. We decline to argue it. We will be glad to co-operate with the council if we can legally find a way to assist you," was Mr. Eastwood's assertion.

"I said if you could pay $20,000 in the Ackerman case, you could pay $20,000 for other projects as required," Alderman Gordon said. "You gave a loan of $1,000 to Jim Hum."

"That's not true," Mr. Eastwood replied.

"Well, it's in the auditor's report," Ald. Gordon pursued.

Mr. Gillespie said that in the fifteen years he had been a Commissioner the City Trust has paid about $100,000 to the city treasury, whether it was legal or illegal. But, after what the Minister of Municipal Affairs and the Committee of the Legislature had said within the last year about the handling of public funds there could be no doubt about the Commission's duty.

"When Mr. Gordon opened up this question, the Department put their finger on those items—the Ackerman suit settlement and the public restroom cost—and it was strictly understood that such things could not be done legally again. Our position as I see it is that we have got to get authority somep lace before I'll put myself in the place where I would be responsible and personally liable if we acted against the law."

A. A. McIntyre said there were obstacles to be overcome. In regard to the Ackerman suit, he said, "I think the City Trust was taking a chance, and the same with the rest room, we stretched a point to give you that. I'd be willing to do anything in our power to help these things you name along, and give you whatever we can."

At the conclusion of the conference the council extended a vote of thanks to the Commission for sitting around the table and discussing the possibilities of reaching into the Commission's surplus for the financing of a fairly broad seven-point program or any part of it.

Japanese Continue Their Drive In Southern China

Without a shot being fired in its defence, Canton, birthplace of Chinese nationalism, fell into the hands of Japanese invaders in one of the most astounding victories of the present Sino-Japanese conflict. In other parts of China, however, the Japanese are continuing to rain a hail of death from giant bombers upon Chinese towns and cities. Mackenzie Assails Drew's Article

OTTAWA, October 25—(CP). —"Crammed with insinuations and innuendoes from beginning to end" was the way Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie described Lieut.-Colonel George Drew's article in Maclean's Magazine on the Bren gun contract as he neared the end of his evidence at the Bren gun inquiry to-day.

Mr. Mackenzie was under cross-examination by I. F. Hellmuth, counsel for the Maclean Publishing Company, who asked him about a previous statement describing the article as "wild and irresponsible." Asked what statements in the article could be so described, Mr. Mackenzie declared the whole article was so.

It was this article, attacking the contract under which the John Inglis Company of Toronto is to supply the Defence Department with 7,000 Bren light machine guns which led to the inquiry before Mr. Justice H. H. Davis as a Royal Commissioner.

C. Clancy Hads Stirling, Rawdon Marmora Religious Council

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, October 25. — The annual convention of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora township Religious Education Council was held Wednesday in Salem United Church. Minto, and was well attended at both afternoon and evening sessions.

The afternoon session commencing at 2 p.m. was opened with a worship period conducted by Rev. S. Delve followed by an address of welcome by Mr. Earnest Searles, after which the president of the Association, Mr. W. J. Johnson, outlined the work in a short address and called on the various department superintendents for their reports.

These reports were very encouraging and showed progress in many departments.

The statistical report was presented by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Hiram Mumby.

At a round table conference presided over by Rev. F. R. Vanderburg of Kingston, the provincial representative, many problems of Sunday school work were discussed and much benefit was derived from this discussion.

The afternoon session was closed by Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne of Bonarlaw.

After a bountiful supper served by the ladies of Salem Church a song service and worship period was conducted by Rev. J. E. Beckel of Stirling.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents, Wm. Johnston of Harold and J. F. Baker of Bonarlaw; president, Carl Clancy, Harold; vice-president, George A. Bailey, Harold; secretary-treasurer, Fred Elgie, Stirling.

Department Superintendents — Children's work, Mrs. J. S. Elliott, Stirling; boys' work, Roy Juby, Stirling; girls' work, Mrs. Keith Armstrong, Marmora; young people's, Mrs. George A. Bailey, Harold; adult division, Carman Sine, Springbrook; home religion, Mrs. Jason Baker, Bonarlaw; leadership training, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth; missionary, Mrs. S. Meiklejohn, Campbellford; temperance, Ross Hoard, Stirling.

The above officers were installed in a very impressive manner by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth assisted by the provincial representative.

An invitation was received from Bethel Sunday school to hold the next convention there which was gratefully accepted.

Resolutions were adopted thanking the church officials, the ladies who provided the supper, the provincial representative, those who assisted with the music, the president and his executive and the retiring officers.

Miss Eva Hagerman contributed a beautiful solo at the afternoon session and Mr. J. B. Hagerman gave a solo and the choir an anthem at the evening session. The meeting was closed by Rev. A. S. MacConnell of Stirling.

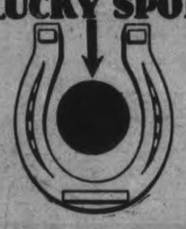
THREE-DAY LUCKY SPOT SALE STARTS THURSDAY

City's Merchants Offering Seasonable Stocks Stalled By Sunshine

Seventy Stores Offer Super Values For Three Days — $100 In Crisp Bills For "Lucky Spot" Shoppers.

While local merchants have been "put on the spot" by adverse weather conditions, the buying public has to the same extent been put on a "LUCKY SPOT" of opportunity with an array of values in this issue of The Examiner that shrewd shoppers have seldom, if ever, seen equalled.



100 Shoppers To Receive Cash Prizes

One hundred shoppers in Peterborough on Thursday, Friday and Saturday are going to receive the delightful surprise of being handed a crisp new one dollar bill. Why? Just because at the time they will be standing on one of the fifty secret "LUCKY SPOTS" scattered throughout the retail section. The only provision is that buyers must be able to show a "LUCKY SPOT" coupon bearing the lucky insignia shown above. They are obtainable with every purchase at all "LUCKY SPOT" stores.

The "LUCKY SPOT" stores will be easily identified as each will have the "LUCKY SPOT" pennants prominently displayed.

Choice Merchandise Is Offered

Peterborough justly earned its reputation as the premier shopping city in Central Ontario. As a matter of fact it is one of the best cities in all Canada in which to shop. Its many modern stores offer up-to-the-minute styles, excellence of quality and attractive values. Peterborough merchants can be truly proud of the merchandise which is on sale for the next three days.

Success Is Due To Co-operation

It would be impossible to stage an event of this size and importance without the full co-operation of practically every business man in the city. That this has been attained is due to the efforts of the Peterborough Business Men's Association.

The Three Day "LUCKY SPOT" sale has been arranged and promoted under their sponsorship and the success of their work is evidenced through the list of 70 "LUCKY SPOT" stores published on this page.

10,000 Extra Readers of The Examiner

More than 50,000 people will read this big "LUCKY SPOT" special of The Examiner. Enough extra copies are being distributed in Central Ontario so that no one in the trading area shall miss the super-values offered for the three outstanding merchandising days. To old and new readers alike The Examiner advises: "Do as your neighbor is doing. Come to Peterborough this week. Buy personal needs, home needs, farm needs. You'll find your selections highly satisfactory and your saving substantial."

Two Women, And Baby Drown In Car

Aged Indian Alone Escapes As Car Shoots Off Ferry

WALPOLE ISLAND, Ont., Oct. 26 (C.P.). — Police constables and residents of this island Indian Reserve dragged the swiftly flowing waters of the River Snye to-day for the bodies of a 35-year-old mother and her baby, drowned with another woman when an automobile toppled from a small cable ferry.

Mrs. Mira Greenburg, 33; her sister, Mrs. Kennedy Peters, and Mrs. Peters' two-month-old baby were in the car when it shot across the 43-foot ferry, broke through a guarding chain, and plunged over the square bow into the river last night. A fourth occupant of the car, 77-year-old Fred Ermantinger, swam to safety.

All in the party were Indians returning to the island from Wallaceburg, four miles east of here. The ferry, a cable type craft, is a flat scow with railing along the sides. Its crew, Charles Jacobs and his son Charles, Jr., told police the car, driven by Mrs. Greenburg, stopped in the centre of the boat, then suddenly shot ahead.

Thinks Foot Slipped.

Ermantinger, a former Chief of the Chippewa Indians, and the ferry operators, said it appeared as though Mrs. Greenburg's foot slipped from the car brake to the accelerator as she stopped. It shot through a heavy iron protecting chain and plunged into 30 feet of water.

Ermantinger forced the rear door of the car open as it sank through the water and swam to shore without difficulty. But when the machine was raised a short time later the bodies of the women and the baby had been swept away. The body of Mrs. Greenburg was recovered shortly before midnight last night, about five hours after the accident.

The elderly Indian appeared none the worse for his experience after being taken to a nearby store where his clothing was dried. He is the operator of the upper ferry across the Snye. The accident occurred at the lower ferry, several miles distant. Mrs. Greenburg picked up Ermantinger in Wallaceburg while returning to her home here.

The triple drowning was the third major disaster in this district in recent months. Five persons in a motor car that plunged into a dredge cut in Dover Township were drowned last spring and four boys were drowned in the Sydenham River in Wallaceburg when a rowboat sank during the summer.

Caterpillar Sign

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—W. H. Wintemute believes it's going to be a mild winter—in this area at any rate. He bases his prediction on the appearance of the caterpillar. Its hair this fall is a deep red with small tufts of black about the head and tail. If it was going to be a cold winter the caterpillar's hair would be a deep black. "It's a sign that's as old as the hills," he claims.

Rylstone Couple Find Tarantula In Bag of Bananas

Bonarlaw, Oct. 26.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WHEN Mrs. Willis Irwin of Rylstone returned to her home on Saturday from a trip to Campbellford where she had purchased a bag of bananas she was shocked on opening the parcel to see a large tarautula spider. Mr. Irwin seized a pair of pliers and lost no time in capturing the deadly insect.

On the way home from town, Glen Irwin, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Irwin had opened the parcel and helped himself to some of the fruit.

Chinese Dig New Defence Lines Outside Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 26 (AP)—Chinese troops dug into new defence lines southwest of Hankow today while victorious Japanese forces took possession of the once-proud but now nearly desolated Wuhan cities.

Japanese warships steamed cautiously through mine fields in the Yangtse River below Hankow, sister-city of Wuchang and Hanyang. Infantry units made forced marches from the north and west to help preceding troops overcome street fighting in flaming Wuchang.

Japanese warplanes roared over the tri-cities despite rain and heavily bombed retreating Chinese. Machine gun fire blazed in the Hankow suburbs, indicating the Japanese vanguards were meeting resistance in attempts to consolidate positions in the erstwhile capital that they entered yesterday.

Ruins For Invaders

Explosion after explosion in Chinese-minded buildings rocked the metropolitan area so that no more than necessary would be left to the conquerors.

The Chinese, in what was called a strategic withdrawal from Hankow as the invaders entered, presumably aimed to make a stand along the 30-mile highway westward between Hanyang and Hanchwan and among the swamps and lakes on the Yangtse's north bank.

After 477 days of severe fighting, the Japanese have penetrated and occupied major communication lines, cities and towns through 13 provinces, comprising about 575,000 square miles and 375,000,000 inhabitants.

The Wrong Drug

OTTAWA, Oct. 26 (CP)—A coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Abraham Azar, 33, found last night that she died "in Ottawa civic hospital on October 21, through the administration of a wrong drug in a wrong way."

The Ottawa woman entered the hospital a week ago Monday for an operation. Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier said further investigation will be undertaken before any consideration is given to taking criminal action.

Fire-Charred Liner Carries On

7 Ships Answer Call But Deutschland Douses Own Blaze

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Fire aboard ship in perilous, gale-whipped seas of the North Atlantic remained a nightmarish memory today to 591 passengers and 392 crew members on the Deutschland as the German liner plodded toward port with her insides charred by flames.

An electrifying "SOS" flashed through the air early last night when fire broke out in the ship's No. 2 hold, after an explosion of unexplained nature.

"Assistance necessary urgently," crackled over the radio waves. Then—

"Fire in room (hold) No. 2."

A "quiet period" quickly was ordered on the seas and observed by ships far and near.

Ships' wirelesses closed transmitters and bent their ears toward the position 200 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, where the flame-perilled Deutschland was rolling in mountainous seas.

"Danger—help necessary," said the frantic, repeated calls from the German liner.

Its location was broadcast time after time, and ships within range turned off course in a mad race to help.

Land bases and ships received and intercepted and relayed a maze of alarming reports.

"Assistance necessary urgently," drummed into the ears of radio operators.

Two-Hour Battle

After a winning two-hour battle with the flames, Captain Karl Steincke, master of the ill-starred veteran of four other mishaps at sea, radioed to the New York office of The Associated Press, at 8:29 p.m. EST:—

"Fire under control!"

Hours later, the home office of the Deutschland in Hamburg was advised by the master that the fire was controlled. Ship and passengers were no longer in danger.

Most passengers retired in the early morning hours to safe but troubled slumbers.

The middle-sized 15-year-old ship, pride of the post-war German republic when it was launched with great fanfare by the then President Ebert, left Hamburg last Thursday and was due in New York next Friday.

It is of 21,046 tons and is similar to three other ships built by the Hamburg American for the trans-Atlantic service—the Hansa, the New York and the Hamburg.

The southeasterly gale and rain sweeping the Newfoundland banks increased the Deutschland's peril while the fire was raging in the hold.

Fear was felt that the rescuers would be unable to reach the liner in time to take off passengers or that the gale would whip the flames beyond control should they leap out of the hold.

Antwerp Attack By Jews Arouses Berlin

BERLIN, Oct. 26 (A.P.). — The German press carried reports to-day that 50 Jews had attacked five German passengers of the liner Cordilleras yesterday as they walked through the streets of Antwerp, and warned that "Germany is strong enough and determined under all circumstances to protect her nationals."

"The consequences may prove most undesirable and disagreeable to Jewdom," the press warned, carrying the despatches under such headlines as "Fifty Against Five" and "Jewish Rowdyism in Antwerp."

One Nazi party organ—Westphaelische Landes Zeitung of Dortmund—even intimated German-Belgian relations might be disturbed unless "these dangerous elements" are curbed.

These developments came as the weekly organ of the Nazi blackshirted S.S. Guards attacked the Roman Catholic and Protestant Confessional Synod Churches for their alleged unpatriotic attitude in the German-Czechoslovak crisis and declared Jews in Germany and Italy were "hostages." The paper further said monks arriving from Rome said the Pope was convinced the Nazi regime would be ended soon.

Hostages of Fate.

The paper, Das Schwarze Korps, said "Jews living in Germany and Italy are hostages given into our hand by fate so that we may defend ourselves in the most effective manner against attacks by world Jewry."

"This assertion may seem rather severe," the paper continued, "to those who in their soft sentimentality always are at hand with a slogan about the 'Innocent Jew.'

"Whoever envisages in all its ramifications the incitement to war which world Jewry has unloosed upon us along a broad front and whoever recognizes the true intentions of these world criminals would be a fool indeed if in the face of such a threat he permitted anything like compassion to surge within him."

Barrie Jewel Gang Given 12 Months

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 26—(CP).—Magistrate Compton Jeffs today sentenced three young men who took part in the daring burglary of Reeves jewelry store here early on Oct. 14. The trio had pleaded guilty one week ago.

A term of 12 months definite plus 12 months indeterminate, with hard labor, was given to each.

The men were, Mike Kornick, 18, no address, and Alex Young, 18, no address, charged with breaking and entering and Walter Andrews, 22, Toronto, charged with receiving stolen goods.

Magistrate Jeffs said that he was influenced by the youth of the accused against imposing penitentiary terms and he hoped that leniency would have some influence on them.

Crown Attorney F. A. Hammond, K.C., had urged that the offences were no trifling matter.

In the burglary, the jewelry store was entered and more than $2,000 of watches, rings and cigarette lighters taken, entry being effected through a fan light over the main entrance.

Toronto detectives recovered the loot in a house at 26 Beaty avenue, Toronto, after some clever police work.

13-pound Cabbage Doomed For Sauer Kraut

Fort Erie, Oct. 26.

NOW THAT the biggest squash in the district has been claimed by Howard Rung, local hotelman, John McGaw, Bowlf and Thompson Roads, lays claim to having the biggest cabbage. Sitting like a king in the midst of the other large cabbages of the same type weighing between eight and ten pounds, is a large savory specimen weighing about thirteen pounds.

The prize cabbage measures over a foot across its broad top and is doomed for the sauer kraut barrel.

Trenton Man Is Killed In Crash

MADOC, Oct. 26.—Carmen Vandervoort, 21, of Trenton, was instantly killed on the Madoc-Bancroft road shortly after eight o'clock Tuesday night when a truck in which he was a passenger left the road and turned over on a curve near the farm of Michael Franks. An inquest is being held in Madoc Thursday.

Vandervoort is believed to have been hit hiking to Bancroft and was given a ride by Jack Vance. Bancroft trucker who was headed north with his wife. On a double S turn two miles north of Madoc, the truck which was loaded with brick went into a spin and Vandervoort is believed to have been pinned underneath. His neck was broken. Mr. and Mrs. Vance escaped with a slight shaking up.

Provincial Constable Diamond of Madoc was on strike duty at Port Colborne and the accident was investigated by Town Constable Danford of Madoc. No charges have been laid, as yet. Dr. F. J. Nickle of Eldorado conducted the inquest.

Bluenose Leads By 10 Lengths

BOSTON, Oct. 26 (CP)—Bluenose, weather-beaten Lunenburg saltbanker, held a 10-lengths lead over the Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, after two hours sailing today in the fifth and deciding race of their series for the International Fishermen's Schooner Trophy.

The schooners started the decisive race of their deadlocked title series at 12:05 p.m.EST after a two-hour postponement because of lack of wind.

When the two schooners were sent away members of Thebaud's crew were irate because a race was being held with such little breeze. The wind was southwesterly and of about eight miles an hour velocity. The Bluenose performs best in a light wind.

Thebaud took the weather berth at the start. The first leg of the 35½ mile irregular triangular course was a 14½ mile broad reach in a southeasterly direction.

More Mechanics

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt's efforts to end a shortage of aircraft mechanics gave fresh emphasis to-day to reports that the projected revision of the United States defences will include a substantial increase in the air corps.

At his press conference yesterday Mr. Roosevelt said he was studying the need for training a large number of aircraft mechanics.

He also commented that a 1935 study of air force needs, on which the army's present construction goal of 2,320 first-line war planes was based, had become definitely out of date.

Yard Foreman Is Fatally Hurt At R.R. Crossing

Pinned between a C.N.R. engine and the body of a truck at a crossing on Water street north, near the Auburn mill, Joseph Meagher, 260 Aylmer street north, died in St. Joseph's hospital last night.

A charge of manslaughter was laid against the driver of the truck, Alfred Hudson of Lakefield and he was held in custody overnight.

Hudson was arraigned before Magistrate E. A. Gee in Police Court this morning on a charge of manslaughter, and was obviously nervous as his name was called. T. J. Carley, K.C., appeared in his behalf and said that the accused would not elect or plead to-day, and at the request of the Crown Attorney Hudson was remanded until Wednesday of next week.

Bail was fixed at $4,000.

The accident occurred a few minutes after six o'clock last night and Meagher, a C.N.R. yard foreman, was dead an hour and a half later. His right leg was almost severed at the knee and his left leg was badly broken at the knee; he sustained a fractured left arm and severe head injuries.

Meagher was riding on the platform of a yard engine along with Ross Burt, a brakeman, at the time of the accident. The engineer, Andrew Clegg, said afterwards the engine was travelling only about six or seven miles an hour as it came to the crossing. He saw the approaching truck and when he realized it was not going to stop he applied his brakes. The engine stopped in the middle of the intersection after the collision.

The truck was travelling north on Water street, towards Lakefield, and the driver said afterwards he had not seen the engine until he was on the tracks. The headlight of the engine was lighted and the bell was sounding, the engineer claimed, and each of the brakemen on the front end was carrying a lighted lantern.

Burt, who was standing on the side of the engine nearest the truck, jumped to the ground when he saw the impending crash and escaped injury but Meagher was caught by the truck's body, pinned between it and the engine, then carried eighteen feet on past the crossing. The car continued for nearly three hundred feet before coming to a stop. The driver said he did not know until he returned to the scene that he had struck anyone.

The truck was not badly damaged, only the racks on one side of the body being torn off. The engine was apparently across the track before the body was struck by the train.

Constables Piercy and Clark rushed to the scene, applied tourniquets to both the dying man's legs, and he

Conant Holds Extra Police Ready For Pt. Colborne As He Warns Against Riots

Provincials Occupy Strikers In Front While 110 Anxious To Work Gain Factory Through Back Door

TORONTO, Oct. 26—(CP)—Attorney General Gordon Conant today issued a warning to striking Humberstone Shoe Workers that lawlessness "positively will not be tolerated."

Already 27 Provincial Officers have been sent to the strike area and Mr. Conant said he was prepared to double or quadruple that force if it became necessary. At the same time he said that W. B. Common K.C., one of the Attorney General's Law Officers, would be sent to Humberstone to advise the Provincial Police and to assist the local Crown Attorney in the large number of prosecutions now pending as a result of rioting.

110 Make The Rear Door

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Oct. 26. —(CP)—Entering the Humberstone Shoe Company by a rear door in marching formation as some 200 striking picketers paraded in front of the factory, 110 employees of the company went to work today.

The picketers, herded by 26 provincial constable in charge of Staff Inspector E. T. Doyle of Toronto, marched in file in front of the plant and did not anticipate use of the rear door. Their move to intercept the marching employees came too late and was easily turned aside by the augmented police staff.

A showdown was planned at noon with all hope of a settlement gone. Yesterday the 70 who succeeded in breaking through the picket lines and going to work, remained in the plant at the noon hour, but today the 110 will go home for lunch at noon and return at 1 o'clock, defying the strikers to interfere and establishing their right to enter and leave the plant at will, despite union orders.

During the night windows in the homes of plant superintendent Adam Zimmer, foreman Harold Gruhl and Merritt Souder and an operator Ray Benner, were smashed by rocks. Eight windows in the office of the plant were also broken.

A girl picketer was arrested this morning and joined her husband, who was arrested yesterday afternoon, in Welland county jail. She is Mrs. David (Helen) George. She was charged with assaulting the plant superintendent, Zimmer, as he approached the rear door of the plant this morning. She was remanded until Nov. 2.

Two Canadian Women Win $150,000

TORONTO, Oct. 26 (C.P.). — Two Canadians, one of them a Strathroy, Ont., beauty parlor operator, won prizes of $150,000 each to-day when Contrevent won the historic Cesarewitch at Newmarket, England.

The two were Miss Dora Smith of Strathroy and Mrs. R. Sutton of Cumberland, B.C. The lucky tickets were PD29146, on which was written the nom-de-plume "Black Cat," and ZA78090, "Golden Rule."

Holding a ticket on Dubonnet, who came second at Newmarket, three Saskatoon nurses won $75,000 in the sweepstakes. They are Laura Reynolds, Margaret McCardle, and Edna Graham. Their ticket was AX21701, and on it they used the pseudonym "Triplets."

Three Canadians held separate tickets on Fet, which placed third. Each ticket is worth $50,000.

"Four Girls, Two Boys" was the nom-de-plume on ticket No. BD92695 on Fet. "Clicked at Last" was on ticket No. PK22805 and "Konora" was on ticket No. DK57869.

Total Canadian winnings in the hospital sweeps swelled to $808,448, with six collecting on the horses placing first, second, and third.

One hundred and four ticketholders collected $2,187 on non-starting horses or starters placing back of the first three. An additional 116 won $500 residuary prizes.

Winnings reached the largest total that ever came to Canada in the Irish Sweepstakes. They have fluctuated from around $500,000 to $600,000 in the last two years.

Work As Usual?

STRATHROY, Ont., Oct. 26.—(CP).—Dora Smith, Strathroy beauty parlor operator, wasn't around to hear the news that she won $150,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes to-day but her sister, Leafa, said her newly acquired fortune wouldn't stop Dora from working in her salon as usual this afternoon.

Miss Smith held a ticket on Centrevent, winning horse in the Cesarewitch run at Newmarket, Eng., to-day.

Etiquette For Quints

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets will be taught the niceties of court etiquette well in advance of the visit King George and Queen Elizabeth are to make to their Northern Ontario home during their Canadian tour next year, Dr. A. R. Dafoe said today.

Dr. Dafoe, who came to New York for a few days to attend to personal business affairs, pointed out that it will be necessary for the little girls to curtsy before Their Majesties.

Campbell, Quinton Handcuffed In Court-Remanded No Bail

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 26 (C.P.).—Under strong police guard two men arrested last week on charges of robbing the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank of almost $4,000 were brought into County Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw's Court to-day, given eight-day remands, and then hurried back to the county jail.

In their brief appearance, J. M. Donahue, defence counsel, pressed unsuccessfully for some definite assurance when the Crown would be ready to proceed with the charges, and then sought reduction in bail, only to be told by the magistrate, "We won't talk about bail to-day."

The men were Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, and Rymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41, of Windsor.

Smartly garbed in suit and sport shirt to match, with collar open at the neck, Quinton appeared the more nonchalant of the two, leaning casually against the front of the prisoner's box. Each was kept handcuffed to a constable throughout their appearance.

Bullfighters' Pay To Be Steaks Off Their Kills

Madrid, Oct. 26 (AP)

BULL FIGHTERS henceforth are to wear overalls and be paid with meat from the bulls they kill. Economy is the reason. The first fight in republican Spain since the middle of 1937 occurred yesterday at Orihuela to aid in Alicante province campaign for money to clothe soldiers this winter. Madrid's last bull show was held in 1936.

Mother-in-law Aids

DETROIT, Oct. 26 (CP)—Mrs. Mabel L. Stenske won a divorce here yesterday through evidence given by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Stenske.

The mother-in-law said her son has kept company with a younger girl, despite protests of his wife and mother.

Lloyd George Predicts Munich Deal "War Minus Friends" For Britain

LONDON, Oct. 26—(AP).—David Lloyd George broke his silence on the peace of Munich today to warn Prime Minister Chamberlain it would end in a "war without friends" for Great Britain.

The Great War statesman delivered his grim prediction while the present prime minister and his cabinet met for 2½ hours to review vital matters ranging from defence of home shores to cost in colonies of really satisfying Germany. The cabinet announced no decisions.

In his first speech since the Munich pact saved peace at the price of Czechoslovakia's dismemberment Mr. Lloyd George declared the peace "was a bad peace, and a bad peace is no peace at all."

Then he pronounced this judgment:

"I will tell you what we shall find, and I am speaking now as one who has taken a great part in the affairs of this country at the most critical moment in the whole of its history: "We shall have forfeited honor:

Chauffer Vanishes With Family Car $200,000 in Jewels

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)

POLICE of eight states today searched for George Fleming, a chauffeur whose wealthy employer reported he was missing with $200,000 in jewels.

The employer, Edward H. Townsend, Jr., an investment broker living at Syosset, Long Island, said Fleming, 38, disappeared after leaving in a family car yesterday to take the jewels to a Manhattan Hotel for Mrs. Townsend, visiting her mother there.

Townsend said he did not suspect Fleming of absconding with the jewels.

Airman Loses Race To Alliston Crossing Dies As 'Peg Express Wrecks Car

ALLISTON, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP) —G. Taylor, 25, of Winnipeg was killed at 12.30 a.m. today when the car he was driving was struck by the Canadian Pacific Railway Toronto to Winnipeg flier at a level crossing here.

Taylor was employed as an aircraftsman at the Camp Borden aviation base near here.

Chief Constable W. Morrison was standing a block away from the crossing when he heard the crash. He found the Taylor car demolished. The engine was thrown 36 feet clear of the wreckage.

After tracing the strewn wreckage of the car a 100 feet up the track from the crossing he found Taylor's body in a ditch near the track. Death was attributed to a broken neck and internal injuries.

According to Provincial Officer W. B. Elliot, the crossing has an electrical warning and only two months ago large signs were erected to warn motorists. Elliot said an inquest would be held soon under Coroner C. Birt.

H. Toman and J. Marshall, both of Toronto, were in charge of the flier's engine. They said the warning gong and the engine bell were both being sounded.

Bingo, Held Occasionally, Is Ruled Legal If Proceeds Go To Church Or Charity

TORONTO, Oct. 26 (CP) — Bingo games, when held occasionally by charitable or religious organizations and where all the proceeds are used for a benefit of a charitable or religious object are legal, Crown Attorney J. W. MacFadden has ruled.

The definition of "occasionally" will be left to the courts, it was intimated. Police said that games operated as a racket, in which the operator pocketed most of the proceeds would feel the full force of the law.

The new ruling was welcomed by churches, clubs, and military organizations which have sponsored bingo games in the past. Most of these stopped operating games after police raids last spring.

Col. H. R. Alley, president of the Canadian Legion, Ontario command, declared: "If the games are all right, then they should be legal; if they are not, and are illegal, they should be stopped. The matter should be cleared up."

In Peterborough bingo games have been operating during the past two years, but in every case the games have been run by religious or fraternal organizations and the proceeds devoted exclusively to charity. The holding of the games is believed to have resulted in a slight reduction of the relief costs here, because many needy families on the borderline of relief have been given the assistance necessary to keep them from becoming public charges.

The King Presiding At Privy Council Will Rally Canadian Leaders Of Past 42 Years

OTTAWA, Oct. 26 (C.P.). — The most impressive gathering of Canadian statesmen in the history of the Dominion will be held here early next summer when the King presides over a Privy Council meeting.

Leaders of Government for the past 42 years will assemble probably in the Senate Chamber or the Railway Committee Room of the House of Comomns for the unprecedented Council, it was disclosed here yesterday.

There are 90 Privy Councillors, ranging from Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, to youthful Cabinet ministers of the present administration. Both Conservatives and Liberals will attend to take counsel with the monarch, sitting for the first time at the head of the long Council table as King of Canada.

Later as guardian of the quintuplets, the King will travel with his Queen and Royal party to Callander, Ont., where they will visit the Dionne quintuplets, and the five little girls, who share the honors as the Empire's most famous children with the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, will pay homage to Their Majesties in their own home. The Princesses will not make the trip to Canada.

The country doctor who brought the quints into the world, Dr. R. A. Dafoe, will be at the nursery to tell the King and Queen personally of one of modern medicine's great events.

Three Weeks in Canada.

It was learned that Their Majesties will be away from England more than six weeks, three of which will be spent in Canada. Several days will be devoted to a trip to several United States cities and the rest of the time will be spent on the Atlantic.

The Regal party probably will land at Halifax after crossing the ocean on a British warship or a specially chartered liner. A tour of the Maritimes likely will follow and then Their Majesties will come to Central Canada via Quebec and Montreal. In Ottawa, the King will unveil the National War Memorial dominating the beautiful new downtown Plaza which will be completed in the spring.

The Royal party will remain in the Capital for several days—possibly a week—and during that time the King will preside over the Privy Council. The regular Privy Council Room in the east block with its famous round table, used for Council meetings for the past 50 years, will be too small to accommodate a meeting of nearly 90, so the Senate Chamber or the Railway Committee Room of the Commons likely will be chosen.

Men in public life eligible for the Privy Council have been appointed over the years as they became members of the Dominion Government or were made ministers abroad.

The complete Council has never been called together in Canada's history. The Cabinet is actually a committee of the Privy Council, and its orders are approved by the Governor-General-in-Council.

The First Meeting

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative Leader Manion and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative leader will sit at council together for the first time. Non-controversial matters will be discussed.

Besides the galaxy of Canadian public men, Earl Baldwin, former British prime minister, will be invited to attend. He was made a Canadian privy councillor during his visit to Canada with the Prince of Wales in 1927.

The King and Queen will live at Rideau Hall during their stay in Ottawa and a formal court might be held. From Ottawa, the trip will be made to Callander and from there to Western Canada. On the return east, Toronto and other cities missed on the westward journey will be included in the itinerary. Every province in the Dominion will be visited.

Preparations for the tour are underway already and a national advisory committee might be established when the prime minister returns from his West Indies holiday. Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Scotland Yard will guard Their Majesties during the journey across the Dominion.

Gale Adds To Peril

The rough seas added also to the danger of abandoning ship in life boats and on rafts.

Passengers were at dinner, dancing or in the cocktail lounges when the dread cry of "fire!" swept the ship. First efforts to confine the blaze apparently were futile but the flames did not disable the radio.

Finally quelling the immediate danger, Captain Steincke and his radio operator set to the task of turning back all but three of the ships racing to help.

Some had been deemed too far away to help in any case, but several large and small craft kept bearing toward the ship long after it was out of immediate danger.

The Canadian government salvage tug, the "Foundation Franklin," put out from Port Hawkesbury, N.S., with full seagoing fire-fighting equipment aboard, but was turned back by the captain's reiterated insistence the situation was in hand.

Vessels which proceeded to stand by in case of further need were the American Traveller, the S.S. Collamer and the Norwegian ship Europe. Besides the trans-Atlantic ships, others going to the rescue included the United States coast guard; vessels from Boston and New England.

At many times while the terrific race was on, ships advised their bases that the Deutschland "did not say anything about the fire being under control yet."

The alarm-dispelling radio to the Associated Press, received at 8:29 o'clock, was followed at 11:35 p.m. by a message intercepted by the New York coast guard.

Directed to the fire-fighting Canadian tug "Foundation Franklin," which had advised it was rushing to the rescue, this later message from the Deutschland said:

"Thanks. Coming unnecessay. Fire under control."

A similar message was directed from the Deutschland shortly afterward to the coast guard cutter Cayuga, speeding from its base at Boston.

At the height of the alarm, the coast guard here warmed up a large amphibian plane, planning to fly it to the scene to aid in directing surface ships to the Deutschland.

Among the ships which put about at the first call were the Manhattan, Minerva, Laconia, American Farmer, Collamer, American Traveler and Europe, but al lexcept the last three later returned to their regular courses.

The Deutschland permitted resumption of normal ship radio service at 9:11 p.m. EST, ending the "quiet period" that held through the emergency.

Shortly afterward, the "SOS" was "cleared from the air," indicating the state of emergency had ended, but owing to overloaded or relayed communications this was not generally known until some time later.

Loaded to Capicity.

Records here indicated the ship was loaded almost to its passenger capacity. It was designed to carry 76 in cabin class, 169 in tourist and 345 in third.

In its previous accidents The Deutschland in November, 1933, smashed her prow in collision with the liner Munargo near the Statue of Liberty here; in 1925 collided with the steamer Martin Carl in an English Channel "pea-soup" fog, in the same year figured in a smashup with two other craft on the Elbe River, and in 1929 caught fire on a trans-Atlantic crossing, the crew extinguishing the flames without the passengers being aware of it.

Two Rescuers Arrive.

BOSTON, Oct. 26—(AP).—The master of the Norwegian freighter Europe radioed The Associated Press to-day that the fire-swept German liner Deutschland at 4 a.m. EST, "proceeded and called off ships standing by."

His radiogram said:. "Europe arrived 6.30 GMT (1.30 a.m. EST), American Traveler 7 GMT (2 a.m. EST). 9 GMT (4 a.m. EST) Deutschland proceeded and called off ships standing by."

Chinese Dig

Dispatches reaching Shanghai from Chunking quoted high Chinese officials who reached that haven from Hankow as saying emphatically that General Chiang Kai-Shek was determined to conduct prolonged resistance against the Japanese without any intention of suing for peace.

The fugitive leaders were said to have asserted that surrender would cause a loss of everything while continuous resistance would mean Japan ultimately would be unable to carry the financial burden of invasion.

They also said an army of 1,000,000 Chinese was still in the field with 300,000 more undergoing training.

Japanese dispatches said the main body of invading troops was entering Hankow and Wuchang and mopping-up before taking over those cities and extending similar efforts to Hanyang.

While sanguinary fighting continued at Telan, 130 air miles south east of Hankow, the Japanese declared three months' attacks there were merely a diversion which successfully drew major Chinese forces to defend the Nanchang railway and weakened Chinese lines elsewhere so the Japanese could advance rapidly toward Hankow despite inferiority in numbers.

was taken to St. Joseph's hospital by ambulance after Dr. H. N. Young had given anaesthesia.

An inquest was ordered into Meagher's death and Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith empanelled a jury immediately. Last night they viewed the scene of the accident, the truck and the engine of the train. The formal inquest will be held on Friday night.

The position of yard foreman that Joseph Meagher held was the same one that Harvey Staunton held before he fell from the top of a box car to his death near the Quaker Oats company a few months ago.

25 Years on Railroad

Meagher was a railway employee for the past quarter of a century, having worked in Lindsay and Trenton before coming to this city twenty-one years ago. He was 54 years of age, and was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

He leaves his wife, formerly Mabel Burke, and two daughters, Ella and Betty, both at home. Five brothers and two sisters also survive.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 9 o'clock fololwing Requiem Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral.

OBITUARY

MRS. DANIEL HICKSON

Life-long resident of Ennismore, Mrs. Daniel Hickson died at St. Joseph's hospital on Tuesday. She was in her 62th year, had been ill only a short time.

The wife of Daniel Hickson, she was born Ellen Crough, daughter of the late Patrick Crough and Johanna Gorman. She was a member of St. Martin's church, Ennismore.

Surviving besides her husband are one daughter, Mrs. Michael Twomey of Ennismore and one son, Earl Hickson at home; also two brothers, Michael Francis Crough, of Toronto, and Edward Crough of Ennismore; and three sisters, Mrs. Bridget Moher of Toronto, Mrs. Catherine Crowley of Peterborough, and Josephine Crough in Ennismore.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning from the late residence to St. Martin's church for Requiem Mass at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore.

MRS. MATILDA ARMSTRONG

The death of Mrs. Matilda Armstrong, Lot 5, Concession 1, Smith township, occurred very suddenly in Toronto on Tuesday. She was in her 72nd year and had been visiting in Toronto when death overtook her.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sandry of Cobourg and lived in Peterborough for many years before moving to Smith township eight years ago. Her husband, Albert Armstrong, predeceased her more than two years ago. She was a member of St. John's Anglican church.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Frank Melville of Toronto; and three sons, Wilburt of Niagara Falls, Peter of Peterborough, and Arthur of Smith township.

The funeral will be on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Nesbitt Funeral Home, Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

LONDON—(CP). — No penguin chicks have been hatched at the London Zoo for eight years, but authorities are hoping the luck will change this year. Eight penguins are in turn sitting on four eggs in four nests.

Windows And Doors Removed So Young Men Form Bee Replaced Them In House

BANCROFT, Oct. 26 (Special).—Police Magistrate Lloyd of Belleville on Tuesday afternoon in Bancroft, tried seventeen cases of trespass upon the farm, said to be owned by one, Wasman, who claimed to have purchased it under a deed given by the administrator of the late Henry Welch. The adopted daughter of the late Henry Welch was living in the premises with her five children and Wasman removed the windows and doors of the house. Seventeen young men in the neighborhood formed a bee and built windows and doors for the house and were putting them on when Wasman ordered them from the premises and they refused to go.

Mrs. Armstrong drove him away from the premises with a stick and her daughter assisted her and both were charged with assault.

The case created considerable interest as the Town Hall was crowded. People from all over that part of the county listened to the trial.

It was agreed between the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, acting for the defendants, that one case for trespass should be tried and all should be bound by the result, and C. A. Payne, K.C., of Belleville, who prosecuted the trespass charges, agreed to the arrangement, and one trial took place and the charge was dismissed and the others dropped.

Mrs. Armstrong was tried on the charge of assault and she defended on the ground that she had a deed and claimed that an interest in lands was in question and the Magistrate dismissed the charge against her and the Crown dropped the case against her daughter. B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney of Belleville, represented the Crown on the assault cases.

—the widowed mother, three girls and two boys. The mother has been ailing for some time.

Leafa, representative of the Bell Telephone Company in this town, some 30 miles north of London, said her sister had made no plans in the event of her winning one of the major prizes.

"But perhaps mother will get better, now that Dora has won all this money," she added.

Later it was learned Miss Smith had sold a half interest in her ticket to a Buffalo syndicate for $5,300.

The Strathroy beautician has spent some $25 in the past four years on sweepstake tickets.

When she purchased the one on the Cesarewitch race, her mother admonished her with the remark, "Little fool, spending your money that way."

The family came to Strathroy from Watford in Lambton county, 20 years ago.

No Plans At All

CUMBERLAND, B.C., Oct. 26 (CP)—Mrs. R. Sutton of Cumberland, awakened by a telephone call that told her she was $150,000 richer as a result of Contrevent's victory in today's Cesarewitch at Newmarket, gasped a delighted: "Oh, my goodness" as she heard the good news.

Holder of ticekt PD29146 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, Mrs. Sutton said she intended to travel to Ireland to collect her winnings. She used the nom-de-plum "Black Cat."

"That's mighty fine, mighty fine," she said.

"I've not made any decision what to do with the money. No plans at all."

Six Split $50,000

TORONTO, Oct. 26—(CP).—Fet, who finished third in the historic Cesarewitch at Newmarket, England, today, brought $50,000 to six Toronto persons, two Hungarian men and four Finnish girls who split a ticket. The group each will receive $8,333.

In addition, Alec Polczer, one of the two men, will receive an additional award of $1,500 for selling the ticket. A $20-a-week longshoreman, he plans to buy a Norfolk county tobacco farm and bring his family—a wife and three children—to Canada from Gyor, Hungary, with the winnings.

The other man who shared the winnings with Polczer was Steve Gretz, an upholsterer. Each of the six persons who bought part of the ticket contributed 42 cents.

A total of $60,000 will come to Toronto as a result of the sweepstakes draw. Six Toronto tickets were held on starters by citizens or groups of citizens but only the Polczer syndicate clicked. Six other Toronto ticket-holders who drew non-starters will receive $2,185 each.

First thing Polczer did on hearing the results of the race was to cable his family. "Whatever we have lost in life, we will make up now," the message read.

Able To Build Now

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—Ross Moyer, youthful Echo Place husband, will be able now to build that home for his pretty bride of a year and a half.

Moyer, holder of an Irish sweepstakes' ticket on Miss Windsor, won more than $4,000 on today's running of the Cesarewitch at Newmarket, Eng. Miss Windsor was not among the leaders, but Moyer had sold a half interest in his ticket to a New York City syndicate for $3,000 and he will split the $2,185 awarded holders of tickets on horses failing to show.

The "windfall" would provide Ross with a "comfortable nest-egg" to start housekeeping, a family spokesman said. The younger Mr. and Mrs. Moyer have been living with the elder Moyers since their marriage a year and a half ago. Moyer sold a half interest in his ticket Tuesday at Buffalo, where he met Sidney Freeman, head of a New York syndicate.

7 Firsts Go To States

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP)—Ticket holders in the United States won $3,489,162 as a result of the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes which was concluded today with the 100th running of the Cesarewitch race at Newmarket, England.

Seven tickets on Contrevent, winner of the race, were held in the United States and paid $150,000 each for a total of $1,050,000.

Americans held seven tickets on Dubonnet, second place winner, gaining $75,000 each for another $525,000, and four tickets on the third horse, Fet, winning $50,000 each for $200,000 more.

Anxious Day For Collins Family As They Try To Get Horse Race

IT WAS an anxious morning today for Mrs. A. Collins of Indian River as she sat by the radio and listened for results of the Irish Sweepstakes.

For fifteen minutes before and after the race was run, Mrs. Collins and three reporters twirled the dial of the radio in a vain attempt to find a station that was carrying the broadcast. A telephone call to the newspaper office settled their minds when they learned that "Snake Lightning" had not been placed in the money and "Peggy O'Shea" was richer only by $2,187.

May Collins, holder of the ticket, was still absent in the United States when the race was run today. Her mother could not say when she would arrive home, but thought she was already on her way. "If she does win I hope she puts the money to some use," Mrs. Collins said. "Of course it belongs to her, but money is not much good locked up."

Lloyd George

We shall have lost the respect of the world, and what is still worse, we shall have lost our own self-respect. And in the end there will be no peace. There will be war, and war without friends."

Mr. Lloyd George declared that in making the Munich accord "we handed over a little democratic state in Central Europe, wrapped in the Union Jack and the Tricolor, to a ruthless dictator who will deny freedom to both Czechs and Germans alike."

Defeat for Germany, Italy

Answering questions following the speech, he said he believed "the totalitarian nations would have been crushed like an eggshell" had there been war, despite Great Britain's defence weaknesses.

"I know something about armaments," he explained. "The French army is today the best army in Europe and the Russian army is the greatest army in the world so far as numbers are concerned and so far as its air force is concerned."

The statesman, one of the authors of the postwar settlement which created Czechoslovakia, spoke at the City Temple to the London Free Church Federation club.

Referring to the wars in China, Ethiopia and Spain and the partitioning of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Lloyd George said:

"We have descended during these years the ladder of dishonor rung by rung. Are we going—can we go—any lower?

"We all shared in a sort of thrill of relief which passed through this country when we realized we were to be spared at any rate for some time the horror and squalor of war.

Lost Honor, But Still No Peace

"But that relief is now beginning to be suffused with the sense of shame that we purchase peace at the price of conscience and honor.

"Alas! That is only one of a series of episodes of the same kind that have occurred, especially during the last seven years, where we have subordinated honor to the quiet life.

"We have lost honor but we have not gained tranquillity."

Chancellor Hitler, he said, "wanted to get rid of a democratic and free country (Czechoslovakia), contiguous to his own, where principles of liberty, equality and justice were freely administered to Sudeten Germans and Czechs alike.

"It was a plague spot as far as he was concerned and he was afraid that sooner or later the Germans would cross the frontier."

Declaring Great Britain's defences were in a "ghastly muddle," Mr. Lloyd George went on:

"We were not even ready to defend ourselves, let alone rescue others but is incompetence a justification for bad faith?

"Instead of 58 nations, you wouldn't get two to follow us today.

"I tell you what we shall find. We shall have forfeited honor; we shall have lost the respect of the world, and what is still worse, we shall have lost our own self-respect. And in the end there will be no peace. There will be war, and war without friends."

Mr. Lloyd George said the weaker nations of Europe were going to Hitler instead of to Great Britain and France and "pleading for mercy."

"We have had a transient peace which disregards conscience, which has trampled on good faith and honor," he said. "And we have turned a deaf ear to the cry of the oppressed.

"That is a bad peace, and a bad peace is no peace at all."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures floundered in the doldrums for the fourth consecutive session to-day, with weakness in outside markets and lack of interest influential factors in the dip. Quotations closed ½ to ¼ lower, with October at 58⅛, November 59½, December 58⅞ and May 62¼ cents.

There was a suggestion 200,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been worked for export, but it did not reflect in the local pit.

Operations were featureless from the outset. Trade was of a routine nature and confined to local spreading. Inter-market dealings were negligible.

Liverpool closed 1½ to ¼d lower.

Brightman Death Probed By Jury

The coroner's jury, under Dr. Herbert Young, which Tuesday night investigated the sudden death of John Brightman, hide and wool merchant, returned a verdict that Mr. Brightman's passing was due to a self-inflicted gunshot wound and that his state of depression as a result of the sudden death of his wife and continued worry over the health of one of his children had been responsible. Evidence showed that Mr. Brightman's reaction to the death of his wife the previous evening had been one of more than normal depression, and that the two had been devoted to each other. L. L. Maguire was foreman of the jury and eight witnesses, including three doctors and two police officers, were examined.

No Federal Vote Till '39 Fall Manion Thinks

MOOSE JAW, Oct. 26 — (CP). — Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion arrived here today to make his first Saskatchewan addresses since his election as National Conservative leader.

Dr. Manion had a busy time in Calgary yesterday. He met with party executives in the morning and the prospects in Alberta for the next Federal general election were discussed. With proper organization the party had a good chance to win its way to power, Dr. Manion said.

A public reception followed the Canadian club luncheon at which 600 heard Dr. Manion speak on "a layman's conception of the British Empire." George VI., he said, was following George V into the hearts of the people.

Dr. Manion said the throne and on it a King who reigns but does not rule, was the focal point for loyalty in the Empire. It preserved the Empire's stability and whatever stability the world today had largely rested on the Empire, the Savior of democracy and the preserver of liberties.

Lauds Bennett

Dr. Manion paid tribute to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, his predecessor in the conservative leadership. Of him, he said:

"Mr. Bennett is a brilliant businessman, orator and lawyer. He is in the highest sense a statesman. He isn't just a dead politician though indeed he'd be the first to admit he wasn't a very good live one.

"Mr. Bennett is one of whom you should be proud and whose services to Canada will long be remembered."

The Conservative party has a splendid opportunity to carry the next general election, Dr. Manion told party chieftains at a conference.

A 1939 Autumn Federal election was talked of, it was reported by party members, as it is generally considered no effort will be made to call a vote until after the visit of the King and Queen to Canada.

Mrs. C. Forestell is visiting relatives in Guelph.

Wild raspberries, looking as seasonable as those of three months ago, were proudly displayed by W. J. Westerfelt on Monday as having been picked on common land to the rear of the residence occupied by T. Quackenbush.

Another Spy Trial In Offing

Ernest Kuhrig, RIGHT, one of four persons arrested for alleged espionage activities at the Panama Canal, is shown here en route to face a preliminary hearing. Kuhrig and three others, one of them a woman, are charged with taking photographs of military fortifications. His co-defendants, all Germans, are employees of a steamship company, while Kuhrig is employed as a typewriter salesman.

Petroleum Looms

OTTAWA, Oct. 26—(CP).—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today Canadian output of Crude petroleum and natural gasoline advanced to 817,706 barrels in August from the preceding month's high record of 693,332 and the August, 1937, total of 291,641. Production of natural gas totalled 1,758,588,000 cubic feet compared with 1,583,803,000 in July and 1,428,900,000 in August 1937.

Uruguay's 1938 wool crop weighed nearly 110,000,000 pounds.

Less Power Used

OTTAWA, Oct. 26—(CP).—Output of central electric stations in Canada during September was 2,163,645,000 kilowatt hours compared with 2,204,291,000 in September, 1937, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Exports to the United States increased from 143,441,000 kilowatt hours to 151,691,000.

Claim Goodwood Man Burned Four Notes

BEAVERTON, Ont., Oct. 26—(CP)—Frank Brown, Goodwood, was committed for trial here yesterday on a charge arising out of the destruction of four promissory notes. He will be tried by a higher court in Whitby.

Charles Forsythe and Charles Watson, executors of the estate of Aleizer Forsythe which held Brown's notes to the amount of $1,000 said they called at the Brown home recently to collect the notes. Brown, they swore, picked up the notes as if to inspect them and then turned to the stove and put the notes in the fire.

Two officials of a bank at Stouffville, a Mr. Still, manager, and a Mr. Bell, both swore they had seen the notes in the bank in which they are employed. They were signed by Brown ,they said.

Brown was committed for trial. He was freed on bail of $1,000.

FAIRVIEW

Presentation Made Newlywed Couple

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRVIEW, Oct. 26.—A most delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Brown on Thursday evening when about fifty friends from the city and neighboring community enjoyed an evening of dancing.

During the evening Mrs. Brown's brother, Mr. Arthur Maynard, and his bride (who were recently married), were presented with a beautiful chest of silverware by Mr. Maynard's associates of Nicholls Hospital staff.

Lunch was served.

The Sunshine Class of Fairview Church were entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Milton Graham of the Lakefield road. The afternoon was spent in quilting, and a pot-luck supper was enjoyed. Among those present were: Mrs. Milton Graham, Mrs. Joseph Mann, Mrs. S. Hammond, Mrs. Cephas Heard, Mrs. Frank Trude, Mrs. Ernest Mahood, Mrs. John Boyce, Mrs. Harold Lewis, and Misses Ferne Armstrong, Opal Rosborough, Greta Reynolds and Olive Bell.

Gas masks are to be supplied farmers and city people in Northern Ireland.

M. P. Says Ananias Salvation Army Lass In Comparison To Adolf Hitler

Carlisle, Eng., Oct. 26 (CP Cable)

BRIG.-GENERAL E. L. Spears, Conservative member of parliament who abstained from voting after the House of Commons debate on the Munich agreement, told his constituents last night that he did not trust Chancellor Hitler and that 'Ananias, the liar of biblical notoriety compared with Hitler was just a Salvation Army lass."

Explaining his position, General Spears said peace through surrender meant "eventual loss of freedom and soul. He urged that the only way of reaching an understanding with a dictator was to be strong.

The government should make clear the point to which Great Britain was prepared to go in the return of colonies and should not concede an inch beyond that point.

"I would be prepared to take as a standard that we do not surrender a single British citizen without his consent," General Spears declared.

The sales tax may be introduced into Jamaica.

There's a Future in WELDING

● If you are employed in a mechanical shop operating a welding department, or have clearly established inclinations towards this branch of mechanics—congratulations. There's a good future in welding. But—make no mistake—you have to study to master the requirements of this exacting trade. Recognition . . . promotion . . . a more important, better paid job come through specialized training—training that is best acquired by careful, systematic study under competent teachers who take an individual interest in your progress.

I.C.S. tuition for welding was prepared with the cooperation of leading engineers in the gas and electric Welding field. It is adequate, authoritative and in line with present-day needs. Subjects covered include:

Metallurgy of Iron, Steel, Non-Ferrous Metals and Fuels. Gas-Welding Equipment.

Gas-Welding of Carbon Steels, Cast and Alloy Steels.

Gas Cutting. Gas Welding of Pipe, Non-Ferrous Metals and Overlaying. Gas Welding Examples.

Electricity for Welders. Arc Welding Equipment.

Arc Welding of Low Carbon Steels, Alloy Steels, Non-Ferrous Metals and Overlaying.

Resistance Welding. Inspection and Testing of Welds.

Will London Welcome Carol?

King Carol of Rumania is booked to pay a royal visit to London in November, and one might well wonder just how the British public will receive him in view of the official attitude toward Edward VIII when he persisted in marrying a woman who had been divorced. What happened then is such recent history that it is not necessary to review it.

Carol is king of Rumania and he in turn is regarded as being ruled by Magda Lupescu, a red-headed woman of great attraction. Twenty years ago when Carol's father Ferdinand was ruling in Rumania, the prince of the realm became enamored of Mlle. Zizi Lambrino, and Queen Marie tried to frustrate the affair, with the result that she strengthened it to such a degree that there was a marriage which the Rumanian supreme court after annulled. It was said Mlle. Lambrino was fond of Carol, but that did not prevent her from suing him for 10,000,000 francs when he later arrived in Paris.

Carol's next venture was in 1921, when he married Princess Helene, daughter of the king of Greece and to them was born a son Michael. Not long afterward Carol met Mgda Lupescu, and that affair become such a scandal he was given the option of behaving or surrendering the throne. The woman won and for five years Carol lived with her at various European places. When Ferdinand died in 1927 Carol's son then six years old, became king. Then it was that Carol returned and seized the throne and still has it. But the Lupescu woman trailed along and has never since departed.

There may be a section of the British public who will cheer for the visiting monarch, but there will be another large section which will not.

Why Continue The Slaughter

War despatches are not always as naked as some of the material now coming from Japanese sources in China. To quote briefly:

"In taking the two points the Japanese said they surrounded 10 Chinese divisions. The Japanese said they were bombing and machine-gunning these troops.

"The advancing Japanese said their forces found the countryside roadways covered with thousands of Chinese who died before air and artillery attacks."

Through it all there come assurances from various people that Japan can never conquer China, and they base their predictions for the most part on the fact that there are so many more Chinese than Nippons. But we are moved to question seriously if these people know what they are talking about. Apart from floods there has not been a serious setback to the Japanese army.

Despatches tell as plainly as words can that nothing short of a slaughter of Chinese is taking place to-day, and they have but a limited amount of equipment with which to beat back the continued attacks. China has seen enough so far to know that no other nation is going to come to her assistance because most of them are pre-occupied with their own safety and affairs. China's power to resist is not going to increase and terms for stopping the slaughter, distasteful though they may be, might just as well be discussed now as later.

313 Eggs In 51 Weeks

There will be no more all-Canada egg-laying contests at the Experimental Farm in Ottawa. One has just been completed which showed that a pen of White Leghorns had scored 2964.8 points. The ten hens know nothing at all about how those points are scored. Neither do we.

It is easier to get at the thing by learning that the ten hens in 51 weeks laid 2,767 eggs, and there was one bird which produced 309 eggs. In other pens there were odd birds which ran the individual score up to as high as 313 eggs in the 51 weeks. That would make about 44 days in the 51 weeks when that high hen laid no egg. That might give her time for moulting, but certainly no season for clucking as well. It is great production. When a hen can lay 26 dozen eggs in a year, and if they are sold for only 30 cents per dozen average, it makes a cash revenue of $7.80, and one with a few hundred hens geared to that pace would have a nice income from them.

In this contest the White Leghorn pens took first, second and fourth places, while a pen of Barred Rocks came second. And for a good chicken for all purposes well-bred White Leghorns and Rocks are hard to beat.

Serious Enough For Her

A young lady from Windsor went to Sault Ste. Marie to be married. Her husband-to-be sent her the money to pay for the trip, but when she arrived he could not be found. He is a sailor on a tanker. We noticed some reference to it in one of our Ontario papers and the writer was inclined to treat it lightly. Perhaps that is as it ought to be, and perhaps it is not.

We take it that such a trip would be an event in this girl's life; probably the greatest venture she had ever made. She had been provided with expense money for her wedding; she had gone through the business of leaving home and trusting her future entirely in the hands of the man she expected to marry.

When she reached Sault Ste. Marie she would probably go to the address she had been given and she would find no person there, and no message saying where the bridegroom was, and no explanation saying why he was not present. She knew no one in the city, and the money she had was largely spent. In a short time she would be penniless.

The situation was remedied when her parents in Windsor forwarded sufficient money to take her home, and when there she will meet with all the people she knew and they will probably wonder what happened and it will be a painful thing to explain.

It may be there is some hidden or subtle humor in such a story but at the moment we fail to see it. And we doubt whether the young lady could see it either.

Outside The Law

There has been a strike at a shoe plant in Port Colborne for seven weeks, and the 450 employees were apparently solidly united in their union affiliation. Recently a number of them stated they were ready to return to work possibly because being out of work so long had dried up their available resources.

The company was ready to open the plant and about 100 workers desired to enter but they found their way blocked by a strongly-formed picket line, and it was so formed that those desiring to enter were unable to do so. Police were on hand and there was fighting of the sort which generally marks such a situation.

It is also announced that a number of union sailors from nearby points who were not concerned about the strike in any way were on hand to assist the pickets.

There can be only one answer when that sort of violence breaks out because those who seek to prevent by force an employe entering premises are breaking the law. It is right enough to argue with the returning worker, but it is not right to use bodily force. That amounts to common assault. Neither is it right to call such a worker a "Scab," although that is frequently done. It is possible to take action with good chances of success for the use of that word.

We doubt whether the union shoemakers in Port Colborne will win their strike by using such tactics. They have set themselves outside the law as far as their efforts are concerned, and it is often a fact that they alienate a good deal of public sympathy and support.

Strikes have been called for a good many years, and the Examiner believes if one were to make a careful study of the results it would be found that insufficient funds in the hands of the union is the cause why these strikes fail in most cases. The members quickly are out of money and often enough there is no strike pay forthcoming, and if there is any it is small in amount. That need for assistance causes friction and friction ends with a section of the members deciding they might better go back to work. After that comes the fighting.

If a Man Started Farming

A farmer who lives not far from this city was discussing his own business a few days ago, and he concluded that farming was safe enough for the man who is established and with little debt, but very hard for the young man who wanted to start a place of his own, even if he were a farmer. His belief was that most farms passed from father to son, and the expenditure for bringing together all the stock and equipment had been attended to over a period of years and it had been done gradually.

An Examiner representative had an auction sale announcement and in it were listed all things to be offered at a clearing sale. The farmer was asked to look over the list to see if some fair estimate could be made of the amount of money represented. That is, if one were starting farming and had to provide such equipment, what would be the cash outlay? It made a rather interesting survey and prices had to be secured from several sources. There were such things as rubber-tired buggy and open buggy and we were informed there were so few of them sold now it would be difficult to find a price. There were several who hesitated about naming a price for a cutter as there were so few required now. Under the general heading of Implements we found the following and given with each is the price today:

Cream separator	$ 123.00
Binder 6 feet	266.00
Side rake	145.00
Disc drill	165.00
Spring tooth cultivator	88.00
Spring tooth drag, 4 sections	45.00
3 drum steel roller	98.00
14 plate disc	72.00
2-horse corn scuffler	105.00
1-horse corn scuffler	13.00
4 sections harrows	35.00
2 walking plows	44.00
Bobsleighs flat rack	70.00
Grain rack, stock rack	25.00
Chopper, speed jack, elevator	75.00
Root pulper	23.00
Gas engine	75.00
Hay fork and car	55.00
	$1,514.00

There was also a fairly long list of lesser articles and a price of $200 was put on them as a fair enough figure. The farmer himself looked over the list of horses being offered for sale and put down $400 as a price which they should bring at the sale; he allowed $650 for the cattle, and $250 for the pigs and shoats listed. He looked at the list of hay, grain, mangels, silage, etc., and put it at $600. The supply was large.

Added to the price of the implements that brought the amount to $3,614. The prices for stock and feed are of course only estimates but they are based on prevailing prices paid at auction sales. The announcement of the sale told about the household goods which were being offered, and the farm home and buildings, all of which were being put up for sale. The house has nine rooms, and the farm has 100 acres, and all buildings are equipped with Hydro. Four acres is bush. There is no way of putting a price on such a property, but it was agreed to put $5,000 as the price which a prospective customer might pay and at that price he would be getting plenty for his money. The figures now add up to $8,614 allowing nothing for household goods, and three persons having a fair knowledge of such matters agreed that the farmer had an investment there of probably close to $10,000.

It was admitted there was nothing freakish in the equipment. There were a number of things which could be added in the way of equipment; it was mentioned there was no tractor, no gang plow and no hay loader and no mechanical milking equipment.

Our farmer informant concluded: "That is what I mean by saying it is a formidable undertaking for a young man to start farming today. Prices for produce are low and he would have a big investment to work against. I really do not think it could be done."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Payroll for the night staff in a Hamilton factory is reported to have vanished, and so would the prospects of the night staff getting paid.

In case of war Ontario might call her pheasant shooters to arms and allow them to carry their shot guns. Such a weapon is not effective at long range but can make things rather uncomfortable when they get close up.

Before Canadians go too deeply into the question of returning the colonies to Germany it might be well to note that some of the London papers are now saying it is something which might as well be done as Britain has no use for them and has plenty of land elsewhere.

Leopold Macaulay contends if the western farmer gets a bonus from the government on the wheat sold then the Ontario farmer should be treated in a similar way. It would suit the average farmer better to let the price of feed stay low and have a bonus on beef and bacon.

Gentleman in Toronto, much opposed to gambling, said he was "terribly embarrassed" when he found that his wife held a winning ticket on a sweepstakes worth about $2,175. It may be evened up as the wife will probably feel embarrassed because her husband feels embarrassed.

Toronto police surprised two burglars trying to blow a safe in which there was $10,000. We wish these reports would now and then tell the nature of the business yielding the $10,000 amount as young fellows come around now and then inquiring what sort of trade or profession they should follow.

The John Inglis Co. has served notice of motion for libel action in connection with the publication of an article which led to the present protracted Bren machine gun inquiry at Ottawa. It begins to look as though our enemies—if we have any—will wait a long time before they hear the hum or crack of the Bren gun pointed at them.

Wee Angus

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus heard about a show, where dogs and cats and rabbits go, the name's a fancy sound; he knows some boys who show in there, it's quite a goodly sized affair, he wants to take his hound.

¶ The trouble is, Wee Angus said, you have to go and write ahead, that puts him deep in thought; because the entry cards they sign, have got on them a dotted line, to say what kind he's got.

¶ Wee Angus' dog is partly hound, but that's not easy to be found, it's in his color scheme; there's places of brown and red, and then in patches on his head, between a grey and green.

¶ His tail's too bushy for a hound, it trails a little toward the ground, his feet are not much better; he's thinner than a hound should be, at times it seems most sure to me, he's something like a setter.

¶ His nose is not like hounds should be, and that's as plain as mud to see, it looks like collie type; it's funny when you hear him bark, its' puzzling when you note each mark, he's not exactly right.

¶ So Angus puzzles quite a lot, to find what sort of dog he's got, before he goes to show; there seems about eight dogs in one, and just how entering can be done—I really do not know.

In the Army and Work In Shops

BRITAIN'S DYNAMIC, ambitious War Secretary, Leslie Hore-Belisha, who last year put through a tradition-shattering shakeup of the Regular Army, has now suddenly announced complete reorganization of the nation's home defense force, the 200,000-man volunteer Territorial Army.

The Territorials, familiarly known as the "Terriers," have charge of Britain's anti-aircraft and coastal defenses, the balloons barrages (rows of sausage-shaped gas bags, suspending thin, steel cables, which will be anchored to truck-winches and floated above the industrial centres in wartime) and emergency hospital work. In a decision, long expected and accelerated by the recent war scare, the War Secretary announced that the Terriers from now on will be patterned after the Regular Army. They will retain their anti-aircraft and other duties, but four divisions will be mechanized, equipped with more war-like teeth: light and heavy machine guns, anti-tank guns and tanks.

Main drawback to Hore- Belisha's scheme to mechanize and equip this reorganized army is lack of weapons. Because of Britain's still-lagging rearmament program, even the Regular Army is not adequately supplied with heavy machine guns, anti-tank and anti-aircraft devices, and observers are of the opinion that it will be many months before sufficient arms can be spared for the Terriers.

A territorial enlists for four years and spent two weeks a year in camp, attends 20-45 one-hour drills per year, except in wartime or during their annual training period, the Terriers cannot be called up to deal with civil disturbances.

Suppose Great Britain is at war with a Continental power. A squadron of enemy bombers darts out of the fog hanging over the North Sea. British coastal defense guns bark out, several bombers hurtle earthward but a few jab through the curtain of fire and streak for vulnerable inland industrial centres. Word is flashed ahead to the factories. There machines shudder to a stop, squads of workmen, volunteer members of the factory workers' army, drop their tools pull on light canvas overalls and race to man anti-aircraft batteries set up in the ground. Officers of this army - in - overalls strap on Sam Browne belts as their distinguishing mark of rank. Many a bomber is brought down.

This was the picture broadcast last week by War Secretary Hore-Belisha as he issued the first call for volunteers to join a new army of British workers, which is to be formed as a reserve of the Territorial Army, which is a reserve of the regular forces. Desperately striving to enlist every available male in the defense forces without having to resort to conscription, the War Secretary announced that the new reserve-of-a reserve will be made up of volunteers between 38 and 50, many of them ex-servicemen, too old for Army or Territorial Army service.

As for planes, here is an estimate based on figures for all kinds of effective fighting craft (day and night bombers, fighting, reconnaissance, transport):

Soviet Union	5,000 to 6,500 planes
Germany	4,000 to 4,500 planes
Italy	3,700 to 4,200 planes
France	3,200 to 3,500 planes
Britain	3,000 to 3,500 planes
U. S. A.	2,700 to 3,000 planes
Japan	more than 2,500 planes

Any quantitative estimate must be corrected not so much for qualitative factors—although these are important—as in the light of how rapidly each great power is increasing its yearly or monthly production of reasonably effective fighting aircraft. In acceleration of aircraft production Germany has pioneered, led the whole European field and may still be leading, despite frantic efforts to accelerate production by the other great powers, notably Britain.

MAN WHO RELAXED.

(New York Herald Tribune)

DOLLAR JOHNSON, a veteran coal miner working in an old section of the Lilly Meade mine near Owensboro, Ky., found himself in a dreadful predicament. Falling slate blocked a hole leading from the room where he was preparing to do some blasting. His lamp went out, and there he was in the dark, trapped. In such a situation most men, as experience has shown, would have tried to "do something." They would have wandered about, trying to explore in the blackness, hoping against hope for some way out. Then they would shout, their hearts pounding inside their shirts, and sometimes they would go mad. Not the calm Mr. Johnson. He merely sat down and waited, doing nothing, because he knew perfectly well there was nothing he could do. After four days they found him. "I knew you'd find me," he said. For his placid acceptance to an unpleasant situation Mr. John commands admiration, a touch of wonderment, and deserves emulation by thousands of the tense and jumpy, America across.

ENGLISH HITLER.

(London, Cor., Ottawa Journal)

AN ENERGETIC little debate took place, in the smoke room of a well-known London club, apropos the European situation. What seemed generally agreed was that it is a tragedy and a crime that one individual should be allowed to hold in his hands the destinies of half the world.

"Could you imagine," asked an Irishman excitedly, "what would happen to anybody who tried to play the Hitler role over in Ireland? Why, he would be looking down the barrel of a couple of gunmen automatics in a fortnight!" Somebody asked what would happen to a Hitler in England. "Oh," came the suave response from a quiet John Bull, "that's quite simple. He would be spouting away at Hyde Park Corner, and nobody would be listening to him!"

Frivolous though this smoke room dialogue may sound, I think it just about sums up the racial psychologies concerned. It also falls well in line with the ancient adage about nations getting the settlement they deserve.

"If you're called out to a fire today, Arthur, take that rubbish out of my yard with you and burn it."—Humorist.

• Lindbergh a "Liar" Says Soviet

IN JOSEPH STALIN'S most dramatic move since the last Moscow "purge trial," the biggest gun of the Soviet press this week opened up against Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh.

The official Communist Party organ Pravda ("Truth") charged: "He (Lindbergh) had an order from English reactionary circles to prove the weakness of Soviet aviation and give Chamberlain an argument for capitulation at Munich in connection with Czechoslovakia. The bribed liar, Lindbergh, fulfilled the order of his masters. That explains everything!"

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, according to Pravda, were "cordially and sincerely received by the Soviet people" when they visited Russia in 1933, but last August "nobody invited him (to Russia) and if he was permitted to come it was because Americans had requested it."

Inferentially, U. S. Embassy Charge d'Affaires Alexander Kirk, with whom Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh stayed in Moscow and who handled the arrangements, was suspected. Pravda charged that on the Lindbergh's return to England the Colonel told "guests of Lady Astor" that "Germany possesses such a strong air force it is capable of defeating the combined air fleets of England, France, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia."

To refute what the Colonel was supposed to have affirmed, Pravda supplied a deposition signed by eleven leading Soviet airmen who called Charles Augustus Lindbergh a "stupid liar, a lackey and a flatterer of German Fascists." "According to information in the highest quarters in London, Paris and Prague," said the Soviet airmen, "the Soviet air fleet is quantitatively at least equal to the combined German and Japanese air forces and is qualitatively much superior."

In a backhanded reference to the present "purge" in the Soviet fighting services the eleven accusers wrote: "Soviet aviation, according to Lindbergh, has been left without leadership and is now in a condition of chaos. It is hardly necessary to deny such an obvious life....Lindbergh performed such a non-stop flight into the realm of calumny and slanderous fabrications that he at once beat all the records of Baron Munchausen. . . . For a long time he has not made any aviation records and as a flier he does not represent anything worth while. . . . The few flights which he is now making in his little plane are now performed in this country by any member of the Aviation Club, any peasant, worker or student."

• Do Boys Like Taking Baths

(From the Atlantic Monthly)

FOR SOME MONTHS past I have witnessed the meeting of an irresistible force and an immovable object. The irresistible force is my desire to have my 12 year old nephew, who is temporarily in my care, take a bath. The immovable object is Robert himself, who keeps as far away from a bathtub as is possible in a modern and urban society.

Given a dirty boy, warm water, plenty of soap, and fluffy dry towels, why shouldn't there be a bath, I asked. I was soon to learn the answers—many answers.

At first the reasons were prosaic. Robert didn't think he had time for a bath before school. By the time we finished arguing, Robert was right.

After the first week I capitulated to the extent of compromise. Some nights are bath nights, and some are not. On the latter, our apartment is as serene as a convent garden; but on bath nights the train dispatcher at the Grand Central station is not as busy as my nephew. All the clubs to which he belongs hold long sessions; teachers have assigned extraordinary amounts of homework; visitors and telephones are imminent from dinner on past bedtime. As these excuses wear thin under what I strive to make a hard and cold blue eye, more imagination develops. The most elaborate, though least successful, flight of fancy was a sprained ankle carefully bandaged by Robert about an hour before bath time. In his opinion the bandage should not be removed; in mine, especially after I caught him limping with the wrong foot, a good soaking in, hot water was just what Robert's ankle needed, not to mention the rest of him.

I can hear the laments of those who profess to know how to train bent twigs into straight and sturdy oaks; "My dear, it's your method. Properly handled, boys take to water like ducks."

Maybe they are right. Exhausted as I am from a five month sanitary campaign, I can only say: Six out of every 10 women wishing to usher themselves from a depression world jump into a river, whereas most men prefer a dry exit with a pistol: Maybe some boys are different, but I doubt it.

• How These Wars Get Started

WHAT'S THIS HERE plebiscite they're talkin' about over in Europe? the hardware man asked me the other day.

As near as I can figure out, I says, it's a scheme for 'em to vote which country they'd rather have take all their money for taxes and all their boys for the army.

It ain't a bad idee at that, if they'd go far enough with it, I says. What they'd ought to do is have all them folks in Europe vote on all goin' into one big country. Then they wouldn't have no borders to build forts on, and they could spend their money for beefsteak instead of machine guns.

That wouldn't work, says the hardware man. There's too many different kinds of 'em.

No more different kinds than there are here, I says. We have, says an exchange, Irishmen and Swedes and Germans and French and every other kind of folks over here, and settle down and borrow each other's plows and swap chewin' tobacco and git along without any fuhrers or Maginot lines. If they can do it here they can do it over there.

The reason they split Europe up into a lot of little countries in the first place wasn't to make a more abundant life for the pheasants, I says. It was to make jobs for their surplus kings. Then each king got jealous of the others and wanted to have the biggest army, and then he had to fight with it to prove it was the best, and that's how the idee got started that a Frenchman couldn't get along with a German, or a Polack with a Bohunk.

It's all crazy, I says, and I'm mighty glad for one that the Atlantic Ocean ain't no narrower.

ATTACK ON RELIGION.

(Detroit Free Press)

THE MESSAGE of Pope Pius to the Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans was a new revelation of the seriousness with which leaders of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish churches regard the attacks that are being made on religion in many parts of the world today.

These leaders recognize that these attacks are not directed against any one church or creed; they aim at the destruction of all organized religion.

And if organized religion is to survive and carry on its work, a united front must be presented to the irreligious leaders of authoritarian states by all churches and all people who believe in the power of religion to make this a better world in which to live.

The Difference

"My dear," said the husband, "if you hadn't taken so long dressing we shouldn't have missed that train."

"If you hadn't made me run all the way to the station, darling," replied the wife, "we shouldn't have had to wait so long for the next."

CARE, PAINS, TROUBLE

The law allows any executor and trustee compensation for his care, pains and trouble expended in and about the estate. Whether the executor is a private person or a Trust company makes no difference; remuneration as allowed by the Courts is measured by the work and responsibility undertaken. ¶ In return for this, you can, by appointing the Toronto General Trusts, obtain a thoroughly experienced handling of your affairs. You can be certain that the most will be made of your estate and all possible economies effected. You will also obtain what is of great importance to your beneficiaries, permanence and accessibility at all times. ¶ Established in 1882, this Trust company has had fifty-six years experience as executor and trustee. We invite your inquiries.

Religious Movie Shown Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 26.—To view an unusual presentation of moving pictures, Millbrook people packed the main auditorium of St. Andrew's United Church on Friday evening. The entire production, with the exception of the Canadian woollen mills, was filmed in England and is something new in picture entertainment.

Following a talkie reel on the woollen industry the lights were turned on while Rev. A. L. Sisco read the story of Barabbas, Mark 27, and Rev. Horton, new pastor of Fraserville circuit, led in prayer.

The religious dramatization of Barabbas was striking in every detail and the dialogue easily followed. Another picture, "The Common Round," left a lesson to all, the thought of never giving up but to stick it out to the last.

Benediction pronounced by Rev. Sisco concluded the extraordinary entertainment.

Institute Euchre

A progressive euchre party was held on Friday evening by the Millbrook Women's Institute in the Waverly club rooms, as their first activity for the fall season. Ten tables were played until about 11 p.m. when the tallies were gathered.

Mrs. J. McKnight was awarded first prize for the ladies and Mr. J. Clarke for the gentlemen, consolation prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. J. Barringer.

Dainty refreshments were then served. Mrs. G. O. Fallis was the convenor in charge assisted by Mesdames J. W. Hilton, B. B. Dawson, E. C. Richards and W. H. Armstrong, conveners of the groups in their society.

Miss F. Morgan spent the week-end with friends in Trenton.

Mr. A. Fallis had several ribs cracked recently when he was kicked by a colt.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Tate were host and hostess to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr and the Continuation School staff, Miss F. Morgan, Miss S. Buckingham and Mr. W. Ziegler on Friday evening.

Mrs. G. Locke is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. Perrin of Cavan these days.

Dr. J. W. Wright has purchased the former Kells home and will move into his new residence early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Raine and Mrs. O. Raine of Toronto were week-end guests of Mrs. L. M. Davis.

Mrs. Gerald Lowes and son Ronald of Fowler's Corners are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lunn.

Neighborhood Centres Save Traffic Chaos

DETROIT, Oct. 26—(AP).—Development of neighborhood retail centres has saved Detroit from traffic chaos, L. P. Reaume, past president of the eDtroit real estate board, told the metropolitan planning conference here. If they had not developed, Reaume said, traffic downtown would have been so heavy the city would suffer heavy economic losses.

Reaume cited the new centres as examples of the difficulty of a long-term zoning plan. He said any future plan must anticipat a growing circle of neighborhood retail centres with industrial plants continuing to move towards the city's outskirts because present production methods require one-story factory buildings, which, in turn, require more acreage than is available close-in.

Tory Rally Held In Warsaw Hall

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 26 — The members of the Conservative Association met in Warsaw Town Hall on Friday evening. Gordon Fraser, president, was in the chair. On the platform were Wallace Anderson and Earl Ivey.

Mr. Fraser asked a good attendance at the convention to be held in Marmora. Delegates, both men and women, were nominated with seconds for each.

T. P. Lancaster appeared for a few minutes. Mr. Fraser announced an "At Home" in Legion Hall, Peterborough, next Friday evening, to which all present were cordially invited.

As soon as this business meeting was over a good number of young people gathered for a dance. All present had a good time.

MADOC

Mrs. A. Smith attended the Belleville convention on Thursday and Friday last as official delegate from Madoc Women's Institute accompanied by Mrs. C. Henderson as an interested member.

Mrs. T. L. Nickle of Madoc attended the area convention in Belleville as federated delegate from North-Hastings district. While in attendance Mrs. Nickle was elected as federated representative for Belleville area to the provincial board of the Women's Institute, which meets in Toronto in November.

Mr. Cleveland Bonisteel of Lindsay has been spending a few days with his mother in Madoc, and Mrs. Bonisteel will return with him to Lindsay to spend the winter months.

Mrs. John McBain has returned to her home in Madoc after spending the summer months with her son, Mr. James McBain, in Peterborough.

CAVAN

Institute Plans Euchre Parties

CAVAN, Oct. 26.—Mrs. G. Clarke, Millbrook, offered the hospitality of her home for the October meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute, on Thursday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. D. Tinney, was in the chair, and a good attendance of members and several visitors were present.

Mrs. Keegan reported for the flower and fruit committee, that a box of chocolates had been sent to a convalescent in a member's home, and the secretary read a letter of appreciation for it.

Mrs. O. Carley was appointed delegate to the Women's Institute convention in November in Toronto. It was carried by motion that the usual Legislative grant should be received.

Mrs. R. S. Staples was put on the slate as a convenor for agriculture; Miss J. Sutton, for health and child welfare, and Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, for historical research, and Mrs. D. Tinney for home economics.

A letter was read from Mrs. Aiken stating that they would be unable to bring the cooking school sponsored by the Canada Starch Co. to Cavan this fall.

There was discussion concerning the advisability of the Women's Institutes starting a national magazine for Institutes. Fifteen members signified their willingness to subscribe if such a magazine was started. The result of the vote will be sent to the convention in November where results from other Institute branches will be tabulated and further discussion given.

Course on Cotton

Mrs. Tinney reported that the girls were again going to take a course in economics during the winter months on "Cotton accessories for the bedroom," and she had consented to again be their leader. This decision brought applause as "Le Sentier du Lait Club" had been very successful last winter.

The appeal for help for crippled children was laid over until later.

It was decided to have a series of euchre parties to raise funds.

It was decided to ask the Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street Church, Peterborough, to lecture on his trip abroad during the past summer. Arrangements are to be made by the president and secretary.

Mrs. E. Fallis was in charge of an interesting program. Miss J. Sutton gave a fine paper on "Is Worry a Disease?" advancing some thought for producing ideas which might alleviate this malady common to most people, particularly in these uncertain times.

Mrs. Fred. Smith contributed interesting current events, the most interesting being that the King and Queen will tour Canada next summer.

Mrs. G. Clarke read an interesting and informative article on "Children's Hallowe'en Fun."

Mrs. Melville Carr cleverly described the first session of the buymanship course which she had taken. This course is designed that those taking it and imparting it to their groups may learn to spend money wisely. It is a vital part of our education.

Mrs. Carr demonstrated judging silk, linen and cotton fabrics by burning.

Lunch was served and the usual visiting half-hour enjoyed.

The November meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Smith's group. The topic will be "Peace," and the roll call answered by a current event.

CASSEROLE OF FISH AND PEAS

2 cups cooked or canned fish, flaked
2 cups cooked peas
2 cups white sauce
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced thinly
1 tablespoon of lemon juice
Pepper and salt (if needed)

Place in layers in a greased casserole . . . a layer of sauce, then fish, lemon juice, peas and seasonings, topping with pie crust or fine buttered bread crumbs. Chopped pickles or stuffed olives may be added if desired. Bake in a hot oven 20 to 30 minutes, or until the crust is brown and the filling is hot. Serves 6.

OVEN STEAMED FISH WITH PINEAPPLE

Place slices or fillets of fish in a well-oiled baking pan and sprinkle generously with salt. Place the pan in a moderate oven—350 to 400 deg. Fahr. —and cook until the fish is tender (about 10 minutes). The fish is cooked by the steam which is produced from the juices drawn out of the fish in cooking. Arrange the cooked fish on a hot platter and garnish with baked, broiled or fried pineapple rings and sprigs of fresh parsley.

TWEED

Store At Sulphide Burns To Ground

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 26.—While residents were sleeping, fire broke out in the general store and adjoining home of E. J. Curry, Sulphide, early Monday morning, resulting in complete demolition of the frame structure. The fire was noticel by some youths who were sleeping, fire broke out in the o'clock. They immediately aroused the household, members of which were able to leave the burning building without injury.

The cause of the fire is yet unknown, and the loss is partly covered by insurance. The building with its contents of merchandise and household furnishings was completely destroyed. Mr. Curry had purchased the business about two years ago from Mr. F. C. Bowners.

Broke, English Youth Who Never Wor Tries Honesty In Calgary Ad

Calgary, Oct. 26 (CP).

C. B. STEWART, a young Englishman whose tour came to an abrupt end in Calgary, hopes honesty will pay with a capital of only 15 cents, Stewart yesterday sought a job by running the following advertisement in a local newspaper:

"Young gentleman (so-called) ex-English public school (so what) desires position (or job). Loathes work, mental or physical, but has to live (don't ask why). Immediate emplo imperative (unfortunately).

"The governor thought i ter that I should be on m for a while," Stewart told ers today.

"I'm really quite willi work," he added. "I adr have no training."

The only job he ever h driving a racing car but h sidered that a doubtful qu tion in Calgary.

Halifax Sees True World Peace Only By Way Of Armed Peace

EDINBURGH, Oct. 25 (C.P.). — True world peace may only be attained through a preparatory ordeal of "armed peace,' Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, said here last night in explanation of Great Britains accelerated rearmament program.

Lord Halifax, making his first statement outside Parliament since the Munich accord, defended the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia as a lesser evil than a disastrous European war which could not have saved Czechoslovakia from loss of man-power and resources—losses far greater than those she had to accept without war.

A reference he made to the general desire of the British public to "see the state make a greater call upon the services of individuals" was linked by observers with reports the Government planned to create some sort of ntaional service register of available strength.

He also may have hinted at increased taxation when he stated that "for some the sacrifice will be of money, in order to provide financial resources for what we need to do."

Keeping Old Friends.

Viscount Halifax expressed the Government's faith that the four-power co-operation initiated at Munich when the heads of government of Germany, France, Italy, and Great Britain gathered around a table, could be developed toward the goal of a general understanding. Emphasizing that no opportunities must be lost in working toward this end, he declared:

"In doing so, we will not abandon old friends in search of new. But we do intend, if we can, to improve our own relations with all who are willing to improve their relations with us."

He admitted that "profound differences of thought upon many fundamental things" would place difficulties in the path of peace and branded the "gospel of force" as the "real enemy to the free growth of confidence between nations."

While Britain must rearm, he warned against adopting this gospel as her own and against "resigning ourselves for all time to nothing better than the necessary attempt to meet force by force."

Lord Halifax' defence of British rearmament was in reply to recent criticism to Germany, and followed a reply made last week by Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary.

No One-sided Armaments.

The Foreign Secretary said that "if this country is to play its full part with others in securing peace, it must be able to speak with equal weight. One-sided armament and one-sided disarmament are both impossible and give no help to peace."

At another point, he stressed, "It is not our custom, and it is certainly not our desire, to interfere in other people's business, as long as they do not interfere with ours."

"It may be," he said, "that just as Dante made the entry into Paradise through war or purgatory, so we, if we are to reach true peace, have to pass through a stage of armed peace to get there."

War Memorial Is Thing Of Beauty

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26. — "There's no trouble at all in getting contributions," said A. H. McKeel in reply to The Examiner's question as to the most recent developments on Campbellford's Cenotaph. Mr. McKeel, who has been made an honorary member of the Legion in recognition of his many services to the veterans, stood just a trifle tired as he surveyed the work done during the past two weeks. "It's been a big job, but it's still in its infancy," he declared looking toward the large grey stone which bore the names of the "boys" from Campbellford and Seymour who gave their lives during the War. It required 85 yards of earth to fill in outside the heavy cement fence and memorial gardens which his mind created last summer. There is now a terrace from eight to ten feet wide and perhaps two feet high all around in which red cedars have been spaced every eight feet. "These trees will be trimmed in various shapes next spring," he went on while picturing in his own mind how the memorial was going to appear next summer as the three rows of trees took shape above the well kept grass.

Lindy's Wife Attends Party

Oratorical Contest Held At Roseneath

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 26.—An elimination contest to select speakers to represent Roseneath Public School at the speaking contest on October 27 in the Orange Hall here was held in the senior room of the school on Friday night. Harry Mouncey presided.

The program opened with a chorus, "I Know a Fairy Land," sung by the junior room pupils under the direction of their musical director, Leslie Wildman. Five junior girls, Audrey Scott, Frances Crego, Joan McMillan, Pauline Down and Barbara Adams, sang a song. Gene Brown was the first speaker. He told a story, "When Canada Was Young," a story of hostile Indians, road construction, early dwellings and the training of character during this period.

The senior room pupils directed by Mr. Wildman sang a chorus, "Billy Boy," with Perry Brisbin in a clear, sweet soprano taking Billy Boy's part.

Doreen Nichol, the second speaker, told "The Story of Rayon," its process of manufacture, its sales and outputs.

"Come to the Fair" was sung by the senior room pupils.

Adelaine Mouncey, the third speaker, spoke on "The Story of Ontario Hydro-Electric."

A song, sung by Mavis Thackeray, Doris Spiers, Lois Dowler and Buddy Radley, junior room pupils, so pleased the audience it had to be repeated.

Elsie Yule, the fourth speaker, told of David Livingstone's life, his death and burial at Westminster Abbey.

The judges' findings were reported by C. W. Varcoe, and were: First place, Adelaine Mouncey; second place, Gene Brown. The judges were Mrs. D. Brisbin and Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Roseneath, and J. Loukes, Alderville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thain had as their recent visitors, Mr. and Mrs. William Blakley, Mr. and Mrs. George Dunn of Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thain and sons of Warkworth.

Mrs. D. Greenly of Havelock was a Saturday guest with Mr. and Mrs. William McLaughlin and family.

Minimum For Red Caps

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26 (AP).—Red Caps may expect but need depend on tips no longer. Under the new United States wage-hour law, they will receive a minimum of 25 cents an hour from employer railroads. They must report tips, and if these total less than the minimum the companies will make up the difference. The Pennsylvania railroad announced yesterday it would pay the minimums to porters. Officials said other railroads planned to do the same.

TO BOOST TAX ON DIESELS

Egypt's plan to boost the tax on vehicles powered by Diesel motors is reported to be an effort to compensate the State Treasury for the loss caused by the substitution of Diesel oil for benzine.

Bancroft Friends Honor Bride-Elect

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Oct. 26.—In honor of Miss Nita Munro, whose marriage takes place on Saturday next, the members of Our Lady of Mercy church held a linen shower on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. M. J. McAloine.

The evening was spent in playing games

Just before lunch the guests were ushered to the living room where Miss May Fitzgerald assisted the bride-elect in opening the parcels which were piled on a table decorated in pink and white.

Miss Munro thanked the guests very charmingly for the gifts and expressed the pleasure she hoped to have in using these souvenirs of the many happy years spent in Bancroft.

Guests present included Mrs. G. Gordon, Mrs. John Kavanagh, Mrs. Don. Card, the Misses Alice Kavanagh, Jean and Ursela Russell, Laura and Jean McKenzie, Margaret and Edith Joynt, Bernice and Emily Munro, Margaret, Callista and Marie McAlpine, Mary Fitzgerald, Phylis Stoughton, Susan Reid, Mayme O'Shaughnessy, Loretto O'Brien, Helen Hagerman and Loretta Freeman.

To Probe Charges

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 26— (CP) —Kingston city council decided last night to ask county judge H. A. Lavell to probe fully counter charges between council and Dr. W. W. Sands, former city clerk.

Dr. Sands, who has announced he will be a candidate for mayor in 1938, has charged council is attempting to have him disqualified. Council accused the doctor of being remiss in his duties as city clerk.

CONTREVENT 100 TO 7 SHOT WINS CESAREWITCH STAKE

Canadiens, Rangers, Black Hawks Starting No Amateurs; Sending Best Comers To Minors

National Hockey League Clubs may set a modern low mark for accepting amateurs into their ranks without minor league tryouts this season. Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks have shown no intentions of putting amateurs into their starting lineups and will send their most promising candidates to minor league clubs.

Detroit Red Wings are considering Harvey Teno for a goaltending job, but he has to beat out the veteran Normie Smith. Toronto Maple Leafs have only three amateurs left in camp—Wally Stanowski, Don Metz and Bobby Laurent—and all three may be sent to the Leaf's Syracuse farm.

New York Americans expect Pat Egan, a defenceman will make good in his first season in the big show, while Boston Bruins, despite a successful 1937-38 showing, may be the only team to start with more than one man just up from amateur ranks. Pat McReavy, Arry Frost, Roy Conacher and Terry Reardon, who signed pro contracts last week-end are being considered for places on Bruins' third forward line.

New York Rangers handed Americans a 7-1 licking last night at Saskatoon. The win was the third straight for the Broadway Blueshirts in the six-game series. The young third line of Phil Watson, Bryan Hextall and Dutch Hiller figured in five of the seven goals.

In the Wheat Belt.

The New York squads continue their wheat league games tomorrow night at Edmonton, where that city's great junior line of 1934 probably will be reunited. Bill Carse, a member of Rangers' Philadelphia farm, played on a line with Neil and Mac Colville for Edmonton Athetic Club, and Manager Lester Patrick is expected to put the three of them together for the home folks.

Teno is a worry to Manager Jack Adams at Detroit. Adams wants to give the young goalie a chance in Red Wanes' exhibition with other pro organizations, but would have to sign him to a profesisonal contract. If Teno didn't show ability under fire, the contract would be a nuisance to both Adams and the goalie.

Hugh O'Leary, another of the amateurs, showed independence in Montreal Canadiens' quarters. The Habitants offered him a place with their New Haven farm, but Hugh said he would rather play amateur hockey at Port Arthur, Ont. So he went home and Canadiens can only hope that he will report again next Fall.

Canadiens split into two squads last night at Valleyfield, Que., and the Whites trimmed the Reds, 13-7, Jimmy Ward leading the way with three goals. Gus Mancuso scored three times for the losers.

When the Whites walloped the Blues, 17-4, in Toronto Maple Leafs' workout at Galt, Ont., Pep Kelly bagged three goals and three assists for the winners. Turk Broda, Leafs' regular goaltender, was the target for the Whites' barrage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(AP). — Well, slap my saddle . . . You can actually buy Army-Notre Dame football tickets right out in public this year. . . Army is putting a big batch, nearly 100, on sale to-day at a paltry $4.40 a throw. . . In other years the game always was sold out a month or so beforehand. . . . There also are some real throwaways, box seats at $6.60, available . . . With one of them you can go down and rub shoulders with generals, politicians and such. . . . The Subway Alumni are just as worked up as ever about the game. . . Over on the campus (Times Square) they're practising songs and yells. . . . Wait til lthe guys that buy those 100 seats start to yell. . . The seats are down near the end zone.

Tony Lazzeri has the itching foot again. . . Last time he felt like this the Yankees released him and he landed with the Cubs. . . Now the gossips say he's headed for the Browns. . . . Where he'll still be valuable; he knows the American League better than President Will Harridge. . . . Ace Parker, the Brooklyn footballer, is right worried over the Duke Blue Devils' attack. . . . "They got a line all right," says the ace—who has shaved that moustache—"but you can't win many games if you don't score."

Turk Edwards, that 260-pound tackle of the Washington Redskins, admits his full name is Albert Glen Edwards, but says no one has called him that since he was a sophomore at Washington State. . . . Turk says Bronko Nagurski was the hardest running back he ever met—"Just like a locomotive."

Henry Armstrong isn't worried about the 'bolo' punch Ceferino Garcia throws. . . "How's he gonna hit me with it," asked Henry, "when I'll be inside working on him." . . . Gossip on Cauliflower Row gives Henry another year on top at the most; the boys think his terrific pace will overtake him then. . . "He'll go back as fast as he came up," said one.

Lou Little got talking about his star passer, Sid Luckman . . . "What do you think of him, Lou," someone asked. . . "Why, I'm very kindly disposed toward him," returned the maestro.

30 Years in Politics

OTTAWA, Oct. 26—(CP)—Today marks the 30th anniversary of the entry into Canadian political life of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, now on holiday at Kingston, Jamaica. On Oct. 26, 1908, Mr. King was elected Liberal member for North Waterloo. He was immediately taken into the cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Prior to his engaging actively in politics, the Prime Minister had occupied the position of Deputy Minister of Labor.

Gridiron Expert Stands Corrected For Mistake

Red Burnett of Toronto Star, who last Friday wrote that the only sure thing in Saturday's grid list was Sarnia to swamp Orfuns, took quite a ride over his prediction when Orfuns won. He now states that he felt very small when he picked up the late edition of a Montreal paper and read how Peterborough had whipped the Imperials. Red adds:

"We recalled telling how a few of the Sarnians would have to miss the train and Mr. Stirling break a leg before the Orfuns could win." Well, Stirling didn't break a leg, and most of Massucci's regulars were in action, and the Petes went out and won.

We could have crawled into any small hole just about then. It seems a few of our Peterborough friends got a great delight out of our "BIG MISTAKE."

The following is a letter they wrote and mailed to yours truly on Saturday night:

"Dear Red,—So far this season have taken it on the chin every Saturday over the Peterborough Orfuns entry in the O.R.F.U., but do we ever feel great to-night!

"Quote Friday night's column: "The only thing that . . . miss the train for the Liftlock City,' 'Sarnia to swamp Peterborough.'

"It's your move, Red!

"Two Liftlockers."

"Heh! Heh!"

We don't like that "Heh! Heh!"

The only move left for us is to send along congratulations to Bill Irwin, Peterborough coach. Before the season opened Bill told us his men would win one or more games. Declared his men beat Nationals, but I guess Bill is happier at scalping the Imperials.

Tommy Loudon, business manager of the Balmy Beach, expressed no great surprise at the Peterborough win. It seems that Mr. Loudon told us last week, after his Balmies returned from the Lift Lock City, that Irwin and his men were going to be awfully tough from there in. ....One star for Tommy, teacher!

Just Friends—For the Moment

Come Nov. 3 these two husky specimens will be extending their hands towards each other's chins instead of each other's hands. Left is Ceferino Garcia, challanger of the world's welterweight title, now in possession of Harry Armstrong, the party he is shaking hands with. Nov. 3 is the date of their meeting.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT IS QUITE SOME TIME since Sarnia Imperials lost a scheduled grip scrap, so we don't blame local fans for getting quite het up over Orfuns' win over 'em here last Saturday. But nevertheless, we trust rugby followers of this town don't forget the P.C.I. games here next Saturday. After all, quite a few of the good gridders with the surprising local senior O.R.F.U.-ers learned to play football while attending Collegiate. Players like Harry Marsh, Mick Magee, Ross Pulkinghorn, Pup Curtin, Don Hendren, McIntyre, Grose and some more. Many of 'em the shock troops of the Orfuns, who do not get the headlines any more than the privates who did quite a job over at Vimy Ridge some seasons back. As Grantland Rice once put in poem: "Someone has to knock 'em down to let the hero through!" It is worth a thought, maybe.

• • • • • • •

SO WE SUGGEST our many local grid fans drop in to see the P.C.I. games this week-end here against the Lindsay teams. There won't be so many famous names in the lineups—though Orfuns are finding out that names don't mean so much on a gridiron, as gees with big monickers grunt just as hard when they're tackled right—but folks will see more open and exciting play by future grid greats. In the junior joust, they'll see two teams which had but one point difference at the end of their previous meeting, Lindsay getting the odd numeral. And they'll see Coach Bamforth's sectional group winner against a tough Scugog squad, which only lost by a point in their last meeting. These games will be worth seeing, folks.

• • • • • • •

They're With 'Em Now

AS FOR THE ORFUNS, we find by moseying up and down Sports' Rialto, with the odd excursion into the Rue de Rumor, that fans here are sold solidly on the locals. Even if the Irwin outfit doesn't win another game—though they expect to do that. We are tickled two shades of pink that the public is behind this ambitious young gang in a tough group. We have always maintained that the highest tribunal in the land is not the government, the army, the church, or even the police ossifers—it is public opinion. Nothing at all exceeds this. Surely the Russian revolt near the tail end of the World War, and the French revolution—and golly didn't the dames sob over that show the other night as Marie had her noggin knocked off!—prove this.

• • • • • • •

SPORTS FANS aren't fools. If you fool them on one game, you can bet Junior's last dollar that they won't come back for another lacing. They work for their do-re-mi and they're not chucking a quarter, half or buck through the window for a flop. Not if they know it in time. But they will support a losing team—look at Detroit Tigers for some 15 years—if that club is putting up a real fight and giving the paying customers lots of action. And they do not always look for a local win. But you can't pull a fake on 'em and get away with it. After all, you can fool some of the people some of the time, and some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool some of the people some of the time—or words to that effect.

• • • • • • •

Haven't Broken Faith

AND THE FOOTBALL FANS here are willing to go along with the Orfuns now. Unfortunately there will be but one more home game—unless a miracle occurs—but at least the fans are satisfied with the Petes' venture into senior O.R.F.U. ranks. They were told in advance that the Orfuns were starting a three-year plan, that they had only a fair outfit and that they hoped to be a contending team. Since they beat Sarnia here, they ARE a contending team. And a lot of fans will go to Toronto this week-end to see them battle the Beaches, yessir.

• • • • • • •

THAT GANG which supplied the cheer leaders at the tilt here Saturday was the Windsor delegation to the A.Y.P.A. convention in Peterborough, and they were cheering for Orfuns over Imperials. A card reached us this morn from Niagara Falls, saying: "We beat Sarnia. Thanks for the publicity you gave us. Best wishes from us all to you and the Peterborough Orfuns. Am sending this from the Falls, so don't be misled by the postmark. Yours, St. Mary's of Windsor." It was signed all over the front by such names as Gar Cuthbert, Irene Brain, Angus Millar, Dorothy Taylor, William Georges, Louisa Stuart, Irene Helaer, Clifford Musson, Mildred Kempson and John Ury. Yep, we beat 'em. Thanks.

• • • • • • •

A Swelling Is Dangerous

BILL IRWIN is drilling the Orfuns hard this week for the fray in Toronto Saturday and warning the players against being cocky. They won last week when not given a chance, simply by refusing to quit—but they won't be under-estimated by the Beaches and they'll be facing a desperate squad on home terrain, still bitter over their reverse in Montreal. The local club is running a special to Toronto that day, leaving here at nine a.m. and reaching Toronto at 10.45. Return fare—good till Monda ynight—is $1.95, and a block of reserved-seat tickets is on sale now at the Playmor store. Ducats are $1.25, or if you prefer to wait and get a rush seat at half a slug, that's okay, too. Several hundred Peterborough football fans will see the Orfuns-Beaches game.

• • • • • • •

IAN (Scotty) McDonald, who fights Nick Orlando in the main melee of the Riverview A. C. mitt show Nov. 4th, hails from Barrie but he is a native of Nova Scotia. Does his fighting around Toronto and is a rugged clever scrapper who mixes it all the time. He and Orlando ought to dish up a honey of a bout. Aside from a few fistic flurries on the gridiron, the fight game has been quite quiet in this man's town for several months and 'tis high time the leather pushers caught the spot-light again. Peering at the pug list through a periscope, we will predict more mitt action in this show than on pay day at the lumber camp. All the promoter's efforts have been directed toward lining up a crowd-pleasing card to start the winter fight season.

Tangle For U. S.?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(CP)—Senator Borah (Rep-Idaho) said today that protests against possible British action to close Palestine to Jewish immigrants might involve the United States in "a delicate and dangerous situation."

In a letter to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York Borah expressed belief that the United States would have to be prepared to assume obligation of a mandatory power if it advised Great Britain what to do in Palestine.

King Edward Boys Win Soccer Trophy

King Edward Public School won the soccer championship on Tuesday afternoon when they squeezed a meagre win over Central eleven by the score of 1-0 before a good attendance of fans. Both teams were well-balanced and showed the finer points of the code, also playing good combination.

The winners will receive the Alex. Kay Trophy, which is emblematic of the Public School championship. The losers won the first game 2-0 while the winners won the next two in a row 2-0 and 1-0.

Jamieson Scored.

King Edward won the toss and Clarke set the ball a-rolling for Central with the forwards indulging in mid-field tactics in an endeavor to break through the half-back divisions that were ably assisted by the superb defense of the full backs on the respective teams. Anderson, King Edward, opened up the play by swinging the ball from wing to wing, which gave the forwards a chance to split the defence thereby testing Drummond, who saved many dangerous shots from the foot of Reil and Jamieson, while Murduff didn't get far because Parsons covered the ace forward to prevent him from becoming effective and Kiff covered up behind him. Time and again Central would break through to meet a superb defensive system of King Edward School, although Lee and Millen tested Curtis on many occasions. Just before the half-time period, Anderson broke up a Central attack to send his forwards into their opponents' territory, where Jamieson sent a low shot into goal to gain the only goal of the game.

Half time—King Edward, 1; Central, 0.

Central Added Pressure.

The second half opened up at a terrific pace with the Central boys trying hard to break down the King Edward defence that rallied every time to repulse their individual attacks. Lee broke away time and again, but his shooting was wide of the mark. Then Kiff carried the ball in close to find Curtis the obstacle to success. On the next visit, Central confined the play to King Edward goal, where Clarke scored, but the goal was not allowed because he committed on offence against the custodian. King Edward kept the ball upfield; while Lee and Kiff and Millen rattled shot after shot upon the goal. Central having hard luck when Lee's shot hit the cross-bar and Kiff forced the issue to find Curtis bringing down his long drive a minute before the final whistle. King Edward, 1; Central, 0.

Central.—F. Drummond, goal; F. Kiff and P. Meiklejohn, full backs; J. Parsons, G. Hanes and G. Burns, half backs; B. Millen, W. Smith, S. Clarke, L. Batten and G. Lee, forwards.

King Edward.—W. Curtis, goal; A. Lowes and F. Lawson, full backs; G. Blackwell, K. Anderson and D. McGregor, half-backs; C. Murduff, G. Reil, D. Jamieson, E. Close and C. Palmer, forwards. Subs.—W. Ellis, C. Downer, K. Langton, E. Woodcock.

Referee—D. Buchan.

Calgary Bronks Against Playoff

CALGARY, Oct. 26—(CP).—Plans for a post season game, billed for Nov. 19, to decide the western finalists for the Canadian football championship were protested by the Calgary Bronks club today.

A wire of protest was sent to president Frank Hannibal, Winnipeg, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

It is urged the proposal be dropped for this year, thereby eliminating an east-west championship series and that the whole situation be fully considered at the next league meeting.

In Winnipeg Sunday, president Hannibal announced Western Union finalists would play a sudden-death game to decide the team to go east. All players ineligible under the Canadian Rugby Football Union residence rule would be barred from playing. The rule bars players who have not been continuous residents of Canada since Oct. 1 of the previous year.

Executive of the Bronks' club claim the method for deciding a western representative is contrary to the aims of the conference to promote better football in western Canada. They also claim it would make the western playdown and final a secondary event to the post season game.

A proposal for "evergreen" games at Vancouver in December is receiving the attention of the Bronks' executive. Bob Brown, Vancouver sportsman, has invited the Bronks to play in a coast tournament to meet British Columbia all-stars and possibly a team from Seattle.

All headlights in Germany henceforth must be of the same color.

French Horses Have Won Three Big Races

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 26.—(CP Cable.)—Princesse De Faucigny-Lucinge's French-bred Contrevent to-day won the Cesarewitch Stakes. J. P. Hornung's Dubonnet was second and Edward Benson's Fet, the winner two years ago, third.

Contrevent, starting at 100 to 7, won by 1½ lengths, with the same distance separating the second and third horses.

Dubonnet started also at 100 to 7 and Fet at 9 to 1.

It was a great triumph for France, as a French mare, Helleniqua, won the Cambridgeshire, firse event of the "Autumn Double," two weeks ago. A French-bred colt, Bois Roussel, won the Epsom Derby.

Contrevent, described before the race by the owner as "a tough little stayer whose stamina is assured," took a clear lead a little less than a mile from home and held off a strong challenge by Dubonnet to cover the ¼ miles in three minutes, 15½ seconds.

Favorite Finishes Fourth

Black Speck and Solonaise, joint favorites at 8 to 1, finished fourth and eighth respectively.

Owing to overcast sky it had been difficult to distinguish the competing colors in the far side of Newmarket heath until the field was a mile from home, when there was little to choose between Ranfield, Solonaise, Contrevent, Fairing, and Snake Lightning, with Stainless Stephen, Dubonnet, and Malkowicze prominent just behind.

At the bushes Contrevent went to the front, with Fet and Dubonnet following up and Earthstopper, Snake Lightning and Black Speck passing several beaten horses. Dubonnet took second place a furlong from home and made a strong challenge over the climb to the post.

As was the case with Helleniqua in the Cambridgeshire, Contrevent was low in weight at 9 pounds.

Earthstopper was fifth, Malkowicze sixth, Gyppo seventh, Sirtam ninth, Snipe Wood 10th, and Ranfield 11th. Tapageur was last.

Twenty - two - year - old jockey Tucker, who was born in England, said Contrevent was practically last until reaching the straight. "I did not think I would win until 100 yards from home when victory became apparent," Tucker said.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Mrs. Wm. Jeffries hung up the season's high mark for lady five-pin bowlers at Duffus Academy last night. Rolling for Warne's Jewellers team in the Mercantile League, Mrs. Jeffries flattened 722 pins including a 314 single game. Her teammate, Mrs. Hendrie, also turned in a fine effort with a 609 count, while other good scores for ladies noticed in this mixed group were by Mrs. R. Penrose 508; Miss L. Giardino 532, and Miss V. McIlmoyle 425.

Les Burton of F. & G. Markets in the eight team merchants group, topped the list of men trundlers for the night with 727; V. Sedgwick counted 693; J. Anthony 667; C. Grant 655; E. English 644 (300); H. West 619; Les Reid 603. W. Wright rolled two rounds knocked off 327 and 230 each game.

Only seven men withstood the razzing of the C.G.E. sixteen-team loop. E. White 676; C. Whatley 630; B. Stenson 62; F. Buckland 615; A. Hunter 614; G. Hunter 600, and F. Edwards 600.

That 93-cent Dress

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—(CP).—Mrs. Florence V. Dayne related in divorce court here how her purchase of a 93-cent dress 13 days after her wedding broke up her marriage. She told the court her husband ordered her to consult him on all purchases, even though she spent money she earned herself. They separated after the quarrel last February. Mrs. Dayne got her divorce decree.

Only 3 'Green' Hands With Rangers As Patrick Boasts Faster, Trickier, Smoother Squad

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26 (C.P.). — A New York Ranger team combining youth and experience in what appear to be ideal proportions will carry Lester Patrick's 1938-39 bid for the Stanley Cup.

In the words of a no-less-informed person than Lester himself, the Rangers will go into the approaching National Hockey League campaign with "distinct improvement in polish, rhythm, and finesse."

Patrick, while definitely pleased with his outfit, makes no wild predictions and even concedes the Rangers may possibly miss winning the Stanley Cup. But, even should such a catastrophe occur, he declares the Broadway Blues will "continue to be a speedy, colorful aggregation certain to please the fans with their wide-open style of daring hockey."

Senior member of the Rangers, both in age and length of service, is Cecil Dillon, the stylist who last played as an amateur with Owen Sound Greys and has been a bright star since breaking into the N.H.L. in 1930. Dillon, only 30, will be foxing at his usual right-wing post on a forward line pivoted by Clint Smith and with speedy Lynn Patrick at left wing.

Though the Rangers will be the youngest team in the revamped seven-team league in the point of average age—25 1-3 years—there will be "green" hands at only three spots. One will be Dutch Hiller at left wing on a forward line with Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall. The others will be Murray Patrick, son of Lester and younger and bigger brother of Lynn, and Larry Molyneaux who gained defence posts.

Murray on Defence

Murray, who answers more readily to "Muss," gained the Ranger defence berth beside Art Coulter which was open after Joe Cooper's demotion to the International-American league Ramblers. Molyneaux becomes the fifth defenceman, the others being Ott Heller and Babe Pratt.

Patrick says he regards young Heller as the most improved player on the entire team and adds he plans no "first string" forward lines or defence combinations on the 1938-39 Rangers.

"I have the same confidence in every combination because every player has measured up to the standards set for him," says the Ranger pilot.

The fact two Patricks will be playing for their dad gives the Blueshirts their third brother combination since the club broke into the league in 1926. The first was formed by the renowned Bill and Bun Cook, now successful minor league pilots, and the second by Neil and Mac Colville who team with Alex Shibicky to form a fast and always-dangerous attacking line.

Hiller was brought up from the amateur New York Rovers, third link in the Ranger farm system, toward the end of last season. He replaces Bobby Kirk, who with Cooper and Butch Keeling has been shipped to Philadelphia. Keeling, veteran "minute-man" from Owen Sound, was considered too old at 33 to step with the youngsters, but in line with Patrick policy was kept in the organization.

Frank Boucher, pivot man for the Cook brothers, also will start the season with a new job, Boucher has been put in fulltime charge of the Rovers, who until this year struggled along on part-time coaching by Patrick. Boucher was assistant coach of the Blueshirts last winter.

To round out the Rangers, there is dappy little Davie Kerr in goal. Kerr has been one of the league's leadin ggoalies since Rangers acquired him from Montreal Maroons.

Orfuns' Colors In Stores Here

Lou Brooks, former president of the Peterborough Orfuns—before the club went senior—suggests the Hallowe'en colors of black and orange be kept by the downtown stores and put in windows a week from Saturday when Montreal Nationals play Orfuns here. Mr. Brooks believes every store in town should have these Orfuns' colors on display that weekend as the local gridders conclude their senior O.R.F.U. schedule. "Their victory over Sarnia Imperials was a mighty fine thing for the city," he stated, "and it would be a good gesture on the part of the merchants to show their colors for that game."

He further suggested a parade on that afternoon, consisting of four floats, with a band before and behind. Each float would depict a team in the senior grouping, Toronto, Sarnia, Montreal and Peterborough. The latter would have a truck loaded with children from the orphanage and the shelter, a sign saying: "The Orphans," with a big question-mark on top. A beach tree in a barrel would represent Balmy Beaches, etc. Lou is of the opinion that the old ballyhoo would go over big here, and he submits these suggestions for the approval of the Orfuns' publicity committee.

Massey's Portrayal Of Lincoln Hailed By Critics

Although there were grave doubts expressed by the predicters that a foreigner could not do justice to a stage portrayal of Abraham Lincoln, the performance of Canadian Raymond Massey has been hailed by the critics as one of the greatest ever given in this role. Here our camera takes you behind the scenes of the Plymouth theatre in New York and shows you actor Massey making up for his part as the youthful "Lincoln in Illinois." First you see Mr. Massey removing his coat on entering his dressing room to begin the task of making up. Then you see "Honest Abe" begin to materialize with the aid of grease paint, powder and other theatrical make-up. Mr. Massey scorns the services of a make-up man, preferring to do his own. Now Massey gives his conception of how Abraham Lincoln looked when he was 25 years old. Most familiar to us is the bearded Lincoln, and here you see Raymond Massey as he reached the bearded stage during the play. The beard is gradually made up during progress of the play.

New York Fans To See Gals Dish Up Hockey

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The winter half of the New York sport season has been inaugurated with the more-or-less formation of a girls' hockey league, with branches to be established in Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

This will satisfy a long-felt need of Broadway sports fans, who have been forced in the past to confine their hockey enthusiasm to games between men, who have large biceps but virtually no sex appeal.

Guiding spirits of the movement are the two large Sherwood sisters, Morice and Jean, who are professional fancy skaters, but will be amateur hockey players. They have one full team on the ice now and expect to get together seven more.

"Maybe we'll have to cut down on the fierce body-checking that the men do," Jean said. "But outside of that there's no reason why girls can't play just as exciting hockey as the men. We are all good skaters, so all we have to learn is how to knock the puck around."

They began learning yesterday while a corps of photographers squatted around on the ice and snapped some fetching action shots. Frank Boucher, former star of New York Rangers, has yielded to pressure and will coach them.

Screen Career Was Never Anticipated

"I'm just lucky, that's all!"

This is the only credit Deanna Durbin gives herself for her amazing fight to cinematic stardom.

Deanna, who is not yet sixteen, has starred in four great Universal pictures in a row, "Three Smart Girls," which introduced her to the picture-loving world, "100 Men and a Girl,' in which she appeared with world-renowned Leopold Stokowski, "Mad About Music," and her latest, "That Certain Age," which will be at the Regent Theatre Sunday midnight.

She credits her startling success to luck because neither she nor her parents anticipated Deanna's screen career.

"It happened accidentally," Deanna declares.

Thirteen Not Unlucky.

She was thirteen at the time attending Bret Harte high school in Los Angeles. Except for her voice, she was a normal child in every respect. Her parents, James and Ada Durbin, had speculated a bit on an operatic career for her, but nothing, outside of singing lessons, had been done about it. Deanna's sister, Mrs. Charles Heckman, a Los Angeles school-teacher, and internationally known as a fencer, had urged a further musical education.

Deanna returned home from school one day to be told by her mother that she was to go to see an agent, Jack Sherrill. Sherrill rushed her to the M-G-M studios where Deanna made a test.

The test was a success and Deanna was placed under contract.

Then she learned that she was supposed to go into a picture with Madame Schumann Heink, the great diva, portraying the role of the singer as a girl. But the opera star became ill and the picture was cancelled. Deanna was released from her contract.

Star Is Discovered

Sherrill managed to interest Universal in his 13-year-old client and she was signed. Cast in a small role in "Three Smart Girls" she amazed even hard-boiled studio executives with her freshness and charm as well as with her wonderful voice. Her part was stretched; additional money was spent on the production—and Deanna emerged a star!

Deanna was born in Winnipeg, Ontario, Canada, December 4, 1922, of English-born parents. Due to the rigors of Canadian winters, the Durbin family moved to Los Angeles in 1923 where Mr. Durbin engaged in the real estate business.

The young actress has blue eyes, brown hair, stands 5 feet 3½ inches, and weighs 112 pounds. Her favorite form of recreation is swimming, with table tennis a close second. She is fond of motion pictures and sees as many as her crowded schedule will permit.

Not Quitting Yet Says Foden Ace Of Jockeys

TORONTO, Oct, 26.—(CP).—Old Norman (Dude) Foden, who admits he is nearly 50 and has been riding for 25 years, recalled to-day some of the races in a career that has made him a favorite on Canadian, United States and Mexican tracks and the dean of the continent's jockeys.

He told of the day at Toronto's Dufferin Park when he rode five winners and a third. Arrowpoint, Lady Binmore, Dr. Zab, Rovanna and Walter Turnbow were the winners and Dr. Shafter showed.

Then there was the meet at Delorimier Park, Montreal, about 10 years ago, when the Dude was up on 12 horses and 11 of them won. Nine of the winners were owned or trained by Bill Campbell, for whom Foden rode 83 winners in 1927.

That same year was the best in the Dude's career, for he led the continent's riders with a winning percentage of .32 after trailing Laverne Fator by two points for the title the previous year. In 1934 Foden scored 80 victories in 312 rides.

Still Booting Them Home.

A lot of horses have run in 32 years and a lot of money has gone through the mutuels, but the Dude isn't ready to give up yet.

He showed the youngsters at Dufferin Park last Saturday, the closing day of the Canadian season, when he rode four winners to bring his year's total to 54.

He recalls riding Connie Smythe's Rare Jewel at Toronto's Woodbine Park when she won the Coronation Stakes in 1930 and paid $214.40 for a $2 ticket. And he tells of the time he rode a 100-to-1 shot at Niagara Falls to beat a 1-to-4 favorite. The judges suspended him, but one of them came around to his house that night and knocked on the door.

"Does Mr. Foden live here?" he asked. "Tell him he's riding tomorrow."

The judges had been so surprised at the result they decided to suspend the Dude on general principles until they investigated.

Marie Antoinette Is Real Triumph

"Marie Antoinette" at the Capitol Theatre to-day and Thursday is a triumph of the motion picture art. More than that, it is a triumph for Norma Shearer.

Magnificent in its pageantry, with eye-filling beauty of brilliant costume and setting, flawlessly cast with such famed film names as Tyrone Power, John Barrymore, Anita Louise, Joseph Schilkraut, Gladys George, and scores of others, these were secondary to Miss Shearer's absorbingly-carefree, oftimes desperate, seeking for happiness.

The story has gripping power on the screen because it is so simply told. Miss Shearer's "Antoinette" is a girl eager to be in love and to be loved, who finds herself married to a moronic husband, a role superbly played by Robert Morley, young English actor making his first motion picture appearance. When he fails her and his country through weakness of mind and spirit, she seeks escape in mad pleasures and dangerous flirtations. But in the end she cannot escape her destiny as the last Queen of France.

Director W. S. Van Dyke II., not content with merely scratching the surface of history, has proved deeply into the hearts of his fascinating character, and give them vitality and realism as people motivated by desires, hates, loves and ambitions, no different from those of to-day.

"Marie Antoinette" is thoroughly entertaining. Power is handsome, gallant, and convincing Count Axel de Fersen, the man who dared to love a Queen.

There are moments of great drama and poignant tragedy, but also delightful comedy. Much of the humor is provided by Barrymore, whose performance as the synical world-weary King Louis XV. is among his finest. Miss George's du Barry is lusty and amusing. Schildraut, a recent Academy Award winner, is a thoroughly villainous Duke d'Orleans.

This is a picture that can be heartily recommended to those of every age who enjoy exciting, adventurous motion picture, replete with thrills and romance.

Admiral, Biscuit Test Speed On Strip Today

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26—(CP)—The mighty War Admiral and Seabiscuit were scheduled to go out on the Pimlico strip for speed trials to-day, completely oblivious of the not-so-civil war their coming match race is causing among racing folk.

The main argument naturally whirls around their speed and their records, all pointed at an attempt to decide who will be in front at the end of their 1 3-16 mile duel next Tuesday. But fuel to fire the differences of opinion also is found in their blood relationship, or lack of it, whether Seabiscuit has the right to be on the same track as the Admiral after bowing twice in his last three starts, and whether there actually is any point in staging the race at all.

The race will be known as "The Pimlico Special," and $15,000 and a trophy will go to the owner of the winner—be it Samuel D. Riddle, whose silks ride aboard the Admiral, or H. S. Howard, who is proud to see his colors carried by the Biscuit.

Each horse will run under 120 pounds, and a walkup start will be used instead of a standing break from a barrier. If a neutral umpire, who will examine the racing strip at 8.30 a.m. EST the day of the race, decides it is not fast, the battle will be postponed until November 3.

The Biscuit is five years old, or one year the Admiral's senior.

Kent, Governor Of Australia Hailed New Tie

LONDON, Oct. 26 (CP)—Great Britain today acclaimed the appointment by the King of his younger brother, the Duke of Kent, as governor-general of Australia.

Newspaper editorials coupled the appointment with the announcement the King and Queen will visit Canada next summer as "further proof of the deep reality of the ties which bind every part of the empire to the reigning house"—in the words of the Times (Independent).

The Duke, 35 years old, accompanied by the Duchess, the former Princess Marina of Greece, will go to Australia in November of next year to succeed Lord Gowrie. Their two children, Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra, probably will accompany them.

The official announcement said: "The King has been graciously pleased to approve of the appointment of his Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent, as governor-general of the Commonwealth of Australia in succession to Lord Gowrie."

The appointment was made Monday after the King had received in audience Stanly Bruce, High Commission for Australia. It marked the first time a member of the royal family has been appointed a governor-general of any dominion since the statute of Westminster in 1931 made the dominions equal partners with the United Kingdom in the empire.

Call From Australia.

It was understood Australia asked that the Duke of Kent be named when Lord Gowrie decided he wished to give up the post he took over in 1936.

The customary term for a Governor-General is five years, but it was intimated the Duke might serve only two or three years as his absence from the United Kingdom will throw a heavy burden upon the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, who now are spending a vacation in Kenya.

In some quarters the announcement was regarded as of particular importance in the light of world conditions. A strengthening of the Imperial ties at a time when Japan has blocked British interests in China and Germany is pressing for return of war-lost colonies could not be over-estimated, these quarters argued.

Appointment of a member of the Royal Family as Governor-General is unusual but not unprecedented. The Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, was Governor-General of Canada from 1911 to 1918 during the reign of his nephew, George V., while the late Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, and the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, both served as Governors-General of the Union of South Affica.

The Duke and Duchess have many months to complete their plans for their departure. It was regarded as almost certain they would close their London home, which they lease from Lady Juliet Duff. Their country home, "The Coppins" at Iver, Bucks, will be retained, since it was left to the Duke by his aunt, Princess Victoria.

Press in Accord

Newspapers uniformly welcomed the appointment.

The Daily Mail (Independent) said no more popular governor-General could be found and the Imperial bonds "will be doubly strengthened by personal contact" both through the appointment and the Canadian visit of Their Majesties.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said "no more opportune moment could have been chosen for symbolizing the imperial ties that bind the great self-governing dominions to the crown."

The News Chronicle (Liberal) said no more "fitting representative than the sovereign's own brother" could be found, "especially when, as in this case, his personal popularity and that of his consort stand so high."

Prime Minister Lyons in Canberra said the presence of the Duke and Duchess would serve as an additional bond, if such were needed, between the peoples of the commonwealth and Great Britain. It was agreed throughout Australia the Duke and Duchess would be enthusiastically welcomed. They have never visited the Dominion.

New Scientific Discovery Stirs World

EDMONTON, October 26.—(CP)—A new science, "Nuclear Chemistry," has produced radium-like substances and theoretically makes possible creation of precious metals, Prof. Stanley Smith, University of Alberta Department of Physics, said in an interview here.

Returing from a 16-month-round the-world tour in search of scientific knowledge strides in the atomic science since the English Physicist, Lord Rutherford, uncovered its potentialities in 1919.

'Until Lord Rutherford succeeded in pioneer nuclear chemistry experiments, science thought the basis of all matter was 92 distinict and non-changeable elements,' he said.

"Nuclear chemistry, which breaks down atoms by subjecting them to bombarding by intense electrical charges, has shown the nucleus of each of the 92 elements appears to be comprised of two substances, neutrons and protons, which seem basically similar in all elements."

Subjection of atoms to vary electrical charges by physicists has changed the nuclei and thus "transmuted the elements." Paris scientists now are using radium-like substances artificially created by nuclear chemistry and, theoretically, creation of precious metals is posible.

Prof. Smith's special study in the new field deals with analysis of electrons surrounding nuclei through use of instruments designed for study of light rays reflected through the analyzed substance.

He delivered a paper on nuclear chemistry to scientists at Copenhagen based on four years' research at the University here.

He belives one of the main factors contributing to world-wide economic unrest is "the failure of economic and political leaders to make use of the contributions for benefit of humanity that the scientists have placed at their disposal."

French Children Discuss English

PARIS, Oct. 26—(CP).—Anxious to test school-children of France on their knowledge of Great Britain and the British following the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth, teachers in Paris and the provinces set a number of questions, among them "The the English our friends?"

For the most part the answer was "yes". Many reasons were given, "because they gave us Alsace and Lorraine after Germany stole them." "Yes, for the time being," said one sceptic. "Yes, the yare our allies—they lend us ships and we lend them soldiers. The English are our friends because they saved us with their navy." A good business man-to-be replied, "yes, the English sell us their products and we sell them our wine."

Some were not so sure. "The English were our worst enemies—if we were weak they would be concerned about us—but we are strong, so they like us." "Are the English our friends? . . . It's uncertain." Another youngster differentiated between her national and personal opinions—"Yes, they are friends of France, but not for me because they burned Joan of Arc."

Plan Less Gambling On Wheat Farming

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 26—(CP).—Farm experts this fall are going to try to forecast nearly a year ahead of time the approximate size of wheat yields in the western dry land farm belt. They hope to take some of the gamble out of wheat raising through soil moisture tests.

Experts of the bureau of agricultural economics, working at the Kansas experiment stations, discovered that depth of soil moisture at the time wheat is planted in the fall apparently largely determines the size of the crop harvested the following summer.

"Experiments indicate western Kansas wheat seeded in dry beds will result in complete failure for the department of agriculture at Topeka. "With one foot of soil moisture there will be a crop failure 34 times out of 100; with two feet of soil moistures there are failures 15 times out of 100; with three feet, 10 times out of 100."

To test the new method on a wide scale holes will be drilled every 10 miles over a 3,500-mile route in Kansas and a similar route in Nebraska. Depth of soil moisture then will be compared to crop production on the land that is drilled.

"The purpose is to supply wheat growers information relating to depth of soil moisture at seeding time and assist them in determining whether they should seed wheat acreage. It also gives additional information upon which to base an early season forecast of probable wheat production," Collins said.

VOL. LXXX, No. 249 — PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1938 — PRICE THREE CENTS

Search For Boy

LEAMINGTON. — Police sought James Collison, 13, to-day after his parents reported the boy disappeared from his home on Sunday after he was spanked. The boy threatened to catch a freight train after his father spanked him for fighting with another boy about two cents.

Charge Withdrawn

TORONTO. — Magistrate Tinker to-day withdrew a charge of vagrancy against Roy Campbell, brother of Oscar, Melville, Howard and Lloyd Campbell. The request to withdraw the charge was made by Inspector Nat Guthrie of the Toronto Police Department.

TWO WIDELY SEPARATED BUILDINGS ON SAME FARM BURNED

Evidence Heard In Charge Of Selling Liquor

After a session that took up the whole afternoon, the case of Mrs. Mary Hayton, charged with keeping liquor for sale, was adjourned by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court on Tuesday afternoon until Thursday when the balance of the evidence will be heard. The Crown had finished its case just before the adjournment.

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for Mrs. Hayton, who pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Constable W. A. Clark testified to watching the house at 241 Stewart Street, where he said Mrs. Hayton lived, and of seeing her drive a car from in front of her house into a shed at the side, where a man had put three cartons of beer into the automobile and got in with Mrs. Hayton, who drove off. Constable Clark said he had followed the Hayton car to Ashburnham, where he stopped it and found three cartons of beer. Afterwards in company with Constables Piercey and Sexsmith he had searched the premises at 241 Stewart Street and found a full carton of beer, another carton with two full bottles and ten empty ones, and three empty bottles, while outside in the yard a number of empty liquor bottles were found. All these cartons and bottles were put in as evidence.

Later Constables Piercey and Sexsmith corroborated the evidence given by Clark as to the search of the house at 241 Stewart Street. To Mr. Fair they said the search had been exhaustive and they had found no signs of drinking, although Officer Piercey said a man was found in the house who was under the influence of liquor.

Beer Analyzed.

Inspector J. F. Reid testified to sending a bottle from one of the cartons among the exhibits to Toronto for analysis and produced the report of the analyst showing the alcoholic content.

Much of the afternoon's session was taken up with examining members of the staff of the liquor store and the brewers' warehouse as to purchases made by Mrs. Hayton. D. R. Fleming, liquor vendor, produced slips, and one-purchase permits signed by M. Hayton and showing purchases of whisky and gin to a total value of $20 between August 19 and September 28, while George Wensley, W. T. Hall and Norman Hughes of the staff of the brewers' warehouse told of purchases of beer during the latter part of August, in September, and early in October by Mrs. Hayton totalling $156.60. The great majority of these purchases were on orders signed by persons in Hastings, Norwood, Keene, Trent River, and other places authorizing Mrs. Hayton to obtain the beer for them, and the brewers' warehouse employees said in answer to a question from Magistrate Langley that there was nothing unusual in persons living outside of Peterborough authorizing someone in Peterborough to make purchases for them.

To Mr. Fair, Hughes said that so far as their staff was concerned, they regarded the person who signed the orders as the purchaser and Mrs. Hayton as the agent who handed over the money.

At the conclusion of the Crown's evidence, Mr. Fair made a motion for dismissal and Magistrate Langley announced an adjournment until Thursday.

Several other liquor cases also scheduled for yesterday went over until the same date.

Girl Grabs Killer

DETROIT, Oct. 26 (C.P.).—Police to-day credited Bella Fineman, 17-year-old college freshman here, with saving her father's life yesterday when a thug attacked him with an axe handle as they entered their garage.

The girl grabbed the thug and kept him from hitting her father, and her screams brought help. The father, Louis Fineman, is in hospital in serious condition. Robert Jones is held charged with assault with intent to kill.

To Address Engineers

J. W. McFarlane, president of the Scientific and Technical section of the Photographic Society of America who is scheduled to address an open meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute on Thursday evening in the Collegiate Auditorium. He will tell how color pictures are produced and is expected to show a film of the Toronto Skating Carnival in color along with many other recent achievements in the scientific field.

Business Men Are Planning Frolic

The gayest frolic of the year is scheduled for November 4th at the Capitol Theatre, when the Peterborough Business Men's Association will stage a party starting at 11.30, and the object of the affair is to raise funds for another Santa Claus parade such as was held last year.

There will be so many free prizes handed out that officials believe one person out of every five attending should be lucky enough to carry away at least one of the award. The program will include vaudeville acts from Toronto, comic shorts, a feature picture, and scores of prizes. Morley Plunkett, former member of the Dumbells will act as master of ceremonies, and theatre goers of a decade ago will be thrilled to see their old friend back in harness even though it is just for the evening.

The decision to hold the first annual frolic on Friday, November 4th was reached last night when thirty members of the Peterborough Business Men's Association held an executive meeting at the Elite Grill. Don Scott and Vern Selkirk are the prize committee and the prizes will be on display in Richard Hall Store window on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

J .W. Watson, president of the association, occupied the chair and the session was one of the most enthusiastic in the history of the organization. T. A. Mackay, Bank of Montreal, and Jacob Low, were named to the Finance committee and wil lalso act as auditors. A committee of three, Charles Saunders, Al Sharpe and Coleman Blewett was named to report on the observance of Armistice Day at the next regular meeting.

Cyclist Injured When Hits Truck

Jack Robinson, 13, an inmate of the Children's Aid Society Shelter had his right arm and shoulder injured at noon to-day when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with a truck driven by Robert Astling, 237½ McDonnel street at the intersection of Park and Albert streets. It is stated that Robinson drove his bicycle into the side of the truck and was thrown off, his arm catching in the rear wheel of the truck, with the result that he was dragged 21 feet. However he was not seriously injured and the bicycle was not damaged.

A Reasonable Idea

The brain is the source of life energy within the body. That energy is distributed to every tissue by the spinal cord and nerves. The spinal nerves leave the spinal column through openings between the vertebrae. If an opening is decreased in size because of improper position of a vertebrae some nerve fibres will be constricted and there will be an abnormal amount of energy reaching the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

IT IS LOGICAL

To conclude that correction of mechanical defects along the spinal column will greatly facilitate the distribution of nerve impulses to all body parts. This means improved health.

Our manipulative treatments apply mechanical principles to the framework of the human body.

Truck Driver Is Freed Of Reckless Driving

"I am going to give you the benefit of the doubt," Magistrate E. A. Gee told Ray McIlmoyle in police court this morning in dismissing a reckless driving charge against the young truck driver.

In giving judgment the magistrate warned McIlmoyle to be careful about his driving if he wanted to make his living as a truck driver. "Don't drive so fast when it is raining and the road is slippery and keep a careful watch of the road ahead of you if you want to avoid accidents," he advised the accused.

McIlmoyle was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry conducted the prosecution.

Louis Anthony, first Crown witness, told of driving his car south on the Lakefield road on the night of the accident and of seeing another car coming with bright lights showing. Anthony said he slowed down to about 20 miles an hour and just as he was beginning to pick up speed again his car was struck from behind by a truck, and $15 damage was done to the rear end. He said that when he got out of his machine four men, one of them McIlmoyle got out of the truck and be believed two of them had got out of each door of the cab. McIlmoyle had told the witness that he was "full of hot air" when he remonstrated with him over the accident.

To Mr. Carley witness said that he had not looked at his tail light before the accident but was sure it had been burning.

Tenniece Guerin who had been with Anthony corroborated his evidence and stated that before their car had entered Highway 28 he had looked at the tail light and it was on then, about 4 miles away from the scene of the accident.

Blames Lights

To Mr. Carley Guerin said that in his opinion the bright lights of the oncoming car had been the principal cause of the accident. Provincial Traffic Officer Broughton, testified, despite a strong protest from Mr. Carley as to the admissability of the evidence, that McIlmoyle had admitted to him that he was driving the truck at the time of the accident.

That concluded the crown's case and Mr. Carley made an unsuccessful motion for dismissal.

McIlmoyle took the witness box in his own behalf and stated that he had not seen Anthony's car until some 30 feet away from it and that there was no tail light burning on the car. Further he stated the speed of the Anthony car when it was hit could not have been more than 10 miles an hour. His own truck was doing 35 to 40 until he had put his brakes on when he saw the other car.

His evidence was corroborated by Harry Reid and Fred Bullock who were riding in the cab of the truck with him. George Perrin who said he was riding on the top of the truck also testified, stating that there had been nothing unusual about the speed of the truck before the accident.

After hearing the arguments of the two counsel Magistrate Gee dismissed the case, declaring that Mr. Anthony had his remedy in the civil courts and that he had decided that while there might have been an error of judgment on the part of McIlmoyle he was not going to find him guilty of recklessness under the code.

Rev. Stuart Parker To Address Banquet

A distinguished visitor to the city next week will be the Rev. Dr. Stuart C. Parker of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto. Dr. Parker is one of the leading clergymen of our Dominion, and, besides being a preacher of note, is the author of several volumes. His last book, a series of devotional studies centred around the Holy Communion, and entitled "The Guest Chamber" has just recently been issued. In the courts of the church, he has held many distinguished offices, and at the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was runner-up for the office of Moderator. He will be the guest speaker at a banquet to be held under the auspices of the Men's Association of St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening, November first, to which the women of the congregation are also being invited. Those who heard him in his recent broadcast at the request of the Canadian Broadcasting Commision will no doubt want to hear him again.

TRAFFIC CASES.

In traffic court before Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning, Alex McIntyre pleaded guilty to allowing his car to be driven by a person not holding a chauffeur's license or operator's permit and was fined $10 and costs, while Jack Huggins contributed a similar amount for driving a car with inadequate brakes.

Peterborough, England, has installed its first woman mayor Mrs. C. W. Bryant.

To Exchange Pulpits

REV. T. S. GAULT — REV. T. H. FLOYD

who were exchanging pulpits in the near future. Rev. Mr. Floyd is pastor of Christ church, Campbellford and Rev. Mr. Gault is pastor of St. George's church, Peterborough. Both men are highly respected in their communities and keen, active workers.

TO OPERATE EXCURSION

The excursion train to the Balmy Beach-Orfuns game in Toronto on Saturday is scheduled to leave the C. P. R. station at nine o'clock.

SUIT COAT LOST

A suit coat, still in good condition, has been found at the corner of Dublin and Aylmer streets, and awaits a claimant at the Examiner office.

FRACTURES FINGER

Mary Foley, an employee in a local factory had the misfortune to fracture the first joint of one finger while at work. The injury did not prevent her from returning to work this morning.

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT.

Because W. J. Arthur Fair, defence counsel, stated that he had been called to Toronto a liquor charge against Harry Carter which was to have been heard in police court this morning was adjourned.

CHARGED TO COMMISSION

The council Monday night adopted a recommendation from the legal committee that the remuneration of Judge Smoke and Magistrate Gee of Lindsay as members of the Police Commission be drawn from the police appropriation and not from the funds of the legal committee.

GETS WINGS

R. D. P. (Doug) Blagrave, formerly of this city was gazetted this week and received his permanent commission as pilot officer in the R.C.A.F. He is stationed at Trenton. He is the son of the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, former rector of St. John's Anglican church.

RETURNS TO CITY

S. A. Brett of the Canadian Churchman is in the city for several weeks. Mr. Brett is a diocesan layreader of the Anglican church and will be remembered by many in this city for in 1921 and 22 he taught a Sunday School class at St. John's church.

HE MAN ACCOUTREMENT

There is a lot of he-man trappings in main street windows this week as the hunting season draws nearer, rifles, shot guns and artillery of other calibres, knives and belts, hatchets, gray blankets and a wide assortment of other paraphenalia for outdoor adventures in November.

BE PREPARED

Lazy husbands who have been putting off the job of preparing storm windows and storm doors for the Winter believing that the good weather would last indefinitely should accept next Saturday as the deadline. According to weather records biting frosts and snow may come any day now, and it is much nicer putting up storm windows when the weather is so warm gloves are not required.

FACES OLD CHARGE.

Facing a drunk charge in police court this morning, Norman Hurl of Young's Point found himself also called upon to defend himself against a two-year-old charge of supplying liquor to an Indian. He was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., and on both charges asked for a week's adjournment which was granted.

THREE UNTIMELY DEATHS

Several C. N. R. employees recalled this morning that Joseph Meagher was the third of the local shunter's crew who had met untimely deaths. Fred Elliott was killed at Trenton, Harvey Staunton fell off a box car in the yards of the Quaker Oats Company, and last night Mr. Meagher was fatally injured.

MEMBER OF PRIVY COUNCIL

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., a member of the Canadian Privy Council will be amongst those who will be summoned to attend a meeting of the Privy Council in Ottawa which will be presided over by King George VI as King of Canada during his visit to this country next year. There are ninety members of the Canadian Privy Council, being made up of federal cabinet ministers, former cabinet ministers and several others who were given the honor.

AN UNUSUAL RECORD

480 employees in the local plant of the Western Clock Company are headed for a new Canadian safety record. To date they have worked 3,508,967 man-hours without a single lost time accident. It was thought at the start that if the factory could reach the one million mark without an accident it would be a noteworthy achievement. They have now passed the three and a half million mark.

RECOGNITION

Gossip among members of the Peterborough County Council indicates the members are fully aware of the honor brought to the district by the Keene softball team, and it is believed the County Council will follow the usual custom of banqueting the group which brought the highest honors to the district in the past year, in this case it was the Keene team. The decision will be made at the next session of the Council late in November.

"COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY."

J. W. McFarlane, president of the Scientific and Technical section of the Photography Society of America, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Engineering Institute Thursday October 27. The members have been looking forward to this address from early last season. Circumstances caused several postponements. Mr. McFarlane's subject will be "Color Photography". It will be illustrated by lantern slides and motion pictures in color. Members are being specially reminded of this meeting.

RECEIVES LICENSE.

They say that flying is a game for youth alone, but George R. Schwab, 369 Mark street, has a different tale to tell. Yesterday the 40-year-old employee of the Western Clock company received his private pilot's license after passing the necessary examinations by a government inspector. He received his instruction at the Peterborough Air Service, now being operated by flying instructor Frank Armitage.

Rev. T. S. Gault And Rev. Floyd Will Exchange Pulpits

Rev. T. S. Gault, for nearly four years pastor of St. George's Anglican church here, is exchanging pulpits in the near future with Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ church, Campbellford.

Mr. Gault came to Peterborough three years ago last June and has won the friendship of every member of his congregation. "He has been a great friend to us all and we shall miss him a great deal," said Mrs. L. Warren, president of the Ladies Guild of the church. "We certainly don't like to see him leave."

Mr. Gault has been a hard worker during his years in Peterborough and perhaps his most concrete accomplishment has been the complete restoration of the church building. "He worked very hard at that," said Mrs. Warren.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct 26.—Rev. T. H. Floyd, pastor of Christ church came to Campbellford in 1931 from Caledon East in Peel County. Gifted with great organizing ability he was founder of the A. Y. P. A. in Campbellford a task which he accomplished in 1932 and the organization has grown to form a strong bulwark of the church here. Highly respected by all Mr. Floyd did not confine his activities solely to the Church but of recent years he became a member of the Masonic Order (Golden Rule Lodge, Campbellford) and Chaplain in the Canadian Militia he graduated from Trinity in 1925. Staff Is Named For Keene Farm School

Frank C. Paterson, agricultudal representative, returned last night from Guelph with detailed information of the three months' course in elementary agricultural and home economics at Keene beginning November 22 and continuing until February 24.

R. S. McKercher of Dublin, Ontario, and D. A. Bell of Barrie will be the resident teachers in agriculture for the entire term, and Miss Grace Scott of Port Elgin will be the instructor in home economics for the entire course.

Extra Teachers

This staff will be augmented by other teachers some of whom will attend for several days and others for several weeks, depending on the time allotted to them for their subjects. For example, J. H. Shaw of Hespeler will conduct the classes in farm mechanics featuring an objective study of the internal combustion engine, automobiles, tractors and so on. E. C. Stillwell of the Ontario Agricultural College will deal with farm meats and F. N. Marcellus has been assigned the subject of special poultry problems. Dr. E. G. Raeman, formerly of the Boys' school at Bowmanville will give a series of lectures on psychology.

For the home economics department Miss Grace Scott will be assisted by competent instructors. A syllabus of the school's work will be printed in the near future and its scope will then be readily understood my those who arethinking of signing up for the three months.

Classes will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., five days in the week, with a suspensions of studies during the Christmas time from December 16 to January 3.

Special Cultural Work

Some of the subjects in elementary agriculture and also the special cultural work that will be taken up are: gas engines and farm tractors, soils and fertilizers, drainage and land surveying, business and finance, marketing, farm dairying field, animal and poultry husbandry, civics, farm management, farm forestry, English and mathematics, music, bacteriology, and other; and in home economics, food and cookery, household management, clothing, health and education, nursing and care of the sick.

The course is open to everybody, and is not confined to Peterborough county. Mr. Paterson is hoping that it will attract a large attendance. It has been arranged to help particularly the young people of the county, and is one of the most interesting and helpful extramural courses that have been held in this district in a long time.

Millbrook Circle Holds Mission Rally

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, October, 26. — For an observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of Mission work in Honan, China, a special meeting of the Mission Circle of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook was held at the home of Mrs. J. Ridge on Monday evening. Miss Phyliss Kidd, the President, was in Phyllis Kidd, the President, was in assisting in the devotions by reading the lesson.

Interesting essays on the mission work on Honan were read by Miss Jean Burnham, who gave a synopsis of the history of the last fifty years, Miss Della Mae Sisco "The work of the Medical Missionaries" and Miss Leitha Edworthy "the work of the church today."

Plans for the ensuing month were arranged prior to the closing prayer by Mis Anna Rowland.

During the social hour at the close, their hostess served delicious homemade candy, assisted by her daughter, Mary.

Famed Soprano Arrives Unannounced

Peterboro has had a distinguished visitor since Tuesday morning, Marjorie Lawrence of the Metropolitan Opera, who arrived unannounced a day earlier than her hosts, the Peterboro Canadian Concert Associatiton, expected, and simply made herself at home at the Empress Hotel.

She was discovered by Dr. J. J. Craig this morning when he called the hotel to make reservation for her and was informed that Miss Lawrence had arrived yesterday with her brother and her accompanist, Felix Wolfes. Her alarm clock wasn't working, and the don't disturb sign was on her door while she rested for her concert in the Collegiate Institute auditorium tonight.

Miss Lawrence is the Australian soprano who joined the Metropolitan's starry company several years ago, exceeding in that artistic altitude all the fine reputation that had preceded her. During the last two or three seasons she has established herself as one of the outstanding sopranos of that numerous company, especially in the Wagnerian roles. Miss Lawrence opens the second season of the Peterboro Concert Association.

Driver's License Suspended Month

"I drove a mail route for 22 years and never even hit a chicken," J. L. Wilson told Magistrate E. A. Gee in Police Court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving on Highway 28.

Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton said that the accused was lucky he was not facing a more serious charge. He said that when he noticed a light on the accused's car was not burning he had tried to stop Wilson by waving a stop light at him, and accused had paid no attention. Finally he had to be chased by a police car and he had collided with the latter machine twice before being brought to a stop.

Magistrate Gee imposed a fine of $15.00 and $3.00 costs, and suspended Wilson's licence for a month.

Boucher Home, Ice House Burn Together

Mystery surrounds the burning of the farm home of Frank Boucher, on the Douro-Dummer boundary one mile south of Clear Lake a few nights ago, and a most peculiar feature to the whole affair is the fact that Boucher's ice house on Clear Lake, and a mile and a quarter from the farm caught fire about the same time as the house and burned to the ground also.

Boucher, who sleeps downstairs with his wife, was awakened at 3.30 in the morning and found the lower part of the house in flames. He awakened his wife, and rushed upstairs to warn the children. All escaped with only their clothes, and one boy had his hair badly singed and slight burns on the hands.

The farmer is grief stricken over the loss of all his belongings and the ice house as it removes his means of livelihood, and he broke down when discussing the incident with a neighbor. Boucher claims he has no enemies and cannot understand how the fire started, although it is quite evident that some person fired both buildings.

Boucher owns the ice house but the farm home is owned by Mrs. Samuel Abbott of this city. There was only three hundred dollars insurance on the house, and the furniture was also insured but not for its full value.

The Boucher family are being cared for by a neighbor, George Harding, who lives directly across the road, until more permanent arrangements for winter accommodation can be made.

TWO WIDELY SEPARATED BUILDINGS ON SAME FARM BURNED

Evidence Heard In Charge Of Selling Liquor

After a session that took up the whole afternoon, the case of Mrs. Mary Hayton, charged with keeping liquor for sale, was adjourned by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court on Tuesday afternoon until Thursday when the balance of the evidence will be heard. The Crown had finished its case just before the adjournment.

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for Mrs. Hayton, who pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Constable W. A. Clark testified to watching the house at 241 Stewart Street, where he said Mrs. Hayton lived, and of seeing her drive a car from in front of her house into a shed at the side, where a man had put three cartons of beer into the automobile and got in with Mrs. Hayton, who drove off. Constable Clark said he had followed the Hayton car to Ashburnham, where he stopped it and found three cartons of beer. Afterwards in company with Constables Piercey and Sexsmith he had searched the premises at 241 Stewart Street and found a full carton of beer, another carton with two full bottles and ten empty ones, and three empty bottles, while outside in the yard a number of empty liquor bottles were found. All these cartons and bottles were put in as evidence.

Later Constables Piercey and Sexsmith corroborated the evidence given by Clark as to the search of the house at 241 Stewart Street. To Mr. Fair they said the search had been exhaustive and they had found no signs of drinking, although Officer Piercey said a man was found in the house who was under the influence of liquor.

Beer Analyzed.

Inspector J. F. Reid testified to sending a bottle from one of the cartons among the exhibits to Toronto for analysis and produced the report of the analyst showing the alcoholic content.

Much of the afternoon's session was taken up with examining members of the staff of the liquor store and the brewers' warehouse as to purchases made by Mrs. Hayton. D. R. Fleming, liquor vendor, produced slips, and one-purchase permits signed by M. Hayton and showing purchases of whisky and gin to a total value of $20 between August 19 and September 28, while George Wensley, W. T. Hall and Norman Hughes of the staff of the brewers' warehouse told of purchases of beer during the latter part of August, in September, and early in October by Mrs. Hayton totalling $156.60. The great majority of these purchases were on orders signed by persons in Hastings, Norwood, Keene, Trent River, and other places authorizing Mrs. Hayton to obtain the beer for them, and the brewers' warehouse employees said in answer to a question from Magistrate Langley that there was nothing unusual in persons living outside of Peterborough authorizing someone in Peterborough to make purchases for them.

To Mr. Fair, Hughes said that so far as their staff was concerned, they regarded the person who signed the orders as the purchaser and Mrs. Hayton as the agent who handed over the money.

At the conclusion of the Crown's evidence, Mr. Fair made a motion for dismissal and Magistrate Langley announced an adjournment until Thursday.

Several other liquor cases also scheduled for yesterday went over until the same date.

Girl Grabs Killer

DETROIT, Oct. 26 (C.P.).—Police to-day credited Bella Fineman, 17-year-old college freshman here, with saving her father's life yesterday when a thug attacked him with an axe handle as they entered their garage.

The girl grabbed the thug and kept him from hitting her father, and her screams brought help. The father, Louis Fineman, is in hospital in serious condition. Robert Jones is held charged with assault with intent to kill.

To Address Engineers

J. W. McFarlane, president of the Scientific and Technical section of the Photographic Society of America who is scheduled to address an open meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute on Thursday evening in the Collegiate Auditorium. He will tell how color pictures are produced and is expected to show a film of the Toronto Skating Carnival in color along with many other recent achievements in the scientific field.

Business Men Are Planning Frolic

The gayest frolic of the year is scheduled for November 4th at the Capitol Theatre, when the Peterborough Business Men's Association will stage a party starting at 11.30, and the object of the affair is to raise funds for another Santa Claus parade such as was held last year.

There will be so many free prizes handed out that officials believe one person out of every five attending should be lucky enough to carry away at least one of the award. The program will include vaudeville acts from Toronto, comic shorts, a feature picture, and scores of prizes. Morley Plunkett, former member of the Dumbells will act as master of ceremonies, and theatre goers of a decade ago will be thrilled to see their old friend back in harness even though it is just for the evening.

The decision to hold the first annual frolic on Friday, November 4th was reached last night when thirty members of the Peterborough Business Men's Association held an executive meeting at the Elite Grill. Don Scott and Vern Selkirk are the prize committee and the prizes will be on display in Richard Hall Store window on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

J .W. Watson, president of the association, occupied the chair and the session was one of the most enthusiastic in the history of the organization. T. A. Mackay, Bank of Montreal, and Jacob Low, were named to the Finance committee and will also act as auditors. A committee of three, Charles Saunders, Al Sharpe and Coleman Blewett was named to report on the observance of Armistice Day at the next regular meeting.

Cyclist Injured When Hits Truck

Jack Robinson, 13, an inmate of the Children's Aid Society Shelter, had his right arm and shoulder injured at noon to-day when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with a truck driven by Robert Astling, 237½ McDonnel street at the intersection of Park and Albert streets. It is stated that Robinson drove his bicycle into the side of the truck and was thrown off, his arm catching in the rear wheel of the truck, with the result that he was dragged 21 feet. However he was not seriously injured and the bicycle was not damaged.

Truck Driver Is Freed Of Reckless Driving

"I am going to give you the benefit of the doubt," Magistrate E. A. Gee told Ray McIlmoyle in police court this morning in dismissing a reckless driving charge against the young truck driver.

In giving judgment the magistrate warned McIlmoyle to be careful about his driving if he wanted to make his living as a truck driver. "Don't drive so fast when it is raining and the road is slippery and keep a careful watch of the road ahead of you if you want to avoid accidents," he advised the accused.

McIlmoyle was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry conducted the prosecution.

Louis Anthony, first Crown witness, told of driving his car south on the Lakefield road on the night of the accident and of seeing another car coming with bright lights showing. Anthony said he slowed down to about 20 miles an hour and just as he was beginning to pick up speed again his car was struck from behind by a truck, and $15 damage was done to the rear end. He said that when he got out of his machine four men, one of them McIlmoyle got out of the truck and he believed two of them had got out of each door of the cab. McIlmoyle had told the witness that he was "full of hot air" when he remonstrated with him over the accident.

To Mr. Carley witness said that he had not looked at his tail light before the accident but was sure it had been burning.

Tenniece Guerin who had been with Anthony corroborated his evidence and stated that before their car had entered Highway 28 he had looked at the tail light and it was on then, about 4 miles away from the scene of the accident.

Blames Lights

To Mr. Carley Guerin said that in his opinion the bright lights of the oncoming car had been the principal cause of the accident. Provincial Traffic Officer Broughton, testified, despite a strong protest from Mr. Carley as to the admissability of the evidence, that McIlmoyle had admitted to him that he was driving the truck at the time of the accident.

That concluded the crown's case and Mr. Carley made an unsuccessful motion for dismissal.

McIlmoyle took the witness box in his own behalf and stated that he had not seen Anthony's car until some 30 feet away from it and that there was no tail light burning on the car. Further he stated the speed of the Anthony car when it was hit could not have been more than 10 miles an hour. His own truck was doing 35 to 40 until he had put his brakes on when he saw the other car.

His evidence was corroborated by Harry Reid and Fred Bullock who were riding in the cab of the truck with him. George Perrin who said he was riding on the top of the truck also testified, stating that there had been nothing unusual about the speed of the truck before the accident.

After hearing the arguments of the two counsel Magistrate Gee dismissed the case, declaring that Mr. Anthony had his remedy in the civil courts and that he had decided that while there might have been an error of judgment on the part of McIlmoyle he was not going to find him guilty of recklessness under the code.

Rev. Stuart Parker To Address Banquet

A distinguished visitor to the city next week will be the Rev. Dr. Stuart C. Parker of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto. Dr. Parker is one of the leading clergymen of our Dominion, and, besides being a preacher of note, is the author of several volumes. His last book, a series of devotional studies centred around the Holy Communion, and entitled "The Guest Chamber" has just recently been issued. In the courts of the church, he has held many distinguished offices, and at the last General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was runner-up for the office of Moderator. He will be the guest speaker at a banquet to be held under the auspices of the Men's Association of St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening, November first, to which the women of the congregation are also being invited. Those who heard him in his recent broadcast at the request of the Canadian Broadcasting Commision will no doubt want to hear him again.

TRAFFIC CASES.

In traffic court before Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning, Alex McIntyre pleaded guilty to allowing his car to be driven by a person not holding a chauffeur's license or operator's permit and was fined $10 and costs, while Jack Huggins contributed a similar amount for driving a car with inadequate brakes.

GETS WINGS

R. D. P. (Doug) Blagrave, formerly of this city was gazetted this week and received his permanent commission as pilot officer in the R.C. A.F. He is stationed at Trenton. He is the son of the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, former rector of St. John's Anglican church.

RETURNS TO CITY

S. A. Brett of the Canadian Churchman is in the city for several weeks. Mr. Brett is a diocesan lay-reader of the Anglican church and will be remembered by many in this city for in 1921 and 22 he taught a Sunday School class at St. John's church.

HE MAN ACCOUTREMENT

There is a lot of he-man trappings in main street windows this week as the hunting season draws nearer, rifles, shot guns and artillery of other calibres, knives and belts, hatchets, gray blankets and a wide assortment of other paraphenalia for outdoor adventures in November.

BE PREPARED

Lazy husbands who have been putting off the job of preparing storm windows and storm doors for the Winter believing that the good weather would last indefinitely should accept next Saturday as the deadline. According to weather records biting frosts and snow may come any day now, and it is much nicer putting up storm windows when the weather is so warm gloves are not required.

FACES OLD CHARGE.

Facing a drunk charge in police court this morning, Norman Hurl of Young's Point found himself also called upon to defend himself against a two-year-old charge of supplying liquor to an Indian. He was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., and on both charges asked for a week's adjournment which was granted.

THREE UNTIMELY DEATHS

Several C. N. R. employees recalled this morning that Joseph Meagher was the third of the local shunter's crew who had met untimely deaths. Fred Elliott was killed at Trenton, Harvey Staunton fell off a box car in the yards of the Quaker Oats Company, and last night Mr. Meagher was fatally injured.

MEMBER OF PRIVY COUNCIL

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., a member of the Canadian Privy Council will be amongst those who will be summoned to attend a meeting of the Privy Council in Ottawa which will be presided over by King George VI as King of Canada during his visit to this country next year. There are ninety members of the Canadian Privy Council, being made up of federal cabinet ministers, former cabinet ministers and several others who were given the honor.

AN UNUSUAL RECORD

480 employees in the local plant of the Western Clock Company are headed for a new Canadian safety record. To date they have worked 3,508,967 man-hours without a single lost time accident. It was thought at the start that if the factory could reach the one million mark without an accident it would be a noteworthy achievement. They have now passed the three and a half million mark.

RECOGNITION

Gossip among members of the Peterborough County Council indicates the members are fully aware of the honor brought to the district by the Keene softball team, and it is believed the County Council will follow the usual custom of banquetting the group which brought the highest honors to the district in the past year, in this case it was the Keene team. The decision will be made at the next session of the Council late in November.

"COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY."

J. W. McFarlane, president of the Scientific and Technical section of the Photography Society of America, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Engineering Institute Thursday October 27. The members have been looking forward to this address from early last season. Circumstances caused several postponements. Mr. McFarlane's subject will be "Color Photography". It will be illustrated by lantern slides and motion pictures in color. Members are being specially reminded of this meeting.

RECEIVES LICENSE.

They say that flying is a game for youth alone, but George R. Schwab, 369 Mark street, has a different tale to tell. Yesterday the 40-year-old employee of the Western Clock company received his private pilot's license after passing the necessary examinations by a government inspector. He received his instruction at the Peterborough Air Service, now being operated by flying instructor Frank Armitage.

Rev. T. S. Gault And Rev. Floyd Will Exchange Pulpits

Rev. T. S. Gault, for nearly four years pastor of St. George's Anglican church here, is exchanging pulpits in the near future with Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ church, Campbellford.

Mr. Gault came to Peterborough three years ago last June and has won the friendship of every member of his congregation. "He has been a great friend to us all and we shall miss him a great deal," said Mrs. L. Warren, president of the Ladies Guild of the church. "We certainly don't like to see him leave."

Mr. Gault has been a hard worker during his years in Peterborough and perhaps his most concrete accomplishment has been the complete restoration of the church building. "He worked very hard at that," said Mrs. Warren.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26.—Rev. T. H. Floyd, pastor of Christ church came to Campbellford in 1931 from Caledon East in Peel County. Gifted with great organizing ability he was founder of the A. Y. P. A. in Campbellford a task which he accomplished in 1932 and the organization has grown to form a strong bulwark of the church here. Highly respected by all Mr. Floyd did not confine his activities solely to the Church but of recent years he became a member of the Masonic Order (Golden Rule Lodge, Campbellford) and Chaplain in the Canadian Militia he graduated from Trinity in 1925. A Reasonable Idea

The brain is the source of life energy within the body. That energy is distributed to every tissue by the spinal cord and nerves. The spinal nerves leave the spinal column through openings between the vertebrae. If an opening is decreased in size because of improper position of a vertebrae some nerve fibres will be constricted and there will be an abnormal amount of energy reaching the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

IT IS LOGICAL

To conclude that correction of mechanical defects along the spinal column will greatly facilitate the distribution of nerve impulses to all body parts. This means improved health.

Our manipulative treatments apply mechanical principles to the framework of the human body.

Sir Robert Borden Related Career Secrets In Memoirs

By R. H. Carnegie
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)
(Copyright, 1938, by Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — A life conspicuous for unwavering determination, high endeavor and accomplishment, often in the face of much difficulty, is delineated in "Robert Laird Borden: His Memoirs," soon to be published by the Macmillan Company of Canada.

The memoirs cover the long and active career of Canada's wartime Prime Minister, a career which to a considerable extent shaped the history of the Dominion in the critical Great War years.

The boy who did farm chores at Grand Pre in Nova Scotia's Land of Evangeline became the man who, in the distressing days following the German offensive of 1918, stood in the Imperial War Cabinet as Canada's representative and condemned the British high command.

Congratulated Sir Robert.

"I spoke for nearly an hour," wrote Sir Robert (who died June 10, 1937) of his War Cabinet speech on June 13, 1918. "The intensity of my emotion enabled me to speak without hesitation and with more rapidity than usual. Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the General Staff, had left at the commencement of my remarks. When I began to emphasize the incompetency, disorganization and confusion at the Front, Lloyd-George (Prime Minister) sent for him saying, 'This is very important.'" The British Prime Minister later congratulated Sir Robert on his stand.

This was typical of the vigor with which Borden represented Canada in the supreme councils of the Empire. With equal vigor he presented Canada' claims when the heads of the Allied nations met in Paris after the war and decided on peace terms.

The Dominions demanded and received the right to be directly represented in the peace conference; Borden led representatives of the other Dominions in the demand that in the League of Nations and in the accompanying labor convention the Dominions should enjoy a status commensurate with their national importance and the part they played in the War.

The United States delegation, heeding public opinion in United States, sought to limit the influence of the British Empire in the labor organization by providing it could nominate only one member to the governing body. His memoirs disclose that for days Borden fought this plan, insisting that each Dominion should have a right to nominate a member just as any other member nation. He interviewed President Wilson, had several conferences with the chief American expert on labor conditions, all with scant success despite the fact he was ably supported by the Prime Ministers of the other Dominions.

Warned Lloyd George

Finally he wrote Lloyd George warning him the Canadian parliament might decide to withdraw from the League if the dominions were placed in a position of inferiority in relation to other nations.

"The dominions have maintained their places before the world during the past five years through sacrifices that no nation outside of Europe has known," he wrote Lloyd George. "I am confident that the people of Canada will not tamely submit to a dictation which declares that Liberia or Cuba, Panama or Hedjaz, Haiti or Ecuador must have a higher place in the International Labor Organization than can be accorded to their country which is probably the seventh industrial nation of the world, if Germany is excluded from consideration."

The memoirs quote from Sir Robert's dairy about a later interview on the subject with Lord George. "In talking to him I became quite heated with regard to President Wilson and said he was sometimes as obstinate as a mule. Whereupon Lloyd George laughing said to me: 'For heaven's sake don't look at me like that."

The offending clause was struck out next day and other changes Sir Robert had pressed in regard to the nine point safefcting labor conditions in the peace treaty also were accepted in an amendment which Sir Robert moved. On the final plenary conference before the treaty of peace was handed to the Germans, Borden wrote in his diary: "Having obtained all I wanted I saw no necessity for speaking."

Terms Too Severe

A few days later on May 14, 1919, Borden left Paris for London. "On the following day I had a message from Sir Thomas White (Canadian finance minister) announcing his early retirement from public life. At Westminster Hall I met Bonar Law (British chancellor of the exchequer) and Sir Edward Carson with whom I discussed the affairs of the peace conference. We agreed the terms of the treaty were too severe." Bonar Law thought the Germans would refuse to sign it.

The memoirs deal extensively with the delays of the confernce which lasted several months, the restlessness of the soldiers at being held in France and the many clashes of opinion.

Sir Robert did not neglect to record one night of diversion. Sir George Foster and he had dinner with the Duchess of Sutherland and Lord Brooke. "After dinner we attended the Theatre St. Martin to see 'Cyrano de Bergerac' beautifully acted but sad in its ending. We were invited to supper by the leading lady of the piece, 'Roxana,' and at her apartment we met Percival Langdon of The Morning Post. We had an excellent supper and most enjoyable time. This was one of the friskiest evenings of Foster's life as we kept him up until 1:15. I told him I never would have embarked on such an adventure without his presence as chaperone."

Started In 1928

The memoirs total 400,000 words and were started in 1928, five years after the Macmillan Company first approached Sir Robert with the request he write them. They reveal a life in which one hard job followed another with relentless persistency. Against his own preference Borden was elected to parliament as a Conservative in 1896 from Halifax, without any previous political experience or practice in public speaking except as a successful lawyer in court. He insisted he would only serve one term.

Four years later he was chosen leader of the Conservative party and accepted for one year only and with much misgiving. He remained head of the party for 20 years.

For 11 years he led the Conservative forces in the Commons against that master political strategist and far-seeing statesmen, Sir Wilfred Laurier. That was a man-sized job but in addition for the last three years at least, his memoirs reveal, Borden had to cope with intrigue of men within his own ranks who sought to destroy his leadership. Three times he offerd his resignation to the party and on each occasion the loyalty of the great majority of his followers persuaded him to continue.

Sweeping into power in 1911 on the reciprocity issue, he was soon in the midst of a gigantic struggle over naval contributions to the Empire which caused a break in his own cabinet. Then in 1914 came the War and the memoirs set forth that again and again he worked himself into a state of exhaustion.

Finally came the formatoin of the Union government when he again offered to relinquish the premiership in favor of Sir George Foster, Mr. Justice Lyman P. Duff (now Sir Lyman) or anyone else who might more successfully carry on Canada's war effort and keep faith with the men in the trenches. He was again persuaded to continue.

When peace had been finally signed and Canada was in the midst of the abnormal conditions which followed the end of the War his health broke down. He presented his resignation to the party caucus of of Conservative members to send in their votes for a successor.

The decision lay between Sir Thomas White and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen. On Borden,s recommendation the Governor-General invited Sir Thomas to form a government but he declined because of ill health and Mr. Meighen became prime minister. He asked Borden to remain as minister without portfolio but Sir Robert was too ill to accept.

England's Enemy Is Friend Of Ours Says Rebel Irish Leader

CORK, Oct. 25 — (CP Cable). — Sean H. Ryan, southern leader of the illegal Irish Republican army, today advocated that in the event Great Britain becomes involved in war all Ireland strive for complete independence. He suggested the country accept the aid of any power offering assistance.

Attacking Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, Mr. Ryan said the Irish leader had shown an "unmistakeable willingness" to go to the assistance of the "damnable Empire" in the event of war, but the I. R. A. would "see that the manhood of this historic Irish nation will not be used for the defence of the robber empire that tried to crush and torture us for 700 years."

"It is right to make it clear that England's enemy is our friend," he continued. "When the opportunity comes we are prepared to enter an alliance with any power offering assistance, military or otherwise. When the next blow is struck we shall be only too glad to accept any assistance we receive."

He said the seas were the only boundary the I. R. A. recognized. This was a reference to the border between Eire and the six counties of northern Ireland, which remain part of the United Kingdom.

Dry Rot Affects Potato Crop

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 26. — Losses ranging as high as 50 per cent. are reported by potato growers in this district due to a dry rot, believed to have been caused by too much rain. As a general rule, potatoes grown in low ground are affected.

A farmer near Westwood stated that part of his crop was never removed from the field. As his potatoes were being dug he sorted out ones with dark marks on them. This, however, does not seem to eliminate the bad ones, as other cases are reported where apparently good potatoes have been placed in cellars only to be removed a week or two later with the identical dark marks on them and giving off a bad odor.

A Hastings merchant, buyer of potatoes, said it would be quite hard as yet to estimate the loss, but was under the opinion that it would be 50 per cent. or even possibly 75 per cent. He said growers should get good prices for their product before spring owing to the scarcity. "It would be to our advantage to buy small quantities from wholesalers for the present and eliminate any danger of loss," he added.

PICTOU, N.S., Oct. 26—(CP).—J. G. Reeves of Pictou found a pure white stuffed crow in his garage. He asked a Mulgrave, N.S., acquaintance if he had ever seen a white crow. His friend replied he had not only seen one, but had shot one when he was a youth.

Reeves showed him his find, whereupon the friend identified it as one he had shot 25 years ago. He said he had hunted it for years before he finally bagged it near Caribou, N.S.

Three Societies Young People Meet Together

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26. — President Earl Wood extended a hearty welcome to the young people from St. John's and St. Andrew's Churches who were guests of the Anglican Young People's Association at a social evening held in the Parish Hall on Monday. Nearly two hunderd young people gathered for this the third occasion on which the A.Y.P.A. have been hosts to the similar organizations of the town. As in previous years the program for the evening wa arranged by the visiting members, while the hosts provided the lunch.

Mrs. P. H. MacMillan, president of the St. Andrew's Society, took the chair, following Earl Wood's address of welcome. She introduced the various numbers being offered by St. Andrew's Society. The program opened with a piano solo by Miss J. Scott. Miss Merele Black followed with a reading, and Misses Josephine and Doris Locke contributed a guitar duet, which called for an encore. A piano duet by W. Phillips and J. Cassan was also encored. Miss Monica DeCarrol offered a vocal solo in her usual pleasing manner and was given two encores. Jack Cassan accompanied. The concluding numbers by the St. Andrew's group were vocal solos by Miss S. Atkinson and Miss Frances Hendy. Mrs. M. McFarlane accompanied Miss Hendy, who also received an encore. Addressing the gathering Rev. B. Simpson Black expressed warm praise for the value "this type of meeting has on the young people," and felt that movements of this sort would guide youth away from all the "isms of the world."

President Earl Wood called upon Miss R. Palliser, who heads the St. John's Y.P.S. and she in turn introduced their portion of the entertainment. It opened with a vocal solo and encore by Miss June Burgiss, accompanied at the piano by Jack Cassan. Miss Mary Murphy was at her best in one of her humirous readings and in order for the audience to catch their breath Harold Kitney provided a brief interlude of community singing with Miss Dorothy Henson assisting at the piano. The program closed with a reading by Miss R. Palliser. Rev. Harold B. Neal brought a brief message to the gathering, and Rev. T. H. Floyd, whose efforts were responsible for the formation of the A.Y.P.A. in Campbellford, expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large number of young people present on this occasion. A quiz contest which provided much humor preceded the lunch.

Undertaking To Smash The Atom May Revolutionize Civilization; Opening New Scientific Worlds

PITTSBURG, Oct. 26.—Industry is today engaged in one of the most ambitious undertakings ever attempted—nothing less than the smashing of the atom. If successful, it may revolutionize the course of civilization itself.

At a special laboratory set aside in the Westinghouse laboratories at Pittsburgh new equipment to provide the highest possible controlled direct voltage for the work is rapidly nearing completion.

An electrostatic generator capable of providing direct current potentials of 5,000,000 volts of electricity, is the central unit with which it is hoped to smash the atom and open a new world of science and industry.

A Dream of Years

For years man has dreamed of disintegrating the atom, that mysterious substance which has never been seen but which is known to constitute 99 per cent of all the mass of the universe. The energy contained in one glass of water, it has been said, is sufficient if locsed to drive the world's largest liner across the ocean.

The "atom-smashing" equipment is housed in a huge pear-shaped tank 30 feet in diameter and 47 feet high. The tank will contain compressed air of 120 pounds to the square inch providing an additional insulation for the 5,000,000-volt electrostatic generator which will accelerate the passage of streams of ions down a vacuum tube located in the centre of the giant mechanism. At either side of the vacuum tub will be fabric belts which will generate direct current voltage.

When the generator is ready for experimentation, the 5,000,000 volts of electricity will be directed at a substance, such as steel, placed at the mouth of the atom smasher. As it will be directed atomic particles, ionized particles of gas, all positively charged.

To Test Substance

When the atomic contents have been split the resultant substance will be tested to determine what happened during the bombardment.

The latest theory holds that atomic particles, instead of disintegrating under high voltage bombardment as heretofore supposed, merely change their form and recombine to build new substances. This will be one of the theories tested.

The generation of such extremely high voltage as is being sought for experimentation is the first direct step into the unknown. Very little is known about such direct voltages due to the fact that almost all previous research has been in the field of alternating current high voltage. The attaining of such steady voltages, of 5,000,000 and above, will enable the research physicists to secure fundamental information in this relatively unexplored field.

Vacuum Tube

Another of the problems faced by the physicists is the development of a vacuum tube, in which the atomic bombardment will take place, to withstand voltages in excess of 5,000,000. By process of experimentation in the course of their study Westinghouse scientists are confident they will develop such a tube.

The ultimate result of the project cannot be foreseen and it is not possible to predict what practical applications may result from the fundamental knowledge gained, said Dr. L. W. Chubb, director of the Westinghouse research laboratories. It is the possibilities inherent in such research that is responsible for the decision to embark in this new field, he explained.

As an historic example he pointed to the development of the radio industry, a billion-dollar business which has radically affected the everyday life of civilization. It was only when science discovered how to control electrons that this great industry became possible.

The entire electrical industry, Chubb pointed out, has been built step by step by various similar discoveries after which engineers learned how to control and put such forces to work.

Discoveries in the new field of nuclear research go back only a few years. The neutron, artificial radio activity, heavy hydrogen and the positive electron have been discovered since 1931. These triumphs have only indicated the fact that there is hidden in nuclear research other nuggets of pure scientific gold waiting to be mined if the way can be found to their hiding places.

Science has found the way to strip off the electrons that surround the particles of matter leaving only the nucleous or core of the atom. They are now bombarding various streams accelerated by a wide range forms of targets with nuclear of voltages.

This huge pear-shaped tank 30 feet in diameter and 47 feet high houses the new "atom-smashing" equipment now under construction at the research laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, in East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Indians Guard New Sanctuary

QUEBEC, Oct. 26—(CP)—In a remote, far northern Quebec district once the home of countless number of beaver, the Quebec government plans to re-establish the industrious animals and assure protection of the homes it is hoped they will build.

The government's plan, under the direction of Hon. Onesime Gagnon, game and fisheries minister, is for a beaver sanctuary of an area of 1,000 square miles, southeast of James Bay. The idea of a sanctuary first was suggested by the late Count Henry de Puyjalon, eminent naturalist and writer who gave up the civilization of a half-century ago to live in the Quebec wilds.

One of the first problems was a lack of beavers in the proposed sanctuary area where they once were prolific. But negotiations with the Federal Department of Indian Affairs resulted in an agreement whereby the federal department would hire Indians to trap the beavers alive and transport them to the sanctuary whose boundaries will be the Rupert River, which flows into James Bay, the Ontario-Quebec line down to the Harricaraw River, and on the east, Lake Evans, Lake Kanoniska, Lake Beatrice and Lake Matagami.

Once the sanctuary is well stocked with the flat-tailed dam-builders, Indians will be given charge of the re-established animal population. And Indians too will see to observation of a hunting ban to blanket the area. None of the beavers will be killed until a census shows that the sanctuary has at least 2,000 thriving beaver families. Then, the Indian keepers who will be encouraged to set up homes of their own in the sanctuary will be given permission to go beaver hunting once in a while.

Hint Concessions For East Indians

PRETORIA, South Africa, Oct. 26—(CP-Reuters)—A rumor current in Natal that the Union government is contemplating introducing legislation regarding enfranchisement of natives of India here has been authoritatively denied in Pretoria.

Credence has been given to the rumor by a hint dropped by Senator S. S. Brisker of Durban at a welcome given to India's new agent-general in South Africa, Rama Rau, by the Moslem community in Durban. "I do not know what form of representation the government has to offer you, but when the proposal does come—and this will be held out at no distant future—it will be a stepping stone," said Senator Brisker.

The former Indian agent-general, Syed Raza Ali, urged the government, in view of steps taken to give representation to the native population, not to neglect the Indian community.

Indians are willing to concede the necessity for members of their race to satisfy certain educational or property qualifications before acquiring the right to vote.

It is generally thought that the Indians in the Union would object strongly to any form of communal representation, such as is accorded to South African natives.

China's Leader Highly Praised

VANCOUVER, Oct. 26 (CP).—Describing Madame Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, as the outstanding woman in the world today, Dr. Robert B. McClure of the Northern China Red Cross, speaking before the Women's Canadian Club, gave fascinating glimpses of her daily life.

Reports of the split seconds by which she escapes assassination are not exaggerated, he claimed, and she "has eyes like a hawk and a memory like the Doomsday Book."

"It's uncanny what she knows," he exclaimed, and everyone who came in contact with her gained inspiration and learned to pass it on to others. This work demanded a practical type of Christianity, and the speaker insisted that only by realization of that fact could full comprehension of the situation be gained.

When 95 per cent of Japan's war materials has come from democratic countries, China feels justified in believing those countries had "let her down." General Chiang Kai-shek and his party, according to Dr. McClure, represent the "middle of the road." He sounded a call to Canadian women to get away from materialism, for the culture of Canada and its women now is being tested. "Are women guardians of that culture or are they breeders of canon fodder?" Seventy per cent of the wounded coming under his care in China were women and children, and that, said the speaker, is modern warfare.

Asks Imprisonment

Bruised, Teeth Out, Actress Found In Lane With 3 Dogs, Creates Mystery

LONDON, Oct. 26 (CP-Cable).—Margaret Bannerman, 42, Canadian actress, underwent an operation in a London clinic today for facial injuries she received in an accident. A physicians' bulletin issued after the operation said the Toronto-born star was "quite comfortable."

Miss Bannerman was found last night in a semi-conscious state near her residence. With her were her three dogs. She was taken to the offices of Dr. A. E. Martin but was unable to account for severe bruises on her legs and injuries to her face and head.

Dr. Martin took her to the clinic where an operation was performed about the mouth. Her front teeth had been knocked in and broken and her lips were badly cut.

Authorities investigated the case suggested the theory she might have tripped over her dogs' leash and fallen head first on the hard surface of the road. This seemed unlikely, however, as there were no bruises on her hands.

The possibility she was attacked by foot-pads also was discounted when her hand-bag was untouched. The absence of bruises on her body also dispelled the belief she might have been struck by a hit-and-run driver.

Miss Bannerman, who was married twice, was divorced in June from her second husband, Anthony Leyland Princeps, a London theatrical manager.

Re-bury Sentinel Of 180 Years Ago

QUEBEC, Oct. 26—(CP).—Yellowed bones found beneath the spot where Fort St. Louis stood during the French regime 180 years ago were believed to be those of a French sentinel who plunged down the deep bank when struck by a stray bullet during the siege of Quebec by the English forces of General James Wolfe in 1759.

Historians suggested the soldier had been watching English movements on the river below while far back of the fort on the Plains of Abraham beyond the city's heavy walls, Wolfe's men after scaling the cliffside by night made their victorious assault on the French stronghold. The bones were reburied in an old cemetery.

Former Austrian Chancellor To Face Treason Trial In Vienna During November

By PIERRE J. HUSS
Central Press Canadian Writer

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Former Chancellor Schuschnigg of ill-fated Austria will be publicly tried in Vienna, it has been tentatively decided by the Nazis, some time in November.

On the stand at the same time, or following immediately after, will be the trials also of former Mayor Schimitz of Vienna and of the former War Minister General Vaugoin.

Several other ministers of the former Schuschnigg regime are expected to be hailed before the same court, while an interesting non-government figure of absorbed Austria awaiting the judges is Baron von Wiesner, personal representative of Otto of Hapsburg.

The trials are expected to be short but spectacular. Tremendous preparation and compilation of stacks of evidence against the accused, particularly against Schuschnigg, is occupying Nazi quarters charged with the task of carrying out the trials.

Purpose Of Trials

Their chief and only purpose is to arraign the defendants before greater Germany and in general before the whole world, as unworthy of the high posts they occupied and to brand them as political criminals deserving their sad fate.

It is already fairly definite that the political trials will be followed in the case of at least some of the defendants, such as Schmitz and Vaugoin and possibly Wiesner, by regular criminal proceedings. The evidence to be brought out at Schuschniggs political trial will decide whether he is to be tried also on criminal charges.

From three to five professional judges are to be picked by Hitler and Commissioner Buerckel to conduct the proceedings, which will not be unlike those of the famous Reichstag fire trial of the executed Dutchman, van der Lubbe. But no death penalty or even a prison sentence is possible in the Vienna trails, for the court as constituted is limited to pronouncement of judgment only on the defendants as either guilty of political high treason or not. If convicted, the defendants can and will be stripped of their citizenship rights and privileges for any number of years, which entails the loss of their property as well.

KURT VON SCHUSCHNIGG

Nazi quarters believe there is a strong likelihood, unless he is held over afterwards for criminal proceedings, that Schuschnigg will be expelled from the Reich and given brief notice to cross the border into some other land.

Schuschnigg has been informed of the forthcoming proceedings against him and in his attic room at the Metropole hotel is awaiting the fateful day. A defence lawyer will be appointed to handle the former chancellors side of the case, but he himself will have to stand in the dock and answer to the charges and evidence the Nazis intend to confront him with.

The sadder spectacle will be the witnesses against him, many of them his former colleagues and friends. Seyss - Inquart, Glaise - Horstenau, Police Chief Steinhauels and others are expected to take the stand against the former chancellor, who is said to have had few real friends even at the heyday of power.

It has been definitely decided that former President Miklas, living quietly with his family in his modest Vienna residence, is not to be brought into the picture at all, unless direct evidence compels his testimony. In any case, he will not become a defendant himself.

Holsteins Bred On Cavan Farm Set New Records

The October issue of the Holstein-Friesian journal includes in its "With the Big Producers" department a picture of a Cavan bred cow that has attracted a great deal of attention in the Holstein world It is Holmview Spofford Ormsby Burke, 223,401. Her record of 1,206 pounds of fat from 28,774 pounds of milk .with 4.2 per cent. test is the highest Holstein fat production reported in ten years. It is also fifth in the list of all time fat producers in Canada. Bred by P. B. Seymour of Cavan township, she is owned and was tested by R. Ray McLaughlin, Oshawa.

The Journal says: "The largest record for fat production and the second highest for milk reported so far this year have been made by a cow own by R. Ray McLaughlin, Holmview Spofford Ormsby Burke. At seven years of age, milked four times daily for 354 of the 365 days, she produced 28,774 pounds of milk and 1,208 pounds of fat with an average test of 4.2 per cent.

Her fat record is the highest reported since 1928 when Agassiz Pietje Inka Sylvia made 1,257 pounds of fat from 29,012 pounds of milk. She stands fifth in the list of all-time Canadian Holstein fat producers. She is a very regular milker and tester. Her highest test was 4.4 per cent. and her lowest 4 per cent. and she was milking over 50 pounds per day at the completion of her record. She was bred by P. B. Seymour, Ida., and is sired by Sir Ormsby Burke of Popular Row an XX bull with 20 tested daughters. Her dam has not completed a R.O.P. record.

A Quebec Sale

On another page of the Journal is reported the sale by Brown Corporation of La Tuque, Quebec, of a bull calf four months old to John Feeny of Huntingdon. "This calf is from an "Excellent" dam with a record at 6 years of 20,495 pounds of milk, 3.66 per cent fat, in 365 days, and a four-year-old record of close to 19,000 pounds, sire by Sir Francy Walker and from a good producing cow purchased in the Huntingdon district some years ago. The sire of this calf is Springdale Pride, an XX son of Francy Pride of Crystal Spring, a qualified sire whose daughters are turning out some nice two-year-old 305-day records for W. J. Seymour of Cavan.

"Springdale Pride," bred on the Seymour farm, was sold in February 1937 to the Brown Corporation and won second prize in the aged bull class at the Quebec provincial exhibition this year.

Brown's Ragapple Pride, a son of Springdale Pride, was junior champion at the Three Rivers exposition this year. These progeny are in direct line from the foundation stock with which the late W. J. Seymour established his Holstein herd thirty years ago.

Senator Wilson Lauds Work Of Institutes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 26. — A glowing tribute to the work being accomplished by the Women's Institute was expressed by Senator Carena Wilson who addressed the annual convention of the Belleville district held in that city. She stressed the value of the Women's Institute as an organization for peace and better living particularly was the child welfare work of great importance. The institute's work in both home and country has played a responsible part in the organization of woman throughout the whole world.

Its work in establishing as citizens refugees from the world war—people who have brought to Canada their skill in the various fine arts—cannot be over-estimated. Senator Wilson stressed the advancement in health law incorporated largely at the instigation of women's organization who led in the fight for greater safeguards to health.

East Northumberland Win

The outstanding contribution in district work was given by representatives in answering the roll call at the convention. Northumberland East Institute won honors for the county with their preparation of girls for leadership this year, while West Northumberland stressed garden and vegetable plates as a health project. Prince Edward accented the importance of the get-together and West Hastings representatives spoke of health as the only national builder of good citizens. Only health and happiness will prevent relief and hospital needs.

Assistant Superintendent of the Institute, Miss F. M. Powell, also a guest speaker, led discussion on papers presented and once again emphasised the value of health education. She regarded it of importance for all meetings to last for only a limited time so that their social and conversational aspects should not be sacrificed. It is loyalty in the family life which leads to national loyalty and peace.

Mrs. William Honey, Dartford urged members to attend school meetings and to express their opinions along the lines of education. She showed the great amount of work done by the Institute in forming book and music clubs. Behaviour in the home, in public places, speaking good English and getting bulletins from the Department were all subjects dealt with by Mrs. Honey at the Convention deemed by all to be the largest and most successful ever held.

Election of Officers

Mrs. Jas. Garbutt of Belleville presided for the concluding session when Mrs. T. J. McDowell, the provincial president of the Federated Women's Institute of Ontario gave her address. Reports on resolutions and courtesy committee were given by Mrs. P. Bronson of Stirling.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Area chairman, Mrs. James Bailey of Eldorado; vice area chairman, Mrs. J. Black, Warkworth; secretary treasurer, Mrs. A. Mitchell, Belleville; convenors, education, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, Bonarlaw; health and child welfare, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, Hastings; home economics, Mrs. W. A. Hoskins, Cobourg; legislation, Mrs. H. J. Eade, Deseronto; historical research, Mrs. J. C. Sills; community activities, Mrs. Aundry, Hillier; agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. Holmes; Peace education, Mrs. McLean; Canadianization, Mrs. H. S. May, Trenton; Federation representative, Mrs. T. J. Nickle, Eldorado; girls work, Miss Kathleen Giles, Mountain View.

Seek New High In Ballooning

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(CP).—Captains Zbigniew Burzynski and F. R. Hynek, Polish balloonists who won the 1933 Gordon Bennett balloon race with a flight from Chicago to Quebec, will take off sometime in September from the Tatra Mountains in southwestern Poland in an attempt to set a new altitude record of about 15½ miles above sea level. The present record is approximately 13¾ miles, set by United States army balloonists in 1935.

The balloon for the flight is one of the largest built. Inflated, it reaches 459 feet with a capacity of 4,800,000 cubic feet. The spherical gondola is constructed of steel and aluminum. In preparation for the flight, which is expected to supply the world with new meteorological data, Captain Burzynski has had several conferences with U. S. experts associated with Army's 1935 record flight in South Dakota.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight! (Advt.)

The last bag was packed. She ordered the station wagon, and stood by while the luggage was carried downstairs. She followed it. Then Oliver went into the hall. She called him. He need not think he must consult Abbey.

"You may see Miss Boland when you return. I'll miss my train."

"But you have 40 minutes."

"I know—" Then she smiled. "I like to get away, that's all, right away."

"I don't blame you miss. It's bad enough to get caught doing something without being innocent."

"Then you believe in me?"

"Yes, miss. All the servants do."

"Will you thank them for me?" She wanted to cry. "I'll prove I didn't do it now."

"And you'll be back?"

"No, I'll not be back."

All the way down the winter road he pictured sternly to herself. Life was no bigger, no better, than your understanding of it. Because Abbey was mistaken she, Judy Rogers, must not be petty. She must rise above it. She must reach the plane where she would not fear hurt, because she would have all that she needed within.

Like a warrior, accepting his accolade from his king, and turning to battle, Judy squared her shoulders. She was calm when the station wagon reached the low stone building that housed the waiting room. She was not perturbed when Count Phillippe swung from the city train, his soft hat at a rakish angle.

"Leaving?" he asked, amused eyes surveying the luggage.

"No, just spending the day in town and I thought it would be nice to have my things along."

"Oh, yes, of course! It's such a convenience. You might want to change your dress or shoes, or read a good book—by the way, I owe you a copy of mine. I'll mail it. Where?"

The ruse to obtain her address did not work. "I don't know yet."

"You're going back?" The count was serious. "It's about the dog, I know. Abbey told me you would be pulling out."

"Prophetic of her. But who did take the dog?"

He shook his dark head. "I don't know. Couldn't anyone have done it?"

"No. He was—he is—a proud dog. He wouldn't go with anyone but a friend. I see you and Abbey have made up your small disagreement and are entering matrimony by the approved method."

"She sent for me. I think I'll enjoy being married to Abbey. I'm fond of her, of course. Besides, she'll grant me my freedom."

It's nice to have people around you like—wives, secretaries, cooks, valets." Judy wrinkled her nose and laughed.

If Abbey had sent for the count, she was putting Ronald aside definitely. It served him right! He had fallen from his white horse and he wouldn't ride so tall, so strong again at the head of his legion. She was fiercely glad. Then she remembered that she had decided to feel nothing. Whatever happened to Ronald could not concern her.

She was not the girl he wanted. Just the one on whom he hung a scrap of a dream last fall. She would be sufficient unto herself.

But the talkative count kept the station wagon waiting until the train came.

"Did you think I talked to you too much, Judy?" he asked. "Abbey resented it. She had a hunch you thought she wouldn't marry me—why, I don't know—I'm a bright person if the problem isn't hard but I can't solve that—and she thought you had some aspirations of your own.

"Of course, I told her that you wouldn't want a castle with bad plumbing unless you had money enough to repair it, which you haven't, and you wouldn't want a husband who loved another girl, as I love the sweet and gentle Abbey—"

"You're honest, but you're pretty much of a cad," Judy said without emotion. "Aren't you afraid his will carry back?"

"Not from you. From anyone else, yes."

The train came. The count swept his hat low over his heart as Judy glided away. She laughed. This was a musical comedy. It wasn't real. It had no sinew, no sturdiness. She was well rid of it. Only that accusation—

She went to a small, quiet hotel unpacked, hung out her dresses, arranged her books and prints and lamps, and for the first time since that Monday morning when the sky had fallen and the stars had splintered, she felt at peace. It was strange. Here she was, accused of a theft, and she was singing in the shower!

She sat down at the desk to balance finances. Then she discovered she had left some things in the desk at the Boland estate. She must telephone at once. The housekeeper would send them to General Delivery. But the butler, on hearing her voice, said:

"We have an urgent call for you, Miss Rogers. The party phoned yesterday and left this number."

Herring Strike Ends

LOWESTOFT, England, Oct. 26—(AP).—The "Sunday herring" strike by 2,400 Scottish fishgirls collapsed today. All but a few returned to work when English fisherwomen retaliated by refusing to handle fish caught by Scots.

The strike was called yesterday after the Scottish girls charged English Sunday fishing was unfair competition with the Scots who did not fish on Sunday. The girls were engaged in salting and packing herring.

DOROTHY DIX

If Mother or Father Desire to Marry Another Mate After Either Has Lost the First One, Consider Well Before You Attempt to Prevent the Marriage

AMONG the most tearful letters that come to this column are those written by children whose widowed fathers or mothers are contemplating a second marriage. Sometimes the children are adolescent girls and boys. Sometimes they are married men and women. But always the burden of their lamentations is the same.

Father is breaking their hearts because he is putting another woman in Mother's place. They can't bear to think of another woman using Mother's silver and china and being called Mrs. Jones as Mother was. And they are not going to let any stepmother boss them. And, anyway, it is perfectly ridiculous for an old man like Father, who is nearly 50, to think about love and romance, and if he wasn't dotty he would know he was just the victim of a designing woman because he is well off, etc., etc.

And isn't it terrible—boo-hoo, boo-hoo—isn't it worse than terrible? Isn't it sacrilegious for Mother to marry again after she has had a husband like Father? Isn't it awful for Mother to care more for some strange man than she does for her own children? Putting him ahead of them. Why, we never dreamed she could do such a thing! Marrying at her time of life! Why, she is 42 even if she doesn't look it! Of course, the excuse she gives is that she is lonely and that soon we will be leaving her, but that's nonsense. We always tell her where we are going of an evening and when we marry she can come and live with us, and boo-hoo, boo-hoo, Mother is breaking our hearts by marrying again. How often do we hear that wail?

It is perhaps natural that children—particularly those who have been devoted to their parents—should resent a widowed father or mother marrying because it rouses in them a double jealousy, a jealousy for the dead parent who has been supplanted by another, and jealousy for themselves in feeling that they are losing Mother or Father almost as much as if he or she were going to die also.

Besides, to all children their parents seem Methuselahs and for them to marry is an act of pure senility. They cannot understand why these dotards who are fortyish or fiftyish or sixtyish should desire any lives of their own; or any affection except the diluted filial brand; or any happiness except sitting on the sidelines and watching their children enjoy themselves. For them to think of love and romance is as ridiculous as it would be for them to go back to playing marbles or hopscotch.

So when fathers or mothers with fear and trembling announce to their children that they are thinking of marrying again, the children almost invariably bitterly resent it and break off the match unless Father or Mother is possessed of exceptional strength of character and determination.

Of course, if the parents are bent on making ill-advised marriages—if Father at 70 wants to marry a 17-year-old chorus girl, or Mother is thinking of letting some notorious fortune-hunter get his hands on Father's life insurance—then their children are justified in moving heaven and earth in preventing them from making a second marriage.

If, however, Mother and Father have picked out good men and women of their own class and age as substitutes for the mates they have lost, their children make a great mistake in not giving them their blessing and helping on the marriage.

For people as they are growing old and older need companionship that their children cannot give them. They need some one to sit by the fire of an evening with them and reminisce and enjoy doing it. They need their own homes where they can putter around and do as they please. They need to preserve their own individuality and not be just Grandpa or Grandma as they are if they go to live with their children.

The children who object so strenuously to their parents marrying do not realize how selfish they are in denying their widowed father or mother companionship during the last lap of the journey. For they do not sacrifice themselves and stay away from their gay parties and amusements to bear a lonely old man or woman company. They do not refrain from marrying because Father or Mother would be left with nobody but servants to look after him or her if they did. They don't even consider how much happier Father or Mother would be in his or her own home with a nice comfortable wife or husband than they could possibly be as an enforced guest in theirs.

If children only realized how many problems for themselves as well as for the old people would be solved by their widowed parents marrying, it would save a lot of grief to all concerned.

A smart woollen dress in deep new grape shade....the most flattering dirndl type you've ever seen. Fullness radiates from inverted tucks at either side of the front and back. Note the tucks give a fitted waistline....lend interesting fullness to the bosom. The little girl collar and long sleeves, snug at the wrist are other attractive details. With the same pattern, you can make a short sleeved dress with collarless neck of spun rayon challis print. It has a bright zipper down the front of the bodice. It's stunning, too, in crush resistant velvet or in rayon crepe silk for "date" time. You couldn't ask for anything simpler to sew. It cuts in one piece from neck to hem.

Style No. 2823 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material with 1½ yards of braid.

Boys Steal Bullets To Hear Report When Bounced

Simcoe, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP). AN OFFICER here spying a young school boy in possession of a handful of rifle bullets, last night was led a chase throughout the town in tracing down the theft of three boxes of bullets from Anderson's Hardware store. A box of shells was found hidden in a lumber yard, another box hidden underneath a young boy's bed and scattered shells were obtained in various Simcoe homes.

The theft occurred last Friday. The young boys stole the bullets to hear them explode when thrown against brick buildings.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

The other evening, after the children had gone off to bed, Knarf and Hanid, the shadows with the turned-about names, went into the playroom to pay a visit to their friend, Mr. Punch. They found him sitting on the steps of the little showhouse in which he lived. Mr. Punch, you know, was an actor even though he had strings tied to his arms and legs to make them move.

"Good evening, my dears," he greeted the shadows. "You look as if you had some good news to tell me."

"We haven't any news at all," said Hanid.

"The children were saying tonight before they went to bed that they wished they owned a pony. But that isn't much news."

"Why, it's delightful news!" Mr. Punch replied. "I can remember how happy I felt when I owned my first pony."

He Owned Pony.

"Did you own a pony, Mr. Punch?" both shadows exclaimed in surprise.

"Why, of course! His name was Thimble."

"Thimble!" Hanid repeated. "Was he very small?"

"I should say he was. He was the smallest pony in the world. That's why I called him Thimble. I used to keep him inside a thimble. He would gallop around the inside of a teacup, and jump over lumps of sugar in the prettiest way you can imagine."

"My goodness!"

"And once he was lost for a week until I found him out in the garden, grazing on the top of a daisy. How he got there I don't know."

"But didn't you ever ride on his back, Mr. Punch?" Hanid asked. "Or was he too small?"

Never Rode Him.

"Nonsense," said Mr. Punch. "I was pretty small myself then. But I never did get a chance to ride on his back because—well, a very curious thing happened. One afternoon, as Thimble was out on his daisy, chewing the tender, young shoots. I heard a loud buzzing noise. I looked up to see a huge blue-bottle fly coming straight for Thimble. 'Run!' I shouted. 'Run, Thimble! Giddap!' Poor Thimble. He was very brave. Instead of running, he just stood there, shaking his head at that enormous fly. And when I looked again, both Thimble and the fly were gone. And that was the last that I ever saw of him."

"I remember how happy I felt."

CORDOVA MINES

A new horse purchased a week ago by Mr. Mike Gabovic met with an accident one night lately when it fell into a washed out culvert which ran under an old unused railroad situated on what is known as the Bedore farm. The railroad built more than thirty years ago to transport ore from the mines was in shabby condition. It is thought the animal stepped on the rotten ties and plunged through, remaining in the hole all night. A deep gash ten inches long and seven inches deep was inflicted between its front legs.

Looking Back
On This Date

Marshall Spring Bidwell died at Albany, N.Y., October 26,1872. And there passed a man who had been twice Speaker of the Assembly of Upper Canada, who had been nominated a judge by the colonial secretary, Lord Glenelg, been refused the appointment by Sir Francis Bond Head, and who, finally was forced by Head to leave Canada at the outbreak of the Mackenzie rebellion in 1837y b a species of political blackmail.

Head bluffed that he had documentary evidence involving Bidwell's participation in Mackenizie conspiracy. As a fact he had nothing; but Mr. Bidwell had, as a leader of the reform party, been in close political co-operation with Mackenzie in the assembly, and knew not how Head might twist the most innocent document into an indictment which might lead to the scaffold. And so Bidwell accepted banishment and Canada lost a talented statesmient and one who would undoubtedly have made a judge of the highest rank.

Bidwell was for a long time represented by the Tories as a traitor of the deepest die. The benchers of the law Society of Upper Canada proposed to strike his name from their rolls. Egerton Ryerson took up the cudgles, by his vigorous protest prevented this indignity upon an innocent man, and, by chance, came across a letter from Attorney-General Hagerman, Bidwell's bitter enemy in Upper Canada politics, which completely exonerated Bidwell from Head's charges.

But Bidwell refused to retur nto Canada to live, although offered many inducements. He practised law for many years in New York city (where, it is said, he had an interview with Bond Head on the eve of the latter's return to England in 1838), acted for many Canadian clients and could have had a judgeship in Canada any time after the amnesty if he had so desired. Sir John Macdonald offered him such a post both before and after Confederation. But Bidwell never forgave Canada. He did visit Toronto a few weeks before his death, but only for a day or so, during which he was the honored guest of some of the lawyers whose predecessors had tried to pillory him 35 years before. M. S. Bidwell was a great American. But for Sir Francis Bond Head he might have been a great Canadian.

Hallowe'en Bridge Party For Older Fun Lovers

(By MARY MOORE)

As soon as the "O" in October showed on the calendar both Marianne and Peter shouted it was Hallowe'en month—so we don't need excuses to have a party—we're forced to have one.

But some of the grown-ups who read this have entertaining to do for older fun lovers and a Hallowe'en Bridge Party can be filled with laughs—unless you are obliged to ask folks who consider bridge a very solemn game.

Even for those who are eager to win our first stunt is fascinating.

1. The bidding for the first hand has been closed. The highest bidder at each table progresses to the next table, leaving his cards behind him.—and he must play his original bid with the new partner and cards he finds waiting for him there. This is surprisingly often quite successful.

2. On another round four cards are removed from the pack to be dealt without any player knowing which ones they are. The hand is then bid and played as in ordinary bridge

3. Next time round each player must leave three of the unseen cards face down on the table corner in front of him. The hand is bid and played as usual up to the final 3 tricks. Then everyone can pick up his cards and finish the hand with this treasure trove (or sour disappointment). This makes the game fast and full of suspense up to the end.

Some groups may be a little too "settled" to relish this trick,—but a gang I know made a real success of it. When prizes are to be awarded, arrange to have all the lights go out at once—and your husband or other suitable guest cover all but his face with a sheet and come downstairs, holding a pen flashlight inside his lips. The appearance is very weird—he then intones with the flash held under his chin "Anyone who has nerve enough to walk through the dark room to get it can have a prize!"

The beverage of the evening can be

Hot Spiced Punch.

One pint strong black tea, 2 cups pineapple juice, 1 quart fresh cider, 1 quart grapefruit juice, 1 quart of either raspberry juice, strawberry juice or loganberry juice or the three or any two mixed, 6 whole cloves, 1 stick cinnamon, ¼ to ½ cup lemon juice. Make the tea strong, steeping the cloves and cinnamon with it. Strain, then add the fruit juices, adding sugar if you think it needs it—but it is better if not too sweet. Serve it very hot.

Welsh Rarebit With Ripe Olives.

This was such a success when I served it for lunch when we had an unexpected guest that it struck me it would be exactly right for Hallowe'en parties. (I was trying to make the rarebit go further so I quickly stoned ½ cup ripe olives and added them, praying the consequences would be favorable).

One tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1 cup thin cream or top milk, ½ lb. soft spready cheese, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon cayenne, ¼ teaspoon mustard. Melt butter, add cornstarch and stir until well mixed, then add cream slowly while stirring and cook 2 minutes. Add the sliced cheese and stir until it melts. Add seasonings and serve on buttered crackers or toast rounds. The cheese must be of good quality to make a nice creamy rarebit.

To give the Hallowe'en effect cut large ripe olives to remove stones, then use them for eyes, noses and mouths on your rarebit. Mouths that grin, smirk, leer sideways—crooked noses, crossed or cocked eyes are all yours for a little crazy placing.

How does this sound for dessert?:

Orange Ice Cream in Orange Shells With Chocolate Sauce.

The Ice Cream could be homemade, or it could be an Orange Sherbet. In any case use the scooped out pulp for the ice cream, then carefully trim the skins to use for cups when serving it. Cut a thin slice from bottom of skin halves to make it stand straight. Pour over thin chocolate sauces—this could be bought in cans or home made.

Witch Cakes (to serve with Orange Ice Cream).

Make small round cakes of devil's food mixture. Spread tops with orange icing and decorate with witch heads, using a small brush dipped in melted chocolate to make the hats and feathers.

MENU FOR CHILDREN'S HALLOWE'EN

Black Cat Sandwiches
Goblin Salad
Hoodoo Puddings,
Witche's Brew (Hot Cocoa or Chocolate Milk)

Black Cat Sandwiches are Savory Sandwiches—made with whole wheat bread, with filling of mashed cheese and ground walnuts. Cut these in rounds, and make faces on them with raisins. Goblin Salad is made with peach halves, smooth side up, using pimientoes and cloves for features. Stuff the cavity in peach with cheese and serve on lettuce. Hoodoo Puddings are Spice Cup Cakes with Chocolate Sauce.

New Fashion In Velvet

Reflecting the glamorous modes of Paris is this black velvet dinner suit with gold taffeta ruffle trimming. The stunning high hat is draped with a tiny face veil with true Parisian chic. Gold kid gloves add their touch of elegance, creating a costume adaptable to almost any Peterborough dinner hour, and showing the extreme flattery and wearability of new fashions.

Sleeves Vary

Sleeves are an important consideration in interpreting the silhouette. Subdued in first collections, sorts of folds, tucks, and fabric manipulations, go on. The slit sleeve is seen in sheer metallics. Dolman sleeve is as a necessity in blouses which must fit under suits, they are elaborately detailed in the new formal blouses. Short sleeves, puffed or widened at the shoulder with all chiffon blouses—shirt-waist and Gibson Girl derivation—have bloused sleeves, tight at the wrist.

Originality Is Object of Handicraft Class

With curiosity piqued by the sounds of delightful bits of laughter and happy voices that came from one of the rooms which we passed en route to Y.W.C.A. gym class last evening, we paused for a moment to investigate. Grouped around a big table we discovered our more industrious sisters deftly measuring, clipping and stitching with queer-looking paper patterns and lovely, soft-hued leathers.

The results of several such evenings spent around the table, we were told, are beautiful hand-made gloves, well-finished and neatly stitched by the girls in a style and shade designed to add a smart finishing touch to their Fall ensemble. A number of the girls plan to make several pairs for Christmas gifts—for very special friends, of course—and one girl told me she was hoping to make some much needed extra money by designing and making gloves for sale.

Looms in various sizes were set up in the corners of the room, too, and one design just coming into being was developed in wine and deep blue on a background of steel gray. Other looms, the work of the previous evening's class, were filled with bags, chair seats, samplers, etc., all in the process of construction, and all pieces which would be treasured for generations, just as were the needlepoints and weaving of our grandmother's day.

Ten-Day Course

Supervising the girls, instructing the beginners, and solving the difficulties of the more advanced classes, of which some members were continuing their lessons of last year, was Mrs. Byrtha L. Stavert, of the Community Welfare Council, Toronto. Mrs. Stavert is conducting the ten-day course, which includes instruction in weaving, pewter, leather, pottery, rug hooking, puppetry, soap carving, and toy making. The classes have been running since October 19, and will continue until October 29. Groups are receiving instruction from ten to twelve in the morning; from two to four in the afternoon; children's classes are from four-thirty to five-thirty, and evening classes for business girls are from seven-thirty to nine-thirty.

Mrs. Stavert, clever, competent-looking, and charming, was wearing a grey, hand-knitted suit fastened with square, pewter buttons. She showed us some of the bowls, bracelets, buckles, etc., which were being shaped out of pewter and etched wit hlovely, original designs.

In another room we saw amusing puppets and marionettes which the children had been making. There were Indian chiefs, Dutch brothers and sisters, Hallowe'en witches, and a most amazing "devil" which showed the keen imagination and originality of the little lad who had fashioned it. And speaking of imagination—that's just what these classes are for—to arouse the imagination and originality, both of children and adults. The desire to create products of their own design is aroused, and the first steps so carefully taught that pupils are enabled to go on learning throughout the year. Very often, Mrs. Stavert explained, she finds that pupils are doing some unusually fine work when she returns the following season. The children were receiving instruction also in leather work, the making of purses, peasant belts, pins, brooches, etc.

The Community Welfare Council of Ontario, a provincially organized body, has been at work in the Province for over thirty years. Originating as a means of teaching Toronto unemployed girls a profitable use of their spare time, this welfare work has developed during the past three years into class instruction that reaches out to groups of girls throughout the cities of Ontario, and is a splendid way of showing people how to use their leisure time to advantage. Their training is sufficient, also, to enable them to continue developing along the handicraft lines they have chosen.

Fashion Revue Features Foremost Styles

All that is outstandingly new and of foremost importance for the opening season was given emphasis at the fashion revue held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Isabel Duffus, Reid street, and sponsored by the Major Bennett Chapter.

To the soft strains of piano music played by Miss Merrill Smith, graceful mannequins with charming, upswept coiffures and clusters of shining curls passed in a parade of the cleverest clothes of the new season before a large crowd of interested spectators. Every daytime and evening hour in the lifetime of the smartly dressed woman received consideration in the showing of fashionable attire. Demure and dainty satin night gowns, simply tailored, or heavily trimmed with coffee-colored lace; trim pyjamas and dressing gowns of cosy flannel or heavy, luxurious satin, led the parade.

The wide diversity of styles which makes this season outstanding in its unlimited possibilities for individuality was expressed in the new cloth coats, with their lavish and unusual fur treatments; their nipped-in waistlines; their swing skirts and wide shoulders which heighten the illusion of slimness. The fur coats were in the boxed and square-shouldered manner of the vogue, and beautiful silver fox furs, martins or kolinskys were worn with tailored coats, and with afternoon dresses.

Deceptively simple jersey frocks and casual woollens found new chic in the manipulation of tucks and front fulness, and afternoon dresses deviated from their simplicity in richness of fabric and brilliance of color.

Jewel-toned Velvet

Evening gowns reminiscent of grandmother's portrait album, yet with an originality suggestive of the day after tomorrow, were glamorous creations of jewel-toned velvet, taffeta, or net, shirred and appliqued, and with the sweeping, swirling skirts of the days of hoops and court curtsies. Some of the evening gowns had quaint, puffed-sleeve boleros to add alike to their charm and double-duty practicability.

In the chic hats worn, the small silhouette seemed to be of premier importance. They were trimmed with ostrich, velvet, or clusters of flowers. One outstanding model, worn with a black velvet dress, was made in pillbox style, and on top was an exquisite, pink-feathered bird poised as if for flight. Several were trimmed with bands of Persian fur, and the styles included the fez, diminutive sailors and lofty toques, with added height achieved by a feather, a bow, or a nodding flower.

Lovely, old-fashioned jewelry, large lockets or cameos, were worn with low-necked or strapless evening gowns. Shoes and gloves favored suede as their material, and several of the bags were made of fur to match the smart fur coats.

The lingerie shown was from the Smart Set Shop; costumes, Lyda Telford; millinery, Olga L. Haskill; furs, Patoine's; shoes, Neill's.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"If any little love of mine
May make a life the sweeter,
If any little care of mine
May make a friend the fleeter,
If any lift of mine may ease
The burden of another—
God give me love, and care and strength,
To help my toiling brother."
—Author Unknown.

Dear Friends:

The other day a friend of mine 'phoned me and said, "Can I tell you my troubles?" And when I said she could, we talked for a while, then she said, "I feel so much better now, and I always feel better when I have talked with you."

And it set me thinking of the people who come to me with their troubles. One other lady said, "as soon as trouble looms up in my life I feel I must come to you."

That seems what some of us are here for apparently, to help and comfort others, to cheer them and advise them as best we can. And the times people have said to me, "God bless you for your help" are more numerous than I care to mention.

Yet, if out of my own suffering and pain I have gained sympathy and understanding so that others turn to me for comfort, isn't that something worthwhile? I think so.

And, if I cannot run myself, yet can help another to run, there is a vicarious comfort in that. Yet how many times I wish I were fleeter. If I can draw sweetness out of bitterness, courage out of defeat, then I do not live in vain.

Sometimes I get tired hearing of troubles, just as a Ooctor gets tired listening to ailments real and fancied. And often I wish someone would come along and tell me of their pleasures and their successes.

But we are cast in a role as an actor on the stage, and if the stage is life and we the actors in it, we all must do our part else the whole play goes haywire.

And if my part and your part is to be a comforter, what better part could we play in this drama of life? For above all things the comforters are needed to bind up the wounds of self-esteem, and failure and discouragement.

Our Lord knew how much we needed comforting, for He said: "I will not leave you comfortless, for I will send to you when I am gone hence the Holy Ghost, who is The Comforter."

And how many times He comes to us if we but let Him. Healing the broken places in our lives, raising us up when we have fallen, and smoothing the bruises which contact with the world brings.

But, we must not be selfish and keep this Comfort to ourselves, we must pass it on to others, and they in turn must also pass it on. Maybe we would like to be out in the thick of the stream, living a lusty strong life.

Experiencing things instead of listening to experiences of others, enjoying things as others do, not stuck away within four walls while life marches on.

Yet, we must have chosen this role of helping others, consciously or unconsciously, we must exude sympathy, else others would not look for it from us.

And so, to those who are in need of comfort I will give you the words of Phillips Brooks: "Oh, do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men! Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks!" Hoping I have been able to comfort you. Do let me know. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

The Christian Citizenship meeting of the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's church was held Tuesday evening under the leadership of the vice-president, Mr. Alec Young.

Mr. James Harris read the scripture lesson, and an account of the recent Bay of Quinte Conference Convention, held at Perth, was given by Miss Frances Clark. There were, she said, over two hundred young people present. She was impressed most with the note of fellowship and devotion to the church which prevailed among the young people.

Mr. James Harvey led a discussion on the liquor situation, and the following questions were discussed by the members: Would it be helpful if the beverage rooms closed at ten o'clock instead of at twelve?; Has alcohol any food value; Is it a stimulant or a narcotic poison?; Which is the better method of attacking liquor, customs, by prohibition, or education of the individual?

At the business meeting it was decided to attend the debate of the Lily Lake Christian Society next Tuesday night at Brailey's Hall, when the topic will be "That Rural Life is preferable to City Life." Speakers for the affirmative will be Miss Alta Wilson and Hiles Thompson, for the negative, Miss Florence Clark and James Harvey.

"Y" Auxiliary Holds Annual Bridge

One of the season's most successful bridge parties was held on Tuesday evening by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A.

Guests were received by Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president, Mrs. G. A. Borland, first vice-president, and Mrs. G. Roper.

Arrangements for the draw were in charge of Mr. G. Roper. The lady's first prize, drawn for by Mr. P. Westbye, was won by Mrs. Fred Gray; the lady's second prize, drawn for by Mr. W. J. Hamilton, was won by Mrs. J. J. Dorris. Mrs. E. M. Leeson made the draw for the gentleman's first prize, won by J. Waters, and the draw for the second prize was made by Mrs. G. A. Borland, and won by Mr. Harold Coleman. Mr. C. A. McFadgen won the mixed prize draw, which was made by Mrs. J. A. Marshall.

Refreshments were served by White's Hostess Shop at small tables covered with cloths of white linen, and decorated with tiny Hallowe'en baskets filled with candies.

Cleanliness Is Essential To Skin Beauty

Keeping her skin meticulously clean should be the young girl's main concern. She ought to scrub it every day with a complexion brush and quantities of soap and water. For the thin and sensitive complexion, perhaps a rough wash cloth will be more satisfactory than a brush. For softening the surface of her skin and to dislodge small bits of dirt in the pores, she may want to use a light cleansing cream before soap and water.

The girl who takes care of her skin during adolescence and the years immediately following isn't likely to have premature lines around eyes, a crepy throat, or, worse yet, enlarged pores or scars left by blemishes which were improperly treated.

Modern Clothes Reflection Of Old Styles

You wouldn't believe how "old fashioned" modern clothes are until you turn the pages of one of those scrap books beloved of our mothers in their young days. Fashion is dipping freely into these scrapbooks, and into the "Family Albums" to study them.

Great-aunt Alice looks out of a page wearing a dress that will be hailed as a "creation," a taffeta picture frock with a streamer of flowers arranged from one shoulder across the bust and caught at the waist.

And the moulded bodices, swather waistlines, and draped sleeves, fashionable in grandmother's day, are copied by her grand-daughter. Flowers, too, are featured at the corsage on the majority of evening dresses.

Match Perfume To Your Flowers

A girl who recently acted as bridesmaid at a very "proper" wedding....one where everything had to be ultra correct, bride in all-white, ushers, top hats, and full regalia....was rather worried about perfume.

Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and her headdress was made from artificial lilies of the valley, and she solved the problem satisfactorily by using the same perfume throughout her toilet.

Anyone could adopt a similar plan, for it is possible to purchase "matching" soap, talcum powder, bath salts and scent in almost any perfume nowadays, rose, carnation, violet, and so on. If you use lily of the valley be sparing it, for it is rather strong, and the perfume should be elusive, in the cultivated border, or in beds. A mass of yellow and a mass of blue make an imposing display or you can set out mixed colors if Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Archer accomber of each variety is included.

These diminutive flowers need the company of many of their own kind to appear at their best, for they are so small when planted alone that they do not show up in the garden picture. The general rule for planting is to set them four times their own diameter beneath the soil. Both varieties are astonishingly hardy, and may be grown indoors in pots with as much success as in the garden.

Minor Bulbs Open The Spring Season

The rock garden is an excellent setting for the minor bulbs, but if you are not so fortunate as to have one, do not neglect these earliest of flowering bulbs, for you need all of their glorious color in the spring to give your garden its first touch of renewed life. The scillas and crocuses make especially handsome border groups.

The scillas, sometimes called squills, resemble violets very much as to size, color and blossom. But they come weeks earlier and their tiny bulbs, which should be planted only two inches deep, will grow without much help and will last forever. Not only do the bulbs remain active, but the plant itself seeds and spreads its hardy progeny all over your garden floor. The earliest variety is scilla sibirica a hardy bulb. Some morning next spring when you get your first glimpse of their royal colors, you will be repaid a thousand times for your foresight this fall.

The crocus follows in two or three weeks. The blossom is larger and you find them in blue-purple yellow and white varieties. If you plant them in the lawn where they will blossom in their native manner, as is so often done on English estates, you must be careful that they are not mowed down during the flowering period or you will damage the bulbs. You must wait until the leaves have ripened before you cut the grass. For smaller gardens, it is betterd to plant them

Do You Know?

If you fold a towel or cloth together several times and place it under the cake bowl while you mix up the cake batter, the cake bowl can't "run away" when you beat the ingredients together?

◇ ◇ ◇

Paint that has been splashed on wood floors or linoleum when recoating is being done can be removed completely if it is wiped off with a rag soaked in turpentine? It should be done before it has thoroughly dried or it will take twice as long to get off.

◇ ◇ ◇

To remedy a burnt saucepan, fill with cold water, add a handful of salt. Leave one day, then bring to boil. Scrub out with hard brush, and wash with clean water. And did you know that salt and water makes a good teeth cleaner?

Branch Notes

ST. MICHAEL'S BRANCH, WESTWOOD

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Michael's church, Westwood, held their meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Humphries. Miss Dorothy Price read a portion of the Scripture after which everyone repeated the Lord's Prayer.

The invitation from St. Luke's Branch at Peterborough to attend their Hallowe'en party was accepted. Officers for the next year were nominated as follows: President, Everett Elmhurst, Mary Birdsall and Alfred Reed; vice-president, Tom Macquigg, Scott Elmhurst; secretary-treasurer, Edithe Bray, Isobel Birdsall, Alfred Reed; program convenor, Marie Seaborn and Jack Elmhurst; correspondence secretary, Edithe Bray, Everett Elmhurst, Mary Birdsall.

The meeting was then handed over to Alfred Reed. Everyone enjoyed a flower wedding contest, and a number of limericks.

This was followed by some community singing. Supper was served and a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Max Humphries for the use of their home. The meeting closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

American sound pictures are to be shown in Tev-Aviv, Palestine.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, and, for real results, it is still a very dependable thing for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really superior cough remedy—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such prompt, pleasing results.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

BABY NEED NOT GET YOU UP

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B—, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'Baby' would start crying.... Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. But they promote healthful sleep by promptly making the ill baby well. The well baby always sleeps soundly.

Absolutely harmless. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Each package gives an analyst's report. As easy to take as candy. Sweet-tasting and quick in their action.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from most of "baby's" ills. Teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds all disappear when Baby's Own Tablets are given. If they are not effective, your druggist will refund your money. 25 cents.

IN MEMORIAM

GRUBBE. — In loving memory of Robert William Radcliffe Grubbe, who died at Peterborough, Canada, October 26, 1923, second son of Captain William Henry Grubbe of the Honourable East India Company Artillery, and grandson of Captain John Grubbe, Deputy Lieutenant of the County of Buckingham, Lord of the Manor of "Horsendon," of "Abbots Hold" and of "Princess Risborough" or "The King's Manor," Buckinghamshire, England.

"E'en as he trod that day to God
So walked he from his birth—
In simpleness and gentleness and Honour and clean mirth."

WEAVER. — In fond and loving memory of our dear father, Robert Weaver, who died 15 years ago, October 24, 1923.

Never a day but we need you,
Never an hour but we see
A wonderful depth of your loving
And what it has meant to me.
Never a day but we're learning
How precious you were and how true,
And how much of God went in making
The heart of a father like you.
When a father breathes his last farewell
The blow is more than tongue can tell.
This world seems quite a different place
Without the smile of our father's face.

—Sadly missed by his loving Family.

NURSE.—In memory of a dear husband, Wilbert Nurse, who passed away October 27, 1937.

His heart was good, his friendship sound,
Loved and respected by all around;
To a beautiful life came a sudden end,
He died as he lived, everyone's friend.

—Ever remembered by Wife.

NURSE.—In memory of a dear son and brother, Wilbert Nurse, who passed away October 27, 1937.

We loved him; yes, we loved him;
But Jesus loved him more,
And He has sweetly called him,
To yonder shining shore.

—Ever remembered by his Mother, Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

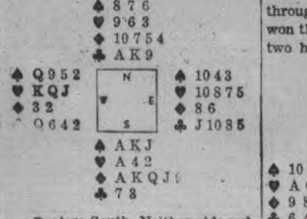
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

A REAL FINE ART

DEFENSIVE UNBLOCKING, to prevent yourself being thrown into the lead, is a real fine art. It requires foresight in the ability to infer what the declarer is trying to do. It also calls for courage to count upon your partner's being able to win the trick which otherwise was yours. No prettier defensive plays are ever seen than these, which involve tossing away an honor that apparently is destined to be a winner.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

The bidding on this deal was 1-Diamond by South, 2-Diamonds by North and 5-Diamonds by South.

The heart K was led by West and won with South's A. Hating to risk the chance of the spade finesse, which he could not afford to lose in addition to two hearts, declarer led out his five diamond tricks, carefully watching the discards of the opponents. West was obliged to keep his spade Q and club Q guarded, so discarded one of his hearts.

South next tackled the club suit with the idea of throwing West in with the third round. Depending again on his partner, West threw the club Q on the second round. This fooled South, who figured that West had no more clubs. Declarer then used a heart to throw in West, who stunned South when he came through with another club. East won the trick with his J and cashed two hearts.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

South sees eight tricks for his 3-No Trump contract after the lead of the heart 3. Where should he attempt to establish his ninth trick?

French Praise Canadian Youth On Song Craft

PARIS, Oct. 26—(CP)—The fame of Canadian folklore is spreading rapidly in Europe through the work of Miss Juliette Gaultier de la Verendrye of Ottawa, who had the honor of giving the first lecture-concert in the ampitheatre of the Trocadero, Europe's newest and finest ethnographical museum. Her Indian, Eskimo, old Acadian folk-songs and Canadian films made a hit with the Parisian audience.

Canadians who visited Paris last year will remember the Trocadero as the majestic, but unfinished, building making a background for the International Exposition. It was opened with a reception attended by scientists, educationists, ethnologists and explorers of international reputation. Given the name "The Museum of Man" the buildings contain thousands of specimens of costumes and tools, skin and skeletons, toys and totems of mankind from the Aruntas of Australia to the headhunters of Brazil or the Tlingit Indians of the Canadian North.

Miss Gaultier de la Verendrye needs no introduction in Canada where she has done so much this past 10 years for handicraft and folk festivals in all parts of the country. She came to Paris as official delegate to the International Exposition in 1937 and her personal collection, loaned for the Canadian pavilion, won the gold medal for art and rural handicraft. Since then she has been giving lecture-concerts in France and Switzerland.

Practical Work

More than just the value in the scientific study of mankind interests Miss Gaultier in her study of folklore. She has lived with the Indians studying their use of plants and herbs for medicinal and dyeing purposes. Four European governments have asked her for these secrets which, of course, she intends to keep for Canada.

"When I have completed my research I shall write it all in book form and give it to my country," she explains. "The largest research institute in France asked me to prepare for them the antidote for poisoning by certain mushrooms. Also a secret process for using mushrooms for dyeing artificial silks and wools is desired not only by these governments, but I have been approached by United States as well. But I have only one intention—that is to finish my research and then use my discoveries to put unemployed people to work in Canada. I lived among the unemployed for four years studying their problems and putting many of them to work with handicraft.

"It is my firm belief that enough raw materials are going to waste to put every last man to work—and profitably too. While in France I am studying all handicraft and uses of natural raw materials for further ideas for Canada. If French and Central European peasants can live well upon half an acre of land—in Canada our people should not know the meaning of the word 'want'."

Admired Costumes

The richly-embroidered and colorful costumes which Miss Gaultier de la Verendrye wore during her concert created much enthusiasm. She showed the film "Back to Baffin" first film to be taken among the Baffin Eskimoes: "Totem Land," which she directed herself and which is the first to be taken of the Pacific and British Columbia Indians and finally "Old Acadia." The latter with a group of French-Canadian songs, many of which came originally from France but partly lost and forgotten, was particularly successful. The other group consisted of Eskimo songs brought back by Stefansson's expedition some years ago and a number of Indian hunting, cradle and funeral chants.

"Ethnography is a comparatively young science," said a French tourist official after the concert. "But it is creating a tremendous interest in folklore and if Canada will make use of the wealth of it she possesses, she will wake up one day to find herself one of the tourist meccas of the world."

Czechoslovakia has asked Miss Gaultier de la Verendrye to give a series of 20 concerts in that country beginning in October; Holland too and France both want a number of lectures. "Since I spoke at the seances organized by the British Museum and the Royal British Society of Anthorpologie in England, there have been requests from there too," said Miss Gaultier, "but I've a desire to go home. I want a breath of our pure fresh air with the smell of pine in the wind."

CLUBHOUSE BURNS

CANTERBURY, England—(CP)—Fire caused extensive damage to the clubhouse of Canterbury Golf Club, but the professional's quarters, a short distance away, were saved.

YORKSHIRE'S TRIBUTE

LEEDS, England—(CP)—A broken wicket of white roses with a displaced bail and a green base was the form of Yorkshire's tribute at the funeral of Lord Hawke, famous president of the club.

Convalescing After Sickness

After many severe illnesses such as influenza, scarlet and typhoid fever, pneumonia, etc., or an operation, the patient is usually left in an extremely weak, nervous and exhausted condition.

To all those convalescents who need a tonic to strengthen and build up their weakened system we would recommend Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to assist them back to the full enjoyment of robust health. They supply the elements so necessary to build up the shattered nervous system, and bring back bodily strength and vigor.

A trial will convince you of their merits.

$143,000 For Cripples

DETROIT, Oct. 26. — (CP).—Court orders to-day released a $143,000 fund for aid of crippled children in Detroit. The fund, left by Charles H. Cummings in 1920 has never been used for charitable purposes because of litigation connected with the estate.

Cumings left the bulk of his $2,000,000 estate to aid crippled children. Accounting suits now are before the courts here, asking the trustees to answer charges more than $200,000 of the fund for cripples has been dissipated in loans to trustees and others.

Wife Disappears Aborigine Angry

DARWIN, North Australia, Oct. 26—(CP). — Too Dark, aborigine deckhand on the patrol launch Larrakia, was on the war path to-day, seeking the 13-year-old bride who disappeared after he had paid for her in full.

Sworn to cause "plenty trouble alonga Arnhem Land," Too Dark would compromise if he got back his final payment—a bag of flour, a comb, a tomahawk and a mirror.

The bride and her father disappeared after Too Dark paid the agreed sum in advance and then left for a short trip on the patrol boat. He was given three months leave to get back the girl or the goods.

Totem Pole Bought By French Artist

VICTORIA, Oct. 26—(CP).—Fascinated by totem poles lining the Pacific coast from here to Alaska, Kurt Seligmann, Parisian artist, journeyed inland to study the Indian wood carving art and returned owner of a 50-foot, ton and a half totem pole.

Seligmann, who with his wife is visiting Canada for the first time, spent five weeks inland studying Indian legends and history.

He plans to place his newly-acquired totem pole in the Trocadero Museum in Paris. The pole had to be cut in two pieces for shipment to Victoria, and 25 Indians, singing native songs, packed it.

Italy Draws Libya Closer, Hoping To Make It Flourish As Of Old

ROME, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Fascist grand council acted today to draw what Italians call their "fourth shore" closer by decreeing that the African colony of Libya should be made an integral part of Italy.

A new Libyan constitution was ordered drawn for approval later. The first of 20,000 new Italian settlers will sail from Genoa Friday.

In a motion the council referred to the constantly increasing Italian population there and said Libya under the governorship of General Italo Balbo "has totally transformed its spiritual, political and economic conditions."

General Balbo's position may be ended by the new status, but a communique failed to mention anything about the future of the man who led a cruise of 25 Italian seaplanes to Canada and the United States in July, 1933.

The new governmental setup and the citizenship status of tribesmen remain to be worked out.

It was considered possible Balbo might remain in Libya since the military command over the vast desert, sparsely peopled by nomads for the most part, presumably would be continued.

Premier Mussolini is making a spectacular effort to colonize the four provinces—Tripoli, Misurata, Bengasi and Derna—which his cabinet organized only 18 months ago.

The government plans to establish 80,000 Italian peasants by 1941 in Libya's coastal provinces in the hope that irrigation will help make the land flourish anew as it did when the North African coast was an outstanding granary of ancient Rome.

The program calls for the expenditure of the equivalent of $100,000,000 over a four-year period.

THREE YEARS FOR BETRAYAL

Robinson Walker, an engineer aged 49 of Romford, England, who is said to have attempted to betray his country to a foreign power, for which he was to receive $60, must serve three years in prison.

Negro's Music Is Theme Song

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (CP).—To a negro jazz musician goes the honor of supplying the theme music for Democracity—the perfectly integrated garden city of the future planned as one of the features of the New York World Fair in 1939.

From among thousands of published and unpublished compositions Henry Dreyfuss, designer of Democracity, and a jury of Fair officials chose the work of William Still, a 43-year-old Los Angeles negro who for years played jazz to provide funds for study at the University of Berlin and New England Conservatory.

The work is described as a symphonic poem with a choral finale. It has not yet been named. The piece requires six minutes to play, the same time it will take visitors to tour Democracity on revolving platforms. The music represents the change in the daily cycle of the future "dream city."

Says Women Are Best Patients

CANBERRA, Oct. 26 — (CP). — Australian doctors had their hats off today to women's fortitude

A statement by the medical superintendent of the Canberra Community hospital that men were more apt to malinger than woman was endorsed by a Sydney pecialist, who said he had never known a woman "consciously to malinger."

"Women have much greater fortitude than men," he said. "They may exaggerate some cases of illness, but if a major crisis develops you will find Mum stands up to it better than Dad.

"Men are more prone to seek a way out by malingering."

U.S. Stiffens Stand Abroad

Roosevelt Attacks Dictatohships; Japan is Warned

By Andrue Berding
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(AP).—President Roosevelt indicated a stiffened foreign policy for the United States today while the state department was warning Japan against crippling American interests in China.

The note to Tokyo called bluntly for protection of the open door policy in China and was one of the most comprehensive sent to Japan during its conflict in the Far East.

President Roosevelt's radio address last night, in the opinion of students of world affairs here, again threw the administration against the dictatorships.

Mr. Roosevelt gave an indication that his government does not quarrel with dictatorships as such and does not seek to proselytize them to the ranks of democracy. Its quarrel, he said, is with governments which rely on force in pursuit of policy. The fact the dictatorships have been relying on force, as in the case of Italy in Ethiopia and Japan in China, or the threat of it, as in the case of Germany in Czechoslovakia, makes the two ideas coincide.

Ind'ctment to Germany

There were many in Washington who regarded part of the president's speech as an indictment of Germany. They read into his statements about "there can be no peace—references to the Czech crisis, Jewish refugees, the German campaign against Protestant and Catholic churches, and Nazi economic principles.

In declaring there could be no peace if economic resources were turned from reconstruction to an arms race, Mr. Roosevelt was believed referring to Germany's system of economic autarchy designed to enable her to procure raw materials for rearmament.

This has disturbed United States officials because it led to the German system of barter and artificial currencies which State Secretary Cordell Hull has said runs diametrically contrary to the American system of trade.

A generally accepted conclusion from the president's speech was that he will oppose the dictatorships unless they are willing to take definite steps toward a permanent peace. During the recent German-Czech crisis the president sought to maintain a neutral position, appealing from an objective vantage point to both the democratic and the dictator states for peace.

Good Neighbor Policy

The president's speech, on the other hand, extended the administration's good neighbor policy to the world—but warned the "other fellow" to be a good neighbor too.

One of the obligations, he said, is to make necessary political changes peacefully; another is respect for the sanctity of treaties; a third is avoidance of policies arousing fear

Girl Artist Mauled 20 Minutes By Bear On Falling In Cage May Live Minus Eye

Cleveland, Oct. 27 (AP)

SLENDER Julia Zemnick, 21, will survive a vicious attack by a polar bear in a Brookside zoo cage, doctors said today, but it may be necessary to remove her left eye.

Pronounced in critical condition from loss of blood and multiple injuries, the attractive federal art project worker rallied after a blood transfusion.

Perched on a ledge overlooking the cage, Miss Zemnick yesterday was sketching the 600-pound beast, called "Silver," when she tumbled or was pulled into the cage by the female bear. For nearly 20 minutes "Silver" clawed and mauled the girl.

One eye gouged, her scalp lacerated and wounded about the face and neck, the semi-conscious Miss Zemnick was rescued by Curley Wilson, zoo superintendent, and two aides.

Lord Stanhope Appointed First Lord Of Admiralty

Earl de la Warr Gets Education Portfolio; Chamberlain Hesitates on 2 Other Posts

LONDON, Oct. 27—(CP Cable)—Earl Stanhope was appointed First Lord of the Admiralty today to succeed Alfred Duff Cooper.

Earl De La Warr will replace Lord Standhope as President of the Board of Education.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made only one change in his Cabinet today a successor to the late Lord Stanley in the Dominions office not being announced.

The Admiralty was vacated Oct. 1 by Mr. Duff Cooper, who resigned when he could not support the Munich agreement.

Both Lord De Warr and Lord Stanhope already were in the cabinet.

Mr. Chamberlain, therefore, still has two vacancies to fill, the Dominions Office and the Privy Seal Portfolio.

It was understood, however, that Malcolm Macdonald, colonial secretary, would combine the dominions secretaryship with his own portfolio for the time being.

Already Taken Oath?

Both Lord Stanhope and Lord De La Warr attended a privy council held by the King at Buckingham Palace and were believed already to have taken the oath of their new offices.

Before the announcement the prime minister had unexpectedly called a meeting of ministers. Sir Kingsley Wood, air secretary, cancelled a London inspection tour in order to attend and Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coordination of defence, broke speaking engagements "because of pressing duties in town."

Delay in making the new cabinet appointments had been attributed by reliable, although unofficial, political quarters to the prime minister's indecision whether a projected armaments speed-up calls for new ministries to direct it. Separate departments have been suggested for supplies and national service.

Opposition quarters had been critical of Mr. Chamberlain's unusual action in leaving the admiralty without a head for almost a month. Mr. Duff Cooper resigned Oct. 1.

Lands in Lone Seat

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (A.P.). — There were 200 seats in the hall when Rep. Ambrose J. Kennedy was speaking and 199 were occupied. Suddenly, a 12-pound globe crashed down from a ceiling light. It landed in the lone vacant seat.

Britain Asks U.S. Aid In Peace; Woos Italians

London, Oct. 27 — (CP) — The British Government, urgently seeking means of promoting peace, today sought to enlist the United States co-operation. At the same time it moved toward clearing up its differences with Italy.

Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, sounded the call to the United States in the early hours of the morning. He timed his message, urging that "Nations sharing the same ideals should think together" so that it could be heard by the audience of the New York Herald Tribue's forum last night.

He said there was "little real difference in the attitude of the average man and women in Britain and America regarding the turbulent currents sweeping Europe."

The Association between the two peoples were close and there was a mutual desire for true peace based upon agreement "that law and not force shall rule the world" he said.

"The only foundation for such a peace is understanding, and the first stage on that road is that nations who share the same ideals should be prepared to think together."

Pact Coming Shortly

Lord Halifax' address came a few hours after the cabinet was understood to have decided in a 2½ hour meeting to place the Anglo-Italian agreement in effect about the middle of November after parliament, which proved the agreement last spring, has an opportunity of discussing it again. Questions of British rearmament and colonies were also understood to have been discussed at the session, authoritatively stated to have unanimously backed Prime Minister Chamberlain's determination to find peaceful methods of settling Europe's problems.

Other British voices were heard. Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, told an audience at Stubbington, Hampshire that the peace of Munich was a foundation, not an edifice. "It was the beginning of a policy, not a single act."

Peace must be worked for, he said. There was one ingredient in the recipe for peace "which you must not overlook."

Last Minute News Flashes

GLOUCESTER, Mass. — While Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the victorious Canadian schooner Bluenose, was in Boston conferring with the race committee in regard to the $3000 prize money that had not been raised and the missing International Fishermen's trophy he won, a new challenge was hurled today in behalf of the vanquished challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud, to race Walters in his own waters in a wind of 25 miles or over for prize of $1,000—$500 by each.

Two Boys Are Poisoned By Bad Food

Campbellford Boys Are Discovered In Serious Condition

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 27. — Two small boys were in a serious condition here this afternoon, suffering from poisoning. Ronald, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Martin, and Eugene, aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Akey, are not expected to live after eating some sort of spoiled food, believed brought up from a dump by an aged resident of the town and left near the Martin home.

At ten o'clock this morning, young Akey was discovered lying in a rigid state, as though in a convulsion, near the Martin home. Two doctors were summoned and in the meantime the Martin boy was found in a similar condition by his mother. The boys were put in one bed by Mrs. Martin and the doctors treated them. Their condition is regarded as very critical, especially the Clayton lad. The doctors diagnosed the cases as poisoning, and the matter is being investigated.

W.I. Urges Clean Health Bill Before Marriage

HAMILTON, Oct. 27—(CP).—A resolution asking that a physician's certificate be obtained by parties involved before a marriage license be granted, was passed at the closing session today of the 11th annual convention Hamilton area, Women's Institute. The resolution was brought in by Grimsby branch.

A resolution asking that compulsory attendance at summer school for teachers should be lifted, was defeated. Mis B. McDermand, speaking to this resolution, said that such a suggested limiting of educational standards was reactionary; that educational standards in Ontario were not high. This resolution was sponsored by Varench branch.

In resolution presented by Lynnville branch a request was made that a referendum be granted to allow people to express themselves on the subject of closing of beverage rooms, or failing this, the government amend the Liquor Control Act, withdrawing the clause by which the beverage rooms were opened in July, 1934. This resolution was based on a protest at increased consumption of liquor in Ontario in the past four years. Lynnville W.I. also sponsored a resolution requesting the conservation or replacement of depleted woodlots. This was carried.

A resolution asking that a law be passed compelling a reunion of foreign families whose head had been resident in Canada, or that they be deported, was lost. This was sponsored by Mount Pleasant branch.

Newport W.I. sponsored a successful resolution requesting that the Union Jack be retained as the national flag.

Drew Will Stay In The Field

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—(CP).—Col. George A. Drew, candidate for the Ontario Conservative leadership, received the news of Leopold Macaulay's withdrawal from the race as he attended the Bren gun inquiry today.

"I am still definitely in the field for the leadership and this morning's development does not alter my plans," he said.

"I appreciate the reason given by Mr. Macaulay for his decision. I wish him every success in his profession and sincerely hope he will still be able to give the people the advantage of the experience he gained in the many responsible positions he has occupied.

"As house leader for the Conservative party he has given valuable service to the people of Ontario for which he deserves recognition from all parties in this province."

Wrestler Loses Princess Baba

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27—(AP).—Handsome Bob Gregory, the wrestler who married Princess Baba of Sarawak, daughter of the only white Rajah in the world, admitted last night they have separated and she will return to England, leaving Sunday.

"Yes, we're going to separate—temporarily, we hope," Gregory said just before he entered the ring at Olympic auditorium for a match with Shuniki Shikuma. "Princess Baba thinks she can gain more success in motion pictures back in London.

Aimee Sells $119,000 Moorish Castle To Two Hardware Men For "Song"

AIMEE Semple McPherson's moorish castle, a $119,000 refuge decorated with $20,000 worth of gold leaf, passed today into the hands of two hardware dealers—at a bargain price.

Back in the 1920's, Sister Aimee built "El Minera" on an estate overlooking Lake Elsinore and furnished its rooms in oriental luxury.

Imported Chinese bric-a-brac stood in the spacious living room, against walls hand-painted with scenes of Arabic and Egyptian festivals. Black velvet covered the walls of the big dining room and a crystal chandelier, a ton in weight, hung overhead.

"We purchased the estate as an investment for a fraction of its original cost," said Roy and John Scantland today. They said it may be transformed into either a rest home or a military school.

Tragedy At Stoney Point Claims Five Lives As 3 Generations Die Under Freight

Investigations into the deaths of 11 persons, two of them children, were under way in six central and western Ontario municipalities today, aftermath of accidents yesterday in which trains figured in seven of the fatalities. Traffic mishaps took three lives while a child was drowned in a creek

The day's worst accident occurred at Stoney Point, 25 miles west of Windsor. There five persons were killed when an automobile was struck at a crossing by a Wabash railway freight train when the driver of the car apparently failed to see the oncoming locomotive. Three generations of an old Stoney Point family died in the crash.

Mrs. Lucia Ranger, 48; her son, Leo, 21, and 18-year-old daughter, Jean; Arthur Masse, Mrs. Ranger's 83-year-old father, and Mrs. Julia Godin, 72, were killed. Gilbert Ranger 50 husband of Mrs. Ranger, was taken to hospital in Windsor in critical condition. He suffered fractures of both legs and other injuries.

Car Crashes Truck.

Mrs. H. Thomas Randle of Meaford died in a Collingwood hospital as a result of injuries suffered in a motor car crash near Camperdown, on Highway No. 26, several miles east of Thornbury. The car, driven by her husband, crashed into the side of a parked truck. The two doors of the car were torn, the wheel on right side was bent double and the axle twisted. The seat they were riding in was forced back three feet.

A level-crossing crash also resulted in the death of G. Taylor, 25-year-old aircraftsman at the Camp Borden Aviation Base. Taylor was killed when an automobile he was driving was struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at Alliston, 50 miles north of Toronto.

Particularly tragic was the death of 18-months-old Joan Holliday. The child wandered from her home at Whitby and reached the C.P.R. tracks running between her father's home and the barn on his little farm. She was struck by a freight train as her mother raced to pull her to safety.

Two-year-old Edmond Jamieson was drowned in a shallow creek near his home at Harburg, in the Simcoe district, when he tumbled into the water while playing.

At Cobalt, Edmond Bastien, 75, was killed when struck by a car driven by 17-year-old Arthur Lemire. Reginald James, 26-year-old farm worker, died in Orillia Hospital after being struck by a truck while walking along a highway.

New "Nickel Game"

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.). —With slot machines under a rigid Federal ban, a new type of "nickel game" will make its appearance here shortly.

One operator who called in $35,000 worth of banned slot machines said "pin games" which vend no slugs will be substituted for the banned devices. He claims they will be within the law. The reward for successfully playing the game will be another game or two free.

Dying Woman's Name Forged To 30 Cheques

VANCOUVER, Oct. 27—(CP).—A 19-year-old girl told an assize court jury grouped around her hospital bed yesterday she had forged 30 cheques in the name of a dying woman and that a cheap wedding ring had been substituted for the woman's own ring after she died.

Mr. Justice Denis Murphy, jurymen and counsel listened for four hours to the testimony of Lillian Crawley, Crown witness in the trial of Andrew and Violet Goulding charged with conspiracy to steal from Mrs. Eva Platt Huntington. Mrs. Huntington died last May in a Vancouver nursing home operated by the Gouldings.

Miss Crawley, former maid in the nursing home, originally was charged with the Gouldings but pleaded guilty and was given suspended sentence.

The girl said the day Mrs. Huntington died Mrs. Goulding returned from a trip and took her (Miss Crawley) to an automobile company where a new car was purchased. The sum of $325 was paid by cheque on Mrs. Huntington's bank account.

"This cheque was signed by me, using Mrs. Huntington's name and I was introduced by Mrs. Goulding as Miss Huntington," the witness said.

The girl said she had "signed the will Mrs. Huntington made April 28 as a witness with the name Gertrude L. Whiting." The will bequeathed Mrs. Huntington's entire estate to Mrs. Goulding.

Miss Crawley later identified a wedding ring as having been given to her by Mrs. Goulding to sustitute for Mrs. Huntington's own ring after the woman had died. The trial is continuing.

Urges Britain Give Colonies Voice

LONDON, Oct. 27 (CP Cable) — Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express today suggested Great Britain should follow Italy's example in granting representation to her colonies in the nation's councils.

The Fascist grand council in Rome yesterday decreed the North African colony of Libya should become an integral part of Italy. France for many years has given her colonial populations representation in the French parliament.

"If Jamaica and Trinidad had sent representatives to voice opinions at Westminster during the last few years their lives would have been less troubled," the Express said. "We would have heard about their grievances from the floor of the House of Commons, not from newspaper reports of disturbances in those colonies."

The paper cited other cases where an airing in the commons might have facilitated a settlement.

"There is no longer any practical reason why the colonies should not be represented in London," it added. "We can link this country and our African and West Indian possessions by means of air so that the journey is reduced to a matter of hours."

Dropping Leadership Race "Must Earn Living" Macaulay Announces

Frost, Douglas, Hill and Stewart Hinted To Enter Fray, Pick Strongest In Move To Beat Out Col. George Drew

TORONTO, Oct. 27—(CP)—Leopold Macaulay, opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature, announced today he would not be a candidate for leader of the Ontario Conservative Party at the December Convention.

Mr. Macaulay nominated at a party meeting here recently said in a statement issued at Queen's Park: "I greatly regret the necessity of altering my decision." His withdrawal leaves only one certain candidate, Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, author and soldier. Dec. 8 and 9 are the convention dates.

His statement:

At the request of many loyal friends and supporters, I consented to allow my name to be put in nomination for leader of the Conservative Party of Ontario at the December Convention. On mature consideration, I realize that the elected leader after the convention must devote every moment of his time and energy to the advancement and needs of the people of the province.

Living Comes First

Unfortunately, it is impossible for me to do this by reason of the simple necessity of earning a living in my chosen profession. In consequence, I greatly regret the necessity of altering my decision and saying to my friends that I find it impossible to undertake the work of leader of the Conservative party, if I should be fortunate enough to be elected to that position. I deeply appreciate the messages of confidence and goodwill communicated to me by many of the people of the province and I extend to them my sincere thanks. I also wish to thank the press of this province for their fairness and courtesy to me.

Macaulay' ertirement came shortly after he had announced he was "in the fight to the bitter end."

In his statement to-day he denied he was withdrawing in favor of any one candidate for the party leadership, and added he was not retiring from public life "so long as my constituents in South York want me to represent them."

The convention, decided upon at a meeting of the Ontario Conservative Association executive here Oct. 6, will name a leader to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe, who resigned the leadership early last summer. Rowe is member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe.

Four Others Mentioned.

Besides Col. Drew, Cecil G. Frost, association president, is mentioned as a possible candidate for leadership.

But also mentioned are Ashton Douglas, K.C., of London; Hammett P. Hill, K.C., of Ottawa, and possibly W. J. Stewart, M.P.P.-elect for Parkdale.

It has been suggested in informed quarters that none of these four would fight the other, but would unite behind the strongest of them to oppose Col. Drew.

Tokyo Declines To Hurry U.S. Answer

TOKYO, Oct. 27.—(AP).— The United States' note demanding that "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China be stopped will not be published in Japan.

The note was delivered to the Japanese government by the United States ambassador, Joseph Grew, Oct. 6 but was published in Washington only to-day. Although the note specifically requested a prompt reply, the Japanese foreign office said no definite date for answering it had been set.

Sources close to the government disclosed Japan would take a "determined stand" in negotiating with foreign powers over rights and privileges they have enjoyed in China.

Informed Japanese, referring to the prospect of negotiations with third powers after peace has been restored, said foreign concessions and settlements in Shanghai, Canton, Hankow and Tientsin would be of particular concern.

War Minister Seishiro Itagaki told the nation "the conflict has just begun.

"The armed dispute between China and Japan will be little affected by the fall of the Wuhan area," General Itagaki said in a statement on the Yangtse Valley victory. The victory should not relax the nation's mind. The people must devote all efforts toward long-term construction."

Imperial headquarters announced Lieut.-General Prince Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni, head of the collateral branches of the Imperial family, had assumed supreme command of Japanese army forces in Central China, including those which have occupied Hankow.

London Times Seized

BERLIN, Oct. 27 (C.P.-Havas).— Copies of The Times of London were seized upon arrival here to-day for the fourth time in a week. The reason for the seizure to-day was believed to be an article describing the fate of anti-Nazis who have been compelled to remain in those parts of Czechoslovakia taken over by Germany.

Euler Cuts Arctic Airmail In Half So Northerners May Read

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (CP)—Reduction in postage rates on newspapers and periodicals carried by air to outlying northern districts where there is "no alternative surface mail service" was announced today by Hon. W. D. Euler, acting postmaster general.

The new rates, effective Nov. 1, will be one cent for two ounces or a fraction of two ounces. In the case of publishers and newsdealers this may be calculated on the total weight of their mailings.

The reductions amount to 50 per cent in many cases. The rates established in the Mackenzie River valley Oct. 1 were 12 cents a pound up to 10 pounds, $1.50 a pound from 10 to 15 pounds, $2 a pound from 15 to 20 pounds and $2.50 a pound from 20 to 25. The rates varied in other districts from 15 cents to $1.20 a pound.

Mr. Euler's announcement said a careful study was made of the previous rates and it was found that, although they covered only the cost of air transportation, they created a hardship for persons residing in outlying areas and depending heavily on newspaper and magazines for entertainment.

Persons coming out of the north to Edmonton early this week complained of the Oct. 1 rates, claiming they would make it impossible for some northerners to read newspapers.

Farmer Touches Cow On Live Wire And Dies Too

Alliston, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)

HOWARD Gauley, Essa township farmer, was electrocuted yesterday when he touched one of his cows that had been killed by a high tension wire.

Driving his cattle to water he noticed one of the animals in trouble in a ditch. He went to its aid and received a jolt from nearly 6,400 volts that had already killed the cow. A tree had fallen, bringing down the wire, concealed by high grass in the ditch.

Hungarian, Pole Slice Off Czechs Needed As Buffer From Hitler

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

WARSAW, Oct. 27.—(AP)—There is far more than the minority issue involved in the Hungarian claim to Czechoslovakia's Ruthenia. The chief reason for this claim is the desire of Hungary and Poland, who are great friends, to make a common frontier for the two countries, separated by this narrow Czechoslovak tail.

That would create a barrier of defence against possible German aggression. In other words, crushing of Czechoslovakia by Germany has sent the rest of the countries in this part of the world scurrying about to see how they can protect themselves if Hitler tries similar tactics on any of them.

This does not mean they don't intend to cooperate with the Fuehrer. Economically they do, and one good reason—as has been frankly stated in well informed quarters not only in Poland and Hungary but

Liked Firing Barns Says Lad 16 Given Two Years

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)

JOHN JENKINS, 16-year-old Bowmanville farmhand, who confessed he burned barns because he "got a kick out of it," was sentenced yesterday to two years less a day in reformatory and one year indeterminate for arson.

In a statement produced by the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department, Jenkins admitted burning the barns of Norman Holder of Eldon township last July and Melville Wright, Manvers township, in August. Jenkins worked at the two farms and formerly was a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Laughter Cures All Says Manner-Defier Crediting Success To Banana Peel

DETROIT, Oct. 27 (CP)—Miss Elsa Maxwell, a middle-aged woman who has shattered all the copy book rules about how to make a success of life, was in Detroit today prepared to lecture against the "sham of good manners."

Miss Maxwell who makes a remunerative business of giving parties for the social elite from New York to Hollywood is lecturing on how to give a successful party.

"There is nothing like laughter," Miss Maxwell said. "Laughter cures everything, my dear, everything. That is my message."

"How do you go about arranging a party?" reporters asked.

"Laughter is the panacea," said Elsa. "I was once depressed. Felt the world was going to pieces. So what did I do?"

"What makes a good party," repeated the reporter.

"I got a banana, and I peeled the banana," Elsa continued. "I put the banana skin on the floor. And I deliberately stepped on it, my dear."

"About the party...." the reporter reiterated.

"I stepped on the banana and I fell," Elsa said

"Party .... remember?" the weary reporter continued.

"My mission is destroying the sham of manners," Elsa said. "Be natural. Be your own guide. Do what you feel like doing."

France Would Let Hitler Run Europe And Turn To Colonial Empire

MARSEILLE, Oct. 27 (AP) — Premier Daladier today told the congress of his own Radical-Socialist party he believed Germany and France would come to an understanding.

The premier said there "are powerful reasons for mutual esteem" between the two countries "which must lead to loyal collaboration."

Before Daladier spoke members of parliament attending the congress said France already had expressed willingness to drop her mutual assistance pacts with Soviet Russia in order to reach an agreement with Germany.

Declaring that French policy would correspond "to the elements of the new situation" in Europe, Daladier let it be understood that the government would seek a greater outlet for the nation's energy in its colonial empire rather than dispute continental leadership with the Nazi state.

He also said he believed France would find an entente with Italy.

"Whether it is a question of her relations with Germany or with Italy," Daladier said, "France is convinced that, if each side thinks only of the sole defence of its national interests, accords can be reached which will bring the most useful contribution to the re-inforcement of peace."

"I always have hoped strongly for Franco-German collaboration. Whatever the differences in their political regime, the two nations, who so often have been locked on the field of battle, must understand that war in modern times is never a solution and that it is possible to settle all problems by a loyal entente between the peoples."

Six Lottery Raids Jails 13

Provincial Cleanup Marks Climax Of Month's Probe

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.). — Result of a widespread investigation into an allegedly illegal lottery conducted by the "National Transportation Mutual Association," 13 men arrested during the night will face charges in Magistrate's Court here.

The month-old probe developed quickly as men were apprehended in Stratford, Guelph, St. Thomas, Toronto, Orangeville, and London, in addition to two men arrested here on Tuesday. It is expected some of them will appear in court here today on charges of selling or handling lottery tickets.

Arrests made last night resulted from information gathered when Adolph Kamann of London and Louis Kamann of Tecumseh were arrested and charged in Magistrate's Court with selling lottery tickets.

Although London police declined to reveal names of those arrested, in Toronto police announced three men, Robert Bluett, John Blain and James E. Howe, had been taken into custody. They will be taken to London to-day.

Toronto police reported finding 75 books of tickets in Bluett's home, marked "Do not use in the mails." Sixteen books were seized at Howe's. They were said to have been shipped from North Bay where they were received from London.

Sheets purporting to bear news of awards for November were also seized. Police said awards totalling $5,000 were to 155 subscribers in Ontario and Quebec. The tickets are sold at a nominal fee and the pool divided monthly.

Coalition Farmer New Chile President

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 27—(AP)—Pedro Aguirre Cerda, millionaire farmer and candidate of a coalition of radicals, socialists and communists, won Chile's presidential election, the government conceded early today.

Aguirre Cerda beat the government candidate, finance minister Gustavo Ross, a Conservative. The six-year term of Arturo Allessandri, Liberal, expires in December.

The interior ministry said the election was without serious disorder. A number were arrested in Santiago, however, on fraud charges and rightists said there was considerable buying of votes.

The vote announced by the interior ministry was 212,000 for Aguirre Cerda and 199,000 for Ross.

Jobs In England For Varsity Men

OTTAWA, Oct. 27—(CP).—The British air ministry has advised the national defence department here that there is a wide field open in England for Canadian University graduates with honor degrees in engineering or physics or with research and practical engineering training, it was learned here last night.

The air ministry said it would be willing to consider applications for appointment to the air ministry research school at the Royal Aircraft establishment, South Farnborough, Hants.

Candidates should be physically fit for flying and willing to fly as observers. If appointed from Canada they are required to pay their own passage to the United Kingdom and also th return passage if they are unsatisfactory.

Held For Stealing

TORONTO, October 27—(CP).—Charged with stealing the suit of an out-of-town visitor at a downtown hotel to-day, Adelaide Kerr alias Craig, Henrietta Kerr alias Russell, and Albert Johns were arrested by eDtective-Sergeant Frank Crowe.

In the suit, which was recovered later, were a fountain pen, two wallets and about $70 in cash, which was not recovered. The two women faced an additional charge of being drunk.

Hungary Urges Czechs Hurry Retreat

BUDAPEST, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Hungarian cabinet was summoned today to consider Czechoslovakia's acceptance of the Hungarian plan to let Germany and Italy mediate their territorial dispute.

It was learned authoritatively the ministers would act quickly to induce the two powers to press Czechoslovakia to withdraw her troops so Hungarian soldiers can occupy undisputed areas in Slovakia without delay.

Official circles regarded this as necessary because Hungary is afraid the Czechs may take with them too much material which, Hungarians maintain, Hungarian minorities paid for and should therefore remain in the relinquished districts.

Czechoslovak acceptance of the principle of arbitration was made known last night in a reply to Hungarian proposals of Monday. The answer was considered as showing some progress which might form the basis for further peaceful negotiations, but secondary differences remained.

Among the outstanding points were, a Foreign Office spokesman said, Czechoslovak insistence that Hungarian occupation of purely Magyar regions await German and Italian decisions on procedure; plebiscites in eight disputed districts; Hungarian demands for plebiscites in newly-autonomous Ruthenia and Slovakia to determine the people's desires to join Hungary.

The Czechoslovak answer failed to fulfill the Hungarian request for the Ruthenian-Slovak plebiscites, and demanded that Rumania be an arbitrator if Poland were so named.

It was learned Hungary would refuse to accept Rumania as a mediator because, one official said, "we are sick of Little Entente intrigues." (Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yogoslavia are members of the Little Entente.)

Spy Letter Copies Vanish At Trial

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP).—A book containing photographic copies of eight letters introduced into evidence by the United States government at the German spy trial was missing today when the trial resumed.

The photographic copies, made at the direction of the British intelligence service, were of letters sent by Guenther Rumrich, former United States army sergeant who pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence at the trial, to a German agent named Sanders in care of Mrs. Jessie Jordan at Dundee, Scotland.

In addition to the copies of seven Rumrich letters, the book contained a photographic copy of one letter written to the same address by Rumrich's brother from Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The staff of United States attorney Lamar Hardy's office, it was disclosed, made a prolonged but vain search for the missing documents.

Japs Aim To Run Hankow, Canton Railway

SHANGHAI, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Japanese conquerors of Canton and Hankow pushed ahead today with three objectives.

One was to disperse Chinese troops retreating from Hankow, erstwhile provisional capital which fell Tuesday, before they could consolidate new positions.

Another was to occupy 685 miles of railway linking Canton, conquered last week, and Hankow.

The third called for the penetration of intervening areas in Kwangtung (Canton), Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh (Hankow) provinces.

General Chiang Kai-Shek's armies were taking up positions southwest of Hankow and claimed to have repulsed Japanese attacks designed to cut the railway north of Sienning.

Pushing from the north and the south, the Japanese concentrated efforts on slicing off 50 miles of rails at each end of the Canton-Hankow line. Occupation of the remaining 585 miles was scheduled to be followed by drives on Yochow, a strategic position controlling both the railroads and the Yangtse River 150 miles upriver from Hankow, and Changsh, 230 miles from Hankow.

Nearly 100 foreign missionaries are stationed along the railroad.

Dispatches announced the complete Japanese occupation of Hankow and its sister cities, Wuchang and Hanyang, last night without major Chinese resistance. Formal entry was scheduled for Nov. 3, birthday of the late Japanese emperor Meiji, grandfather of Emperor Hirohito.

Rogers Defends Wheat Action

EDMONTON, Oct. 27 (CP)—A call for national unity and compromise to meet problems in various sections of the Dominion was made last night by Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor.

Mr. Rogers spoke at a public meeting which wound up the nomination convention that selected A. A. Knight of Mayerthorpe, Alta., as Liberal candidate in the Jasper-Edson constituency in the next federal election.

Summarizing the federal government's record since taking office in October, 1935, Mr. Rogers said there had been a clash of opinion between east and west on the government fixing a minimum price of 80 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern Wheat at Fort William.

The government sought a compromise between the contention in the east that the price was too high and in the west that the price was too low. Mr. Rogers said the price set was fair and in the interest of Canada.

When the time came, Mr. Rogers said, he would not hesitate to defend the wheat price in his own constituency of Kingston, Ont., because it aided the east as much as it did the west.

Appealing for unity throughout the Dominion, Mr. Rogers urged the substitution of "co-operation for conflict, tolerance for prejudice and faith for doubt."

Man Gets 10 Days For Causing Trouble

Pleading guilty to having created a disturbance on Chamberlain street George Lackey of Peterborough was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to ten days in the county jail.

Chief Newhall informed the court that there had been considerable trouble in regard to the accused over his intemperate habits.

Another man, charged with being drunk in a public place asked for leniency.

"I'll go right away and never be seen here again if you will give me a chance," he told the court after he had pleaded guilty.

"I might never be seen here again myself, in that case," said Magistrate Langley. "The law does not permit me to give you a chance."

MILLBROOK

St. Andrew's Y.P.A. Talk Cooperation

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 27. — On Tuesday evening the Y.P.U. of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, met in the Sunday School Rooms. The president, B. B. Dawson, announced that a committee appointed by the Peterborough Presbytery would take charge of the meeting on November 22. The idea will be to demonstrate to the local convenors of the different groups just what is expected of them when they have charge themselves. He also mentioned the officers' congress to be held in Peterborough on November 7, and hoped there would be a good showing present. The next meeting will be in charge of the Christian culture convenor. It was decided that on Sunday, November 6, the Young People's Association would take charge of the evening service. The delegates to the recent convention at Perth will each take a portion of the proceedings.

Mr. Dawson took charge of the devotional period assisted by Gordon Might, who read the Scripture, and Leitha Edworthy, a passage from the worship book entitled "Faith," which was the topic for the evening. Miss Phyllis Kidd led in prayer. The theme centered around the "Rochdale Plan of Co-operation" which had been broken up into eight main points, which were discussed at length by the group. Following this a paper headed "True or False," containing questions on the evening's topic was passed around and the members asked to answer these in a few words. Due to the many subjects the meeting had taken much longer than expected and it was decided to forego the recreational period. The meeting closed with a sing-song led by the recreational convenor, Ken Kidd.

The Admiral Arrives For Big Race

The continent's No. 1 race horse, War Admiral, makes his way down the runway from the train that took him to the Laurel track at Baltimore, where he meets Seabiscuit in a match race on November 1. The two horses were originally scheduled to meet last May, but the "race of the century" petered out when Seabiscuit developed a sore knee.

Bluenose Takes Trophy For All Time? ✓

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 27.—(AP.)—The big salt banker Bluenose, successful defender of her sailing championship of the North Atlantic headed for Canada to-day with every prospect it would carry the title into history.

Motors virtually have plucked clean the white wings of the fishing fleets and Captain Ben Pine, managing-owner of the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud said he would not challenge again for the International fishermen's trophy.

The skippers of the Thebaud, beaten by two minutes and fifty seconds in the final race yesterday, and Captain Angus Walters of the Canadian cup defender expressed their displeasure with the series. Walters said he would race again in Canada but never again in the United States.

Captains Pine and Cecil Moulton, of the Thebaud, charged Captain Charles Lyons, head of the race committee kept the schooners in port when there was a good sailing breeze and sent them out when it wasn't blowing.

There was a light wind yesterday when Bluenose, her championship depending on the outcome of the race, took the lead shortly after the start and held it over the 35½ mile triangular course.

Famed Opera Star Alma Gluck Dies

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—(AP).—Alma Gluck Zimbalist, famous opera singer of past years, and wife of Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist, died today. She was 54. She died at Rockfeller Institute Hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Zimbalist was born in Bucharest, Rumania, in 1884, and came to America in 1890. She was educated in the public schools and attended normal college in New York and Union College in Schenectady.

She studied music under the famous singing teacher, Buzzipeccia.

She married Zimbalist on June 15, 1914. They had two children, Maria Virginia (Mrs. Ogden Goelet) and Efrem.

She made her debut at the Metropolitan opear in "Wether" in 1909, and during the same season sang 11 different roles, only two of which she had previously studied.

Sabina Jacobs, an ex-slave, has died in Paarl, South Africa, at the age of 106.

MORE ABOUT—

Hungarian

elsewhere—is that it would be extremely difficult to evade cooperation with the Nazi chieftain even if they wanted to. He is admittedly the big man in eastern Europe and the Balkans.

However, while all are signifying intention of playing ball with Hitler they also are showing a disposition to have a hand in making the rules of the game. This mutual desire among small countries to safeguard their independence is understood to explain largely the visit of Poland's foreign minister, Joseph Beck, to Rumania and that of his chief assistant, Count Michael Lubiensky, to Budapest.

In speaking of such defensive measures as are involved in the establishment of a common Polish-Hungarian frontier it should be emphasized that these are purely precautionary thus far and relate to the future. They do not mean a display of antagonism to Germany. Poland is friendly to Germany, but is bent on playing safe.

Junction between Poland and Hungary would serve another prime purpose. It would greatly increase Poland's access to the Balkans for trade purposes and would give Hungary a direct northern trade route not passing through German-dominated territory.

As regards Budapest's claims against Prague, the Hungarian army and a large section of the public have been dissatisfied because the government did not occupy the territory in question instead of negotiating.

This feeling in exceptionally strong form accounted for the amazing invasion of Czechoslovakia by a Hungarian army captain and some 200 men who engaged in combat with Czechs and lost 17 killed. The Hungarian government had to get these wildmen out of Czechoslovakia post haste and the captain is said to be awaiting a verdict on his escapade.

Despite strong sentiment for extreme action, Regent Admiral Horthy has insisted on handling claims by negotiating rather than by force.

There was some unofficial talk in Budapest that Hungary and Poland might make a joint move, sending troops into Ruthenia to preserve order. Several thousand Hungarians have gone into Ruthenia and have been making trouble. These folk, whose action is disclaimed by their own government, maintain Hungary should have occupied Ruthenia with troops and are trying to force intervention.

Woman Is Injured In Crossing Street

Mrs. Theresa Herlikey, 176 Brock street, had a narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday night at 9.15 o'clock when she was knocked down by an automobile at the intersection of George and Brock streets. The car was driven by George Hutchison, Sheridan street who was driving north on George street and who told the police that the woman waited while another machine passed in the other direction and then walked in front of his automobile and was hit. Fortunately his car was going at a slow rate of speed and Mrs. Herlikey escaped with a cut on her head and shock.

Hart House Rejects Chamberlain Deal And Prof. Wallace Protests

Toronto, Oct. 27 (CP)

A RESOLUTION "that this house has confidence in (Prime Minister) Chamberlain's foreign policy" was defeated by a vote of 69 to 60 in a Hart House debate at the University of Toronto last night.

C. G. Sanderson and J. A. Seed spoke for the affirmative and Fred Rowell and Patrick Gorman for the negative. Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, guest speaker, criticized the speakers and in an address said that it was not the responsibility of the British Empire to fight other nations merely because they had a different type of government.

Chancellor Hitler of Germany was in earnest when he threatened war on Czechoslovakia and Mr. Chamberlain's compromise was the only "sensible" course under the circumstances, he said.

"There are no human problems that cant be settled by a roundtable conference of nations talking as man to man," Dr. Wallace added.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27 (C.P.). — Trade on the Winnipeg Grain Market completed its fifth consecutive day in the doldrums to-day and wheat futures prices declined narrowly. Weakness in outside markets and lack of interest locally again were largely responsible for the ¾ to ⅞ cent dip. October closed at 59, November 58¾, December 58½, and May 61⅞.

Export business was unconfirmed but was believed at low level. Indifference at Liverpool reflected on the Winnipeg market early and prices remained at lower levels most of the day. Selling by the government agency was negligible.

Liverpool closed 1⅜ to ¼d lower

Black Sea shipments last week totalled 2,648,000 bushels of which Russia contributed 1,072,000.

Dropped Famous Horses To Grow Peat

ST. STEPHEN, N.B., Oct. 27 (CP) —Only wreckage and memories remain of a stock farm at Oak Point near here where the late Hon. William F. Todd, one of New Brunswick's lieutenant-governors, spent years and a fortune with the idea of breeding the best trotting horses in the world

Success seemed imminent when he bought the eight Emmaline mares, aristocratic sisters out of the famous Emmaline. They were considered superior to any other brood mares in North America.

The quest took Mr. Todd's agent, George Leavitt, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Owners of the mares rocketed their prices when they learned of Todd's determination to acquire them all, but he did. They were Adele Gould, whose time of 2.18¼ was record-breaking in high-wheeled sulky days, Ray Gould, Alice Blackwood, Daisy Hartshorn, Augustus Schyler, Rachael C., Carry R. and Kate Taylor.

People came from everywhere to see the fine mares. They were trained on a half-mile track. The largest stable, 144 feet by 50, was built of brick, with the interior completely finished in hardwood. Two of the stalls were hot-water heated.

Todd and James Kehoe frequently raced such horses as Edgardo and Rachael C. on the private track. Edgardo sired Tomah, who established a world record. They were the fastest trotting father and son then known.

Doomed Enterprise

The Todd stock farm had gained an international reputation when the founder bought some peat moss for bedding his horses. Manufactured in Germany, the moss caught Todd's fancy and doomed his breeding enterprises.

He found a peat bog at Musquash and decided to embark on the processing of peat moss. His attention diverted from horses, he gradually sold off the stock. Todd poured thousands of dollars into machinery for bailing and drying the moss, with the idea of establishing an important new industry in New Brunswick.

After the Musquash venture proved unsuccessful he bought another peat bog near St. Stephen. He worked on the project until his death but never reached a point where he could market the peat profitably.

"If it hadn't been for that peat I'm pretty sure that St. Stephen would today be breeding the finest trotting horses in the world," says R. M. Webber, Milltown, well known race starter.

Won Purse

"Will" Eaton, Calais, one of the last of the old time breeders in this district, won a $10,000 purse with Jennie H. at Windsor, Conn., in 1924 and repeated with the same horse in 1925. But he likes to talk about Nellie Eaton.

Johnny Marrati, one of Eaton's employees, used to sleep beside Nellie Eaton's stall. Once a friend took his place for the night. Nellie knew the difference. Thereafter, every night, she lifted the covers off Marrati to see if he was really there or if the bedding hid an imposter.

The late Horace Murchie, prominent horseman years ago, is often recalled affectionately by racing enthusiasts of New Brunswick and Maine

"He was the best man with a colt I ever saw," said Webber. "He made a hobby of buying unbroken yearlings and he would fool around with those horses all day long. There were words which he wouldn't say in front of them—words like 'stall' that he would spell out. He did that because when one of his horses heard him say 'stall' it was so well trained that that is where it would go—right to its stall."

One of his colts, Mona, became a great trotter. When Murchie had to undergo an operation he gave all his horses to kind owners, sensing he would never recover. "But he wouldn't let anybody else have Mona," said Webber. "He had her put to sleep before he left."

Corn Grown Without Soil

For the first time corn is being grown commercially two crops a year, winter and summer, without soil. The plants are fed by chemicals placed about the roots and reach a height of 12 to 14 feet. This method was begun in the 17th century and has been found to give better control over the plants. For the past three years the Ohio Agricultural Experimental station has been experimenting with using this method to produce corn commercially;.

Two Cars Tangle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 27. — A. A. Martin, Public School Inspector for Northumberland was involved in a collision on Wednesday evening on the Campbellford Road five miles east of here. Jack Brinklow of Hastings was driving east when the two cars collided, resulting in considerable damage to Brinklow's car and minor damages to that of Mr. Martin. The accident occurred on a sharp curve. Occupants of both cars escaped injury.

Cornwall Township In Police Tangle

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 27. — (CP).—Cornwall township authorities announced last night the request for an investigation into alleged maladministration of township police department had been refused by the Ontario Attorney General's Department.

It was understood a meeting of township council would be held today to deal with the situation. The Attorney General's Department decided that since the police department was appointed and controlled by township authorities, the latter should conduct any investigation it deemed necessary.

Chief Wilfrid Bertrand and Constable William Malyon are under suspension pending the inquiry.

War-Scarred Lad Back From Spain

REGINA, Oct. 27—(CP). — Jack Zaharik has returned to his home here, no longer the active young man he was a year ago when he joined the International Brigade fighting for Loyalist Spain. He plans to continue aiding the cause in every way he can.

His legs and hips are paralyzed partially, result of the impact of machine-gun bullets and shrapnel, and he walks with the aid of a heavy cane.

Zaharik, when wounded, was carried from the field by Walter Marchuk of Regina and Jan Cooks of Vancouver. They carried and dragged him for six hours before they found an ambulance.

He spent five months in different hospitals and once underwent three operations in one day without anaesthetic in a field hospital. He was moved to a hospital near Barcelona when Insurgent planes bombed the building, killing 46 men in the wing adjoining the one in which he had been placed.

Zaharik speaks with bitterness when relating his experiences as machine gunner with the International Brigade.

"You can learn to stand it when your buddies are shot down beside you," he said, "but if you had been there when we had to go into bombed towns and cities and drag women and children from the ruins and see children's bodies laid out in long rows, youd understand.

"I dont know why I came back. If I had my way I'd go back right now and fight again."

Zaharik plans a speaking tour to gain support and money to load a food ship with supplies for Loyalist troops.

Grand Old Man Of The West Carried Dispatch To Riel

By CHRIS SMITH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

SASKATOON, Oct. 27.—In a little mud-plastered shack, 40 miles north and west of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, Thomas Swain lives with his memories. His memories go back a long way, for Thomas Swain is in his 104th year, and he is the oldest man in his province—possibly the oldest in the west. Mr. Swain was born on April 6, 1935, near the forks of the Red and Assiniboine rivers. Six monarchs have occupied the British throne in his lifetime, William IV being the reigning monarch when Swain first saw the light of day.

First a buffalo hunter, then a trader, Swain roamed the plains from the Red river to the foothills in Alberta for three decades before the first Provincial government was established in Manitoba. He freighted the 800-mile journey to the west before there was even a mile of railway laid down in Ontario. For 20 years he was a hunting partner of that strangely fascinating figure, Gabriel Dumont, whose word was law in the western wilderness

Erect of figure, clear-eyed and a treasure house of old lore and information, Thomas Swain would be a remarkable man if he were less than his age. While his memory is impaired in any extended train of thought, he responds easily and quickly to inquiries about well-known personalities of his earlier days.

Baptised by a priest who crossed the Red river from the Catholic settlement, Swain hunted his first buffalo when 14. From then on he threw in his lot with the plains hunters, who roamed the west from the Red river to the foothills. In summer they sought buffalo, which was dried as pemmican, and in his hide, with which to make tents clothing and shagannappi

Friend of Dumont

Gabriel Dumont was leader of the Metis when Swain met him The fates decreed a parting of the ways for Swain and Dumont when a new order of government was imposed on Metis, trader, red man and settled alike. Whatever bitterness was engendered in the hearts of these two men when the parting came, time was erased Thomas Swain, who served with the Queen's forces in both the Red River Rebellion, said of the man who became Louis Reil's chief lieutenant: "He was a good friend, a brave man, a great hunter."

Swain was present when young Thomas Scott was seized at Fort Garry by Riel rebels in 187[illegible] tried by court-martial, and shot. He was one of the soldiers who effected a release of some of the prisoners held by Riel

When Governor Morris journeyed west in 1876 for the Cree treaties at Fort Carlton, and Fort Pitt, Thomas Swain was hunting buffalo near Sturgeon Lake. Two years later, however, he was freighting west for the J. H. Ashdown Company of Winnipeg. On the first trip he brought to Battleford, then the capital of the North West Territories, the first threshing machine ever seen on the Saskatchewan prairie. It was consigned to Lieutenant-Governor David Laird. At Battleford he met Govenor Laird and also Patrick Gammie Laurie, who had just established the Saskatchewan Herald, first newspaper west of Winnipeg.

Carried Dispatch.

His business in the capital finished, Swain journeyed to Prince Albert, where he filed on a homestead the following year, settling with his family. When the Saskatchewan Rebellion broke out in 1885, Swain joined Captain Moore's company of the Prince Albert Volunteers and served through the campaign. He carried a dispatch from General Middleton to the rebel leader, Riel, at Batoche.

Swain's story of subsequent events is that of the life of a homesteader, with all its ups and downs, its joys and tribulations. In his 104th year he has little or no knowledge of the present. His thoughts are of the past. Tea and tobacco are his standbys and he has never been seen by a doctor. His personal appearance is still his pride.

THANK YOU!

The Peterborough Conference Committee takes this means of thanking the following merchants of Peterborough for their generous support in the producing of the Souvenir Program Booklet.

The Slot Machines

We are informed slot machines are operating in Peterborough and other cities. It was anticipated that recent changes in the Criminal Code would put an end to them. In some places the operators are reported to have dispensed with the slugs formerly used and have a system of light signals which tell when the player has won.

That in turn makes it more difficult for a police officer to secure evidence. It means that he has to be present when the money from the winnings is being paid over.

The Attorney-General of Ontario has admitted the law is not as clear as it should be, but he has promised a province-wide inquiry to secure information and his desire is to stamp out these slot machines. The Chatham News reports that the machines are operating in that city in a way which makes it hard to secure a conviction, and the Chatham paper offers what seems a reasonable suggestion. Just this: "The only thing to be done is to clearly define all illegal slot machines as 'devices which are capable of being used for gambling purposes'."

We have no admiration at all for those who plan their ways so they get around the law because the intent and purpose of the change in the law was that the slot machine as a gambling device should be put out of business, and eventually that is exactly what will and should happen.

It Was His Home

A Chinese resident of Peterborough stopped to discuss Canton and its fate. He did not need much urging to say what was on his mind, for things were heavy there. There was no smile in him, and he had been looking at several newspaper pictures of his native Canton. He had been reading the place had been captured by the Jap army and that much of the city had been blown up or set on fire before the inhabitants fled.

"You see that big bridge there . . . how many times I crossed there as a boy I do not know. . . . I fear my old home has been burned as that part of the city has many people and it would burn easy. How many people in there you find it hard to understand because there are so many more than in any city here. Most of my people in this country they come from Canton; it is their home and they have people living there. Nearly all look forward to the day when we will go back. We like very much at least to be buried there.

"Our people there never want war. They have been the same for hundreds, thousands of years. All they want is leave them alone and let them live and work as they have done before. Myself I never had gun in my hand; I get along better without. My people in China . . . I do not know what of them . . . may be hard to send letter now and I may never hear . . . they were all in Canton. It is just like your home was chopped up and your people had to run. They take little with them and just follow the road to some place else . . . perhaps no bed and nothing to eat . . . I dont' know . . . perhaps never know."

That is more than we ever heard this Chinese say, and yet it probably told what he and his countrymen in many places are thinking about at the moment. He turned back once more to the few newspaper pictures and began reading again of what had taken place in his native city.

Up High and Down Low

Known as rather shy and retiring, two country boys started their career in Cleveland—the Van Sweringen brothers. They are both dead, but in the course of their spectacular career they controlled a railway world of 28,000 miles and were reputedly worth $3,171,000,000. When they started they had nothing at all, and when they died they were in a worse position because they were heavily in debt.

Auctioneers are today selling out the contents of Daisy Hill Farm near Cleveland. It was not a farm as the word is applied but 500 acres of park with 15 stately houses scattered through the premises. The home where the brothers lived was formerly a barn, but no one would recognize it as such when they were through remodelling. There are 51 rooms in it, 11 master bedrooms and 13 smaller ones. In the place in the heyday of their career there were 50 trunk telephone lines.

They had a Dickens rooms containing the chair in which Charles Dickens sat when he was editor of the London Daily News. There are treasures there from the world over and yet the auctioneers in looking over a list of 3,000 items said he expected to get $100,000 for them. The brothers Van Sweringen are said to have spent well over $1,000,000 for the same articles.

And yet in the midst of all this glory the brothers Van slept in the one and the same bedroom. And what a strange view it all presents of the manner in which men struggle, achieve and fail. They brought nothing into the world; during the relatively few years which were measured out to them they gathered around themselves wealth which was over three billions, and when they departed they took not a thing with them. Today the voice of the auctioneer urges, drones or perhaps barks in an effort to extract the dollars which may help to pay off some of their indebtedness.

It Came so Suddenly

R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada says his company is through with streamlining. Said so in an address at a press preview of the 1939 models in Oshawa.

Like this he spoke: "We all know that streamlining is a farce. We are getting back to carriage lines, something beautiful and graceful. The beetle sterns that streamlining brought about don't belong on cars."

Truth is we did not all know that streamlining was a farce. Mr. McLaughlin may have known it and those close to him may have shared the information, but never a whimper did we ever hear about it before. The men who sell cars used to come to us and talk of this new thing, streamlining, and they used to ridicule the shape and design of our old square looking cars and we believe they referred to them as wind pushers or some such thing.

And then we changed to something that had some streamlining on it, and no matter whether it used up gas and oil just about the same as the old wind pusher we felt better about it. We were conforming with the theories of engineers who had studied the situation; we did not have to displace the same cubicity and density of air and so on. We were inclined to look in a patronizing way at the neighbor who was still puttering about in his old square sort of car. We were just sort of wafting through the air instead of having to shove and knock the stuff to one side as we progressed.

And now to be told that it is and was a farce! Good land that's rather tough, more so because we had never suspected it or guessed it. The railways the world over seem to have fallen for it, and the people who pay much heed to the matter of diet have also seized the phrase. It seems we once read also that ranges for cooking were also being streamlined and some of the modern furniture makers boasted they were also doing their carving with the streamline in view. And now we hear it is a farce. Just another blow and it generally takes us about three and a-half days to get over one.

Selecting the Wrong Way

There was a case tried in Bancroft recently and it is reported the town hall was crowded. People from all over the district in which the case originated were on hand and an action of this kind still has drawing power which will cause people to forget the other chores for the time being.

A woman lives on a farm with her five children, and claims she has a deed for the place. Another claimant wished to have this family leave the place so proceeded to take off the doors and windows. There is nothing new in that form of attack and admittedly it would make the folk rather uncomfortable on days and nights when the weather turned cool.

Seventeen young men made doors and windows of their own liking and proceeded to place them in position when the man who claims ownership arrived and ordered them to depart, something they were not at all inclined to do. The woman occupant and one of her daughters resisted the claimant owner and so there were about 17 trespass charges and a couple of assault claims for the hearing. Small wonder there was a crowd. In the end all cases were dismissed.

Removing doors and windows is not the best way to take action for possession. It is rather an old custom and has never proved its effectiveness. It always arouses sympathy for the people who are in the premises and the remover of doors and windows prejudices his case at the outset.

Truth is we have courts in this country for the purpose of determining ownership of property; deeds may be a trifle confusing at times, but they too can be traced through to finality. It is always better to follow such a course, although it must be admitted that the affair near Bancroft provided an interesting day for all those who wanted to hear the case when it was brought to trail.

A Fire at Sea

The German liner Deutschland, off Newfoundland in rough seas, was attacked by fire, and that would make an uncomfortable combination of forces. The rough weather would not bother the liner to any extent as in the course of a year it probably encounters about as much rough as fair going.

But a fire is different. The radio was in action at once calling for help, and in short order the position of seven vessels was given and the answer was they were all coming to the rescue. One who is inclined to be timid knows well enough there is a feeling of assurance on a liner today in knowing the ship is constantly in touch with other vessels and with coastal stations. It is interesting though to note just how long it would have been before any other vessel could have been of any assistance to the Deutschland.

The American S. S. Manhattan was 247 miles west with a speed of 22 1-2 knots. By the time she changed her course and arrived it would be 12 hours.

The French S. S. Minerva 90 miles west, speed 11 knots. At least 9 hours away.

The American Traveler, 110 miles northeast, 15 knots; at least eight hours.

The American S. S. Collamer, 86 miles east, speed of 12 knots; from 7 to 8 hours away.

The S. S. American Farmer, 144 miles southeast, 15 knots; a good 10 hours' trip.

The British S. S. Laconia, 290 miles southeast, 19 knots; at least 15 hours away.

The Norwegian S. S. Europe, 76 miles distant, speed 12 knots, between 7 and 8 hours to make the trip.

These speeds as given might possibly be different to make in rough weather, but in a case of emergency extra pressure would be applied. So although there were seven vessels responding to the call not one would have arrived before the lapse of at least seven hours, so it was fortunate indeed the fire on the Deutschland was controlled by the crew. In rough weather rescue would have been difficult and there were all told 1,000 persons on the German liner.

The Deutschland has been in regular service 15 years between Hamburg and New York and has had her share of mishaps. In 1933 it crashed with the liner Munargo entering New York. In 1925 it collided with the Martin Carl in the English Channel. The same year it was in collision with two other boats on the Elbe River. It caught fire in mid-ocean in 1929 and its latest adventure was a fire which sent out a call for help because it looked as though it would be needed. The Deutschland is regarded as a good vessel but its record of mishaps is growing to an uncomfortable length.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Japan explains that a British warship struck by a Jap bomb was in the wrong place. We suspected as much before hearing the Jap explanation.

Simcoe man paid $100 for refusing to open a door when an officer demanded admission. So there is something to be said after all for the open door policy.

Huron county farmer had a pig stolen from his place and he says his dog kept on sleeping through it all. Probably the dog figured the pig would squeal on the burglar.

It is reported that the Hitler moustache is becoming more popular in London. And we'd been reading only a few days ago of some elaborate plans being under way to beautify the old city.

There will be 21 million dollars spent to make New York beautiful before the big fair of next year. It's a hard job to undertake because to begin with there is so little beauty in a place of skyscrapers and huddled population.

New town in the western states has not yet built a jail, so they tie prisoners to a tree. It is reported prisioners do not like it, but they have the cure in their own hands by merely minding their own business.

Always there is the individual who thinks he can do just as he pleases. For instance a man in Toronto who persisted in driving a car after his license had been suspended And it cost him $50 to find there was no profit in that form of defiance

A woman in Los Angeles is suing for $150,000 and the amount asked is for alienation of her husband's affections. And that of course is just so much rubbish because it takes it for granted affection is something which can be bought and paid for like liver in a meat shop.

Safety

(By A. R. K.)

¶ In places where there's war on now, I notice often that some how, the shooting is not straight; a vessel with a friendly flag, comes close to getting in the bag, perhaps they smite the mate.

¶ Or else some foreign person's house, of buckhot gets a goodly souse, it kept the folks awake; and then there's explanations made, official notes they likewise trade, to say 'twas a mistake.

¶ I think it's best to keep away, when armies run their own bad fray, long miles are safer then; for bombs might drop just where I sit, with ugly sections I'd be hit, then hobble with lame men.

¶ And bombs they drop from miles away, are apt to drift a bit or stray, you can't tell where they'll lodge; and even if you heard it hum, and turned to see just where 'twould come, perhaps you couldn't dodge.

¶ I might be hiding down a well, when they let loose a ponderous shell, and it might hit a tree; or it might come right on its way, decide the well's where it would stay, and pop right in on me

¶ Perhaps I am a cowardly man, to operate on such a plan, so you may snort and scoff; but when strange nations start to fight, it seems to me exactly right—to stay a great way off.

Cannot Depend On the Russians

LONDON—Soviet Russia is the unknown quantity — the military and diplomatic "x"—in Europe today.

For instance, there is the question of just what Russia did and was prepared to do during the near-war over Czechoslovakia. On September 2, Foreign Commissar Litvinoff told the French that Russia intended to fulfill all her obligations under the Czech-Soviet pact and, together with France, would render such assistance to the Czechs as was open to her. He added the Soviet war department was ready to start staff talks with the Czechs and French.

On September 27 the British foreign office authorized a statement that if Germany attacked Czechoslovakia, France would be bound to go to her assistance and Britain and Russia would stand by France.

✧ ✧ ✧

But—there were few indications of active Russian prepartion. When the situation became critical, Britain mobilized her big fleet in the North Sea and called reservists to the air force. France mobilized a large part of her army and manned the forts of the Maginot line.

The only "news" about Russian preparations is a French story which came by way of Rumania. According to this, the Russians, with the acquiescence of Rumania, flew hundreds of military airplanes over the Province of Bukovina on their way to landings in Czechoslovakia. But correspondents in Prague reported nothing about those planes arriving

Hence Russia's probable aid in case of war remains a big X.

There has been a great rowdy-dow in part of the British press over things Colonel Charles Lindbergh is supposed to have told influential British people when the crisis was at its height. Having recently visited Russia and Germany, he is supposed to have said that Germany's air force was superior to that of France, Britain and Russia combined.

The Russians bitterly denounce him for this supposed remark. But in Britain, as in France, serious doubts have been growing for the past six months as to Russia's real military strength. Experts know that the Russians have a very large army and air force, that the military pageants which Russia stages in Moscow streets are superficially impressive, that they have better equipment now than under Czaristic days, and that a Russian industry has been built up which, on paper at least, can support and supply these armies and air forces.

But for many months, the gloomy Joseph Stalin, dictator of Russia, has been having many trials for treason. The result of those trials has been the shooting or imprisonment of many of the best technicians, factory directors and army generals. Many of the men, who had become famous for their knowledge, experience and skill, are dead or buried in prisons. How much this has disorganized army life and factory life, how much this has undermined the morale of the military forces, is matter for eager discussion in every war department in Europe.

Thus the real strength of Russia's military power is another big X.

✧ ✧ ✧

The Russians are none too pleased at the turn things have taken. They believe Czechoslovakia has been betrayed to Hitler. They realize that in France there are powerful newspapers and big political elements in Parliament who always have been against the Franco-Soviet military pact and who are now more than ever eager to end it. They know that in leading circles in Britain there has always been a disinclination to include Russia in any lineup of the powers.

And things are moving Hitler's way. He has always announced he would have no truck with Russia. He is moving towards an attempt at a big four-power pact between Germany, France, Britain and Italy. That would leave him a free hand in the East.

On the other hand, there has always been an element in the German army and German foreign office which favors dealing with Russia. It was Bismarck's old policy. Queerer things have happened than Bolshevik totalitarian Russia and Nazi totalitarian Germany forgetting old quarrels—for mutual profit.

So—Russia's future position in the lineups in Europe is also a big X.

AN OUTSPOKEN VICAR.

(Pearson's Weekly)

RED CARPETS are banned at weddings by Father George Potter, outspoken vicar of St. Chrysostom's, Peckham, who admits he has caused some bitter feelings by refusing to allow them when comparative strangers wished to marry in his church.

A publican who was prepared to pay £20 for an ornate wedding was told by Father Potter that he wouldn't get one at any price. And the Vicar's explanation, given in his parish magazine; is this: "The Church is God's House, and we dispense God's gifts. They are free gifts, but they have to be earned. . . . Why should we be expected to hire out the church as though it were a room in a hotel? It isn't fair to expect me to let God's House on hire (for weddings) to those who never come near the church at other times."

WHAT YOUTH SEEKS.

(The New Outlook)

A YOUNG American clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, writing in the Churchman, arraigns the Church for its "do-nothing policy" towards the youth of the country. He affirms that America's first and strongest youth movement is toward the underworld, and that tens of thousands have joined this sinister brotherhood. "Youth may still be seeking the abundant life," he says, "but they are seeking it quite apart from the Christian religion—and is it any wonder?" He sees ground for hope, however, in the International Christian Youth Movement, with its Christian basis, world outlook, disciplined life and corporate action.

". . . And you said I shouldn't need an umbrella!"—Humorist.

• Great Help To the Editor

NEWSPAPER editors everywhere, we believe, will envy the aura of omnipotence being worn these days by Maurice Barbanell, editor of Psychic News of London, a publication devoted to news of the spirit world and its devotees.

According to Hannen Swaffer writing in World's Press News of London, Mr. Barbanell is the only editor in the world who boldly printed three weeks in advance of the Munich agreement the headline:

"England Will Not Be Involved in War, the Guides Prophesy!"

Under it ran these statements from the guides of four different Spiritualist circles:

"There will be no war involving England.

"Have no fear. England will not be involved in war. It will be a touch and go, but you need have no fear.

"There will be no war for your country.

"There is no fear of England being involved in war for a number of years."

When the prophecies came true Mr. Barbanell, in the October 8 issue of Psychic News, crowed happily and plastered the early predictions, in fascimile, all over his front page.

The incident makes one brood, says Editor and Publisher, N.Y. How easy editing would be with a friendly pixie at hand! Almost and editor would give an arm for one. We have heard now and then of editorial visitations by the Little Men, who scamper across typewriter keys, but their conversations we are told, generally deal with the past.

We congratulate Mr. Barbanell and wish him every future success in correctly anticipating the news. He had courage, and (envious thought) perhaps an excellent alibi already prepared. There is a lot of static nowadays.

• The Glory of War Has Departed

NOTHING that has happened since the whole Czech crisis began is as significant as this spontaneous demonstration everywhere of a tremendous will to peace among the peoples of the world. The populations of the Fascist countries, thought to be hermetically sealed against real knowledge of what was going on outside, and systematically indoctrinated with admiration for warlike qualities, have shown that they feel on this question at bottom as the people of the democracies do.

This does not mean says New York Times, that the world has lost its courage, but merely that it has lost some of its illusions. The mature people of Europe have not only lived through the most terrible war in history, but they know from the spectacle of Spain and China what war means today. The "glory" of war is gone forever. Belief in it survives only in the anachronistic imaginations and emotions of a backward group.

An aviator dropping bombs on defenseless men, women and children cannot feel very brave or noble about it. The civilians who are ruthlessly murdered have no chance to show whether they are brave or not. There remains today comparatively little of the opportunity for a display of individual courage that there might once have been in hand-to-hand fighting among men equally armed; what dominates is merely hideous wholesale slaughter.

This is what the people of the world sensed when war seemed for a few days all but certain. There was almst none of the tingling anticipation of a new adventure, the holiday spirit that so many felt in 1914. The statesmen of Europe must have been themselves astonished by the strength displayed by the will to peace. The dread tension of the last few weeks will be worth its cost if the demonstrations of peace in their own capitals lead the saber-rattlers of the world to a more cautious and temperate future course.

To The Editor

HONESTY REWARDED

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—May I take a little of your valuable space to express my indignation at a manager of one of our local stores, who went into a certain cafe on Saturday night and left a can which reputedly contained a very large sum of money, on the floor. A party of youngsters went in later and found it and decided to keep it for a while, anticipating the loser's return. When he did he roundly accused them of stealing it and threatened to send for the police which one of the men insisted he should do, but the policeman said he was a lucky man to have found someone honest. He there upon counted it, found it intact, walked out without so much as thank you or goodnight. I think this man should apologize through your paper as the cafe was crowded at the time.

YOUNGSTER'S MOTHER.

THE U. S. POSITION.

(New York World-Telegram)

THERE IS NO USE trying to fool ourselves any longer. Nations simply are not willing to go to war in defence of democracy or any other ideal in the abstract. Nations will fight only when they feel their own direct interests are menaced. . . .

If Canada is set upon, the United States will not remain indifferent. If Latin America is attacked the Monroe Doctrine will be found doing business at the same old stand. If America's vital interests are challenged in the Pacific or elsewhere by the dictatorships the chances are she will respond just as she always has.

But there is little in international relations since the Armistice of a nature to induce her to change her mind now about alliances or other similar peace-time undertakings. Regardless of our national sympathies, America's traditional prejudice against that sort of thing still stands.

IF HE IS MAD.

(Detroit Free Press)

PRESIDENT BENES having resigned because he saw all his efforts to save the liberties of Czechoslovakia frustrated, and felt he could not bear to be a party to what must follow, is classified by Adolf Hitler with the courageous Chancellor Schuchnigg of ravished Austria. "Benes," says Hitler, "is the madman of Central Europe."

If it is madness for a man to be a devoted patriot and struggle desperately against those who menace his land, and would enslave it, as long as there is any chance to struggle, then Benes is a madman.

But he is a madman of a sort civilization needs badly today and of which it seems to have all too few.

He is a madman such as Hitler never can be and never will be able to understand. For there is no affinity between the lunacy which is of Heaven and the lunacy that rages the other side of the Great Gulf.

ADVICE TO PATRIOTS.

(Charlottetown Guardian)

OUR "GOOD NEIGHBORS" are worried over the etiquette to be observed regarding reception of "The Star Spangled Banner" when it is heard over the radio, and Colonel James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association has come to the rescue with the following grandiloquent advice: "Generally speaking, if it seems natural and not forced to stand and uncover, it should be done; otherwise, it should not. For example, if one is seated in a living room or elsewhere, reading, talking or silent, one should stand. On the other hand, if eating at a table, talking over the telephone, playing cards, cooking a meal or taking a bath, standing at attention would be forced and unnatural and therefore should not be done."

Develop Banana Resisting Panama Disease

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 27 (CP)—Experts in Jamaica's department of agriculture have attained success in development of a marketable type of banana which is immune to Panama Disease, long a scourge of the island's banana plantations.

Planting operations with the new type of fruit have been started in various parts of the colony where the production of bananas, with an export value of $10,000,000 has been the mainstay of the agricultural output. Experiments are now being conducted to determine how the fruit will keep in cold storage.

The Gros Michel type, a favorite in foreign markets, has been threatened since 1912 by the Panama Disease, which was introduced into this island from Costa Rica. Men who had worked on banana plantations there brought machettes and boots which they had used on plantations of the Central American Republic. The boots and tools carried spores of the disease and it began to spread throughout the island, wiping out whole fields in the northern part of the colony.

One species of banana was discovered which was immune to the disease, but this was small and unmarketable. The fingers were too short to justify its further development.

By development of hybrids, the agricultural experts succeeded in producing a fruit which is immune to air-borne and soil disease. This type has a finger which is from nine to 10 inches long.

The new variety has only one disadvantage. That is the height of the tree on which it grows. They are higher than the Gros Michel type and are more likely to be blown down in heavy windstorms which often sweep the West Indies.

T. B. Increasing

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 27.—(CP)—Reeve Ben Levert of Tecumseh told the Riverside Citizen's Association last night tuberculosis among unemployed had increased 50 per cent due to under-nourishment.

Levert said Dr. Paul Poisson told the Tecumseh Board of Health tuberculosis had increased 100 per cent in Tecumseh due to malnutrition.

Litvinoff's Successor

Long standing reports that Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet ambassador to the United States would not return were revived upon the disclosure that Constantine Oumansky, charge d'Affaires, would entertain at the Embassy's annual birthday party on Nov. 7. It has been rumored that Troyanovsky is being groomed to succeed Maxim Litvinoff as Soviet Commissar of Foreign Affairs.

Police and Strikers Clash At Shoe Factory

The Humberstone Shoe Company's plant near Port Colborne, Ont., was the scene of a clash between provincial police and strikers when more than 100 employees attempted to pass picket lines during the present strike at the plant. Two Alsike Crops Harvested This Year From Same Field

Two crops of alsike this year from one field on the farm of Herb Macfarlane near Mather's Corners in Otonabee township is a phenomenon of agriculture which is believed to be unique in this county and district.

Norman Andrew of Hall and Andrew, Simcoe street, said he had never heard of any occurrence like it.

"I've heard of alsike growing a second time, but not very often, and I have never heard of the second crop ripening in seed, Mr. Andrew said.

David McIntyre of Otonabee, said he had been threshing twenty years, and his father, the late Fred McIntyre, for thirty years, and in all that time alsike clover was regarded as a one crop grain.

Mr. Macfarlane was threshing buckwheat in the field with Mr. McIntyre in charge of the work yesterday afternoon when the Examiner called to verify the reports of the unusual reproductiveness of a three acre lot of alsike. He said he had cut the first crop in July and paid no more attention to the field. He expected the clover stubble to fade and die as it has always done, halting its work as an annual with the one yield of seed.

Unusual Summer.

But, the summer developed unusual condition. Not only was it about two weeks ahead of the ordinary calendar of the weather, but it provided frequent and ample rain and rapid growth. One day Mr. Macfarlane noticed the alsike was coming up again from the roots, and as it grew vigorously he began wondering if it would reach flower and seed. The warm autumn and the otherwise favorable weather in September and October ripened the seed for a second harvesting. The crop was cut and hauled into the barn, and will be threshed some day when Mr. Macfarlane gets around to that chore.

He and Mr. McIntyre have been speculating about the amount of seed that will be yielded. Mr. McIntyre suggesting that it had all the appearance of turning out about up to the average, Mr. Macfarlane said he could not account for the second flowering other than that the conditions were not only favorable but they were also well timed.

Gooderham Officer Has Dog Set Afire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 27.—Police at Scarboro on Tuesday, acting on information received from local police, arrested Eldon Graham, of Scarboro, and Stanley Aldred of Hamilton, charged with the theft of turkeys in the Fenelon Falls-Cameron district. It was suspected that the fowl were being sold in the city, and the Toronto police found out that one of the arrested men had given a fictitious address and had been supplying fowl to Toronto merchants.

G. B. Rennie, a poineer school teacher of Victoria County, passed away at Ross Hospital on Tuesday, aged eighty-two years. He was principal of the schools at Oakwood and Woodville for a great many years. He is survived by his widow.

Herb Wendt, employed by the Carew Lumber Company, met with a serious accident at the lumber camp on Ball Lake, eight miles east of Bobcaygeon. A branch struck him in the face while he was clearing a trail and a twig penetrated his eye. It is feared that he may lose the sight of the optic.

Constable Duval, of Gooderham, Wednesday swore out a warrant for the arrest of a party for ill treating his dog. It is alleged that the party poured gasoline on the animal and then applied a match. The yelps of the canine attracted the officer, who quickly extinguished the fire.

The Haliburton Branch of the Red Cross Society is considering the erection of a new outpost hospital in that village. The members favored the erection of the new building rather than building an extension to the present one.

W. E. Reesor, mangager of the local Hydro Commission, at the request of the Department of National Defence, submitted the power rates which would become effective at the Arsenal should the plant be opened.

Bridge, Euchre Held By Hastings C.W.L.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 27. — Members of the Catholic Women's League, local branch, held a very successful bridge and euchre in the Parish Hall on Monday when more than ninety attended. The bridge party in the afternoon drew from a wide area, including a party of five ladies from Peterborough. The hall was nicely decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves and flowers.

Mrs. J. V. Gallivan and Mrs. T. A Coughlan were afternoon hostesses for the bridge and Mrs. T. A. Walsh and several assistants took charge at the euchre in the evening. Lunch was served in the afternoon and again following the evening games.

Bridge prize winners were Mrs. J. V. Findly for high score, a pyrex casserole; Mrs. J. V. Fuller, lucky number, a flower vase. The following won prizes at the euchre: Mrs. T. J. Crowley, women's prize, pyrex pie plate; H. G. Fairman, men's prize, a scarf; and Dr. W. N. Campbell, lucky number, box of candy.

Woman Aged With Sciatica

Now Praises Kruschen

When sciatica attacked this woman six years ago, she couldn't move without great pain. Treatment after treatment failed to help her. She tried Kruschen and got quick relief.

"Six years ago, I suffered terribly from sciatica," she writes. "I tried everything, but to no avail. Then I took Kruschen Salts. The first few doses gave quick relief. At the end of a few weeks my sciatica had gone. Now I always begin the day with a pinch of Kruschen in a glass of water. I live a strenuous life, being widowed four years ago, and having a son to keep. I run a boarding-house, rise at 6 a.m., and retire at 11 p.m. I am 52, but everyone says I look 32—thanks to Kruschen Salts."—(Mrs.) F.E.R.

The severe pain which is characteristic of sciatica is often due to needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the sheat of the great sciatic nerve. Two of the ingredient salts in Kruschen dissolve uric acid crystals. Other salts in Kruschen help Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels.—(Advt.).

SARNIA IMPS ARE FIGHTING MAD OVER SATURDAY'S DEFEAT

Injuries Dog Great Team Of Past Years

SARNIA, Oct. 27.—"And how," Coach Art Massucci wanted to know, "will I shake up the team? Take a couple of cracked ribs and replace them by a sprained ankle or a buckled knee?" The worried mentor of the Imperial footballers was being asked about a report that he intended to shake up his team following last Saturday's setback at the hands of Bill Irwin's Peterborough Orfuns.

Saturday's disappointing showing, in the eyes of the coach, was one of those things that overtake any athletic band. It has happened before. And it will happen again, although not likely this year.

Twice before in Sarnia's senior history the team has been caught between the millstones of a tired performance and an inspired foe. St Michael's College defeated them once in Toronto's Ulster Stadium and Sarnia fans still remember that 1931 disaster at the hands of University of Western Ontario here.

Forget Peterborough.

Saturday's game has been filed away in the showcase on the shelf labelled Things Not to Do Again, and the team has been pointed toward Hoddy Foster's somewhat cocky Montreal Nationals for next Saturday. Tuesday's workout was centered around the regular things the team does this late in the season, with a skull practice tossed in for good measure.

Any idea that the Peterborough deflation has subdued the team is speedily dispelled around the club rooms of the club. The players are fighting mad—mad at the critics, mad at the fates that pulled them down and mad to get out again and dispell the memory of last Saturday's game. The Orfun matter will be taken up again on November 12.

Injuries Bob Up.

Injuries, the bane of Sarnia's football during the past few years, are still dogging the Massucci-men. Today the club has two very doubtful starters for the Montreal contest—hard-plunging Bernie Moroz and fast-running Mike Hedgewick. Moroz is still bothered with the knee injury sustained against Montreal here, and Hedgewick has a pulled tendon in his shoulder.

Mike Clawson's knee injury, aggravated when he made a game but futile effort to floor Mike Loucks before he unlimbered his 70-yard drive last Saturday, is coming along fast. He will, it is expected, be ready to take his middle wing position Saturday. Trip Trepanier's cracked ribs, Ralph Burr's battered lip, and Harpo Van-Horne's slightly askew proboscis are all healing rapidly.

Germany has stored part of its huge grain crop in gymnasiums and dance halls.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

WITCHES WILL ZOOM through the air Monday night, grotesque masks will hide youthful faces,s weets will be begged from door to door, and many a gate will be yanked from its ninges—on account of Monday is Hallowe'en. It was so named by Rabbie Burns as the evening preceding All Saints Day, the word "hallowed" meaning to make holy. To keep sacred, or to reverence—though the idea is rather lost in the "divilmint" which usually marks that e'en. "His secret altar touched with hallowed fire," says Milton. While Lincoln at Gettysburg (how we do get around!) orated: "We cannot hallow this ground." At anyrate, ya get the idea, or what's the difference, anyway?

* * * * * *

WHILE churning over thoughts of All Hallow Evening in our thinkpan, it struck us that the local Orfuns would be back from Toronto and their game with Balmy Beaches by Hallowe'en, back home in their orange-and-black outfits which a Mo'real writer dubbed "Hallowe'en costumes." And we wondered if they would recall their outing to Toronto in the nature of a Hallowe'en party. Where masked plays provided much fun and bewilderment, but where players went bobbing for pigskins rather than apples. With passes, not witches, flying through the air—and with yard sticks instead of tanterns measuring the damage done. No false faces worn, but possibly maps disguised a bit by a careless fist in the line. And a black cat crossing one squad's path. It'll be some pumpkins for the other. Yeah, we were just wondering.

* * * * * *

Their Hallowe'en party

OF COURSE, it will all depend on how the game terminates. If Orfuns should punt the battered dope bucket for another loss and beat the Beaches, the black-and-orange-clad crew will regard the Balmy gridiron indeed as "hallowed ground" and will reflect "with reverence" on the expedition. They will feel that the Ponton pack treated 'em well. But should the locals' Sarnia spirit wear off and the experts get a break, with Orfuns having a door slammed in their collective faces, the local lads will consider Halowe'en a frost, their uniforms as untimely and the Beaches as very rude hosts. Oh, well, we'll see what Saturday and Hallowe'en bring forth.

* * * * * *

ORFUNS will have a flock of supporters at their game in Toronto, a big crowd either taking the special train up or motoring. The train gets away at nine bells from the C.P.R. station, hitting Toronto at 10.45. You can return on the midnight or anytime up till Monday eve. Seats for the struggle are on sale at the Playmor Sports store. Whether or not the Irwin outfit knocks off the tough Beaches on their home lot fans can at least bank on a battle from whistle to whistle. Those Orfuns had a daylight drill yesterday and they're going to fight every minute again. Glen (Corrigan) Salter, Beaches' outside wing—who hails from Oshawa—will once more take a terrific ride from the locals and the Petes (after a peaceful joust with Sarnia) expect the rough Balmies to start mixing it in the line where they left off two weeks ago. It'll be a bruising battle.

Yes, Figures Do Lie

FIGURES leave us colder than a polar bear's nose, and we even hate to add up a grocery bill. Our math professor used to toss us a lot of dirty looks in class, and we tossed him a lot, too—when he turned his back! So we don't compile a table of figures on grid games. We couldn't in the last two, anyway, as we were tied up with a running story for Toronto sheets—none of the Toronto papers figuring it was worth while sending down a scribe for the Beaches or Imps' games. But we heartily agree with that famous grid gent, Fielding Yost of Michigan U., when he says: "First downs are just incidental. If you intercept a pass and return it 60 yard, it is as good as five first downs but doesn't show in the records." He thus dismisses the argument that this or that team should have won on its merits 'cause it made the most first downs. Phooey to them and their darn' figures!

* * * * * *

RED BURNETT sounds sore in the Toronto Star. Says of us: "Well, we're pleased to find he can read." And that we ought to get a medal for bravery for picking Orfuns over Sarnia. Adds we sound like a hoss gambler, who talks of his wins but forgets his losses. Whilst Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star writes: "Cec Perdue, who plies a pungent pen for the Peterborough Examiner, takes the experts for a ride in calling Sarnia to win off by themselves. This observer goes under the machine-gun fire of hard-hitting Cec. Being boiled in oil is no new experience for this corner and a bow to the Peterborough writer for a bit of extra steam to the boiling process." We could ask the riddle: Which of these two big-time scribes sounds really big-time in the above? But the answer is too obvious.

New Plays On Display

COACH BAMFORTH admits his P.C.I. seniors are coming along pretty good lately. They're again playing a wide-open, exciting brand of tricky football and may go quite a piece yet. They play the tough Lindsay squad here this Saturday aft at 2.30 in the Exhibition Grounds, and fans shouldn't pass it up. They'll see a dandy grid scrap, and we hope the Garnet and Gray gang can stop the two starry backfielders who make the Scugog entry a potent one. P.C.I. has developed two or three new plays which, if they click, will set a new style for school squads to follow. The junior P.C.I-ers and Lindsay wind up their schedule here the same day at 10.30 in the morning at the Grounds ala Exhibish. It should be a tight fit, too, and we trust the school fans and city followers of rugby will give both games a big play on Saturday.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL won the Alex Kay Trophy and the public school loop soccer title for the year, defeating Central in a close series. Central copped the first of the playoffs by a 2-0 squeak, while King Edward took the next by a 2-0 count. Deciding joust saw the soccer riders grab a 1-0 nod. All credit to Coaches Crawford and Munro ... their two good teams. These same outfits set a record last year when they couldn't declare a winner in seven playoff games—finally calling the whole thing off and being joint champs for the year. The News of the World soccer expert of England said he believed it was a world record for a soccer playoff series being deadlocked. We doubt if even pro grapplers ever had such a prolonged and close series of matches!

GRAB-BAG: Dutch McImoyle has picked himself a tough opponent in Billy Amato, Toronto Greek, for their fight on the mitt card at the Brock Nov. 4th....Prexy O'Neill of the Port Hope ball club says his club would hardly consider entering the C.O.B.L. in '39, as it costs so much and they have a good intermediate loop....Inter-County Loop senior ball teams may hook up next spring in a Michigan-Ontario circuit. Havelock as junior "B" champs and Keene as intermediate "C" titleholders for '38 in O.S.A. competition deserve much credit for being the only softball squads in the east to go through....Ald. Norman Perry, former grid great with the Imperials—he quit playing in 1935—wil run for mayor of Sarnia next year....Ab Box with his fine forward passing and hearty hoofing will be the Orfuns' big problem day after tomorrow....Mike Loucks is getting a raft of writeups in football columns lately as being the All-Canadian find of the year....Lot of folks want to know our choice for Saturday; but it'd be only a grid guess, so what's the difference?....Maybe the crystal ball would clear up for a peek....With Hergewick and Moroz likely out with injuries this week-end, Sarnia may suffer another setback in Montreal....Which clears off the desk for the day.

England Defeats Europe's Best

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(CP Cable)—England proved too strong for an all-star European soccer team yesterday, triumphing 3-0 before a crowd of 45,000 spectators at Arsenal's Highbury ground. The score at halftime was 2-0.

The continental team which included repreesntatives of six countries put up a plucky fight and at times delighted the crowd with polished footwork an clever combination, but the home players had the edge throughout.

W. G. Hall, Tottenham Hotspur inside-right who came into the team in place of J. Robinson of Sheffield Wednesday, opened the scoring for England after 22 minutes. Tommy Lawton, young Evrton centreforward, adding another seven minutes later. L. Goulden, clever West Ham United forward, notched the only tally of the second half.

Call In Coppers

TOKYO, Oct. 27 (CP-Havas). — The Japanese Finance Ministry today called in one-sen copper coins and put aluminum coins in circulation in their stead. This will permit an annual saving of 900 tons of copper, which the army needs.

Ottawa Rugby Fans Swing On Umpires

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (C.P.). — Several players and about 50 supporters of University of Ottawa Juniors attacked Referee-in-Chief Hap Shouldice and Umpire Gerry Boucher here last night following a junior Interscholastic Football League game with Ottawa Glebe Collegiate. Glebe won 8-1.

Boucher, nephew of Frankie Boucher, coach of the New York Rovers hockey team, and Shouldice, also a Bif Four official, were punched about the head in the melee, but neither was seriously injured. They reported the incident to league officials. The attack took place following the final whistle.

Three Members of Montreal Maroons Still Workout Daily on Forum Ice

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—Still flaunt the colors of Montreal Maroons, once the "big red machine" of the National Hockey League.

For, though the Maroon personnel was salvaged by other teams of the N.H.L. the old moraan and white colors still ride around the Forum, their home for more than a decade.

Each day long remnants of the once powerful outfit, which released its league franchise for at least two years because of flimsy gate receipts, go through their pre-season workout. Dave Trottier, Gus Marker and Alan Shields still await sale.

Late last season they talked of Trottier leaving the ice for good. But for the last several days he has turned out on Montrea l ice with Shields, the once 'bad boy" of the league who learned his hockey in Ottawa. They and Gus Marker, the barrel-chested right-winger, are all that are left of Maroons.

Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs has first call on Marker, who used to help form the flashy line of Gracie, Marker and Cain. But Tommy Gorman, the former coach and manager, said today none of the three had been sold so far.

"Trottier is back all right," said Gorman, "and he is for sale along with the other two, collectively or otherwise."

Alberta Jock Is Confident Horse Will Win

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—(CP).—Georgie Woolf, riding son of a riding family that once called the Alberta foothills home, believes Seabiscuit will whip War Adimral when the two greart thoroughbreds meet in their turf classic at Pimlico next Tuesday.

Woolf, who did considerable of his growing-up around Cardston, Alta., will have the mount on Charles S. Howard's 5-year-old son of Hard Tack in his $15,000 1 3-16th mile race with Samuel Riddle's mighty little War Admiral.

"Why, it's a pipe for the 'Biscuit'," said Georgie to-day. "I have a lot of respect for War Admiral, but I know my horse. We will be there in front when the time comes to judge the finish."

Even if Woolf is all wrong in his picture of the finish, at least he is right when he says he knows his horse. George was up on the 'Biscuit' in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap last March and rode the Howard racer to second place back of Stagehand.

At that time Seabiscuit took quite a bumbing around at the start of the race and Woolf was subbing for Red Pollard, the 'Biscuit's regular jockey, who had been injured.

Woolf is one of the best journeymen jockeys on the United States turf and at his peak when the chips are down. He's a money rider from start to finish. But he'll need all his skill in the "Pimlico Special," for clever Charlie Kurtsinger, the "Flying Dutchman," will be up on the Admiral.

Woolf is well aware that the 'Biscuit has a definite lazy streak. He doesn't like to hustle too much in the early stages—and speed from the start will count in this race because the Riddle horse is known for his fast get-away and once in front he has invariably stayed there. But little George has a heavy hand and he doesn't mind laying on the "bat."

Woolf hails from Babb, Montana, a rider for better than 20 of his 21 years. His father rode the western plains around Babb and Cardston, Alta., when he moved the family to Cardston. His mother was a trick rider. And Georgie's two brothers are broncho busters.

When George isn't riding himself he likes to see somebody else ride. He would rather watch a rodeo than eat — and for a jockey who must watch his weight, that's not such a bad idea.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

G. Millen of the Western Clock Office reeled off 744 (301) pins to lead over 200 5-pin league bowlers last night. Miss D. Ackford of the same group topped the ladies scores with 509, including a 217 single. Watson, another Clock maker tipped off 614, and Miss Martin with 466; Miss Webster 447, Miss Hardill 404, and Miss Scott 401, looked high for girls.

From thirty C.G.E. draftsmen, M. Metheral came out in front with an even 700 (312), Fred Hickey 693, J. McCarney 641, and D. Grant 630.

Real pin spilling was the result of the sixteen team Quaker Oats gang. W. Howes was high man with 740. J. Ferguson 667, L. Foster 658, D. Coughlin 627, A. Delpellaro and G. Jefford 620, each; Moore 619, O. Perdue 611, and W. Cross 607.

Fred Stanley was again the top-notcher for the automobile men. He banged off 697 to lead Fitzgerald's 677, Copping 669, Edkins 637, Rayment 631, Clancy 627, Nickson 625, White 626, Gilbert 621, and Worboy 613. In the Motor League the leading Automotive team smothered Pontiacs for another 8 points. Buick downed Chevrolet for 8. Graham and Hudson took 6 each from Dodge and Chrysler teams. Nash took the 2nd Automotive team for 6, and the big surprise was the 6 to 2 drubbing the three-man Olds team handed the usually strong Ford entry.

Hamilton Teams Gain 3 Titles

GUELPH, Oct. 27.—Championship teams in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association have all been declared for 1938, with Hamilton the only city to capture more than one title. The list of champions announced by Secretary Verne McIlwraith tonight follows:

Senior A—Hamilton Proctor and Gambles.
Senior B—Copper Cliff Indians.
Intermediate A — Hamilton Beaches.
Intermediate B. — Owen Sound Trappers.
Intermediate C—Keene.
Junior A—Toronto Grads.
Junior B—Havelock.
Juvenile—Hamilton Taxis.

The executive of the provincial association will meet in Hamilton Saturday afternoon to wind up the season's business.

First Feminine Trophy Nominations

First feminine nominations for this year's Lou Marsh Memorial trophy, awarded each year to Canadian athlete deemed outstanding in the country, were all Ontario golfers. TOP (inset), Miss Ada Mackenzie, medallist in this year's Canadian women's open, and champion of many past seasons. LOWER (inset), Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, who took the Canadian crown at Ottawa by defeating Miss Clary Tiernan, British Curtis Cup player, in the finals. RIGHT, Mrs. E. H. Gooderham, Ontario titleholder. The trophy is awarded each January for the preceding year.

Chuck Conacher Takes It Easy

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27.—Charlie Conacher played his first professional hockey game on Canadian ice here last night in other than a Toronto Maple Leafs' uniform, when Detroit Red Wings defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 5-4 in an overtime exhibition contest under Kiwanis Club auspices.

Conacher, playing on a line with Marty Barry and Hec Kilrea, was on the ice just twice in the first period, and only once in the second session. Then, having had enough of a workout, donned his street clothes and left the game and the rink.

Conacher took things very easy, and did not make a serious scoring bid. He did not attempt to turn on steam in skating, and only blasted two or three shots from long range.

Herbie Lewis, who is to team up with Conacher and Barry, is out of action with a bad knee, Manager Jack Adams said. Eddie Bush, the Guelph junior, who also figured in the training camp spill that caused Doug Young to get a broken ankle, was the culprit who lamed Lewis' knee.

Normie Smith, the Wings' goaler, does not appear to have gotten over his jitters of last winter. He was beaten cleanly tonight by a long shot from centre-ice.

How did Conacher look last night? I don't know, and I don't think anybody else does. He was only doing a bit of skating practice while many of his old Leaflan friends were watching.

Dogs For The Blind

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP).—Detroit members of the Lions service club have started a movement to lead blind persons, Jack Little of the Detroit group told a service club here last night. He said as soon as possible, some of the newly-trained dogs will be sent to Canada.

Little said the dog training course would require four months for each dog and would cost $300 instead of the $500 to $600 cost of dogs training at the seeing-eye school at Morristown, N.S.

Link With Russia

LONDON, Oct. 27 (C.P.-Havas).—A manifesto urging formation of a common peace front with Russia was issued to-day by the Russian Society, Ltd., over the signatures of H. G. Wells, Professor J. B. S. Haldane, noted biologist; Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury; Josiah Wedgwood, Labor member of Parliament, and others.

Full of the old ginger but relieved of an appendix, Bill Stewart, above, coach of Chicago Black Hawks, whom most people have forgotten won the Stanley Cup last spring, is back on the job of getting his men into shape for the coming N.H.L. campaign. He has quite a "miracle man" reputation to uphold, has William.

Hastings' Bowlers Elect Officers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 27. — Frank Pantling was elected president of Hastings Lawn Bowling Club at the annual meeting held in J. L. Doherty's office Wednesday evening. Others nominated for the office were: C. M. Baker, J. L. Doherty, Dr. W. N. Campbell, A. O'Shea. Honorary presidents are: L. O. Breithaupt, M. McCullough, G. D. Gowans, past president.

Frank Daly was elected first vice-president and J. L. Doherty second vice-president. H. G. Fairman was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The executive committee elected were: Dr. N. W. Campbell, C. M. Baker, T. A. Coughlan, A. O'Shea and J. Fleming.

'S. Hatherly's rink composed of S. Spooner, J. M. Baker and J. Ryder, winners of first place in the local loop were presented with a trophy and a prize to each player. W. Wellman's rink, winners of second prize were each presented with flashlights.

The club will join the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association next season. Considerable discussion took place regarding whether they should join or not and it is expected further discussion will take place at a later date. It was decided to hold three tournaments during next season.

Garcia To Give Armstrong Nifty Struggle

By Alan Randal
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (C.P.), — Despite the fact ticket sales have been none too brisk to date, it should be quite a meeting in Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night when Henry Armstrong defends his welterweight championship over the 15-round route against hard-hitting Ceferino Garcia.

Win, lose or draw—of course Henry can't see anything but a win—it should be Armstrong's hardest fight. And, as the record books show, the dusky hammerer has had quite a few battles in the past 15 months or so.

His handlers say he's at his peak after a long rest since winning the lightweight crown from Lou Ambers last August; that he's hitting well and is full of zest. But at the same time Garcia looks in great trim and has long been regarded as possessing heavier artillery than Hurricane Hank.

For instance, there is Garcia's "bolo" punch, allegedly developed while using a bolo knife in the sugar cane and bamboo fields of the Philippines. Even if Ceferino never saw a bolo knife, his punch is a nifty; a sort of high-flung right-handed chop, with his left hook, belongs in the museum of fistic specialties.

Garcia had Barney Ross on the floor three times and though Cef didn't win, he is generally credited with having left the former welter ruler pretty much open at the seams and in none too good shape to withstand Armstrong's successful challenge last May.

Armstrong's 35 knockouts in 39 bouts have come in for considerable publicity, but nobody can overlook the fact Garcia is quite a sleepmaker himself.

Veteran Officer dies

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Capt. Robert J. Clare, 77, for 32 years a member of the Detroit police force, died yesterday after a year's illness. Born at Caledonia, Ont., Capt. Clare came to Michigan when 20 as a lumberjack, and later drove a horse car in Detroit. He was 77.

BANNED THREE YEARS

MELBOURNE—(CP).—The Victorian Soccer Association has banned a Footscray Thistle player from the game until the 1941 season after being found guilty on two charges of ungentlemanly behavior in a recent game.

FOOTBALL ACE SCORED 30 POINTS IN TWO AND HALF GAMES

Fritzie Hanson Galloping Ghost Of Rugby

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27—Fritzie Hanson, the Golden Ghost of Canadian football for three seasons starting with 1935, lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers for most of this season due to a spring training ankle injury, is back, and his touchdowns come just as easy as they ever did.

Hanson tore some tendons in his ankle in an exhibition game with North Dakota State All-Stars last May, and limped all summer. For some time it was feared the here-he-comes-there-he-goes man of Western football would never step on a gridiron again. Early this fall, Hanson himself was the only man in Western Canada who would state definitely that he'd come back. He was right.

During the late summer and fall, Hanson played tennis and walked miles every day, trying to get his ankle in shape. Late in September and into October he ran around Winnipeg's Osborne Stadium, miles every day. His ankle improved rapidly, and Oct. 8 he surprised 5,000 Calgary fans by hopping from the Winnipeg bench into the game against Carl Cronin's Bronks.

Getting The Feel

Hanson was in that game only a few minutes, just long enough to re-familiarize himself with the feel of a competitive gridiron beneath his cleats. Two days later, in Edmonton, he only saw about 15 minutes action in the game with the Elks, but it was in long enough to score a touchdown and kick the convert for another one.

Then came the real test. It was Saturday, Oct. 15, and Winnipeg, injury-riddled, travelled to Regina for a game with Dean Griffing's rough and tough Roughriders. Art Stevenson, star triple threat quarterback, was on the injured list. So was Wayne Sheley, Eddie James, injured in the Edmonton game, was believed by doctors to be finished with football for good. Russ Rebholz was suffering two or three minor injuries, and was far from being in top shape.

So Coach Reg. Threlfall gambled. He gambled heavily on Fritzie Hanson, on the hope that Hanson's first football ability had fully returned. He started Fritzie, and played him 60 minutes.

The result? One so unexpected that Winnipeg fans went wild with mingled joy and surprise at the result. Winnipeg won, 14-6, and Fritzie Hanson, the plague of the prairies, scored both touchdowns. Not only that, but he handled Winnipeg passing duties, and threw four completed passes. Regina fans had been so confident the Roughies would walk over the much-weakened Winnipegs that they stayed away from the game in droves. Only a bare 3,000 saw Hanson hold a rookie backfield together and drive them forward to victory.

Proof Positive

That game stamped the flashy halfback as the Hanson of old, but if any proof was needed the next game provided it. The same two clubs came right back at each other in Winnipeg and in front of the home town crowd, the winged-footed halfback raced to three touchdowns! More than enough to send the Roughriders tumbling to another defeat, this time by a 19-6 count.

So Hanson is away again, and teams left in playoff contention are frantically devising defences against the famed Hanson attack. The possibility that they will succeed in stopping Hanson is remote. They have been trying for years.

In 1935, Hanson's first year in Canadian football, he scored seven touchdowns, including a history-making 75 yard runback of a Hamilton Tiger kick in the Dominion final at Hamilton. That touchdown was the margin that finally sent the Tigers to defeat. In 1936 Hanson scored only four touchdowns, due to a mid-season injury that kept him out of western competiton fully one-half of the season, but he scored 16 points to rank third among scorers in the Western conference.

This year, in about two and a half games of Western conference competition, he has scored over 30 points. What will the total be by mid-December?

Lindsay Teams Here Saturday

Final scheduled appearances of the P.C.I. rugby teams will be in Peterborough this Saturday at Exhibition Grounds. The junior and senior Lindsay school squads will tangle with the Garnet and Gray gangs. It will be the last time the local juniors will be seen in action this fall, Oshawa having elliminated them last week, but the senior P.C.I.-ers have clinched their section of the Lakeshore grouping and hope to stay in the running for some time yet. With the Orfuns playing in Toronto, local grid fans will likely turn out in large numbers to witness the students battling on their home gridiron. Both games should be close and exciting fixtures.

In previous meetings, but one point separated the winners from the losers. They opened the schedule in Lindsay and the Scugog juniors nosed out a win by a single point over Coach David's scrappy young P.C.I. lads. The senior setto saw the Bamforth bunch from here cop the decision by a single point over a tough Lindsay outfit. The games here Saturday at 10.30 and 2.30 should be hard-fought and wide-open affairs, the school players taking more chances on passing, running and tricky plays and generally rolling up higher scores than the Canny O.R.F.U. footballers. The tilts here this weekend deserve a big crowd.

MATCH ABANDONED

LEEDS, England.—Yorkshire and Lancashire met in the final for the county championship of the English Rugby League today but the match was abandoned after 70 minutes with the teams tied 10-10. The contest was cut short owing to the ground being water-logged.

The Hockey Wheel Spins Gradually Faster

It won't be long now before the customers will be gathering in large numbers to watch the hockey greats, pro and amateur, go through their annual paces. Training camps are echoing with the clash of sticks and the thud of pucks...not to mention the moaning of coaches. In the pre-season limelight are Art Jackson, TOP LEFT, left-winger, traded by Boston Bruins to New York Americans, with the option of buying him back at the beginning of the 1939-40 season; Carl Voss, LOWER LEFT, centre with Chicago's champion Black Hawks, who may be out for the season with a recurrence of an old knee injury; Pete Langelle, Centre, former Winnipeg Monarch, who spent last season with Syracuse Chiefs in the International-American League, expected to go over big with Toronto Maple Leafs in the coming campaign; and RIGHT, Leroy Goldsworthy, who went with Jackson from the Bruins to the Amerks. Goldsworthy's was an outright sale.

Conacher Puts New Hope In Wings But Adams Is Uneasy As Injury Jinx Returns To Crew

DETROIT, Oct. 27 (C.P.). — Confidence that slipped when Detroit Red Wings skidded to the depths of the National Hockey League last winter may be restored by the advent of Charlie Conacher from Toronto.

Conacher and confidence may be all the Wings need this season, for the nucleus of the great team that won the league championship and the Stanley Cup in 1935-36 and 1936-37 is still young. Hockey clubs can fall apart fast, but they can be put together again too.

Next week's schedule opening marks a fresh start for Manager Jack Adams, who in the deluge of 1937-38 shifted his lineup, called in reserves from the Pittsburgh farm, grabbed Alex Motter from Boston, administered all sorts of lectures, and still couldn't get the united response he had learned to expect.

There's still a chance that Conacher's health, which forced him to retire the middle of last season, will not hold up. But Adam says the big fellow never has been in better health. Charlie avers he is ready to go.

If Conacher is ready to go—and to maintain the pace he set to lead the league in scoring twice — the prospects of a comeback for him and for the club are bright. On a forward line with Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis, a couple of veteran playmakers, he should receive gobs of those passes that he can drive like no other man in the game.

Franks Out Again.

Jimmy Franks, who came up from Pittsburgh to replace the injured Normie Smith in goal in the Stanley Cup series of 1937, has been after Smith's job again. Harvey Teno, Windsor netminder who has been on several of Canada's best amateur units, has made a bold bid.

The dreadnought defence of the title campaigns is intact, but already the injury jinx that struck it repeatedly last season has returned. Doug Young injured in a leg in the first practice of the fall and has not returned to the ice. Eddie Bush, a youngster from Guelph, Ont., played in his place beside Bucko McDonald in an exhibition last night and may open the schedule there. Scotty Bowman and Ebbie Goodfellow form the other blue-line combination.

Hec Kilrea, veteran forward who can play on either wing, seems destined for a utility role and Pete Bessone, who came from the Michigan-Ontario League to play defence last season, is expected to stick. Johnny Sherf, Michigan University product, is still trying to get a permanent boost from Pittsburgh, and Gus Giesbrecht, another M.-O. League graduate, has impressed in training.

San Diego, Calif.—Kenny Reed 133, San Diego, outpointed Umio Gen, 132, Japan (10).

Leafs' Farm Net Minder Phil Stein Starts Tongues Wagging And Broda Looks To His Job

(By The Canadian Press.)

When people started to talk about the hockey ability of Phil Stein, goalie with Toronto Maple Leafs' Syracuse farm club, Turk Broda sat up and looked to his job as the Leafs' regular net-minder.

Broda let 17 goals go by Tuesday when the Whites defeated the Blues in an intra-club workout at Galt, Ont., but yesterday he scored a shutout when the Blues stopped the Whites 3-0. Still, though, the critics are talking about Stein's great showing in every practice.

Sylvanus Apps, the Leafs' star centre, was guest of honor with his bride of a few months at a reception tendered last night by the Friendship Class of the Baptist Church in Apps home town, Paris. And darned if Syl didn't show up with a front tooth missing and his lower lip cup by somebody's hockey stick.

Toronto's search for a right wingman may lead to Gus Marker of the defunct Montreal Maroons. Tommy Gorman, who managed the Maroons, says the Leafs have first call on Marker, who still has a lot of hockey left in him and is skating every day at Montreal. Allan Shields and Dave Trottier of the big Red team are still on the market, too, Gorman said.

Nine of Montreal Canadiens' candidates were turned over to their International - American League farm at New Haven last night. They were Goalie Paul Gauthier; Defencemen Des Smith, Armand Raymond and Wilf Hoch; and Forwards Don Willson, Bill Summerhill, Gus Mancuso, George Brown and Marcel Tremblay, an acquisition from Flin Flon, Man. The Eagles will get another Canadien cast-off, likely either Louis Trudel or Armand Mondou.

Lawn Bowlers Are Contacted

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club has received a letter from a member of the South African team of lawn bowlers which toured Canada—stopping for a visit in Peterborough—a year ago. On the letterhead is a picture of two hands clasped in a friendly gesture, and the words printed: "Hello Canada! South Africa Calling." The letter, signed by Lillian Sharman, follows:

"Dear Sir or Madam: Greetings and kind thoughts. It is now just over a year since the South African team of lawn bowlers finished their ever - to - be - remembered tour through Canada. A truly wonderful epidsode in the lives of the 42 South Africans, who were privileged to participate in that outstanding event—the memory of which will linger while memory lasts. 'And when we are too old to roam, that tour will live in our hearts.'

"How eagerly we look forward to letters that come from time to time, written by many friends we made during our three months tour in Canada. How grateful we feel when requests come from some of the younger people, asking us to find for them pen friends in South Africa.

(Could we not, with very little effort, form a Pen Friend Club between young South Africans and young Canadians, and thereby help to 'Strengthen the Bonds of Empire,' or as we in South Africa say the British Commonwealth of Nations?

For a Contact

"With that idea in view, may I ask that you bring this matter before your committees (ladies and gentlemen) and also any young people's organizations which may be interested. All that is necessary is to send to Mrs. F. A. Sharman, 191 Commissioner Street, Johannasburg, South Africa, the names, ages, addresses and hobbies or subjects most interesting to the respective writers. Postage to South Africa is three cents per half ounce. On hearing the suggestion finds favor, steps will be taken to put the idea into practise on this side. Having mentioned the subject to many of our friends in South Africa, we feel sure that with your co-operation the plan will materialize and prove mutually enjoyable.

"It would be most satisfactory if it could be arranged that the young people interested in the scheme make contact by Christmas. Since our return, I have had the pleasure of addressing a number of meetings on Our Tour Through Canada. When telling of the wonderful happenings, one note sounds above all others. Again and again I imagine I hear the strains of your soul-inspiring 'O Canada.' Copies of this letter will be sent to all the lawn bowling clubs and others who entertained so royally the members and accompanying ladies of the South African Springbok Team of Lawn Bowlers. Awaiting your reply with pleasurable anticipation, etc."

Paris Relieved Seeks End Of War Thoughts

PARIS, Oct. 27—(CP)—After the "armistice" signed at Munich by the "big four" as Chamberlain, Daladier, Hitler and Mussolini are familiarly referred to, Paris rapidly regained its normal aspect.

Though there was no "declaration" the people had been living war days—a war of nerves, and when the Munich agreement was announced Paris was engulfed in a wave of relief and delirious joy similar to that of 20 years ago—Nov. 11, 1918.

"It's over—it's finished! Vive la Paix!" screamed a million frenzied Parisians as they welcomed Daladier at the le Bourget airport and along the avenues leading to the war ministry. People cried and laughed and sang—the car of the premier filled with bouquets, Daladier (former rugby player) himself catching several tossed from windows.

Handkerchiefs, hats, gloves filled the air and they broke into the stirring "Marseillaise." More thousands watched in silence as the premier rekindled the flame above the tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arch of Triumph.

Wanted Boys Home

The message of Mr. Chamberlain that he considers the possibilities of war to be eliminated at least in "our time" was seized upon avidly and everybody's question is, "when will the boys be demobilized?"

"Not until the Sudeten problem is solved, evacuation and German occupation is completed peacefully," warned many political observers and newspapers writers, afraid of being caught in a false security. But the crowd paid no heed, they wanted the boys home.

The work of preparing the passive defence of the city was suspended. "What are they doing?" some round-eyed children asked your correspondent in the Park Montsouris during the crisis as they watched workmen digging trenches in the beautiful green lawns the youngsters were never even allowed to play upon.

Then the message of Munich and the same workmen refilled the trenches to the disappointment of the small spectators who rather fancied the idea of hiding in them. Streets are again brilliantly lighted at night after the pallid gloom of the blue "security" lighting. No need either for the 73 sirens in the centre of the city; 80 in the suburbs and 300 special police sirens ready to sound the alarm.

People who had begun to paste strips of heavy paper like bars across the windows to keep the panes from shattering in case of explosions (following instructions for protection given by the police) scraped them off again.

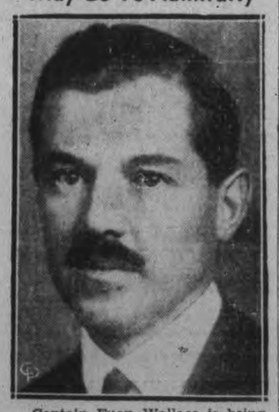
"The money this has cost will add up into millions," grumbled one man who couldn't afford to, but sent his family back into the country. "But anything is better than war," he finished, brightening.

War Talk Unpopular

Most unpopular man in town is he who dares to suggest that perhaps we are a little premature in our enthusiasm. His voice is drowned out by the cries of the majority who are so anxious to have finished with war and militarism that they clutch wildly at the slightest hope.

Just the same there are those like Ernest Dimnet, celebrated writer who says: "The whole world is so engrossed by the vision of peace, of no war that it is in danger of overlooking the great fact that has only been avoided by the sacrifice of justice . . . under duress and because they are a brave, proud and ancient nation the Czechs have listened to the supplication of a terrified world (terrified by force) —they are the real heroes in this tragedy. . . . The world, relieved of its terror by their self-secrifice, owes to them an asknowledgement which should be world wide."

May Go To Admiralty



Captain Euan Wallace is being mentioned in London parliamentary circles as a possible successor to Alfred Duff Cooper, former first lord of the admiralty who resigned in disagreement with Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy.

As Canadian Schooner Won Third Race

Held after many postponements, the third race in the series between the champion fishing schooner Bluenose, out of Nova Scotia, and the Gertrude L. Thebaud wound up at the finish line with the Bluenose well in front of the American challenger, ABOVE, to make the score 2-1 in favor of the Canadian schooner. The Gertrude L. Thebaud, however, took the next race to even the score.

High Power Bomb Not Gas Or Fire Held London's Main Danger

LONDON, Oct. 27—(CP)—Construction of a vast system of underground tunnels in which the population of Britain's large cities could take shelter from air raids is suggested by Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, the distinguished scientist, in a book entitled "ARP."

Professor Haldane criticizes many aspects of the Government's air raid precaution schemes, popularly known as ARP. He asserts the greatest damage in war-time would be caused by high explosive bombs, not by gas or incendiary bombs.

The scientist-author, a leftist himself in politics, approaches the problem from an unbiased viewpoint. He writes after personal experience of bombing raids in government Spain.

The underground tunnel system would cost approximately £400,000,000 ($1,920,000,000) Professor Haldane estimates. In London alone, expenditure of £100,000,000 ($480,000,000) would be necessary.

In two years sufficient tunnels could be built to accommodate London's entire population, he believes. He proposes brick-lined tunnels, 60 feet below ground level, with entrances not more than 1,000 yards apart.

"You could get 100,000 skilled miners for the work at a day's notice though it would take some weeks to get them fit for hard work," he declares. "Ultimately we shall aim at a system of completely bomb-proof shelters for every town in England and Wales, and most of those in Scotland, with evacuation as an alternative in special cases."

Haldane has some sharp criticism of steps taken already against the air raid danger. "The provision of anti-aircraft guns is of the utmost importance to Britain," he asserts. "This provision has been grossly neglected."

He goes on to declare "I think it probable that if, as I believe, high explosive bombs are the principal danger, the entire air-raid precaution schemes so far adopted are rather worse than useless."

In addition to a long-range plan of tunnel-building, the author suggests immediate construction of trenches in parks and open places as partial shelter. Immediate arrangements also should be made for evactuation and billeting of school children. The children's camps would be provided with bomb-proof shelters.

Plans Fall Short

Professor Haldane commends the government's anti-gas measures as far as they go but finds them inadequate. He calls for instruction of the full population in the use of gas masks. He believes the civilian respirator can give full protection to the eyes and lungs against any gas or vapor which can be used by the enemy, unles sa bomb bursts within a few yards of a man in the open or in the same room with him. But he objects to the policy of storing gas masks until an emergency arrives, because issuing them to the public would constitute an insoluble problem.

He has little use for the "home-made" gas-proof room, as suggested by the authorites. "It may reduce the risk of death to those in it by five or ten per cent, but it is hopelessly inadequate, he contends. "And the recommendations are dangerous because they will give many people a wholly false sense of security. The majority of London basements would be death traps."

New Cabinet List Shown To King?

LONDON, Oct. 27—(AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain drove to Buckingham Palace for an audience with the King to-day following a Cabinet meeting which made a thorough survey of Great Britain's vital defence problems.

A source, which usually is well-informed said the Prime Minister took with him a list of new Cabinet ministers for the King's approval. A shake-up in the Cabinet had been expected since the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper as First Lord of the Admiralty and the death of Lord Stanley, Dominions Secretary.

There had been hints Mr. Chamberlain would create two new ministers to facilitate the rearmament drive launched after the four-Power Munich conference and re-shuffle the Cabinet generally. Ministries of Supplies and National Service have been mentioned as the new ones being considered.

Two Store Raids

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 27 (C.P.). — Two burglaries in this district last night were reported by Provincial Police here. General store of George Coulter, 10 miles north of St. Thomas, was robbed of between $150 and $200 worth of goods.

Drug store of A. E. Roberts at Dutton was robbed of about $1,000 to $1,200 worth of merchandise and $30 cash.

Hunt Aged Man

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP)—A search embracing Ontario and Quebec was underway today as a result of the disappearance Saturday of James Watkins, 72, father of Frederick Watkins, prominent contractor here.

Mr. Watkins believes his father may be en route to Montreal where a daughter resides.

Windsor's Wife Tops 10 Best 1938 Dressers

PARIS, Oct. 27 (CP)—The Duchess of Windsor tops the list of the 10 best-dressed women of 1938 selected by dressmakers here. The American - born Duchess, whose every fashion facet has been chronicled, still is outstandingly well dressed, experts here have decided.

Four continents, seven countries, are covered in this poll of elegance. Contrasts are striking. There is Princess Karam of Kapurthala, wife of the son of one of the rich potentates of India. There is Mademoiselle Eve Curie, daughter of the woman who struggled through poverty to the goal of one of the world's greatest discoveries—radium. The notion that youth and clothes sophistication are things apart, is rudely shattered in this poll, too.

Here are the selections of the Paris experts:—

The Duchess of Windsor, American-born.

The Duchess of Leeds, Serbian wife of British peer.

Mme. Antenor Patino, Spanish wife of Bolivian Minister to London.

Princess Karam of Kapurthala, wife of an Indian noble.

Mme. Pedro Eyzaguire, French wife of a member of the Chilean legation to Paris.

Mme. Lopez-Wellshaw, Chilian, living in Paris.

Mrs. Charles Sweeney, wife of the English golfer.

Mrs. Armstrong Taylor, American, the former Audry (Chico) Kilvert.

Mlle. Eve Curie, daughter of the discoverers of radium.

Lady Daphne Straight, daughter of Earl and Countess of Winchelsea.

Variety of Tastes

The Duchess of Windsor wears suave dark clothes and a variety of jewels of unusual design. Recently she has been wearing two very large, jewelled arabesque clips which virtually cover the lapels of her coat or jacket.

The Duchess of Leeds wears rich furs and jewels to accent her clothes. Madame Antenor Patino represents Spanish beauty on the list. She is very fond of color and shows a preference for clothes of the Spanish style.

The Princess Karam not only is one of the youngest but also is one of the most beautiful on the list. In Europe she wears European dress, but on her return to India, assumes native costume. She wears fabulous family jewels reset by a Parisian jeweler and has been known to change the color of her nail polish four times a day so it will harmonize with the heel of a slipper or the rose in her hair.

Madame Pedro Eyzaguire is a chic young French woman. She likes slim evening frocks topped by little jackets and small amusing hats. Madame Lopez-Willshaw, a Chilian, prefers the wide-skirted Empress Eugenie type of evening clothes, enhanced by dazzling jewels.

The British representation is led by Mrs. Charles Sweeney, wife of the golfer, whose beauty caused a stir when she made her debut in London several years ago. Conservative distinguished clothes and furs lead in her wardrobe. Mlle. Curie dresses in "almost severe" clothes.

Lady Daphne Straight, English beauty and daughter of the Earl and Countess of Winchelsea, completes the list. She likes simple, slim clothes.

India purchased over 2,000,000 American flashlight batteries in a recent month.

Maryland Vote On 48-Hour License Wait Marrying Parsons In Boom, Fear Worst

Elkton, Md., Oct. 27 (AP). MARRYING PARSONS in Elkton, as famous for its hasty marriages as Reno is for quick divorces, are working in shifts today but deep gloom pervades this mecca for romantics.

Maryland voters will be asked to decide Nov. 8 if the state is to have a lapse of 48 hours between licence and marriage. Ministers, owners of tourist houses, hotels, restaurants and marriage solicitors who pay $100 each to the city for permission to ask passing autoists "Wanna get married?" fear the end of a quarter century of profit from the marriage industry.

The referendum comes when business is doubling here because of laws passed by New York and New Jersey requiring examination for syphilis. Last month 2,234 licences were issued in this town of 3,600, as compared with 1,010 in September of 1937.

Approval of the law will affect particularly the local taxicab company whose chief interest is marriage.

Three Provinces Would Cut Federal Power

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (CP)—Unanimous approval of the provinces is essential to any change in the basis of Confederation, in the view of the governments of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick.

In three vigorous cases for limitation and even decentralization of the powers of the Dominion government, those provinces made their positions amply clear before the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations in its three final provincial hearings.

All three adhered to the "compact theory" of Confederation, claiming it had been brought about by agreement of the provinces which were themselves autonomous states at the time—making necessary the agreement of all "contracting" parties to any change in that "compact."

While Ontario talked bluntly of provincial rights and the "threat" of dictatorship from centralization—to which view Quebec subscribed—Quebec resentfully denied the right of the Dominion through the commission to "investigate" provincial finances. New Brunswick insisted the provinces had been before Confederation, and still were, independent, sovereign nations which had created the Dominion merely as an agency for carrying out certain services common to all, without altering the status of the provinces.

Quebec and Ontario governments both sharply attacked the manner of the appointment of this fact-finding commission, contending it should have been appointed by parliament instead of by cabinet—and then they submitted the subject matter was to vital to assign to a commission, but should have been dealt with directly by Dominion-provincial conference.

Conference Planned

It was pointed out by the commission chairman that the plan of procedure as originally announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King provided for such a conference to discuss the situation, on the basis of the commission's report.

As to the claim of provincial sovereignty at the time of Confederation, Commissioner John W. Dafoe suggested the provinces were little more than colonies in 1867, and cited in proof a letter from the colonial secretary in 1864 forbidding the provinces even to meet together.

Ontario's Premier Mitchell Hepburn presented his government's views in a brusque, biting statement while Premier Maurice Duplessis engaged Emery Beaulieu, a Montreal lawyer, to read the Quebec government's declaration of non-co-operation to the commission.

New Brunswick, taking the most extreme constitutional position, had mild, good-humored W. P. Jones outline its views.

Premier Hepburn vividly pictured the necessity of decentralizing government functions in Canada if freedom was to prevail. If more power, such as control of the news services, were placed in the central government which "has already departed from the well-thumbed practices of parliamentary institutions," one had only to look across the Atlantic to see the destiny of the Canadian people, he claimed.

While a somewhat equalized standard of living and social services had been held the right of Canadian citizenship by several provinces, Premier Hepburn felt such equality impossible. Conditions varied so widely it was better for the provinces to administer social services themselves—financed by broader provincial taxing powers, including prior right to income taxation, he submitted. "The provinces are fiscal entities; and governments, like individuals, must learn to manage within their means," he advised.

The Ontario premier devoted much attention to submissions of Saskatchewan and Manitoba governments, hinting they had had advance information of the commission's appointment which he said he only learned of through the newspapers. Hon. Stuart Garson, Manitoba treasurer, next day recalled the prime minister had announced in the House of Commons such a commission would be appointed six months before its members were actually named.

Blamed Prairies

Mr. Hepburn aroused controversy by blaming the prairies for their own and others' misfortunes, by over-production of wheat and crop specialization. The fact one-third of western farmers were born outside Canada, the British Empire or the United States was also advanced as a relevant factor.

He produced statistics to disprove suggestions of "eastern industrial exploitation." He would "almost forgive" appointment of the commission by order-in-council if as a result of its work the economic relations of the nine provinces could be "measurably determined," he said. The Ontario statement had been prepared with the aid of W. H. Moore, member of parliament for Ontario county and Prof. K. W. Taylor of McMaster University.

The Quebec government simply refused to recognize the commission's "authority" to look into provincial finances. The provinces were "sovereign in their own field of action and in no way subject to federal control," in its opinion. To recognize the commission's jurisdiction would be acknowledgment that the federal government was supreme over the provincial governments, whereas they were in fact "self-governing political entities."

That province saw in the commission's report a possible instrument to be used by the Dominion government for further centralization of powers.

"The centralization which seems to be desired by those who are hostile to provincial rights is a national and social evil," declared the Quebec statement. "Centralization of powers is principally found in the so-called totalitarian states."

The statement thanked Premier Hepburn in several instances for declarations he had made which had the full support of the Quebec government and proclaimed Quebec's readiness to co-operate in "all measures of general interest not incompatible with provincial rights."

New Brunswick felt much of the difficulty over new social services could be overcome if they were financed in the same way as old age and blind pensions. Without constitutional change, the provinces there had agreed to a proposition, the Dominion contributing without encroaching on provincial rights while assured its money was spent as authorized.

Urges Higher Grants

In any case, New Brunswick doubted that Dominion administration of services would be more efficient than provincial from studying Dominion records.

It advocated generally increased allowances to the provinces, on a basis of fiscal need, with special grants-in-aid for social services provincially administered.

It emphasized New Brunswick was not proposing a redistribution of the national wealth and was not appearing as a bankrupt, but it contended its citizens were entitled to the same social services as Canadians in other parts of the country. At present they lacked many of the services enjoyed elsewhere, education, for instance, being so badly off the province had the highest illiteracy rate in the Dominion.

New Brunswick advocated provincial control of income and sales taxes and Dominion collection of succession duties. It suggested the Dominion should assume responsibility for health services.

The government stressed its claim that development of Saint John and Halifax as national seaports had been part of the Confederation agreement, just as construction of the Intercolonial Railway was. It insisted the full terms of the agreement should be carried out.

The Law Takes To Scooters In Experiment

Patrolmen of Inglewood, Calif., won't get sore feet pounding the pavement if an experiment now being tried out in that city proves successful. Police are being equipped with scooters to take over various beats in the downtown section. The tiny motor scooters can cruise at thirty miles an hour and get 130 miles on a gallon of gas. Not only do they save wear and tear on the feet of the patrolmen, but make for efficiency in directing and controlling traffic, according to Inglewood police officials.

Fight Against Sawfly Ends For 1938

FREDERICTON, Oct. 27 (CP). — Dominion entomologists have concluded their 1938 campaign against the destructive European spruce sawfly.

Since late spring more than 60,000,000 microplectron, or sawfly parasites have been distributed in New Brunswick to battle the plague of pests sweeping south from ravaged forests of Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula.

Bred at the Dominion parasite laboratory at Belleville, Ont., the microplectron were liberated throughout New Brunswick's spruce stands by entomogolists of the local Dominion entomological laboratory, provincial forest service employees, game wardens and employees of companies in the forest products industry.

Although the number of parasites to be used in this year's campaign was set originally at 40,000,000 the Belleville laboratory was able to propagate 20,000,00 more. About 25,000,000 were freed during the late spring and early summer. In the last two weeks of August some 15,00,000 were distributed.

The last distribution comprised a new species of parasite from Japan. Small shipments of eight other species have been received from laboratories in Europe. "We are trying every species which shows any promise," said R. E. Belch, entomologist in charge of the laboratory here and leader of the fight against the sawfly.

He was unable to explain the plan of next year's campaign. Parasite distribution will continue, with the method depending upon analysis of this summer's work.

The sawfly was less numerous in many parts of northern New Brunswick this year than last, Balch reported. This was due to a high percentage of dormancy among the flies. But the pest increased its numbers in southern New Brunswick.

"Considerable time" must pass before the parasites spread to a uniform density of population in spruce stands of the province, the entomologist said.

After a survey of sawfly infestation on Gaspe Peninsula, L. J. M. Simpson, assistant entomologist here, reported the condition was no worse this year than last. Defoliation had been heavy north of Rimouski but generally the number of flies appeared less. Lighter infestation was attributed to emergence of fewer adult flies from the pupa stage.

Many millions of sawfly parasites were released in Gaspe district this year and last.

Italian Sets Altitude Record

Col. Mario Pezzi, Italian army aviator pictured wearing a high-altitude flying suit, has established a new world's record for airplanes, achieving a height of 56,017 feet. He exceeded his own previous record, made in 1937, by 4,656 feet. His ship was a single-engined Caproni with air-conditioned and hermetically sealed cockpit.

Keep Prisoners Ever In Sight

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 27—(CP)—Plansare complete for construction of a Pennsylvania "Alcatraz," a unique prison where inmates will live—like gold fish—under constant but secret surveillance of guards.

Most outstanding among prison design changes will be a network of secret observation tiers or "cat-walks," spreading like a great spider web over all the prison buildings and cell ranges. From these guards will see the inmates at all times.

Major Henry Hornbostel, internationally known architect who designed the prison, said the plan of secret observation tiers never before has been tried in a prison. He described the system as resembling "cat-walks" used in post offices for protection against holdups.

The prison, to be built at Mt. Gretna, near Harrisburg, will be unique in that its exteriors will have no angular surfaces. Three circular inter-connected walls will surround each of the main sections—the cell blocks, recreation grounds and the workshops.

Meters Accepted

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 27 (CP)—Parking meters have been well received by the public here, City Manager C. S. Johnson said today commenting on the 750 meters installed Monday. Revenue from the machines has been light, Johnson said, as many persons park their cars out of the territory policed by the new meters.

The revenue from the machines will be used to develop the traffic safety program and purchase more parking meters.

New Zealand's Pension Scale Gradual

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 27. — (CP).—With one eye on developments in Europe the British Dominion of New Zealand is facing a general election Oct. 15 and digesting the Labor government's Social Security Bill, passed by both houses of parliament and providing advanced legislation for pensions and free medical service.

Gradual introduction of universal superannuation without a means test, eventually replacing the "age limit," or contributory old age pension is considered here the most important proposal.

It is proposed as from April 1, 1940, to pay all citizens over the age of 65years £10 ($39) a year, this sum to be increased each year until the superannuataion reaches £78 (304) annually and entirely supersedes age benefit of the same amount.

The only qualifications will be in regard to residence and payment of contributions. Applicants who are in New Zealand on March 15, 1939, must have been in the country for ten years immediately prior to the application. Ultimately, all persons aged 60 years, if fully qualified, will receive £1 10s ($5.85) a week.

The income qualification provided for unmarried persons is that the basic rate of benefit shall be reducible y £1 ($3.90) for every £1 of other income exceeding £52 a year. That is, the full rate of benefit may be received while the applicant also has £1 aweek from elsewhere, making a total of £2 10s a week. For married couples, both of whom are qualified, the joint benefits will be reduced by £1 for every £ of the total, other than income, received by the married couple in excess of £52 a year.

What People Pay.

A special account in the Public Account, to be called the Social Security Fund, will be established, and into it will be paid the proceeds of the social security contributions and all other moneys that may be appropriated by Parliament for the purpose. Out of the Social Security Fund will be paid without further appropriation all monetary benefits other than emergency benefits.

The social security contribution will consist of: (a) Registration fee; (b) a charge on salaries, wages, and other income. Every person of the age of 16 years or over will be required to pay. The registration fee will be five shillinsg a year, payable yearly, for all women and for all persons under the age of 20, and £1 ($3.90) a year in all other cases. The first instalment of the fee will be payable on May 1, 1939.

The direct charge to the wage earner under the Social Security Bill —including both superannuation and free medical service—will be at the rate of one shilling in the pound (about five cents in the dollar) on all salaries, wages, and other income, to be supplemented on a pound for pound basis out of general government funds.

Actuaries have estimated the Social Security Bill will entail an expenditure of £17,850,000 ($69,615,000) annually, at the start, increasing to £25,000,000 ($97,500,000) annually in 30 years.

Farmers Opposed.

Opposition to the Social Security scheme is expressed in an offilial statement issued by the New Zealand Farmers' Union, which says the proposals are in no sense superannuation, but are a very much extended system of pensions. It says the scheme will increase consumption but will tend to decrease production, causing a strain on the resources of the Dominion.

The New Zealand branch of the British Medical Association opposes the Government's health insurance (free practitioner) scheme on the ground that the standard of practice would fall. Under such a scheme, the association considers, the personal relationship between doctor and patient would be adversely affected, ad the incentive for doctors to equip themselves thoroughly will be diminished.

Secretly Married

The Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, 61, Dean of Canterbury, was secretly married to Miss Nowell Edwards, 31, it was revealed in London recently. The dean accompanied Miss Edwards to Spain last August to study the problem of moving orphaned children to safety.

BEAUTY AND EASE OF OPERATION ARE EMPHASIZED

In a body entirely re-styled along striking yet distinguished lines, the 1939 McLaughlin-Buick offers many improvements, for the safety and convenience of the motorist. Illustrated above is the sedan of the 44 Series, with 120-inch wheelbase. Lower left shows the new gearshifting device on the steering column; while at the lower right is the illuminated direction indicator on the rear of the car, which warns following traffic when the driver is about to make a turn. An improved valve-in-head eight cylinder engine, scientific fuel conditioning, combination starting pedal and "fatigue-free" accelerator are other new features.

City Of Paris Places Trust In Sand Against Enemy Bomb Raids

PARIS, Oct. 27—(CP).—As the war clouds darkened the French capital, sand distributors made the rounds. Enough was allotted to lay a three-quarter inch blanket over the whole city.

For several years past every citizen has received his instructions regularly from the police department—"What to do in case of an air attack." In the apartment blocks it is posted in the entrance beside the concierge's room. In private families it is in the Bible or lost in the desk or among the recipes in the kitchen drawer.

Distribution of sand has been threatened several times—but this time hundreds of thousands of pounds have been ladled out in double-quick time. A pile is left in front of each house or in the courtyard of each apartment block and dwellers are instructed to have a shovel and pail on hand. Further instructions will be issued as to when to put it in place.

"For," reads the pamphlet, "a bed of sand at least 20 centimetres deep placed on the floor of the top storey rooms will serve to catch the bombs and stop them from exploding, or if they are fire-bombs will protect the house from being burned."

"All sixth-storey rooms must be cleared at once," it continues. Usually these rooms serve as bedrooms for maids, or as storerooms for the collection of odds and ends of furniture and clothing every family puts away to use "sometime in the future."

Jokes About It

The Parisian, however serious the situation he faces, never quite loses his sense of humor. Says Clement Vautol in a Paris daily, "Imagine that one of the bombers destined to 'liberate' the Sudeten should find itself by mistake, over Paris. We can feel quite tranquil. The sirens (blown every Thursday to keep them in order) function marvellously and each of us has his quarter of sand. If a bomb explodes on the house—you know, one of those bombs which have already fallen on Shanghai and elsewhere and have proven what they can do—all we have to do is to climb to the sixth floor as quickly as possible (happy those who have an elevator) and with a spade and pail throw sand on the fire and in no time at all the danger will be over. Perhaps there will remain enough sand for the second raid."

At the same time if the instructions don't arrive quickly there won't be any sand left in the district to carry upstairs. All the children of the quarter have fallen upon the sandpiles with enthusiasm, undoubtedly convinced that vacation isn't over and they haven't left the seaside after all.

At the Paris East Station where special trains had been leaving at all hours for the "East" and the Line Maginot while families and friends press around the young men and "reservists" who have been called up to guarantee the security of France. "It doesn't take much stretch of the imagination to believe oneself back in the days of the Great War," was an overheard comment.

A young man rushed out on the platform with his valise in one hand and overcoat in the other and a flock of relatives racing behind him. "Zut, I've missed the vacation train," he exclaimed, mopping his perspiring face and watched the train move out of the station.

The crowd broke into a laugh which relieved the feeling of tension. The young man looking rather pleased, picked up his valise and turned to go home again. However, at that moment a railway employee stepped up and said to him: "Not so fast, young man, the service has been doubled and another leaves in 10 minutes."

Springbrook Lodge Officers Installed

In a splendid address Dr. Beatty admonished the members present to be true to the principles of Oddfellowship. Short addresses were also given by other members of the team and by members of Stirling Lodge who were present.

A bountiful lunch was provided by the Springbrook Lodge, after partaking of which a musical program was furnished by Bros. Colin Ross and William Hawthorne of Madoc.

Who Is Wilson? —Aide To Chamberlain

LONDON, Oct. 21—(CP).—In days of apoplectic European diplomacy a mild little man, immaculately dressed, sat beside Neville Chamberlain in the fateful councils of the British cabinet and at times flew to Germany as the Prime Minister's personal emissary to Adolf Hitler.

The role of Sir Horace Wilson has been somewhat mysterious since he was drafted two years ago "for personal service to the Prime Minister."

Political circles say that "personal service" now includes foreign affairs, and that the "mysterious H. J." is Chamberlain's most influential adviser and "personal brain trust." And it's common talk that the blue-eyed, round-shouldered little man of 56 has taken a hand in the Central European crises.

Sir Horace entered the civil service in 1903 at $400 a year. He was not a university man and apparently would probably stay in the "second division" all his life.

But he was noticed by a former industrial commissioner who got him a place in the new labor ministry in 1916. Wilson made a record as a strike mediator.

Shortly after the close of the war, an important strike drew comment from Prime Minister Lloyd-George: "What happened to our strike-breaker?" the prime minister inquired.

Told that Wilson wasn't working on strikes, Lloyd George changed things. In 1921, Wilson became permanent secretary of the ministry. In 1924 he was knighted.

He became known as the mildest, most patient labor mediator in history. Both workers and employers liked him. When the depression came, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald made him chief industrial adviser.

Sir Horace then sweated through problems of floundering industries; got them more capital if he felt them to be deserving. He moved colonies of workers to more prosperous towns.

Then Neville Chamberlain brought Sir Horace to No. 10 Downing street, the middle of the Empire. When Mr. Chamberlain became Prime Minister, Sir Horace was at his right hand.

Borden Cabinet Took No Stands Upon Any Party Issue

By R. K. Carnegie
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)
(Copyright by The Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 27 (CP)—Experience in the war-born Union government convinced the late Sir Robert Borden of the artificial character of lines dividing Canadian Liberals and Conservatives.

In the forefront of party battles for almost a quarter of a century Sir Robert fought on the Conservative side in the Manitoba school question, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway issue, reciprocity and the fierce debates over naval contributions to Britain. Then, in the strain and stress of war, he organized a coalition cabinet and sat down in council with Liberals to plan Canada's supreme effort.

A decade later, from the calm of retirement, he wrote in his memoirs, to be published Nov. 1 by the Macmillan Company of Canada, that his Union cabinet never divided on party lines. The ministers differed on many questions but always there were Liberals and Conservatives on each side. He added:—

"Perhaps the artificial character of party division in Canada was never better exemplified than in my experience of the characteristics which I encountered among the members of the new government. In the new cabinet the most finely-crusted Tories of the old type were two men who had always called themselves Liberals and who had been prominent members of the Liberal party. I, who had been classed as an ultra-Tory frequently found myself more in agreement with (Hon. N. W.) Rowell and (Hon. T. A. Crerar, the more advanced among the Liberal element than with my former colleagues."

Borden took frequent occasion in his memoirs to express his gratefulness for the sturdy loyalty which his Liberal and Conservative colleagues gave his leadership at that time.

Steps to Coalition

The formation of a Union government in October, 1917, will probably be regarded by historians as the greatest of Borden's political achievements. Sir Robert himself regarded it as one of his greatest efforts.

For more than a year the project of a coalition government had been mooted in Canada, Sir Robert, who died June 10, 1937, wrote: "Many of the suggestions took little account of the immense difficulties that confront a party leader undertaking to achieve such a consummation. I had always held and I more than once expressed the view that such a coalition could never be created until conditions made it practically inevitable."

Throughout union negotiations which extended from late in July to well into October, Borden had a constant appreciation of the danger that in bringing Liberals into his cabinet he might destroy the Conservatives who had given him loyal support ever since he became prime minister.

In his memoirs Borden outlined in great detail the steps that finally resulted in Union government being formed. He wrote: "After I had announced the policy of compulsory military service the question of coalition was discussed on many occasions with my colleagues and as was most natural, I encountered strong, even vehement, divergence of opinion....

"On Thursday May 24, 1917, there was a final discussion in council. Several of my colleagues strongly favored it while others were violently opposed." Finally he told them they had made him sufficiently acquainted with their views, "that the duty of decision rested with me and that I would subsequently make them acquainted with my conclusion."

The next day he had an interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "I proposed that a coalition should be formed in which his party and my own should be represented by equal number of members outside the office of prime minister....I pointed out the dangers and disadvantages of a war election....Finally he promised to give my proposal fair consideration and said he must consult some of his friends."

After further negotiations Sir Wilfrid declined to enter the coalition because of his opposition to conscription.

"The situation was full of difficulties," Sir Robert wrote. "Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been leader of his party for 30 years and during half that period had been prime minister. Great events had marked his administration of public affairs. His prestige was unsurpassed and, as leader of his party, he was invested with absolute preeminence. Even in the intense feeling aroused by the war, the idea of breaking with his leadership seemed almost inconceivable. Those whom the call to duty impelled toward the full and legitimate consequence of their convictions shrank back dismayed when the time for action came.

"On the other hand my position was of singular and striking difficulty. The Liberal-Conservative party with few, if any, exceptions had given me during my premiership and especially during the War, absolute wholehearted loyalty and support which it was impossible to overlook and disregard. To establish Union government upon a secure basis it would be necessary to assign to those Liberals who rejected the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the question of conscription an equal share (apart from the office of prime minister) in a Union administration.

"This would inevitably relegate to the background and perhaps altogether destroy the hopes of prominent men in my party whose legitimate ambitions for advancement could not be denied in the ordinary course....

Invited to Ottawa

Throughout the negotiations Borden again and again offered to retire if someone else could be found who would be more successful in forming a government. He consulted Sir Clifford Sifton frequently and also conferred with John W. Dafoe, editor of the Manitoba Free Press, C. C. Ballantyne afterwards senator, H. W. Woods of the Alberta Grain Growers Association, and many others for advice.

Page after page of the memoirs reproduce records from his diary written at the time. Here are a few of the entries:—

"Aug. 9—Inconclusive conference with Laurier at Government House under arrangement by Governor-General, Laurier, (Sir George) Foster, (Sir Lomer) Gouin, (Lord) Shaughnessy, (Sir Clifford) Sifton and myself.

"Aug. 10—Discussed with (Hon. Arthur) Meighen and (Hon. J. D.) Reid my suggestion to have the Governor-General call (Mr. Justice) Duff to form a Union government. Both fiercely opposed.

"Aug. 13—Meighen reports Western Liberals strong for coalition. Sifton spoke of objections to my leadership. Suggests Sir William Meredith. Colleagues are determined there shall be no change.

"Aug. 14—Meighen and Reid strongly urge that Meredith leadership would be disastrous. Sifton came and agreed that any change of leadership should be abandoned.

"Aug. 15—Suggested to Meighen and Reid that Sir Robert Falconer (then President of Toronto University) should be asked to form a government.

"Aug. 17—(Hon. Robert Roger's resignation accepted. He says we are heading straight for destruction.

"Aug. 19—Sifton says (T. A.) Crerar suggests Foster or Sir C. H. Tupper as leader. I said I would hold up both hands for Foster."

So the diary proceeded, day by day. Here are other entries:

"Sept. 3—Heard from Duff that Tilley would not enter government and therefore Duff could not come. Sent for Tilley; appealed to his patriotism but without effect."

In amplification of the diary the memoirs state on Aug. 27 he received a telegram from J. A. Calder, Crerar, Attorney-General Hudson of Manitoba and Premier A. L. Sifton of Alberta stating they favored Union government and creation of a war council of six but a change of leadership was essential and suggested Foster, Sir Adam Beck or Sir William Mulock.

"In council I submitted the telegram to my colleagues and expressed to them my perfect willingness to retire in favor of any leader whose chances of success in forming a Union government might be greater than mine. They were unanimously against any change in leadership."

Faced With Crisis

To the protest raised in a subsequent caucus against giving Liberals equal representation in the cabinet Borden replied that "Canada was faced with a crisis above all party considerations; it was vital that necessary reinforcements should be supplied by compulsory military service; without this the Canadian Corps could not be maintained and would feel itself betrayed; I meant to keep my pledge to our soldiers; if dissentient Liberals would come in I would give them equal representation in the government; my duty as I conceived it led me to that conclusion; they had their duty to consider and if their conception did not coincide with mine, their only course was to select another leader. There was no more murmuring and the caucus acquiesced but there were some dissenters."

Ultimately Borden remained as prime minister and J. A. Calder, Hon. A. L. Sifton, T. A. Crerar, N. W. Rowell and General S. C. Mewburn were the Liberals added to the cabinet on Oct. 12. Other Liberals F. B. Carvell, A. K. MacLean and Gideon D. Robertson were sworn in later.

Nation's Backing Needed

"We must have the support of the country behind us because if we do not have that support our effort will be weak and vacillating until we give up office to those who are stronger and better supported than we are," he said.

Sir Thomas indicated establishment of national service in Great Britain would soon be announced.

"The prime minister has given assurances that there will be no conscription under his term of office," said Sir Thomas. "There will be no compulsion for service, and I think that undertaking is more acceptable to people because they know that at the present time no compulsion is necessary to secure the public service that the country needs.

David Lloyd George, still as forceful a speaker as when 20 years ago he led British endeavors in war, bitingly attacked the Munich settlement.

Britain and France, he said, had wrapped up Czechoslovakia in the Union Jack and the Tricolor and delivered it to a "brutal dictator." Sir Thomas denied this, declaring Britain was not a guarantor of Czechoslovakia.

Criticisms Tighten Ties.

Lord Halifax told his American audience Britain "most deeply" appreciated the efforts of President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull, State Secretary, in furthering the cause of peace.

Britain, he added, understood the United States desire "not to be caught up in dispute and controversies which are far from your shores." Britain did not question the motives that lay behind United States neutrality legislation.

Criticism of Britain's actions during the European crisis appearing in the American press, was best proof, he said, "that you feel as strongly as we do about the things which it is vital for the world to hold on to, if international relations are to be at all securely founded. Your criticisms, therefore, bring you nearer to us than would an attitude of indifference on your part."

Train Kills Seven

was thought today to have been the indirect cause of a crash that took five lives in this West Essex county village.

Ranger, 21, died in the crash with three other members of his family and a friend while driving to a chuch meeting last night. His father, 50-year-old Gilbert Ranger, only survivor of the accident, was taken to hospital in Windsor. 25 miles of here, in critical condition.

Others killed were Mrs. Lucia Ranger, 48; Jean Ranger. 18-year-old sister of Leo; Arthur Masse, 83, Leo's grandfather, and Mrs. Julia Godin, 72. Mrs. Godin came from her home in Windsor to visit the Rangers, residents of Stoney Point almost all their lives.

The car was struck by a Wabash railway freight train. Witnesses said young Ranger, driving the car, could not have seen the train as he made no effort to speed or slow the machine. "Leo was driving behind another car," said Dr. H. G. Emerson, village coroner. "Apparently he was watching the other car rather than looking out for a train."

Wreck Carried 400 Yards

The motor-car was travelling north on a sideroad while the train, an extra freight of nine cars, was proceeding westward. The car wreckage was carried 400 yards on the pilot of the engine before the train could be brought to a stop. The train was in charge of Conductor R. Wilson, St. Thomas, with Engineer William Chaters, also of St. Thomas.

Gilbert Ranger, who suffered fractures of both legs and other injuries, was able to sit up and talk while awaiting arrival of an ambulance. Despite his injuries he attempted to aid rescuers extricate the bodies from the wreckage. Hospital authorities in Windsor said he had a chance of surviving.

The bodies were taken to the Stoney Point railway station, not far from the crossing, where Coroner Emerson empanelled an inquest jury. After adjournment of the inquest, the bodies were taken to an undertaking establishment in Tilbury, seven miles south of Stoney Point.

Mrs. Josephine Masse, wife of Arthur Masse, heard of the accident while attending church service in Stoney Point. She and her husband attended mass Tuesday when the priest urged them to prepare for after-life. Mrs. Masse said that before he left on the fatal drive she chided her husband for failing to change from his work clothes.

"Without giving it a serious though I told him he wouldn't look nice if he got in an accident," she sobbed.

U.S. Stiffens

Many persons here saw in the president's speech another hint of heavy demands for armaments appropriations at the next session of congress. The United States, he made clear, is not disposed to limit armaments unless there are actual discussions among nations for a disarmament agreement.

In other words, the United States will continue its arm expansion program until the big powers actually have sat down at a disarmament conference table and are ready to sign on the dotted line.

The president, in his speech to the New York Herald Tribune forum on current problems, served notice on the world that the United States would protect the western hemisphere from foreign interference. It was his first pronouncement on American foreign policy since the Czechoslovakian crisis.

He said the governments of foreign nations "must not threaten the world with the disaster of war" and asserted no useful purpose is served to suggest "either to the American people or the people of other nations that the American Government in its policies, its practices, and its servants are actuated by motives of dishonor or corruption.

"To do so," he said, "is of necessity, an attack on the American system of constitutional representative government itself."

Hoover on Economics.

The President's address followed others by his predecessor, Herbert Hoover, who urged the United States to initiate resumption of world economic conferences as a vital step towards peace, and Viscount Halifax, the British Foreign Minister, who urged the United States to join hands with Great Britain in establishing world peace.

Without mentioning either the Munich conference which averted war over the partitioning of Czechoslovakia or measures taken against racial groups in certain European countries, the President arraigned

Two Youths Arrested In Millbrook Being Held On Firearm Charge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 27. — Ernest Allen and Douglas Wannan, Orono appeared before the Justice of the Peace last night at Cobourg and were remanded for a week on a charge of possession of a firearm without a permit.

When arrested at Millbrook yesterday they gave their address as Orono. Police said they drove a stolen car, owned by W. Rigby of Blenheim into Millbrook and then tried to sell a stolen tire.

They aroused the suspicions of Constable E. Richards of Millbrook who arrested them.

Finding a revolver on one of them, they were brought back to Cobourg by Provincial Police.

conditions under which there can "be no peace."

"It is becoming increasingly clear," he said, "that peace by fear has no higher or more enduring quality than peace by the sword.

"There can be no peace if the reign of law is to be replaced by a recurrent sanctification of sheer force.

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the threat of war.

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the dispersion all over the world of millions of helpless and persecuted wanderers with no place to lay their head.

"There can be no peace if humble men and women are not free to think their own thoughts, to express their own feelings, to worship God.

"There can be no peace if economic resources that ought to be devoted to social and economic reconstruction are to be diverted to an intensified competition in armaments which will merely heighten the suspicions and fears and threaten the economic prosperity of each and every nation."

Commission Is Not Opposed To Police Ball

Members of the Police Commission went on record at the regular meeting Wednesday as being not opposed to the holding of the annual policeman's ball so long as the affair is properly conducted.

A resolution passed which will be placed before the Chief Constable read as follows: "That this Board does not consider that it is necessary for it to authorize the dance to be held by the Police Association but it nevertheless advises that its policy be observed as set out in a resolution passed on September 14, 1938, a copy of which was sent to the Chief Constable.

This latter resolution referred to by the Commissioners was the one passed by them after Judge Deroche of Belleville had given his final decision on the probe into police affairs last summer. The resolution says that: This Board holds the Chief Constable responsible for the conduct of police officers at the annual ball and at other affairs, and any repetition of the incidents such as were discussed at the recent enquiry relative to the annual police ball, will result in the dismissal of the Chief Constabel and of those involved in the misconduct.

No Pension Fund

Discussion on the point indicated the Commissioners were very sympathetic to the fact that the proceeds from the dance was used to build up a fund for the officers, which would be used in the event of an officer being killed in the course of his duty, or dying suddenly. As it stands now, there is no pension fund, nor any arrangements for the care of an officer's widow or family should he die suddenly. Added to this is the fact that police work is rated highly hazardous by insurance companies and therefore any suitable amount of insurance would cost an exorbitant sum.

Whether or not the annual police ball will be held will be decided at the next meeting of the officers themselves.

Clothing Contracts

After examing several samples of cloth and prices submitted by merchants in the city, the Commisison let the following contracts for winter clothes for the police. Three overcoats and three short coats, McWilliams and Company, to cost a total of $67 and $55 respectively. Twelve pair of trousers at $7.50 a pair were let to Ed Riley along with the order for two pair of riding breeches at $14.75 each. Detectives' overcoats and hats will be purchased from Ed Riley at $27.50 and $3.75 each.

Mayor Hamilton asked the Chief if radio for police work had been discussed at any of the Provincial or Dominion conventions and if it is being successful operated in smaller centres.

Answering this query the Chief said a two-way system had been in use in Guelph for some time and was working out splendidly, while Belleville had a one-day broadcasting set that was also a real asset.

"We should get out police station fixed up properly before we start talking radio," said Judge Smoke.

"I wouldn't be too optimistic about the additions to the court room, we have needed them for thirty years and there has not been any action on the question yet. My office is absolutely useless for interviewing prisoners or others, every word said can be heard outside, and during the court period in the morning it is a runway for lawyers, witnesses and anybody else who come through," replied Chief Newhall.

Judge Smoke said the public had no business using the stairs through the police station up to the courtroom, they should use the back stairway leading from the street, and this stairs should also be used by the witnesses. "I'm sure something suitable can be worked out," he said in closing.

Mayor Hamilton referred to the large gas and oil and repair bills and asked the Chief if something could not be done to keep these down. The Chief in explaining this said the cars are on twenty-four hour duty in all weather and with all members of the force driving and that the Chrysler was getting quite a few miles on it now, and was not as efficient as before.

The commissioners did not believe the taxi bylaw could be put into force before the first of January and shelved the discussion of a few final points until the next meeting, or probably a special meeting to be held at the discretion of the chairman.

Warning Is Issued Letter Writers By Magistrate Langley

MAGISTRATE O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning issued a pointed warning to persons who might feel inclined to write letters to him in regard to cases coming before him.

"I have received a letter in connection with a case that I am to hear," he said. "It is a most improper thing and I am not sure if it isn't actual contempt of court. There is no use writing me on such matters and the only way to approach me is in the court and through the proper channels. I read only enough of this particular communication to show me what it was about so that it will not interfere with me hearing the case and I have turned the latter over to the Crown authorities. I propose to do so with all such communications so that persons guilty of such conduct may be prosecuted."

Vibrant Voice Impresses Concert Crowd

The Peterborough Canadian Concert Association began its second year of musical enterprise in a vibrant and expansive atmosphere last night as it introduced to its hundreds of members at the Collegiate Institute Miss Marjorie Lawrence, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York in a splendid program of song that struck a gratifyingly auspicious note for the season that is yet young.

The auditorium of the Collegiate was comfortably filled with subscribers for the series of concerts the association has again arranged as a means of amplifying Peterborough's entertainment in a sphere that is not neglected but which acquires additional interest and inspiration from a few hours under the spell of artists like Miss Lawrence. These events call for organizing effort and so far the committee engaged in that form of community work has been well repaid.

Attractive on Platform

Miss Lawrence was preceded by her successes in Wagnerian roles, especially in heroic assignments like the Brunnhilde of the Nibelunger Ring, the Icelandic maiden who was subdued for marriage only by guile and magic. That type represents women from the mould of Minerva rather than of Aphrodite, and is represented notably on the operatic stage today by Kirsten Flagsted. They are of the oak family rather than the clinging vine. They may be lyric, but they must be dynamic, women of stature and power, breadth of shoulders and depth of chest. That is the usual conception of Brunnhilde. Miss Lawrence suggested a modified Brunnhilde, a happy medium, decidedly attractive and feminine.

And that personal reference leads back to the spell she cast in the last number of her program, the finale scene in the Ring cycle. Miss Lawrence has a magnificent voice that requires for its fullness of effect the opulence of the opera, the chorus and orchestra and principals of equality with herself. The piano of Felix Wolfes could only suggest that background, as it did, and imagination had to fill in the rest. It was an obvious handicap to the singer, but she seemed to step back from the concert stage into her accustomed medium and into the scene which brings the tragedy of Siegfried to its dramatic end. By means of her gifts of expression the power and intensity and vivid impersonation in her singing, Miss Lawrence seemed to assume the stature of the Brunnhilde of the sagas, and to dissolve into the personality around whom Wagner wrote his glorious music. It was the illusion of a splendid art transferred from the operatic to the concert stage, and making the best of circumstances that lacked customary aids and atmosphere.

In two other number's, The Earl King by Schubert, and Iphigenies' Dream from the Gluck opera, and particularly the latter because it is not so well known, most of the audience probably missed the greater part of the significance of the tragic themes reflected in Miss Lawrence's expressive declamation and singing. Not only has her voice a wealth of power, but it also possesses a liquid quality when melody only is sought that was exceedingly pleasing.

Songs Full of Charm

Three Schubert songs were delightful, and another group of three by Ravel in much the same mood, tenderness and gaiety of the heart in love were also full of charm. Miss Lawrence also sang "Ich Liebe Dich" and three other songs in English by Grieg, "Hope," "Springtide" and "Midsummer Night," examples of Grieg's preoccupation with phases of the outdoor life he loved. Then there was a group of English songs, actually two of them were Scottish and the third probably of Irish origin in its melody, "Annie Laurie," "Down the Burn," and "Danny Boy."

They were all grand entertainment. "My Ain Folk," and encore, seemed perhaps the most appealing of the numbers in which Miss Lawrence applied the rich resources of her voice to the softer effects of sentiment. A bright and piquant song was her first encore "To a Young Gentleman," and another extra was "Chants d'Auvergne," and her last one was gorgeous singing "Zueignung" by Richard Strauss, a rich and haunting melody, its music buoyant and altogether captivating. It was a glowing period to a concert that will be remembered with the winning personality of Marjorie Lawrence. From Peterborough her present tour takes her to Kingston, then Mount Vernon, Ohio, next to New York for a recital, back to Chatham in Ontario, Cincinnatti, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Quebec, Montreal and then to the Metropolitan. She will revive "Thais" after its lapse of twenty years, also Tosca and a Wagnerian appearance.

English Heads Boy Scouts Of Peterborough

W. C. English was elected president of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association at its annual meeting last night, replacing Dr. G. Murray Fraser, who had held the post for the past four years and whose resignation was received with regret by all Peterborough scouters.

Dr. Fraser said he felt it was time someone else was given an opportunity to head the organization. He outlined to the 40 assembled delegates the growth of scouting in this city since he first became associated with it in 1925, when he was district scout master.

In that year there was only one troop and it met in the Market Hall, he told them. Now, in 1938, they have their own hall, 11 troops, 9 packs, and 2 rover crews. Organizations that have sprung up in connection with the larger activity include a local association, a scouters' club, four mothers' auxiliaries, and eight troop committees. He told scouters to continue their growth and to live up always to scouting traditions. Other youngsters in the city are looking to them for guidance and by their good example they can improve the qualtiy of citizenship in coming generations, he said.

Other Officers

Bill Lyburn was elected first vice-president and W. G. Grady second vice-president of the association. B. Ottewell moved from the post of treasurer, which was taken over by W. A. Brown, to that of secretary. District Commissioner J. Hornsby was recommended to continue in his post for his tenth consecutive term and Gordon Clegg was recommended for re-appointment as District Cubmaster. The recommendations must be forwarded to Dominion Headquarters at Ottawa for ratification.

Assistant commissioners appointed were Ernie Wolfe and Lewis Grant and members of the Executive Board included Dr. G. Murray Fraser, H. C. Sootheran, A. Hope, N. L. Patterson, Rev. B. J. Begley, R. C. Currie, and J. Moscrop. The board of Badge Commissioners for the ensuing year will consist of E. Wolfe, W. Lyburn, Dr. J. F. O'Brien, Lew Grant, and Mrs. Langhorn. Their work consists of issuing badges and making recommendations for special honors, as for life saving.

Eleven Active Troops.

Reports were received from the eleven active troops, nine active cub packs, two active rover crews, all of which were represented. Indication was given that one troop, one pack, and two rover crews are now in the process of reorganization and will swell the number of links in the association in the near future.

A report on the recent Scout Apple Day was read and showed that profit over last year's Apple Day was $150, not $50 as had been previously reported. Scouts took in $500.23 on city streets, incurred expenses of $163.26, leaving a net profit of $336.97.

A visitor at last night's meeting who spoke briefly to the assembled scouts was W. Whitaker of Lindsay, assistant commissioner under Mr. Hornsby in that centre.

Students' League of Many Nations To Visit Here

The Students' League of Many Nations a representative group of The Practical Bible training School of Johnson City, N.Y., will visit Peterborough—Friday Oct. 28th. They will be the guests of Bethany Tabernacle and will conduct a unique witness service in the Tabernacle Friday 8 p.m. Arriving in the city about noon they will meet in the Tabernacle for their daily studies after which asight seeing trip has been arranged.

Second Offender Is Fined $54.50

"This man only got out of jail yesterday morning and forced his way into a house on Rubidge street and pulled a woman out of bed who had had a baby only two days before," Chief Constable Newhall informed Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after Ray Hogan of Toronto had pleaded guilty as a second offender to a charge of drunkenness.

The previous offence had occurred on October 18 and on that occasion, Chief Newhall reminded the court this morning, Hogan had promised to go back to Toronto and stay there if given a chance.

Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $50 and $4.50 costs with the alternative of six weeks' imprisonment which means that Hogan will be the guest of Lieut. Col T. D. Johnston until Christmas is almost here as he was unable to pay his fine.

Tickets Are Good In Other Cities

Peterborough members of the Canadian Concert Association who are out of the city frequently need have few fears of missing the Peterborough performance of the internationally renowned artists who are to appear here this winter.

For their membership cards in the Peterborough branch of the association will carry them, free of charge, into any or all of the concerts being given in other centres, provided there is seating accommodation.

The success of the association is ever becoming more assured, and new centres are joining the circuit this fall. The following programs have been announced in centres that hitherto have not been members of the association:

Kingston—Oct. 28, Marjorie Lawrence; Nov. 21, Zimbalist; Feb. 8, Poldi D. Mildner (the great woman pianist); March 18, Trudi Schoop Ballet.

Belleville — Nov. 22, Zimbalist; Feb. (date to be fixed), Hallett and Pool, piano duo; March 13, Herthar Glatz, contralto.

Galt — Nov. 8, Herthar Glatz; Jan. 25, Ossy Renardy, violinist; March (date to be fixed), Reginald Stewart.

Woodstock — Nov. 7, Herthar Glatz; Jan. (date to be fixed), Renardy; March (date to be fixed), Stewart.

BANK CLEARINGS.

Clearings passing through the Peterborough Celaring House during the past week amounted to $590,595 while for the same period one year ago they totalled $591,626.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

KNOTT FINED

Changing his plea to guilty Alex. Knott of Curve Lake was fined $5 and $5.25 costs for being drunk, the charge being laid by Corp. Jack Woods of the R.C.M.P. under the Indian Act.

A BIG CARROT

Something in the line of a record among outsize carrots has turned up in the garden of Police Sergeant John Thompson. This overgrown vegetable tipped the scales at over three pounds and looks capable of supplying enough vitamins for the average-sized family.

ARTISTS ACTIVE

The changing scenery of these autmnal days is proving irresistible to amateur artists of both sexes and many of them have been noticed recently around Buckhorn, Bureligh Falls and Young's Point, busily engaged in trying to transfer the beauty of nature of canvas. Not a few of these artists are from outside points.

DEER PLENTIFUL

Wood truckers operating between Peterborough and Apsley report several deer have been noticed early in the morning and late in the evening along Highway 8 in the vicinity of Apsley. Hunters expect the deer shooting to be particularly good during the first three days before the dogs chase the deer into the game preserve.

TRUCK BURNED

A 1937 truck turned on its side in the ditch, about two miles north of Burleigh two nights ago and was burned. It is a total loss and the wreckage is still in the ditch. Settlers in the district and township officials have no information on who owns the vehicle, or where the driver went to. The truck is believed to be from Toronto, and the license plates are still on it.

PUBLIC IS INVITED.

This evening at eight oclock in the Collegiate auditorium, J. W. McFarlane, president of the scientific and technical section of the Photographic Society of America, will address an open meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute, to which the public is invited. Mr. McFarlane's subject is "Color Photography, and it is expected that large numbers of the amateur photographers in Peterborough will not pass up the opportunity of hearing this noted authority on photography.

GRASS FIRES

Grass fires, bane of autumn months to the fire department, are making their appearance in the city now. Yesterday firemen were called to put one out on Burnham's Point. The department was called out three times yesterday to small fires. One of them, on Sheridan street, was caused by a live wire being strung through a screw-eye connected to the ceiling, Chief Gimblett said. He found that over-sized fuses were being used as well, and warned that serious fires are caused in just such manner. A short circuit set curtains ablaze in this case and the fire fighters had everything under control before much damage was done.

Woman Denies Selling Beer

Mrs. Mary Hayton, charged with keeping liquor for sale, took the witness stand in her own behalf in police court this morning after Magistrate Langley had refused to allow a motion by Mrs. Hayton's counsel, W. J. Arthur Fair, for dismissal.

There was a long argument over the motion, both Mr. Fair and Crown Atorney McElderry discussing the point at length and finally the magistrate intimated that he was prepared to reserve judgment for a couple of days, if Mr. Fair thought that he might change his mind after reading the authorities.

Defence counsel, however, said he had three witnesses present and was ready to go on with his defense this morning.

Cecil Mehaffey, junk dealer, was called in regard to a carton of empty bottles found at the rear of 241 Stewart street where Mrs. Hayton lives, and swore that about a month ago he had sold the bottles to Harry Carter who lives at the same address.

Saw No Drinking

Alexander Cameron Allison, whom police arrested outside of Mrs. Hayton's on a charge of drunkenness testified that he had called to see Carter that night and had only been there a short time when the police arrived. He testified that he had nothing to drink there and had seen no signs of drinking.

At the police station he said he was interrogated repeatedly about what he was doing at the Carter house and was told that he had better tell the truth or it would cost him money.

Witness pounded the side of the witness box as he was giving his evidence on that point and Magistrate Langley ordered him to be quiet or he might find himself facing a charge of contempt of court. "I want protection," shouted Allison, but Mr. Fair succeeded in calming him down.

Mrs. Hayton swore in regard to the three cartons of beer police said they found in her car on Sunday October 9, that she had purchased four cartons of beer the previous night for a Mr. Mullins of Norwood and had left it in the car all night. She did not know what had become of the other carton but was sure it was not the one police found in the house because that had been purchased some time previously by Harry Carter.

As to the liquor and beer orders produced by the crown she said that those had been signed by her as purchaser and taken to her home and consumed. The others represented purchases on orders signed by persons in Norwood, Hastings and elsewhere for whom she had purchased beer. She said that she had had a cottage at Trent River for some time in the summer and that these purchases had been made when she was in town from time to time. The money had been given to her with the order and she had in each case delivered the beer to the person who ordered it.

"Did you ever sell or keep beer for sale," asked Mr. Fair.

"Never in my life," replied the accused.

She was closely cross-examined by Mr. McElderry as to the orders produced especially as to the similarity of the paper used in giving orders and as to the fact that the same brand of beer and lager was ordered in each case. Mr. McElderry was not through when the court adjourned for luncheon.

When a Horse Refuses To Work There Is Usually Good Reason

If a horse refuses to work there is generally some reason for it that a careful examination will reveal, is the opinion of Dr. Thomas Johnston, Humane Society inspector.

The inspector reported to the society's board of directors that he found a horse being treated for inflammation of the leg and that on investigation he found the animal to be suffering from a broken leg. It was ordered destroyed.

A horse that was drawing bread for a local company had refused to pull its wagon and two men in charge had applied the whip "very freely," Dr. Johnston said. On learning of the incident he investigated and found that the collar had scalded the animal's shoulder. "A new collar was fitted on and the horse has given no further trouble," he said.

Complaints were investigated in Lakefield, Chemong, and at the gravel pit, he reported. "For the benefit of those who have sent in complaints regarding the animals at a service station, they are being removed to a farm where they will be properly looked after," the report stated. He issued a severe warning to boys using catapults, drawing to their attention that use of catapults is illegal in city or country and that a $50 fine may be levied against anyone caught using one.

During the month 150 animals were examined, ten warnings issued, twelve complaints investigated, eleven emergency calls answered. Thirteen dogs were brought to the shelter and eight were destroyed.

Fair Timber Cut Is Expected In Central Area

A statement by the Hon. Peter Heenan that Ontario faces the prospect of one of the smallest timber cuts in years applies in a general way to the large lumber companies of the north country and not to local mills, according to city lumber dealers.

There will be a fair amount of timber cut during the winter but it is believed the Hubbell and Hancock Mills, two of the largest in the northern part of Peterporough and Hastings counties may curtail operations somewhat owing to the fact that a great portion of the lumber cut by them last year is still piled in the yards.

Start After Deer Season.

The Peterborough Lumber Company, and Scott Coal and Lumber both intend to cut some logs and lumber this winter but will not get under way until after the deer season is over. According to one manager there has been a slump in the industrial demand for lumber and in large construction but local house building has shown a definite improvement and has taken up the slack to a great extent.

Mr. Heenan said a survey of the timber areas of the province revealed that pulp and paper companies and lumber mills had overcut far beyond their needs last year and as a result their yards were filled in many cases, with enough timber to last them the entire winter. "The market dropped off last spring both in pulpwood and lumber and left them with heavy surpluses."

Many of the larger mills shut down in mid-summer after cutting about half of the logs they had in stock, and stored the remainder on the lakes in booms. They are readily available should the market show an upturn, and could soon be sawn into lumber. This condition however, does not apply to this country nor district but to the largest mills in the province along the Ottawa Valley.

Await Trade Treaties.

It is believed that some of the hesitation relative to timber cutting may be due to the fact that trade treaties between Canada and the States and Canada and Britain are undergoing revision.

Two Townships To Take Vote Beverage Rooms

Temperance forces in the townships of Burleigh-Anstruther have manned the guns for a battle to oust beverage rooms from the two townships which for the past thirty years at least have been "wet." As it stands now a plebiscite will be taken on January 2nd when the annual municipal elections are held.

The three ministers at Apsley village are said to be the driving force in the campaign and a petition which was circulated in the two townships about October 1st was signed by 64 per cent of the voting population, when only 25 per cent is required for the Liquor Control Board to order a vote be taken.

The Township Council suggested to the Board that the ballot could be taken at the same time as the municipal elections, which would be less costly and more convenient for the voters. The drys were opposed to this and sent another petition to the Liquor Control Board suggesting an earlier date. No answer to this last request has been received so far. The law provides that a municipal by-law authorizing the plebiscite must be passed two months before the vote is taken, and the by-law is slated for the attention of the Council at a meeting on Saturday. Thus it would be impossible to hold the vote earlier than January 2nd, but it might be held at any later date.

The townships have been wet for at least 30 years and during the past three years beverage rooms have been operated at the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, Viamede Hotel on Stoney Lake and Selby Hotel at Apsley.

Burleigh and Anstruther are united for municipal purposes and in the past when a vote was taken Anstruther always voted dry but Burleigh while giving the drys a majority fell short of making up three-fifths of the total vote because of the difference in population.

"TONY" JOHNSTON HAD REMARKABLY SUCCESSFUL CAREER

Steady Progress Been Made By Business Launched By Young Man 17 Years Ago

The opening of the beautiful new show rooms of Johnston's at the corner of McDonnel and George streets is another milestone in a remarkably successful career of a young Peterborough business man, Frank H. (Tony to his legion of friends) Johnston, a career that began seventeen years ago when Mr. Johnston in partnership with his uncle. R. H. Dawson, launched a new firm at the same corner. Seven years after that Mr. Johnston bought out the interest of his uncle and continued in business alone, purchasing the property from the Schneider estate in whose hands it had been for half a century.

The story of the Johnston enterprise is a story of continued and steady progress. Once started Mr. Johnston has never looked back and year by year his business has expanded and enlarged, taking in new departments and increasing the efficiency of the old. It is interesting to note that he has been linked up with three pioneers in three different fields and in that fact, coupled with his own energy, vision, and willingness to take a chance may be found, perhaps, the secret of the continued success that has smiled upon him.

Three Pioneers

First among these pioneers is the Marconi radio with which Mr. Johnston has always been associated. Marconi, it should be remembered was the father of wireless and therefore the Marconi radio can rightly claim to be a pioneer in the field of radio.

Then too Mr. Johnston has been the agent for Kelvinator, surely pioneers in the field of electric refrigerators. Third in the list of pioneers may be mentioned Dunlop tires, which Mr. Johnston has always handled. Dunlop, it should not be forgotten invented the first pneumatic bicycle tire.

Almost in the same category may be mentioned another famous line carried by Mr. Johnston, McClary electric range. The McClary firm has pioneered ranges in Canada for the last 90 years and their name is a household one throughout the Dominion.

That list, impressive as it is, does not begin to exhaust the well known products carried and featured in the Johnston establishment. For example there is the Coffield washer, a machine that is famous for its superior qualities [illegible] that it carries a twelve-year guarantee.

There are also the celebrated U.S.L. batteries, long featured by Mr. Johnston and famous all over the continent for many years.

Other important items in the large stock carried in the Johnston store are a wide assortment of table lamps, floor lamps and automoblie accessories of all kinds.

In the service station conducted in connection with the establishment British-American gasoline and oils are sold.

Latest Tuneup System

In the garage repair department Johnston's are noted by reason of the fact that the latest and most efficient automobile tuneup system in the city is available there. Three expert automobile mechanics are employed in this department.

This firm also possesses an up-to-the-minute radio repair department, featuring any kind of radio repairs, including $1.00 tuneups by expert radio repair men. Another feature is the public address sound system operated by Johnston's and offering the latest medium of street advertising as well as for service at football and baseball games, public meetings and other gatherings. The system is up-to-date and powerful and affords an opportunity to reach large crowds at public meetings.

The Johnston electric refrigeration service is another noteworthy feature, the staff being able to repair and service any of the latest types of refrigeration and air-conditioning and carrying a complete line of refrigerants and parts on hand at all times. Johnston's also undertake repairs to all makes of washers and ranges or an electric appliances by experienced service men.

Vulcanizing is done in the most modern way—that is by electricity and all repairs on passengr car tires are guaranteed for one year.

Also featured are battery recharging, and repairs to all makes of batteries and modern and efficient car-washing by the high pressure system.

The Last Word in Beauty and Distinction

Here is the interior at thenew Johnston store the picture giving an opportunity to judge at the impressive appearance and effective layout of this ultra modern showroom. The walls are tinted in strawberry ivory with mahogany panels.

British Bombers In More Flights

LONDON, Oct. 27—(CP).—Britain's record non-stop formation flight of 4,300 miles, accomplished by four bombers specially equipped for long-range experiments, is the prelude to greater achievement.

In the next few months a carefully planned series of flights, designed to elucidate the many intricate problems of efficient oing distance flying, will demonstrate even more clearly the mobility and the striking power over thousands of miles of the modern British war plane.

The British Aircraft publication points out that the flight will culminate in a formation cruise—probably from Egypt to Australia—which will far surpass the world distance record of 6,305 miles set up by a Soviet airplane that flew alone.

The recent flight was accomplished in 32 hours at an average speed over the ground of 135 miles per hour. No comparable flight of simiar formation is on record. Three foreign bombers attempted a flight together of approximately 3,300 miles from Africa to Rio de Janeiro but only two of them completed the journey.

Route selected by the British airplanes followed approximately the "great circle' course from Cranwell (Lincolnshire), headquarters of the Long Range Development Fight, R. A.F., to Ismalia (Egypt) and thence to a point between Koweit and Bahrein on the Persian Gulf where, in accord with the plan, the formation turned on its tracks and landed at Ismailia.

Throughout the flight the airplanes were in regular radio communication with the air ministry and each other. No mechanical or other difficulty arose at any time. The aircraft flew with clockwork efficiency, keeping an average height of 10,000 feet and experiencing weather that, on the whole, was good.

Each machine carried a pilot, a navigator and a radio operator, the two latter being also qualified pilots and able to take turns at the controls when not engaged on their special duties.

Of incalculable assistance to the fliers was the automatic pilot, known as "George," installed in each airplane. "George" is a robot who with attention and adjustment at intervals of 15 to 20 minutes, can steer an airplane on a set course with with super-human accuracy.

Forging Ahead

Frank H. (Tony) Johnston, the opening of whose up-to-the-minute new establishment is another milestone is a successful business career.

Army Of Youth Guards Forest

OTTAWA, Oct. 28—(CP). — The Junior Forest Wardens, youth movement organized eight years ago by the Canadian Forestry Association, numbers more than 10,000 boys pledged to save the forest resources of the nation.

Thus far the majority of these volunteer wardens belong to British Columbia, but effective groups are at work on the prairies, in Eastern Canada and Newfoundland. Chosen for their qualities of leadership, knowledge of woodcraft and willingness to serve without reward, these patriotic juveniles have already written a proud record of practical service.

Hundreds of incipient forest fires have first been detected by them and either extinguished or promptly brought to the attention of official fire rangers. Many groups have started reforesting waste areas, or have beautified vacant lots by tree-planting. Others have attached themselves to local fire rangers travelling with them on their daily patrol by trail and river. One boy of 13, living in a settler's cabin, heard a passerby speak of a fire outbreak and, saddling his pony, galloped eight miels to inform the nearest ranger.

Recognizing boyish fondness for some sort of uniform, the Canadian Forestry Association arranged to supply several thousand outfits comprising red shirts, green berets and scarfs. Frequently hats and leggings are added. A large medallion across the shirt announces the boy's identification with forest protection. During heavy tourist influx, Junior Forest Wardens at points of entry warn travellers to take precautions against forest destruction by extinguishing campfires and lighted matches and tobacco.

Fight To Finish On Crop Menaces

REINGA, Oct. 27—(CP). — Giving rust-resistant wheat to farmers in exchange for other varieties and an intensive educational campaign are planned by the Saskatchewan government in a stern battle to be waged against grasshoppers and rust.

Announcing this program, J. C. Taggart, provincial minister of agriculture, made an unofficial estimate that Saskatchewan farmers this year had lost approximately 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from these causes.

From 250 to 300 lectures will be delivered in Saskatchewan's 14 agricultural districts and Mr. Taggart will deliver an address in each area. He said the government would reduce rust menace by supplying farmers with rust-resistant Thatcher wheat in exchange for other kinds they have on hand.

A far-reaching grasshopper poisoning, campaign is planned on both sides of the international boundary. At present the hopper egg survey is being conducted in the province under direction of K. M. King, Dominion entomologist.

This work should be completed by mid-October, after which it will be possible to make more specific plans for next spring's offensive.

$70,000 Arrears On Housing Plan

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP). — City officials are busy studying a proposal to appoint a property man to take charge of all real estate owned by the city, as a result of a scandal in the operation of a civic housing scheme. An enterprising newspaper reporter is credited with bringing the scandal to light.

About 18 years ago, some 300 lower-price houses were built with city funds as one of the many moves to rehabilitate Great War veterans. The houses were built in various sections, but largely in outlying districts in the east and south-east. They were handled by a housing commission that rented or sold them on easy payments.

Recently a reporter, getting wind of "something wrong," obtained a list of 128 houses at present in the commission's hands. Checking those listed as "vacant," the newspaperman found every one of them with an occupant. His information was later verified by civic officials.

Mayor T. F. Kingsmill acted quickly and subsequent investigation revealed present occupants of the commission houses were $70,000 in arrears, either in taxes, rental or payments. One man had lived in a commission house five years without paying a cent. In other cases the amount due by them in interest and back payments totalled more than the original cost of the dwellings.

Every effort is now being made to unload the property, through adjustments with buyers or tenants. City council has taken control of the project and the commission, which cannot be dissolved without a formal by-law, is working at council's discretion.

Latest proposal is to appoint an official who will take over the remaining houses and look after other real estate owned by the city, much of it having been taken in through tax arrears.

Beauty Of The Exterior Is Continued Inside In "Tony" Johnston's New Store

Absolutely the last word in beauty of appointment, convenience of operation and striking effectiveness in the display of goods is the new headquarters of Johnston's tire, battery and radio service at the corner of George and McDonnel streets, which adds a new and most modern business establishment to the many up-to-the-minute stores in Peterborough.

The impressive effect of the modern exterior of the building with the store front immaculate in vitrolite is carried out throughout the whole establishment and the result is a revelation to the visitor who sees the place for the first time. The exterior has a primrose background with American red alluminite flash bars running through and a black border. The names of some of the products carried by the store are sandblasted in American red on the vitrolite. A circular sign over the circular entrance carries the name Johnston's in green Neon lights while a vertical sign running up the building spells out the word "Radio" in red Neon lights, the effect being most striking. The entrance at the corner of the building has been artistically designed, being paved with terraza which is almost impossible to wear out. It is safe to say the entrance and the whole exterior give the Johnston establishment an air of class and distinction that would be difficult to duplicate in any business place in the city or elsewhere.

Beautiful Interior

The same beauty is to be found in the interior where the whole front of the building is given over to a show room. Here the walls are of strawberry ivory with mahogany panels in soft satin finish varnish while the floor is covered with richly colored inlaid linoleum. The result is a rich and colorful background for the many products carried by the firm while further color is added through the medium of red modern furniture. The lighting is semi-indirect, the light fixtures being all chromium-plated. The window lighting in the four large and beautiful show windows deserves special mention for it is controlled by five seperate switches making it possible to cut down the lighting to one light a window for early morning hours or to extend it to the full battery of 32 powerful lights when displays are to be shown to their fullest advantage.

Improvements have not been confined to the main floor or the exterior for Mr. Johnston has had the basement of the building converted into departments, the chief of which is the showroom for used radios and other used equipment. Here was situated the bake oven used by the late Charles Alexander for many years and it illustrates the march of time to mention that workmen building this modern show room had first to carry out 8200 bricks that had been used many years ago in this ancient oven.

A Modernistic Touch

The basement show room has been finished in a modernistic touch, with chrome plated lights while there are electric outlets every three feet for the demonstration of the used radios in stock. Battery radios are also on display in the basement. In another room down stairs is the tire show room with a large supply of tires on display. The battery charging department and electric vulcanizing department have also been moved to the basement and a new feature there is a handsomely appointed women's wash room in conjunction with the firm's service station.

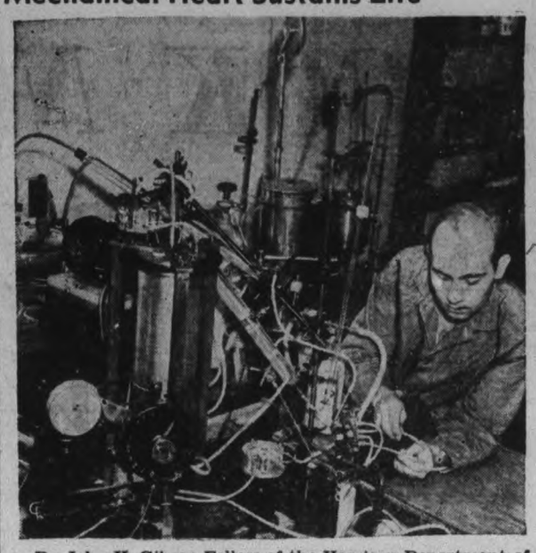
A unique feature is the circular arrangement of show shelves, like a flight of steps, that is located toward the rear of the store and on which are displayed table lamps, electric irons, radios and other similar electric accessories while at the rear there is ample storage capacity. The advantage of this arrangement is these shelves are all electrically wired and have outlets so that as many as ten radios could be demonstrated at once. The readiness with which any particular piece of apparatus can be tried out makes this an ideal piece of salesmanship equipment.

The office of the firm situated in the northwest corner of the building has been modernly finished with a built-in safe while mahogany cupboards enclose and conceal the filing system, stationery supplies and other office equipment.

Worthy of note too on the main floor is the latest type of Kelvinator air conditioner which heats the place in winter and cools it in the summer. This apparatus is in full view and thus is easily displayed for the information of customers interested in air-conditioning.

The whole work has been done by Peterborough folk. The general contractor was W. J. Koster, who has done a splendid job, the electric wiring was all done by William Pogue and speaks for itself, the plastering was carried out by King and Venneto and the plumbing by Fred Goodfellow and John L. P. Smith.

Mechanical Heart Sustains Life



Dr. John H. Gibson Fellow of the Harrison Department of Surgical Research at the University of Pennsylvania, has perfected the first mechanical heart and lung apparatus that can sustain life in animals over periods of time. A laboratory assistant is shown, ABOVE, with the intricate machine, which is the first of its kind. Other mechanical hearts only sustain life in tissues.

Dredging Lakes For Fertilizer

ST. ANACELET, Que., Oct. 27.—(CP)—Near this little Rimouski county village, Agriculture Minister Bona Dussault climbed up on the seat of a newly-erected stationary dredge, pulled a lever and started a $10,000 provincial government experiment in providing the county's farmers with free fertilizer.

About 300 of St. Anaclet's farmfolk and a handful of government officers were on hand to watch 10 bucket-like scoops on the machine pull black marl—a fat, rich deposit—from the bottom of Lac de la Coucles. The marl will be piled on the shores of the little lake alongside the tall dredge and will be given to farmers for the asking.

Used by farmers in many other parts of the province, the sticky marl is valuable as a fertilizer for farm lands. Particularly on the north shore of the St. Lawrence, farmers for years have spread the muck thickly over their fields and ploughed it into the soil after harvest in the fall.

Standing on the platform of the new machine after it had taken several scoopfuls from the lake bed, the agriculture minister said the dredge would be operated experimentally as long as Rimouski farmers cart the fertilizer away. Government experts will investigate its use, which if successful, will start the spread of similar dredgng equipment to other lake shores in rural areas throughout the province.

Mr. Dussault at the same time urged farmers to study organization because "just as long as agriculture is carried on without co-operation in a definite program, agriculture will have difficult progressing."

Dakota Science Fights Drought

MISMARCK, N.D., Oct. 27—(CP).—Application of scientific technique to farming in sections of North and South Dakota where drought has triumphed in recent years holds promise of aiding farmers to "make a crop" in dry seasons.

The technique, evolving principally around making the soil receptive to available moisture and keeping it where it falls with a minimum loss in run-off, consists of new tillage methods, rotation, ploughless fallowing, basin listing, contour ploughing and terracing.

Fallowing of the land is gaining in popularity. Many farmers are following the practice of discing to keep down weed growth on unseeded acres and simultaneously making the soil loose enough to absorb the rainfall.

The practice of conturing and terracing, advocated by the Soil Conservative Service, has enjoyed widespread adoption. Farmers have discovered that land in which wheat has been sown the year following a corn crop produces better than it does when sown to wheat after rye, oats or barley. Cultivation of the corn several times makes soil receptive to rainfall, and thus stores moisture for the benefit of the following wheat crop.

Carl Herzig, who lives 70 miles south of the Canadian border in Western North Dakota, pioneered in corn production in this area, which normally produced wheat and small grains. This year he has 320 acres of corn. He said he had experienced only one corn crop failure in 38 years in a section regarded as too far north for corn to mature.

Will Test Eyes Of Car Drivers

VICTORIA, Oct. 27—(CP)—Anti-freeze and chain effeciency will be only smal! talk for British Columbia motorists this winter. Instead, they're likely to weigh seriously such things as periphy, diplopia and visual acuity.

All three refer to conditions of eyesight. Motorists will find out which they have when they undergo compulsory testing which was provided for at the last session of the British Columbia legislature.

At specified centres in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster, delicate optometrical instruments will find out if the driver has acuity, which means sharp sight. He will be examined also for color visibility, periphy or width of vision, depth of perception and diplopia or double sight.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer expects the centres to be functioning by the end of October. All are in the southern part of British Columbia. The rest of the province will be covered later by roving testing-stations.

Equipment, purchased for $5,000 in the United States, includes "reactometers" for testing co-ordination of the brain and muscles.

G. A. Hood, senior inspector of the motor license branch here, says the tests will not be difficult. Their purpose will be largely educational.

She Doesn't Lige It

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(AP).—Even the Metropolitan Opera House is going modern. Citadel these many years of the world's best music as sung by great artists, it is to be wired for sound so that movies may be seen and heard—on occasion.

See Prospects For New Plant

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 27—(CP)—Prospects of a new industry in the Bonne Bay district are seen in the visit here of Captain F. L. Lewis, who has been connected with the salmon fishing industry in British Columbia for the last 30 years.

The Vancouver businessman is seeking a site for a plant where he hopes to process almost 4,000,000 pounds of fish yearly for the Canadian market. Captain Lewis hopes to establish a plant which will be able to handle 1,000,000 pounds of frozen herring a year. The projected plant would also send out 12 carloads of fresh salmon a season. Haddock, halibut and cod would be other products of Captain Lewis' industry.

Church Walls Set For Future Works

HARWARDEN, Eng., Oct. 27 (CP)—In the new church in Ewloe, near Hawarden, erected in memory of Lord Gladstone, Lord Lieutenant of Flintshire, by Lady Gladstone, reinforced concrete has been used as a protection against fire. An innovation in church architecture is the interior being plastered in such a manner that wall paintings may be executed at a later date.

Strachey Appears For Passport

John Strachey, British author and lecturer, is pictured here, RIGHT, with his attorney when they arrived at the federal court in New York for Strachey's hearing on his application to be permitted to enter the United States. Upon his arrival in America Strachey was sent to Ellis Island for alleged communistic leanings.

JOHNSTON'S NEW SHOWROOM IS ACME OF MODERN DESIGNING

8,200 Bricks Are Removed From Oven In Cellar Of The Johnston Building

The building which through the vision and business acumen of F. H. Johnston has been transformed into one of the most modern and artistic business headquarters in Peterborough, has had quite a history since it was first erected six or seven decades ago, just how long ago as a matter of fact The Examiner has been unable to learn definitely.

From George Schneider, whose father, the late George Schneider, owned the property for something like half a century it has been possible to obtain some interesting information. The building that is now the home of Johnston's was built by a man named James Cook who was a lumberman in Peterborough many years ago and who secured the site at the corner of McDonnel and George streets from the George Street Methodist church authorities after the latter had abandoned their first church on the west side of George street and moved to the present location.

At that stage the old church building which for some little time afterward was used by the late Thomas Bradburn as an opera house was cut in two, one half being left on George street where it now is an apartment house and the other moved to McDonnel street facing the park and now a double dwelling.

Built By Cook

The corner of the church property was a vacant lot and there Mr. Cook erected the building that has now blossomed out into one of the finest business premises in the city. For a short time he carried on a grocery business in one of the two stores that he had built and then John Potvin who was destined to spend almost his lifetime in the confectionery business here and who died only a short time ago became a tenant and for some time did an excellent trade there before moving further up the street to the corner of Dublin, afterwards changing again to the store he occupied so long on George street between Hunter and Brock streets.

There have been many grocers located at that corner. One of them was T. C. Yonge who is now a successful storekeeper in Lakefield and another was Thomas Clements now in business at Warsaw. Still another who carried on a grocery there for some time was the late T. E. Pratt for many years afterward associated with the Fitzgerald Company.

Best Known Tenant

Probably the best known individual to be associated with the corner of McDonnel and George streets was the late Charles Alexander, member of a pioneer Peterborough family and for a long period prominent in business circles here, conducting a grocery at the corner of George and London streets. Mr. Alexander had a bake oven on London street and when George Schneider, Sr., acquired the Cook building at George and McDonnel streets it was decided to make the new property the scene of the bread industry. So Mr. Alexander had a bake oven constructed in the cellar of the building — and incidentally the workmen who have just completed the remodelling of the corner, had to remove the 8,200 bricks from that oven before they could carry out their work in the basement—and began the manufacture of bread on more scientific principles than had been in vogue here before.

He decided that a dough mixer would be in line with progressive development and he made one himself out of birch, getting the design out of Chambers' Encyclopedia. The idea was that the machine should be operated by horse power but unfortunately for science the horse selected for the job proved too wild and finally kicked the apparatus to pieces after which the dough mixer was run by hand. Incidentally it was the first occasion on which dough was mixed by machinery.

Mr. Alexander made bread there for a long time and it was a familiar sight to see him wheeling a large wheelbarrow full of loaves from the bakery at McDonnel street to his grocery at London street.

The corner remained in the hands of the Schneider interests until it was sold some years ago to F. H. Johnston.

Driver Escapes When Car Bursts Into Flames

This spectacular picture was taken just at the instant the midget racing car, driven by Fred Friday, burst into flames during a race in Hollywood. Remaining cool in spite of the danger, Friday swerved his car away from the infield attendants, unbuckled his safety belt, and leaped to safety. He suffered severe burns. A broken fuel line caused the fire which soon encompassed the car from end to end.

Wide Provision In Australia's Pension Plans For The Needy

CANBERRA, Oct. 27—(CP). — A vigorous struggle by Prime Minister Joseph Lyon's government has assured 1,850,000 of Australia's population of almost immediate sickness and disability insurance, old age, widows' and orphans' pensions, whether they want them or not.

The administration, seeking to safeguard the welfare of the Australian people along lines laid down by the International Labor Office of the League of Nations, decided on a contributory insurance-pensions scheme to be operated through approved societies to which the government itself will give initial aid.

The National Health and Pensions Insurance Bill and the National Health and Pensions (Contributions) Bill under the plan will be given effect passed through both Houses of Parliament after five weeks' vigorous debate, in which they weathered attacks by those who thought they went too far and those who believed they did not go far enough.

The prime minister found himself defending the scheme against attacks of Labor members who maintained the government should provide the money to operate it. Mr. Lyons contended Labor's demands would make the scheme actuarily unsound and dependent on the condition of the treasury.

The premier had also to defend the plan against attacks of representatives of industry who objected to making their contribution to the triple-barreled measure. He succeeded, however, in getting it through both Houses, although the vote on third reading in the House was 33 to 28 when five members of the County Party with Labor in opposition.

Details of Plans

The scheme is compulsory and applies to all persons in the Commonwealth over 14 years of age and employed under a contract of service, except persons employed otherwise than in manual labor at more than £365 ($1,442) annually and certain other special classes to whom the scheme is unnecessary or unsuitable.

These benefits are provided under the insurance part of the bills: free medical attention and treatment, including medicine and certain medical and surgical appliances, sickness benefit of 20 shillings ($3.95) a week for a man and 15 shillings ($2.95) for a woman, plus an allowance of 3s, 6d (67 cents) a week for each dependent child less than 15 years old; disablement benefit of 15 shillings ($2.95) for a man and 12s 6d ($2.38) for a woman plus allowance for children. The disablement benefit would go to men and women no longer eligible for medical or sickness benefits owing to more permanent nature of their disability.

Under the pensions scheme old age pensions of 20 shillings a week for man and 15 shillings for women are provided. Ages of eligibility are 65 for men, 60 for women. In each case the usual allowance for dependent children will be made Old age pensioners will be entitled to medical attention and treatment, including medicines, for the rest of their lives.

In event of an insured man dying, his widow will get 12s 6d ($2.38) a week for the rest of her life or until remarriage. Her children under 15 years of age will get 3s, 6d (67 cents). After 1944 the widows' pensions will be raised to 15 shillings ($2.95) a week.

Orphans of insured persons, including widows, will get pensions of 7s, 6d ($1.43) a week until they reach the age of 15.

If previously insured wives elect to become what are known as "special voluntary contributors," paying further sums into the insurance fund, they may become entitled to both old-age and widows' pensions at the age of 60, if, in fact, they are widowed thereafter.

How Paid For.

Initially weekly payments under the scheme will be three shillings (57 cents) for men, two shillings (38 cents) for women. The worker and the employer each will pay half the amount which will be allocated like this: Men's health insurance 12s 3d ($2.33), pensions insurance 1s 9d (34 cents), women's health insurance 1s 2d (27 cents), pensions 10d (17 cents).

Doctors working on the medical side of the scheme would get 11 shilling ($2.09) a year for each of 1,500 patients, giving them an income from that source of £825 ($3,258) a year, without depriving them of the opportunity of practising privately as well. In thickly-populated areas, it is claimed, these "panel" doctors would be able to make £1,000 ($3,950) a year under the insurance plan alone.

The Government figures the initial deficit of the health scheme at a capitalized value of £17,500,000 (69,125,000), took steps to prevent its falling on the approved societies who will provide benefits under the scheme by guaranteeing additional liabilities in the first place and making an annual grant of £900,000 ($3,555,000) which will gradually replace the guarantee with cash.

The initial deficit of the pensions part of the plan is estimated at £264,000,000 ($963,600,000). The Government will make initial grants of £1,000,000 ($3,950,000) a year for five years, thereafter raising the amount annually by stages until it reaches £10,000,000 ($39,500,000).

After five years the men's contribution to the insurance scheme will be raised sixpence a week, after a second like period another sixpence. The women's pensions contribution will be raised only once, sixpence (10 cents) after five years.

Ship Building Is Easing Up

LONDON, Oct. 27 (CP)—Britain's shipyards are less active than a year ago but their production still leads the world.

Tonnage under construction at the end of June was 52,004 less than last year—1,037,073 tons compared with 1,089,077 tons. Tonnage under construction abroad totalling 1,789,829 was 15,790 tons less than the work in hand at the end of March.

Leading countries showed the following construction: Germany, 393,953; Japan, 290,332; Holland, 280,816; United States, 166,870; Italy, 136,785; Sweden, 114,675, and Denmark, 107,075. About 176,000 tons of the construction in Britain were intended for registration abroad or for sale.

Of the world construction amounting to 2,826,903 tons, 36.7 per cent. was being built in Great Britain and 63.3 per cent. abroad.

ERIE CENSUS IS LOWER

The great exodus of young people to other countries and the large number of deaths among elderly people are reflected in the marked decrease in the population of Ireland shown in figures of the last census now being made public.

Italy Makes Sure Of Holding Tyrol

ROME, Oct. 27 (AP)—Italy, possessing a Germanic minority in days when possession of such is regarded as a peril to any of Germany's neighbors, is redoubling her efforts to Italianize the South Tyrol.

Chancellor Hitler's assurance that Germany will respect Italy's Alpine frontiers for all eternity has dispelled fears of a German attempt to annex the region for the present —but Italy is taking no chances on the future.

Figures published by impartial sources abroad place the Germanic population of the South Tyrol at 215,000. Italians say there are but 160,000 and that 80,000 of these are really of Latin origin, leaving a bare 100,000 Teutons.

And Premier Mussolini has said that these are not a minority but merely "the residue of barbarian invasions." He made this statement before the development of the present close friendship with Germany. Since the welding of the Rome-Berlin axis, officials have dropped reference to the "barbarians of the north."

More important than such denials, however, is the energetic campaign to stamp out all trace of Germanism in the region and absorb the people into the Italian race. The Italian policy there today, while firm, appears much more benevolent than in the early days of Fascism.

St. Helena Calls For Needed Help

LONDON, Oct. 27—(CP).—Islanders of St. Helena, the South Atlantic island where Napoleon Bonaparte died in 1821, are in a serious economic plight, according to Bishop C. A. W. Aylen of St. Helena.

During the Great War, the flax industry kept nine mills occupied. Now only one is working. The garrison manning the island, once 2,000 strong, now numbers only 15. The population is about 4,000.

Bishop Aylen outlined the situation in a sermon appealing for funds for distressed islanders.

CHAPTER 32

JUDY TOOK down the number that the butler repeated for her. She called the operator and asked for it.

It was only a minute until a man's voice answered.

"Someone wanted Judy Rogers?"

"Yes, Miss Rogers." There was warmth in the hearty tones. "My daughter Coralee has been trying to get you. Just a moment, please."

"Miss Rogers? I just saw the paper last night and I know all about the dog. Miss Boland asked me to deliver it to that address for her, get the money, and keep still. It was the afternoon before I left . . ."

The comfortable bedroom was reeling, tipping over like an old-fashioned Buster Brown drawing, going into a tail spin.

"What paper, Coralee?" Judy managed to say.

Coralee told her, naming a Broadway gossip column.

"Will you read it to me?"

"Yes, it's right here. Listening? 'What pretty debutante of a couple of seasons ago, now earning her living as a secretary, has been brought on the carpet by her royalty-minded young employer over the disappearance of an expensive canine?'"

"Have you said anything about this to anyone?" Judy asked quickly.

"No, I've been hunting for you."

"Coralee, will you hurry over to the Pennsylvania station? There's a train at 10:17. We'll just make it. We're going out there."

"Then she called Ronald, and gave him the same information.

"Judy, you're foolish. Whatever you know will keep until tomorrow. I have a big day in court. Let's postpone the arena and not throw anyone to the beasts until later."

Judy hung up. Let him be nonchalant. When Abbey needed as advisor, he was present. If he knew what the bomb was that she would spill presently he would have come jumping, she felt sure.

Coralee and Judy asked for Mr. Boland and Miss Abbey.

Abbey's eyes grew so large they were frightening in their amazement as she saw Coralee.

"But how did you find each other?" she asked.

"We were—friends," Judy emphasized the word, and gave the girl's icy hand a quick pressure.

"But I told you to get someone from an employment agency—not one of your own former servants!"

"Miss Myers was never in my employ," Judy answered. The pieces of the puzzle were fitting together. Abbey had thought Coralee would disappear, never to hear of the activities in the Boland household or be seen by anyone in the establishment. Therefore, she had been asked to sell a dog, and the girl, seeing no reason why she shouldn't obey her mistress' orders, had complied.

Mr. Boland entered. Abbey was white and her eyes were wild. Judy Almost relented. But she had her own name to save! Honor was something for which you bled, you died, you fought. Beyond these four walls the story need not go. Not even the count would share the secret.

Coralee did the talking. In a few simple sentences she explained what had happened.

"Well, Abbey?" Mr. Boland turned to his daughter.

"I had a reason—a good reason for my accusation. I couldn't accuse Miss Rogers openly of attempting to steal something more valuable so I fastened it on Boris. She wanted—she knows who she wanted."

Judy's eyes were bright with amazement. Had Abbey guessed that she loved Ronald? Hadn't she carefully concealed it?

"I don't want anything, Miss Boland. Only the clearing of my name in any way you please."

"You did try to get Phillippe, though."

The words were so unexpected that Judy laughed. "Oh, I wouldn't have him with a blue ribbon around his neck."

"What did I tell you, Abbey?" came a lazy colve. The count, in a far corner of the den, had heard everything. He stood up, came into the room. "Suppose you and your nice young lawyer finish up the plans? I find I have pressing business elsewhere. You might just notify the papers that the nuptials of the beautiful Miss Abbey Boland and Count Phillippe Alexis von Gunderfield have gone—pfft."

Abbey's voice termbled. "But I did this for you!"

He crossed the room to her, took her hands in his, and smiled into her eyes. "You didnt love me, and I don't love you. Oh, we had romance and fun and we wouldn't have bored each other too often. We would have had money enough for diversion when we did.

"We didn't pretend love. But there's a field of honor, Abbey—a shining field—and people keep its rules. They don't lie about matters to further their own ends. Goodby, Abbey. You'll be happier without me. Coming back to the city, Miss Rogers?"

Abbey's bewildered whisper was louder than a shout would have been. "But you can't! The invitations, the presents—"

"Ah, my dear, just because the cake is prepared in its small silver boxes and the bridesmaid's ruffles are neatly pressed, that doesn't mean we have to carry through the drama."

For the mercenary count to throw away his dowry in this manner, when the enormity of Abbey's act proved how thoroughly she was under his thumb, amazed Judy. If the count went, though, Abbey would have no reason to hold off Ronald.

When the two were married then she, Judy, could forget the whole situation and work, work, work. It was the only thing that banished trouble, pushed out the confines of time and space, left you free to wing your way unhampered.

The fire in the great fireplace sputtered as the driftwood caught, and the blue-green sparks made a fan of magic flame. The lamps spread lambent shadows of light on the floor; the huge copper candlesticks and platters above the massive shelf that topped the fireplace were burnished in the fire's glow.

Judy spoke, her voice coming back from a long journey where she had gone to learn that kindness is never lost, and hurt is not healed when another wound is inflicted for balm.

"Mr. Boland, Miss Boland, I won't mention this. I'm sorry. Abbey was excited and tired. Only, will you tell that columnist that the matter was cleared and I was exonerated? Count Phillippe, please understand that a woman's emotional nature is intricate and she does things she wouldn't dream of doing, at times."

"I understand women very well, Miss Rogers. You underestimate my talents." The count bowed.

Judy saw the look of distaste on Mr. Boland's face.

Down the room, she saw, too, her own reflection. She wore the brown jacket, over the red dress, and the lights brought out every bright shade in her brown head.

Into the sudden quietness in the great room, there came an eager step. Ronald had come. Come after all.

"Ah, the hero," Count Phillippe greeted him. "So I was right. The heart of the golden haired Abbey is in your pocket. I often wondered where it was."

"Count Phillippe is not marrying my daughter—by mutual consent," Mr. Boland said gravely.

Ronald was wearing his great overcoat. His hat was in his hand. He might have been in from college for a day, Judy thought. His face was so young and eager and untouched by worry. Now, at the announcement, he looked at Abbey—long and searchingly.

There seemed to be a question in that look, an answer in Abbey's response.

The count saw it, too. He crossed to Abbey, drew her to Ronald, placed her hand on top of the lawyer's before either knew what was happening, and said: "Ronald, I suggest that there be a wedding arranged for you two."

Into the quick hush Abbey spoke slowly, clearly: "Ronald, will you marry me?"

The Stars Say . . .

For Friday, October 28.

Conflicting planetary influences are noted among the major operations, some favorable and others offering disagreeable and detrimental situations. The latter call for hesitation, discrimination, and careful manoeuvring, especially in dealing with strangers or strange propositions, where funds are at stake. Shun strife and impulsive moves.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of conflicting experiences. Employers, superiors, close friends and social contacts should prove helpful and trustworthy, while strangers may be detrimental and cause loss of funds or provoke quarrels.

A child born on this day may be constructive, practical, and enterprising, but, at the same time, tempestuous, impulsive, and reckless, possibly because of a highly stimulated state of mind or excitable nervous mechanism. Yet, it should be gracious, friendly, and in demand socially.

Gravesend, England, has asked the Government to ban roller skating on highways.

DOROTHY DIX

The "Commercial Law" May Be as Illegal as the Unwritten Law in Dealing With Husband Stealers, But Oftentimes It is Far More Satisfactory

DEAR MISS DIX—I read in the paper the other day about a wife whose husband fell in love with another woman, but instead of shooting the "other woman" the wife sold out her interest in her husband for $300. I call that a clever woman and a good trader. WIFE.

ANSWER:

So do I. Of course, this transaction may be objected to on the ethical grounds that the wife out-traded the other woman and got more for the man than he was worth. But we may well pass over this phase of the subject: Firstly, because every woman herself writes the price-tag that she ties on a man, and he is worth to her just what she thinks he is worth; secondly, because the woman who robs another woman of her husband is a thief who deserves no consideration or pity from us. So our sympathy and congratulations can go freely to the lady who applied the commercial law instead of the unwritten law to the solution of her troubles.

The advantages of selling a faithless husband instead of killing him are too obvious to need pointing out. To begin with, a roaming husband is the most worthless of all created things. He merely upsets the routine of the house and aggravates a woman's temper by his comings and goings.

To find that such an incumbrance has a cash value is like picking up money in the street or having some one pay you an outlawed debt. It is like ascertaining that the ticket that you drew in the matrimonial lottery, and that you had thought for years was a blank, is an approximate prize, after all.

Of the advantages of getting cash in hand instead of revenge for a husband you have to watch, it is needless to speak. That sort of husband is virtually of no value whatever to a woman, but money is always legal tender for most of the things she wants, and with the price of a no-account spouse many a woman could get more happiness than she has ever had out of her married life.

Of course, there is no fixed price on husbands. They are like antiques. What you get for them depends altogether on how much they have taken the fancy of the party of the second part and how eager she is for that particular piece of bric-a-brac. But even if the betrayed wife took the minimum rate of $300 set by the lady herein-before referred to upon her claim, she doesn't make such a bad bargain.

With $300 she can go to the movies 600 times, whereas that sort of a husband never takes her to any place of amusement at all. With $300 she can buy approximately a box of candy for every day in the year, whereas that kind of a husband has not brought her a nickel bag of gumdrops in five years.

With $300 she can buy her a love of a dress and a duck of a hat and a dream of a cloak, out of which she can get the peace that passes all understanding, whereas the likelihood is that she hasn't had a real good frock for ages, nor a minute's solid satisfaction for years. So I commend this lady's disposition of the subject. Whatever you can get for an unfaithful husband is more than he is worth.

DEAR MISS DIX—A young man and I are in love with each other. Curiously enough, both his parents and mine were divorced when we were very young and we were both thrown on our own resources when we were mere children, so that we have seen and learned a great deal more than other young people of our age. He has spoken of marriage to me, but frankly says that he is not ready to settle down for a while. He also says that he is afraid of life and is trying to beat it, and he feels that our parents' experience is a warning to us but I don't see it that way. What can I do to make him look at things from a different angle?

TULSA.

Answer:

If by "beating life" the young man means attempting to escape the responsibilities and the sorrows of life, he is trying the impossible. It can't be done. Every man's fate is written on his forehead, say the Arabs, and none escape.

I don't wonder that the children of divorced parents get a warped view of matrimony and see it only as a place of strife and bickering, and that they have small faith in a love that is unable to endure the strain that domestic life puts upon it.

But because one's father and mother failed to make a success of marriage is no more reason for not risking it than it would be not to go into the grocery business because ones' parents had failed in that.

Each marriage stands on its own feet. It is an individual matter and is a success or a failure as that particular man and woman make of it. Our fathers and mothers are just as often a warning to us as an example and the children who have escaped from the ruins of a wrecked home should at least have gained the wisdom that would teach them how to build the foundations of their own houses so solidly that they would stand.

Certainly the woman who has seen how her mother's a drunken one, or a no-account one, and has seen the sorrow and trouble it brought on his mother and how it broke her heart and ruined their home life, may feel that he will guard better the happiness of a woman who intrusts her happiness in his hands.

Cert ainly the woman who has seen how her mother's nagging and temper and whining and fretting and slovenly housekeeping drove her husband from her, may set herself, with even morethan ordinary purpose, to keep her husband by being amiable and sweet and pleasant to him.

So there is no reason why the young man should be afraid to marry just because your parents and his made a failure of their marriages. Divorces are not a hereditary affliction. But don't try to urge him into marrying until he is ready for it. No man should marry until he wants to settle down and be a fireside companion.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

The other afternoon Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, made themselves as small as pins and let themselves down into the blue Chinese plate which always stood on the dining-room table.

Now there was a picture on the inside the Chinese plate. You could see a little lake, a bridge going from one bank to the other, a little house, a cherry tree, and a little boat with two figures in it.

Ting-a-Ling in Boat.

As soon as they landed, one of the two figures in the little boat stood up and waved to them. It was their friend, Ting-a-Ling. The other figure in the boat was Ting-a-Ling's neighbor, Ding-Dong.

"Hello!" Ting-a-Ling shouted gaily. "Want to come fishing with us?"

"Come along!" Ding-Dong also shouted to them.

They let themselves down into the blue Chinese plate.

"We'd love to come," Hanid called back.

"But how can we get to the boat?" Knarf asked. "You'll have to row in for us."

Have to Row In.

Here Ting-a-Ling turned to his neighbor and said: "Of course, we'll have to row in for them. But there's no need for both of us to interrupt our fishing. You stay here and I'll row in for them."

"Oh no!" said Ding-Dong. "I wouldn't think of your going to all that trouble while I stay here and enjoy my fishing. I'll row in for them."

Here both Ting-a-Ling and Ding-Dong began talking very loudly to each other. Finally, both of them seized the oars at the same time and both of them fell in the lake.

"Now we'll both have to stay," they said as they stood in the water up to their necks. Meanwhile, the boat drifted to the bank and Knarf and Hanid quickly climbed in, rowed back and pulled their two Chinese friends out of the water.

"Ah! I don't mind this little bit of water," Ting-a-Ling said, smiling as he sat back in the boat again.

"Neither do I," said Ding-Dong, smiling, too. "But, come! We've had enough of talking. We must get back to our fishing."

"We've just decided on a brand new way of fishing. It's quite an improvement over the old way," Ting-a-Ling said to the two shadows. "Now just watch us." Hanid and Knarf wondered what they were going to do.

Vincent Gallivan Wins Hastings Public Speaking Contest

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 27.—Vincent Gallivan, 12, Separate School pupil, captured first prize in the public speaking contest held here last night for the eighth consecutive year, and earned the right to represent Hastings at the county of Northumberland finals to be held in Warkworth November 14. Vincent is a son of Dr. J. V. and Mrs. Gallivan.

Second prize was won by Olive Coughlan ad third by Flora MacDonald, also Separate School pupils. There was a field of ten, four from the Public School and six from the Separate School. The prize winners each received a trophy.

A packed hall faced the contestants who did not appear to mind speaking before an audience for the first time. R. B. Dawson, president of the Trustees and Ratepayers' Association for the county, said that a greater percentage of boys were winning first prizes in contests this year throughout the county, compared to last year when the girls took most of the firsts. He said, through error, the county finals were published as being on November 18 in place of November 14 at Warkworth. The district finals will be held in Brighton November 18.

Following were the conterests and their topics in the order as each spoke: Helen Daly, "Premier Chamberlain"; Vincent Gallivan, "Health Is a Blessing"; Flora MacDonald, "The Need of a Good Education"; Vera Richardson, "David Livingston"; June Mouncey, "The Thousand Islands Bridge"; James Herrington, "Lindbergh"; June Scriver, "Rayon"; Muriel Oliver, "My Hobby"; Dorothy MacDonald, "The Life and Habits of the Eskimo"; Olive Coughlan, "The Development of Radium in Canada.

The speeches were interspersed with choruses by pupils of each Mierman," he says in . . . If he says a play by Separate School pupils and ended with a pleasing solo by Earl Scriver.

Smith Farmer Is Fined $10 And Costs

Albert Mills, 62, Smith township farmer, pleaded guilty in the afternoon session of the traffic court Wednesday to a charge of reckless driving, and Magistrate Gee, remarking that the accused himself had been the chief victim of the accident out of which the charge arose and had already been heavily punished, imposed a fine of $10 and $5.75 costs.

In addition Mills driving license was suspended for a month.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who acted in the accused's behalf, urged clemency for Mills, whom he said had only been involved in one minor accident, eight years ago, before the recent crash.

Crown Attorney McElderry and Provincial Constable David Silvester told the court something of the circumstances of the case, stating that Mills car had collided near Bridgenorth with a Hydro truck and that he had been the chief victim. He was hurt and spent some time in the hospital and his car was very badly damaged.

"The car has been sold to the wreckers, Constable Silvester stated

H. Jones, also defended by Mr Gordon, pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding on Highway No. 7, and was fined $5 and $2.50 costs. It was stated that the accused car had overturned on the highway. In his behalf it was urged that he had been driving an automobile for many years and that this was his first accident.

1,000 Geese Accept Airport Joke Land, as Field Lit

Wausau, Wis., Oct. 27 (AP) A LARGE squadron of flyers apparently running short of fuel, circled the city again and again in the darkness before lights were turned on at the Alexander airport and a safe landing was effected. The flyers—a flock of an estimated 1,000 exhausted geese—alighted on the landing field while attendant who had switched on the light as a joke, gaped. The birds rested until morning.

NORWOOD

Mrs. Walter Bitten Honored By Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Walter Bitten, Queen Street, who is sailing October 28, for a visit with relatives in England was guest of honor of her immediate neighbors at an afternoon tea held at the home of Miss Lila Burgess on Saturday afternoon.

A happy social hour was spent during which Mrs. Bitten was presented with a dressing gown as a slight token of appreciation for the many kindnesses she has rendered to one and all and with it the best wishes of the party for a pleasant journey, it being her first visit to the homeland since coming to Canada twenty-five years ago.

Mrs. Bitten thanked the ladies for the gift and good wishes after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Honored by Church Friends

On Thursday afternoon the ladies of Christ Anglican church, Norwood, entertained Mrs. Walter Bitten at the home of Mrs. E. P. Cuffe.

During the afternoon Mrs. Bitten was presented with a week-end bag, and purse of money as an expression of appreciation for her long and faithful services in the Sunday School and kindred church activities.

Musical numbers, solos, and group singing were rendered by Mesdames Rork, Hill, Wright, Carleton and Reynolds. The hostess served a dainty lunch and a happy social hour was spent.

In His Second 100

DETROIT, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Avery S. Beardsley, who celebrated his 100th birthday today, said his most pleasant memory was of one night during the civil war when a tall, stooped man stopped to chat to him. The visitor was President Abraham Lincoln. Beardsley said he was starting his second 100 years in better shape than his first.

New Plan Checks England's Youth In Safety First Campaign

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 27—(CP)—British school boys and girls starting in the autumn term amid war alarms find several innovations in school work, school accommodation and even after school.

In Wembley - - a fairly new and progressive London suburb -- 12,000 children will be issued shortly with "Walking Licences" with a blank page on which their "jaywalking" exploits can be inscribed by watchful policemen. These are part of a plan to make them "safety-conscious" from early years.

Wembley has been chosen for this experiment because in the last few months an average of 30 children a month of 120,000 have been victims of pedestrian and car accidents.

Three separate types of licences will be issued. Children from five to seven will be given a red licence in book form, similar to the present British driving licence with miniatures of simple safety first posters and elementary safety rules. Children between 11 and 15 a green licence with appropriate rules and a cycle permit to be signed by parent and head teacher allowing them to ride to school

Grownups — particularly school teachers—who see children breaking safety rules have power to report them to the authorities and a black mark on their licences will follow. At the end of the year a survey will be made by the Education Committee under the Ministry of transport and if the scheme is found successful it may be extended throughout the country.

Nurses Come Slowly.

New ideas of how to inveigle school girls into the nursing profession are not working so well. A "School for Nurses" established by the Middlesex authorities, giving 2-year preliminary training to girls between 16 and 18 at a nominal charge, is only one-third full. Though the Middlesex authorities were approached by no less than 22 hospitals asking for this course to be started the school girls do not seem to want to start on what has been publicized as an arduous and ill-paid careers.

Even the fact that generous grants are provided for the pupils who in some instances receive their two-year tuition free of cost and about $90 a year has not lured many scholars. The whole matter is regarded as most serious as there is a growing need for nurses and a number of extra hospitals are under construction.

Children Take Bumps

Innovations in educational processes of the very youngest scholars include recommendation that the nursery school children should not be prevented from falling over if they are inclined that way.

Dr. Alan Maberly, child specialist, told the Summer School of the British Social Hygiene Council at a convention at Hornsea, Yorkshire that a child of one or two years could fall and do itself little injury. Often falls out of prams were between one and two years of age it would fall between two and four years, and it learned things by falling. Recently he allowed a child of 18 months to fall into a pond and the only result was that it gained a healthy respect for the pond.

Colorful Exploits House Sale Recalls

Sale of the house built by Franz von Ellershausen to Ernest E. Lycett of Staffordshire, Eng., recalls the colorful exploits of the German founder of the village of Ellershouse.

The austere structure, nestling in a forest of spruce and maple three miles from the main highway, was built for W. P. Colchester, a young mining engineer, by his father-in-law when he married Louise Ellershausen.

Franz von Ellershausen came to Nova Scotia from Germany in 1862 as a young man. After establishing his home on a farm lot of his huge estate near here, he built a saw mill.

Expanding gradually, he erected a pulp and paper mill on the St. Croix River and then turned his attention to copper mines established at Betts Cove, Newfoundland. He made a profit of more than $500,000 from this industry. The clever Teuton was a scientist in metallurgy and he discovered a process for the smelting of iron ore.

Another project considered by the venturesome German was a plan to drain Lake Ainslie, in Cape Breton Island, bore for oil on the same site and till the soil of the 100,000-acre lake bottom. He had prominent Windsor mining engineers study the feasibility of the scheme, and the lake bottom was reported extremely fertile.

Von Ellershausen began collecting subscriptions for the vast undertaking, but sufficient funds were never collected to complete the plan. Von Ellershausen left Nova Scotia soon afterwards and died in Germany in his 94th year.

H. & S. Meeting Enjoys Talking Pictures

The October meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held in the Auditorium on Tuesday with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. P. Black, opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Reports were given as follows: Secretary's Mrs. Gardner; treasurer's, Mrs. Metheral, and membership's Mrs. Penhall. Mrs. Harrison reported on the Home and School Council meeting, and announced the annual church service to be held in St. Paul's Church on Sunday evening November 6th. Announcement was also made of the study group classes to be held in the Y.W.C.A. on November 9th and 16th. The attendance picture went to Mrs. Windrim's room.

After the business period a program was given consisting of two delightful numbers by Miss Gwen Parnell, elocutionist, followed by two sound slide lectures. "Wardrobe Limited" and "Love In the Kitchen." A talking picture entitled "An Evening With Edgar Guest," completed the program. These pictures, which are humorous as well as educational, are presented by the Central Finance Corporation, and the appreciation of the Association for the splendid entertainment was voiced by Mr. Mattice. The meeting was closed by the National Anthem, with Mrs. Shields at the piano.

Tested Favorite Recipes

(By MARY MOORE)

A friend of my sister's did not know it but she gave us a jar of Pear Marmalade—it stayed at our house because my sister made a call here on her way home, and I invited her for dinner and we had pork tenderloin, and she said my jar of pear marmalade with this would make it tops. It was too, so the friend yielded the recipe which is thus:

Pear Marmalade.

Eight pounds pears, 4 lemons, ½ pound preserved ginger, 8 pounds sugar. Pare the pears and cut in small pieces. Add the sugar and simmer gently for 1 hour. Boil the halved lemons in water till tender, remove the seeds, strain the juice and water into the pears, chop the peel and pulp of the lemons finely and add, together with the chopped ginger. Simmer all gently for another hour or until transparent. Pour into clean, hot sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

W.C.T.U. Hears Report On Provincial

The Rose Room at the Y.W.C.A. was the scene of the well-attended monthly meeting of the local Woman's Christian Union, Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Harold Rehill, presided over the meeting.

A call to worship opened the meeting, with a hymn, a beautiful Scripture reading by Mrs. E. Wand, while Mrs. W. Boorman offered prayer.

Business occupied a brief session, when reports were in order and the following officers and superintendents were heard. Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, the efficient treasurer, gave an account of her finances, while at the same time she augmented her funs as she presided over a table of home-cooking which was quickly disposed of at the close of the meeting, and showed a good net profit.

Mrs. Ed. Manning reported on her flower mission, while the visiting committee convener, Mrs. E. E. Lord, told of visits made.

A very beautiful vocal solo, "Our Father Which Art in Heaven," was sweetly sung by Mrs. Chandler, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. W. Glover.

Report of Provincial.

A feature of the meeting was the splendid report of the 61st Provincial W.C.T.U. convention, held in Hamilton, October 4-7. The local delegate, Mrs. M. A. Morrison, said she was able to touch only the highlights of this four-day conference, in the short time at her disposal.

Addresses during the convention were given by Dr. A. J. Irwin, General Secertary Ontario Federation; Dr. George A. Little; Rev. Norman Rawson, while Dr. Crossley Hunter conducted the Thursday evening devotional service.

The grand gold medal contest conducted by Mrs. J. C. Irwin, and the Peace pageant, were especially mentioned. In the departments under review, several superintendents of the work in Peterborough took part.

Fine work was shown by the educational groups, with many prominent persons participating.

Memorial Service.

A very impressive memorial service, and the noon-tide prayer were features of the Wednesday session.

The president's address, as always, was a message of inspiration to every one.

Tuesday evening's banquet, by courtesy of Hamilton District Union was followed by addresses of welcome, tributes and greetings, responses and songs, all of which were duly enjoyed.

The county president's conference led by Mrs. Wright and the Provincial Superintendents' conference, led by Mrs. F. R. Dale, shed light on many perplexing questions. A contest for trophy cup, with one-minute speeches by county presidents on ways and means of increasing membership, was also an interesting half-hour.

The closing exercises included "God Save the King," "O Canada," "God Be With You," and prayer by the president, and the final adjournment was made.

A plea that every member will bring one new member to the November meeting was made by Mrs. Rehill, and the meeting closed with hymn and benediction.

OLD—BUT MODERN

A Gibson Girl Touch Is Applied to the Mode

By ALICE ALDEN

Those who sigh for the girl of the good old days have not sighed in vain—so far as fashion is concerned. For fashion and the hair stylists have combined to give a Gibson girl appearance to the mode. Miss 1938, riding her bicycle, may be modern, but with her upswept hair she has an old-world look. The girl on the bike, above, wears a dark skirt and a collarless tweed jacket. A string of pearls adorns her neck. As a contrast to the bicycle belle, Hope Hampton poses in an informal riding costume. The beige whipcord jodphurs are topped by a light yellow Rajah silk blouse.

Party Reflects Hallowe'en Spirit

A pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cunningham, Burnham street, when a masquerade Hallowe'en party was held under the auspices of Group No. 4 of the Women's Association of Mark Street Church.

The spacious home was prettily decorated for the occasion, and grotesque faces of Jack O'Lanterns placed around the rooms added to the Hallowe'en spirit. The costumes of the seventy guests, who all wore masks, caused much merriment.

Community singing opened the evening's entertainment, with Mr. Harry Northrop ,organist of Mark Street Church, presiding at the piano. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. W. Hepburn, Mrs. H. Northrop, and Mrs. Rufus Payne. A short reading was given by Rev. Rowland; a piano solo by Mr. H. Northrop; a duet by Mrs. Hepburn and Mr. Payne; and two readings by Mr. Ed. Shortt. A railway skit by some of the members completed the program.

Prizes were awarded for the best costumes, the lady's first prize going to Mrs. W. H. Mitchell as Robin Hood. Mr. H. Northrop in the costume of a Highlander was awarded first prize for the best gentleman's costume.

Prizes for comic costumes were won by Mrs. G. Wyatt in an old time bathing suit costume, and Mr. R. Payne dressed as a schoolboy. Two guests dressed as ghosts drew the attention of the guests, and their identity was not disclosed until their masks had been removed.

After the prizes had been given out the rooms were darkened, and a thrilling ghost story was read by Mrs. Cunningham. A delicious Hallowe'en lunch was served by the social committee, and a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham for their hospitality was moved by Mrs. A. Stevens.

Happily Arranged Event Honors Governor's Wife

Mrs. Albert Matthews, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, will be the guest of honor at a reception which is being given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. P. Ryley, and Mrs. F. S. Vrooman, at the latter's residence, 22 Cambridge street north, Lindsay, this afternoon.

Chrysanthemums and autumn leaves will decorate the drawing-room, and in the silver and grey dining-room rose blooms, American Beauty roses and crystal candelabra will centre the dining table, which will be covered with a Venetian point cloth.

The guest of honor will be attended by Colonel G. A. Weeks and Captain Bruce Matthews. She will be gowned in gold lame, and will wear a brown hat with ostrich feather trimming. Mrs. Ryley will wear a gown of black lace, and Mrs. Vrooman will be gowned in amethyst velvet.

Mrs. W. G. Dunoon, Miss Ethel Flavelle of Lindsay, and Mrs. C. V. Mulligan of Toronto will assist in the drawing-room. Pouring tea will be Mrs. Leigh R. Knight, Mrs. P. Clinton Reed, Mrs. Thomas Stewart, Mrs. J. R. McNeillie, Mrs. Robert Harpur, all of Lindsay, and Mrs. W. R. Whiteside of Toronto. Assisting in the tea room will be Mrs. B. Sylvester, Mrs. Bruce McCarty, Mrs. A. W. Carew, Mrs. F. M. Sutherland of Lindsay, Miss Jean Whiteside of Brantford.

Among the out-of-town guests will be: Mrs. C. Sootheran, Mrs. Gordon Matthews, Mrs. James Matthews of Peterborough, Mrs. H. P. Charters, Mrs. B. H. Howard, Mrs. W. R. Ledger, Miss E. R. Whiteside, Mrs. P. C. Fell, all of Toronto.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Oh, be humble, my brother in your prosperity! Be gentle with those who are less lucky, if not more deserving. Think what right have you to be scornful, whose virtue is a deficiency of temptation....whose prosperity is...a satire?"

—Thackeray.

DEAR FRIENDS:

So many have the habit, if another falls into bad times, to sort of pat themselves on the back (like Little Jack Horner) and say "what a good boy am I?"

But, a turn in the wheel of life can place them in the same position as the other they are looking down their noses at, and they will be just as bewildered, just as oppressed, and just as resentful.

Everyone of us would like to get on, to make good. Some have the ability, but the opportunity is denied them, or their duties lie elsewhere.

Some never had the ability, their will-power is weak, their stamina is low, and were we situated as they have been since birth with all their handicaps, would we have done better?

If you have prosperity, thank God for it, share it, do the best you can with it, but never take the credit for it yourself, for many have worked just as hard and as long, yet prosperity passed them by.

And when I speak of not taking credit for it, I do not mean that we should not be a little proud of our work and our success. We need a confidence in ourselves and in what we do.

Many's a race horse has lost the race because he got off to a bad start, or was crowded too close to the rail, or had some dirty work done to it where the judges could not see it.

And many's the human being has seemingly lost the race in life, and has been condemned to failure and lack of properity because of the same thing.

"The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong." So figure that out when you stick your nose in the air at one less fortunate than yourself, although just as deserving.

And the same thing applies to temptations. If you have never been tempted in a certain manner, how do you know what you would do under the same circumstances? You might fall farther and harder than the ones you condemn so much.

Or you may be immune to that sort of temptation, so what do you know of the allure it has for the other? He may be strong where you are weak, just as you are strong where he is weak.

And so, not one of us, no matter how much of this world's goods we have, can afford to be scornful of another who has not been able to do as well.

If you were born with a placid disposition and the other with a fiery one, why take credit to yourself and blame the other so much? If you love staying at home, while another likes to see as much of the earth as he can, who are you to set yourself in judgment over him?

If life teaches us nothing else, it ought to teach us compassion for the faults and failings of others. For your bewildered humanity, fighting life often without the right equipment, in the wrong environment, needs compassion more than anything else.

So, if your nose is higher than it should be, get it back where it belongs, and say as I have said many times, "There, but for the grace of God, go I."—Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Do You Know?

Silver can be cleaned, and the tarnish removed, by placing it in potato water for about an hour, and then washing thoroughly?

❖ ❖ ❖

If you warm the coffee pot before making coffee, then sprinkle a little salt on the coffee before pouring on the boiling water, the flavor will be greatly improved?

❖ ❖ ❖

Electric cleaners and carpet sweepers are especially recommended for pile surface rugs and carpets? Do not beat or clean with stiff brushes. If a corn broom is used, the sweeping should be done lightly —and never sweep against the pile.

Bulbs Require Plant Food

An impression is often held that bulbs which are newly planted in the fall do not require plant food. It is true that mature bulbs have stored up food in themselves which may be sufficient to produce a flower. But this is only part of the story.

At the time a large number of roots are being formed. These roots seek in the soil for plant food and water which they supply to the growing plant. If there is a deficiency in the soil, the growth of the plant is greatly hampered. The production of a vigorous, perfect flower of normal size and color requires this additional nourishment taken from the soil.

Fully as important as flower production is the development of well matured bulbs for the following year.

Since bulbs start to grow so early in the spring, it is difficult to work plant food into the soil so as to get it down to the bulbs before growth starts. It is therefore advisable to mix a complete plant food thoroughly in the bottom of the trench at the rate of two pounds per fifty feet of row before planting the bulbs.

Also give a light feeding in the early spring. Sprinkle the plant food around the plant shortly after it comes through the ground.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors for their acts of kindness during our recent bereavement in the loss of our loving daughter Jean, also for the many beautiful floral tributes. — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Turriff, Coe Hill.

Mr. J. Rigden wishes to thank all his many friends, especially the attending doctor, the staff of Nicholls Hospital, and the employees of the Oatmeal Department of the Quaker Oats for their kindness during Mrs. Rigden's illness, and their beautiful floral tributes and messages of sympathy received at the time of his recent bereavement.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SEARCH ALL SUITS

IF EIGHT IMMEDIATE tricks are in sight and you need one more for your no trump rubber game, examine each suit carefully. If one suit affords a positive means to get the extra trick and the others have any doubt attached, your preference is obligatory. Go after the sure thing trick, even if it is in the suit led by your opponents.

	♠ A K 9 ♥ 9 8 4 ♦ A J 6 4 ♣ A Q 2
♠ 10 5 4 ♥ A Q 6 3 ♦ 9 8 5 2 ♣ 6 4	N W E S	♠ J 8 3 2 ♥ 5 2 ♦ K Q 7 ♣ J 10 7 5
	♠ Q 7 6 ♥ K J 10 7 ♦ 10 3 ♣ K 9 8 3

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

North bid 1-Diamond on this rubber bridge deal, South 1-No Trump, North 2-No Trump and South 3-No Trump.

Declarer could see eight tricks in sight, three in spades, one in hearts, one in diamonds and three in clubs. He cashed the clubs A, K and Q and was disappointed not to develop his needed ninth trick in that suit. He then tried diamonds by finessing his 10, which lost to East's Q. East cashed the club J and returned a heart to West, who won with the Q and played the A. The spade return was won with the Q and declarer was able to claim the remainder of the tricks.

Instead of floundering around and trying out several different suits, it would have been a simple matter for South to gain the trick he needed in hearts, as it was certain with the cards held in that suit that West could cash only two tricks in it.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable)

How should South play for 5-Diamonds, the spade A having been cashed and the club 6 led?

Saskatchewan Hears Unity Plea By Manion

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Oct. 27.—(CP)—Hon Dr. J. R. Manion, National Conservative leader, bound today for Brandon and the Nov. 14 federal by-election campaign, left with Saskatchewan Conservatives an urgent plea for unity in the Dominion.

"The Fathers of Confederation planned for a nation, not a collection of independent states," he told 1,000 persons who met to hear him following the annual convention of the National Conservative party of Saskatchewan.

"The people of Canada are just as determined to maintain unity as was the north in the time of difficulty in the United States," he said. "The sections of Canada are complementary to each other. The east needs the west and the west needs the east."

(Last week in Saskatoon the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, called on the executive to consider the possibility of setting up in Western Canada an autonomous British state.)

Dr. Manion maintained that talk of secession was "the veriest nonsense" as Northern Ontario, British Columbia and the Maritimes at one time had grievances which caused such talk but nothing developed.

"The people of Canada are just as determined to maintain unity as was the north in the time of difficulty in the United States," said Dr. Manion. "The sections of Canada are complementary to each other. The east needs the west and west needs east."

Special treatment had been given the west with tens of millions of dollars being spent in drought relief. Millions also had been spent in building the Hudson Bay railway.

The Wheat Board

The Conservative government under Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett had considered the west and had formed the wheat board which was a conspicuous success, he continued. The fixed wheat price under the Board proved a benefit to the farmers who also were helped by the Empire trade agreements.

Dr. Manion said he believed the ill-effects blamed on the tariff were greatly over-estimated but he added: "If there is an industry that exploits people behind tariff walls, my opinion is its tariff should be removed and let them compete with the whole world."

Dr. Manion who spoke briefly also before the Conservative convention sessions, will spend today and tomorrow in Brandon riding where the by-election was caused through the death of Lt.-Col. David W. Beaubier, Conservative.

GAS MASKS FOR SPEEDERS

ALDERSHOT, England—(CP).—During the British Army motorcycling championship trials to be held in the Aldershot area October 28 to 29, competitors in the 150-mile race will wear gas masks.

No Plans Drafted For King's Visit Ottawa State

Ottawa, Oct. 27 (CP)

THE following statement was issued today by A. S. Redfern, secretary to the governor-general: "In view of certain statements in the press, it is authoritatively announced that no plans have yet been formulated for the visit of the King and Queen."

While there was no amplification of this statement from government house, it is interpreted as indicating that consideration of the suggestion that the King preside at a privy council meeting while in Canada next summer has not reached the stage of final decision. The suggestion doubtless will be the matter of consideration by the government.

Plea For Czech Aid Is Sent Out

OTTAWA, Oct. 27—(CP). — Appealing on behalf of the refugees of Sudeten German areas, Muriel Jacobson of Hamilton, who recently attended the British Commonwealth Peace Conference, Glasgow, yesterday told a meeting of the League of Nations Society here, "The situation is desperate in every sense of the world."

"These people need money, but as well, a demonstration from outside peoples in the world that there were still some who believe in democratic principles."

They must find a permanent place to live, she said, emphasizing the need for adequate assistance for rehabilitation of three quarters of a million refugees.

Headed by Alice Masaryck, daughter of former President Masaryck of Czechoslovakia, a national refugee committee had been established to distribute voluntary contributions and care for refugees Miss Jacobson said. It was hoped to provide them with work in reconstruction of railways and roads which had been severed by the recent concessions to Germany under the Munich agreement.

"Canada has done nothing so far," said Senator Cairine Wilson, vice-president of the Internationa Federation of League of Nations Societies. She believed the world should accept some of the responsibility for the sacrifice made by Czchoslovakians.

Macchione Hangs

VANCOUVER, Oct. 27—(CP).—Vincent Macchione was hanged at Oakalla prison to-ady—eighth date set for his execution for murdering Michael Hudock three years ago.

The 36-year-old worker, a stocky Sicilian, was supported by Oakalla prison officials as he walked to the scaffold from the death cell. Less than a minute after he walked into the execution chamber Sam Edwards of Toronto released the trap.

It was the first hanging in British Columbia since Arthur Ellis, who died recently, executed Earl Dunbar Nov. 26, 1936.

Plan Drive For Collective Security

To carry out the program on behalf of collective security proclaimed by Senator Cairine Wilson, President of the League of Nations Society in Canada, three organizing and speaking tours are being planned. In the photograph are: Top, LEFT to RIGHT, Constance Hayward, graduate of Acadia University and post-graduate student at the London School of Economics and Political Science, who spent the summer in Europe as Canadian representative at several conferences and as a member of the staff of the League of Nations Secretariat during the 1938 Assembly, who will travel as far west as Brandon, Manitoba; F. E. Figures of London, England, secretary-general-elect of the International Federation of League of Nations, a member of the bar of Great Britain, who arrives in Quebec on November 3 for a tour that will extend through Ontario, Quebec and the maritime provinces; Muriel Jacobson, a graduate of McMaster University, a delegate of the society to the British Commonwealth Peace Conference, Glasgow and a representative of the society in an exploration of refugee and relief conditions in Czechoslovakia, who returned on October 23 and is speaking in Ontario. Bottom row, LEFT to RIGHT: Dr. H. M. Tory, former president of the University of Alberta, who is chairman of the society's national finance committee and is participating in the drive; Dr. T. H. Leggett, formerly president of the Canadian Medical Association, now chairman of the national executive committee of the League of Nations Society; and Senator Cairine R. Wilson, president of the Society.

Council then adjourned to meet Oct. 29, at one o'clock.

Paralysis Lung Weighs 9½ Pounds

Frederick B. Snite, Jr., who has lived in an "iron lung" for more than two years, is shown in a newly invented respirator. The new machine fits the patient's torso, leaving the arms, legs, neck and head completely free. The new respirator only weighs nine and one-half pounds, the old "iron lung" weighed nine hundred pounds. The new respirator takes its power from ordinary storage batteries, which will enable Snite to travel by airplane instead of Pullman coaches.

Shaw Master Of Fiction Judge Jibes As Tailor Boasts Of Author's Praise

Killarney, Eire, Oct. 27 (AP)

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S kind words for his tailor met with a sarcastic comment from the bench during a damage suit hearing yesterday.

A master tailor of Kenmare, near Killarney, introduced two letters from the Irish playwright as testimony to his skill in a suit against a farmer.

One letter read: "The clothes have arrived safely and look very smart. The coat fits perfectly. Many thanks."

The judge leaned down from the bench and interposed: "I've noticed that Mr. Shaw wears the most appalling clothes."

While the court reporter was entering "(laughter)" in the record, the judge continued:

"We have been told that the plaintiff made a suit of clothes for the eminent writer, Mr. George Bernard Shaw, for which Mr. Shaw has expressed gratitude. But Mr. Shaw is a master of fiction."

Shaw in London barked back today at the judge who thinks he wears "appalling" clothes.

"It won't do me any harm," said Mr. Shaw. "People do not see my clothes. They read my books. But I presume my tailors will take action against him. It is obviously an actionable statement."

Highway 7 Plea

TORONTO, Oct. 27—(CP).—Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, today promised a large delegation of the newly formed No. 7 Highway Association that every consideration would be given to the necessity of completing the highway when next season's road building program is planned.

Representing municipalities along the entire route from Sarnia to Ottawa, members of the delegation pleaded for an early start at least on the paving of the westerly section of the road from Elginfield through Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph and Brampton.

The Forestry Commission of England now has control of 1,000,000 acres.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLES, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUN-DOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

Science brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to bring this famous medicine within easy reach of all sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening tablets and harsh drugs.

What It Is!

This is no salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves headaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) as they were NEVER CLEANSED BEFORE.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give grand relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath, and dyspepsia.

IT WILL give you the greatest appetite you EVER HAD IN YOUR LIFE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headache.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis, giving quick relief from pain.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver, and will put the ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, years younger than your real age.

Nations On Sunrise Side Of Hitler Shiver In Fear Of Vassalage

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BUDAPEST, Oct. 27 (AP)—Countries of central and southeastern Europe which lie in the path of Fuehrer Hitler's politico-economic march to the Black Sea are in a state of nerves and in some instances dread.

Having seen German troops goosestepping into dismembered Czechoslovakia these small states are fearful lest their own sovereignty may be indanger ultimately, not through annexation but because of fierce political control which would in effect make them vassals of the Reich.

This feeling is due largely to the fact no great power has announced its championship of little countries living on the sunrise side of Germany. France and Great Britain have withdrawn behind the Rhine so to speak, and the Russian bear is quiet.

It isn't that small countries are hostile to Germany. They are friendly enough, speaking in general terms, but they don't want to lose their independence. The fate of Czechoslovakia casts a heavy shadow across lands from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

So far as the economic angle is concerned all these nations want to trade extensively with Germany. As a matter of fact they would have to even if they did not want to. They are too small to buy each other's products which are largely agricultural and their only big customer is Germany on which they depend for absorption or a great percentage of their output.

The quid pro quo is that they buy German goods. Actually, Naziland trades a great deal on the barter system—motorcars for wheat, for example.

Cut Out All Other Trade

This whole setup gives rise to the general expectation that Hitler will try to form customs unions with all countries in question. That is, there would be trade pacts providing for favored nation treatment to the virtual exclusion of outside countries.

It would be but a step from such sweeping economic control to political overlordship, and that is what small countries are shivering over. They realize Hitler can apply tremendous pressure if he sees fit. Hungary is particularly anxious, lying as she does up against the Reich.

Hungary sells the bulk of its exports to Germany. The latter country, if it chose, easily could apply pressure by cutting off such imports, and, experts here say, such a cessation of trade would bankrupt this country.

At this writing effort is being made to form a defensive chain of countries from the Baltic to the Mediterranean. This entente, as projected, would include at least Poland, Rumania, Hungary, and Yugoslavia and every effort will be made to secure Mussolini's adhesion to the bloc or at least his moral support since the scheme is not intended to challenge the Rome-Berlin axis in any way.

This plan explains in part the desire of Hungary to secure Ruthenia from Chechoslovakia. It also is said to explain Poland's support of Hungarian claims.

Snow White The Bear Falls to Guns At Lake St. John

Ste. Jeanne d'Arc, Que., Oct. 27.

THERE was mourning today among the forest denizens of this Lake St. John countryside—mourning for Snow White.

For more than a week Snow White, a great pure-white bear, roamed the district. Residents, vastly puzzled at his apearance in this section of Canada, organized several fruitless attempts to track down the animal.

Three times at least hunters fired on him and each time Snow White escaped. But yesterday they came upon him suddenly and there was no escape—Snow White fell before the crashing rifles of Henri Gauthier and Marcellin Perron at nearby Savard River.

Talbot To Recover From His Burns

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27—(AP). — Burns suffered by Lyle Talbot, movie leading man, in saving his boyhood pal, Franklin Parker, from Talbot's blazing home will not prevent his return to the screen in a few months, Dr. Jerry Jones said today.

His head and arms swathed in bandages, Talbot was reported in serious but not critical condition at hospital.

Parker, a film bit player, was suffering from shock as well as burns.

Chums since school days in Omaha, Neb., the two men were asleep in a second-floor bedroom of Talbot's Beverly Hills house when fire broke out early yesterday.

Talbot awakened, found Parker unconscious from smoke, and dragged him to safety.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G.T. Fulford Co.

Snow, Fog Delay Mercy Flight

YELLOKNIFE, N.W.T., Oct. 27—(CP).—Snow, squalls and heavy fog prevented airplanes from leaving here today with George Skinner, miner, suffering from a ruptured appendix. He was brought here yesterday only to find the one doctor was ill and unable to operate.

Pilot Mert Wales of Canadian Airways Ltd. flew Skinner to Yellowknife from Thompson Lake, 40 miles east. A flight to Fort Smith, 140 miles south, was planned after Skinner reached the Consolidated Mining and Smelting hospital here and found Dr. O. L. Stanton was ill with bronchial pneumonia. Weather prevented the takeoff.

Pilot Wales had to pull Skinner, employee of Thompson-Lundmark Gold Mines, four miles on a sled before flying him here, 675 air miles north of Edmonton.

Writer Dies Forgotten

CHICAGO, Oct. 27—(AP).—Reger Graham, a song writer of the blues era, who composed the lyric "I Ain't Got Nobody," died yesterday in hospital after an illness of several months. He was 53 and had written about 200 other songs.

Yesterday he was forgotten and alone when he died. His body was taken to the county morgue.

Tories Carry Oxford By-Election

Majority is Slashed But Vote Held Chamberlain Victory

OXFORD, Oct. 28—(CP).—The government, emerging victorious, but with a reduced majority, from the first of a series of by-elections, today prepared to battle in six more tests of popular reaction to the peace of Munich.

Quinton Hogg, who said "it is not my victory, it is Mr. Chamberlain's victory," won the by-election here yesterday made necessary by the death of Captain R. C. Bourne, Conservative.

Mr. Hogg retained the seat for the government with 15,797 votes to 12,363 for his opponent, Alexander D. Lindsay, master of Balliol College and former vice-chancellor of Oxford University.

Dr. Lindsay, running as an Independent-progressive with support from Liberals and Labor, cut in half the government majority established in the general election of 1935 when Captain Bourne defeated P. Gordon-Walker, Labor, 16,306 to 9,661.

On the Munich Deal

The election, fought almost exclusively on the issue of acceptance or rejection of the Munich agreement, brought out 74 per cent of the electorate, an exceptionally high number. About 2,100 more persons voted than did in the last election.

Mr. Hogg, 31-year-old barrister, son of Viscount Hailsham, Lord President of the council in the government of Prime Minister Chamberlain, said after the election:

"It is not my victory, it is Mr. Chamberlain's victory. It is a victory for democracy, for peace by negotiation, and it is a victory for a united Britain.

"It is a victory above all for the ordinary man and woman who have shown again the traditional common sense and judgement of the British elector."

Germany Hurrying Jews To Poland

BERLIN, Oct. 28 (AP)—Authoritative informants said today authorities already had sent several thousand Polish Jews formerly living in Germany back into Poland following a nationwide round-up.

In Berlin alone several hundred Polish Jews were routed from their beds in early morning raids semi-officially explained as intended to forestall application of a new Polish law that might deprive thousands of Jews in Germany of Polish citizenship.

The German government estimated 150,000 residents of Germany are Polish citizens. According to a Polish law coming into effect Oct. 30 all these by that date must have their passports revalidated by Polish consulates.

Jewish circles estimated the law applied to between 4,000 and 6,000 Jews in Germany.

Failure to obtain such revalidation will mean the passport holder never again can enter Poland.

Utilities To Put 2 Billion In New Power

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A dozen big utility companies, joining hands with the United States government in its national defence program, disclosed today they would spend $2,000,000,000 in the next two years to expand the output of electric power.

This amount, said Floyd L. Carlisle of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York would virtually double present such expenditures.

As the first step, the utilities announced "definite commitments" for enough factory orders to supply generating equipment capable of producing 1,000,000 kilowats.

The commitments were given as a part of the administration's efforts to strengthen power facilities of the country's strategic war material manufacturing centres.

Announcement of the program came from a session of the national defence power committee headed by Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, which has been making a survey of power needs since early this year.

Mrs. Kenny Freed On $2,000 Bail

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—(CP)—Mrs. Matthew Kenny, smiling broadly and wearing a smart black suit, appeared today in police court to face an arson charge after three weeks' detention in Psychiatric hospital and was remanded in $2,000 bail until Nov. 4.

Unsuccessful Charles Vance Millar "baby derby" competitor, Mrs. Kenny was arrested after a fire in her downtown Toronto home Oct. 4.

Crown counsel Walter Martin applied for $3,000 bail, but Magistrate Forsythe agreed with defence counsel I. E. Weldon $2,000 was sufficient.

"I understand the (mental) examination is complete and I think $2,000 cash bail will be all right," the magistrate said when Weldon assured him Mrs. Kenny "won't run away.'

Older Boy In Coma; Other Better

Story of Drinking From Bottle Told by Small Boy

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28. — A babbled story of drinking something from a bottle by five year old Eugene Akey, who lies at death's door from an unknown form of poison put a different complexion on the mystery surrounding the sudden illness Thursday morning at Campbellford of Akey and his three year old playmate Ronald Martin.

Today Martin, the younger of the two is up and around but unable to tell much of value because of his age. He however does say that he too drank something from a bottle. The Akey child is in a coma still but regains consciousness at times, and complains of a sore throat and pains across the back.

Playing Near Martin Home

The two children had been playing near the Martin home at ten oclock Thursday morning and collapsed on the floor a few minutes after entering the room where Carl Martin an older boy was working. He immediately carried the Akey child to his home, and doctors were summoned but before they arrived the Martin child had also collapsed. Stomach pumps and antidotes were used and the doctors worked steadily for three hours before the children showed signs of responding. Today the Martin child is believed to be out of danger but Akey's condition is still serious.

When seen today he was in a heavy sleep, and his face was bloated and flushed. He complained to his mother of a sore throat and a pain in the back.. There is said to be no indication of any burning on the lips.

Fail to Agree

Doctors attending the children are unable to agree on the diagnosis. Dr. E. A. Stuart, the coroner who was called when it seemed apparent one child would die believed it was strychnine poisoning while Dr. Bright and his wife who is also a physician lean to the belief it is ptomaine poisoning.

A thorough search has been made of the premises to find any bottle from which the poison might have been obtained but so far the search has been unsuccessful.

Reporters and others conducting the search are also working on the theory the children may have strayed as far as the town dump, and picked up a bottle with something in it which poisoned them. This theory has in no way been substantiated so far.

Parents of both children are at a loss to know where they could have obtained any poisoned food. Both families claimed also that they did not keep strychnine or any other type of poison in the house and this bore out to some extent the theory that it may be ptomaine poisoning.

Japs Brand U.S. 'Open Door' Demands 'Unsuitable'

Says States Must Recognize New Situation; Call on France to Quit Aiding Chinese

TOKYO, Oct. 28—(AP)—The newspaper Asahi said today the Japanese Government considered "unsuitable" the United States' insistence on a continued open door to trade in China.

A new situation existed in the far East because of Japanese advances in China, said the large independent-Liberal newspaper. It predicted Japan would seek to induce the United States Government to accept this thesis.

A 3,000-word protest against "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China, made not published here but Asahi, nevertheless, dealt with the subject of the public in Washington yesterday, was open door policy generally.

The statement by Asahi, said informed quarters to be an official view set forth:

Japan will no doubt fully respect the powers rights and interests in China. But in the light of the fact that the new situation resulting from the fall of the regime of General Kai-Shek of the China Government and the birth of a new Chinese regime, had modified the nine-power pact system, the American Government's insistence on an open door and equal opportunity in China on the basis of the former status in the far East is unsuitable in the present situation."

A New Setup

The paper predicted the Government would attempt to "induce the United States Government correctly to recognize the new Far Eastern situation and acquire a thorough understanding of Japan's real intentions."

An authoritative spokesman disclosed Japan had made a new protest to Paris against continued importation of munitions to the Chinese through French Indo-China.

Premier Prince Konove invited Charles Arsene Henry, the French Ambassador to Tokyo, to discuss this further. A spokesman asserted France agreed to halt the flow of munitions by October but did not do so.

(Possibly connected with the turn of events on the China open door, Reuters News Agency quoted Japanese newspapers that the government was considering a grant of "some sort of political compensation" to Germany and Italy. This would be in return for the consistent good will of those two nations, Japan's allies in the anti-Communist pact, during the China war).

Authoritative sources, meanwhile, looking toward the prospects of peace, said only the resignation of General Chiang Kai-Shek, dissolution of his government and demobilization of all Chinese forces would bring an end to hostilities.

Imperial headquarters, in a new statement on damage by Japanese bombs to the British gunboat Sandpiper at Changsha, Monday, denied the damage was deliberate.

Franco-German Pact?

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP)—A foreign office spokesman disclosed today that France and Germany were considering a declaration renouncing war with each other similar to that signed by Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich.

Such a declaration was said to be only one of several projects being discussed in diplomatic negotiations premier Edouard Daladier said yesterday he hoped would lead to a Franco-German understanding.

Usually well informed circles expected the proposed French-German declaration against war would be somewhat fuller than the British-German statement.

Doctor, Farmer Killed In Collision

TILLSONBURG, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP)—Provincial Police today probed a head-on automobile crash on No 3 highway in which a Tillsonburg district farmer and a Detroit doctor were killed and another farmer was injured seriously.

Dr. Jarritt Warnshuis of Detroit was dead when removed from the wreckage of his car after it collided last night with one in which Dwight Moody, Tillsonburg district farmer, and Harold Booth of Goshen were riding. Moody died a few minutes after midnight today and Booth is in serious condition in hospital here.

Provincial Constable James Allen said a preliminary investigation indicated Dr. Warnshuis' car pulled out from behind a truck a mile south of here and collided with the farmers' vehicle head-on.

Changes Proposed In Warrior's Tomb

LONDON, Oct. 28 (C.P. Cable).—The quiet tomb of the Empire's Unknown Warrior lying near the west door in the lofty beamed nave of Westminster Abbey may be altered by Armistice Day, 1939.

Already an experimental model carried out in wood has been put in place. The model, on the plain lines of the present granite slab, is an oblong box with a pillow headpiece, the suggestion being to use the present commemorative slab as a top piece monument with provision for a niche from which would burn a perpetual flame.

Canon F. L. Donaldson, Archdeacon of Westminster, said the decision on alterations was taken when it was found that thoughtless, unobservant Abbey visitors trod on the slab, which is flush with the floor.

"The grave itself will not be moved," he said. "There will be simply an alteration of the tomb."

However, before a definite decision the Abbey authorities will exchange views with Sir Fabian Ware and other representatives of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Muzzle-load Expert

SADOWA, Ont., Oct. 28 (C.P.). — Fred Grigg, old-time bear hunter of this Victoria County village, celebrated his 89th birthday to-day with the declaration that "bears are cowardly creatures."

"They are mortally afraid of humans, and I have never seen one that would not run away unless cornered," he said.

Mr. Grigg recalled former days when he sat in his Dalton Township home and watched deer and bear wander up to the house. He can recall shooting at least 10 huge black bears with an old muzzle-loading gun.

Marseille Fire Sweeps Premier's Room

MARSEILLE, Oct. 28 (A.P.). — Fire which swept 10 buildings in the heart of Marseille to-day and was believed to have caused three deaths led Premier Edouard Daladier to suspend until to-morrow the Radical-Socialist Conference here. There were 20 known injured.

The fire destroyed the big Nouvelles Galeries de Paris department store, the Noailles Hotel—where Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet were staying—and had spread to two other hotels, a bank and several other buildings.

Before the roof of the Noailles Hotel caved in a police officer broke into the apartments of Daladier and Bonnet and rescued their papers. Besides the roof, three floors of the hotel later collapsed.

The Nouvelles Galeries de Paris store, facing Canebiere Boulevard, where the fire started, was destroyed. The block of buildings in the square bounded by the Boulevards Canebiere and Garibalda, the Rue Paperes, and the Rue Marche des Capucins were imperilled.

The fire was accompanied by numerous gas explosions.

The outer wall of the department store, Nouvelles Galeries de Paris, collapsed shortly after several saleslgirls had leaped from fourth storey windows into nets spread by firemen.

2 Canadian Youths Killed in Smash

PEEKSKILL, N.Y., Oct. 28—(AP). —Two Canadian medical students were killed today and three others were injured severely when the car they were driving to New York for a holiday visit crashed into a tree.

Frank Vance, 21, of Quebec City and Sidney Simms, 27, of the Bronx, New York city died as a result of double fractures of the skull suffered when the car left the road on an "S" curve.

Vance was a reporter for the Quebes Chronicle-Telegraph besides being a student at Laval University medical school.

The injured were:

George Larue, 26, Quebec city, owner of the automobile.

Joseph Vogel, 34, New York city.

William Bernstein, 27, Brooklyn, who suffered a fractured skull.

All were said to be students at Laval medical school.

Bernstein's condition was critical. He was taken to Peekskill hospital with the other injured who suffered lacerations.

Doris Kenyon Weds

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP). — Doris Kenyon, star of the films in the days of silent motion pictures, was married to-day to Albert Lasker, Chicago business man.

The bride's former husband, the late Milton Sills, was a star of the silent movies and a one-time professor philosophy at the University of Chicago.

50 Passengers' Lives Saved As Train Wrecker Fails To Ditch Express

Heavy Ties, Timbers Stacked Along Tracks For 4 Miles Outside Cochrane; Engineer Stops in Time After 1st Bump

COCHRANE, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP)—Provincial, town and railway police pressed investigation today into a thorough attempt to wreck a westbound Canadian National Railways train east of here Wednesday. Police said heavy timbers and ties had been stacked for a distance of four miles along the tracks.

The train, out of Quebec City, first struck an obstruction four miles from the town limits. The crew found heavy poles stretched across the tracks and investigation disclosed several other piles of poles at various intervals along the tracks.

There were 50 passengers on the train, which operates daily between Quebec and Cochrane via Montreal.

Police Chief Walter Secord said a former employee of the railway was being questioned in connection with the attempted wreck, "but we haven't been able to get anything out of him."

Engineer Donald McKinnon of Cochrane said he saw the obstructions in time to avoid a serious accident.

Wreck Almost Sure

"The train apparently struck two or three ties before stopping. The train could push two or three ahead of it but it would not have been so fortunate if it had run into the series of obstructions on the track."

The train was due at Cochrane at 5.30 a.m. the obstructions were bared by the train's powerful headlight.

McKinnon explained that is some spots there was only one tie on the track but in other places there was a whole row of them. One angle iron was stuck in the roadbed between the rails but while it stood two feet above the track it was only six inches into the gravel and the train probably could have pushed it over.

"The person who did it, didn't understand the 'art' of train wrecking," McKinnon said.

Mexico Selling Her Oil To Mussolini

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—The Mexican government to-day began a drive to regain world oil markets and predicted an Italian order was the first of "large sales in that country and its colonies."

Azienda Generale Italiana Petroli of Rome contracted to buy several million dollars worth of oil, the government announced.

Representatives were named to promote sales also in the United States and Brazil. The delivery also was announced of the first 500 tons of a quantity of asphalt purchased by Costa Rica.

Oil has pressed the capacity of storage tanks since Mexico expropriated 17 United States and British oil properties on March 18 in the interests of a program of socialization.

The oil companies controlled seagoing tankers and refused to transport oil from the expropriated wells, for which Mexico has not yet paid and over which litigation still is in progress.

President Cardenas at first said Mexico would sell oil only to the democratic nations. Later he said refusal by the democracies to buy would force the nation to seek other markets.

2,200 Go on Strike.

MONTERREY, Mexico City, Oct. 28 (A.P.). — Twenty-two hundred workers of the American Smelting and Refining Company went on strike on Thursday and appealed to the Federal Board of Conciliation at Mexico City to adjudicate demands for increased wages and other benefits.

Beer Follows Army

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28 (A.P.). — As evidence of the closeness of which Japanese trade follows military conquest, 2,000 cases of Japanese beer were unloaded to-day on the Hankow Bund within three days of the fall of Hankow. A salesman for Japanese typewriters reached Hankow almost with the flag and started taking orders.

Kai-Shek To Fight On Real Battle To Come

HONG KONG, Oct. 28—(AP).—A Central News Agency (Chinese) dispatch from Chungking today said General Chiang Kai-Shek had declared China would fight on and that "a decisive battle" between a united China and the Japanese army would be fought west of the present area of Japanese conquest.

The dispatch quoted a telegram sent by the Chinese leader—presumably from new headquarters somewhere west of fallen Hankow—to the people's central political council at Chungking, provisional capital.

General Chiang's telegram reaffirmed China's decision to continue resistance until a victory is achieved.

Sir Frederick Haultain Plans To Retire As Chief Justice

REGINA, Oct. 28. — (CP).— Sir Frederick Haultain, for more than 50 years a leading figure in Western Canada public life, will resign as Chief Justice of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal on Oct. 31. The 80-year-old veteran of the bench will thus quit a post he has held since 1912.

Sir Frederick announced his resignation last night at a dinner tendered him by the Regina Bar Association. He said that with Lady Haultain he would leave Regina at the end of next week to take up residence in Montreal. Lady Haultain, formerly Mrs. W. B. Gilmour, of Montreal, married Sir Frederick Sept. 8 this year.

Before announcing his resignation, Sir Frederick humorously referred to "aspiring members of the bar who are looking for vacancies on the bench at this particular season." Present were men whose names have

Firm Closes Mine But Lets Crew Dig Winter's Coal

Thorburn, N.S., Oct. 28 (CP)

A GIFT from the Acadia Coal Company, a winter's supply of fuel was being dug today from the Vale Mine by 160-odd miners who were thrown out of employment when the company decided to close the pit.

The company offered to keep the mine operating until the men could mine a supply of coal, expected to reach about 1,700 tons. The men receive no wages and operation costs will be borne by the company.

U.S. IMPORTS NAZI LENSES

Germany is shipping more lenses for optical and photographic purposes to the United States than to any other country.

34,000 Pupils In Dayton Holiday As Schools Close, Funds Gone

DAYTON, O., Oct. 28 (AP) — Thirty-four thousand boys and girls—from kindergarten children who didn't know what it was all about, to high school seniors worried about their June diplomas—went to school today for the last time before a holiday which may last until the new year.

Parents and school officials admitted there was no way to prevent closing of schools after today's sessions because the city school treasury is empty and there is, besides, a $61,000 deficit.

Among older students the reaction was one of dismay. Younger ones chanted "No more pencils, no more books." Parents and police wondered how to keep them busy and off the streets of this industrial city.

"There's a chance," said one senior, "that a group of us will hire a tutor so we'll be sure to get our diplomas."

Rescued From Fire

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 28 (C.P.).—Two sick children, it was learned to-day, were rescued from a burning house near Kinmount by their mother, Mrs. E. Trembley, on Wednesday night. The mother rushed into the smoke-filled upstairs to effect the rescue. She wrapped the two children in blankets and carried them to an adjoining farm. The house was destroyed.

Wolves Begin Howling So Sudburyites Plan Fall Drive

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP)

ALTHOUGH this Northern Ontario district has not had a taste of winter so far, wolves are getting bolder and talk of a mass hunt on the animals is in the air.

Reports today from the Hanmer area said wolves had entered farmyards the past few nights and howled throughout the night. No damage to livestock or fowl was reported, although farmers fear raids with the coming of snow.

Game Warden Joe Loiselle suggested today that trappers begin a drive on the wolves if they wish to protect their winter trappings and other game. Wolves were reported seen in large numbers near Burwash and Cartier district.

Kentucky Mine Widower 34, Weds Tot 10 After Mother Signs Girl's Age 15

PRESTONBURG, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP) — Rosie Columbus has changed her child playthings for a husband.

Dr. L. B. Sheppard, Johnson County health officer, said today records in his office showed the girl is 10 years old. She was married Monday to 34-year-old Fleming Tackett, a widowed coal miner.

The marriage licence was obtained at the Floyd county courthouse here by the girl's mother, Mrs. Grace Columbus, who gave Rosie's age as 15. At Paintsville, Dr. Sheppard said health office records showed the girl was born in Johnson county Feb. 12, 1928

The Rev. W. G. Ratliff, employed as a coal mine blacksmith, said he pronounced the marriage vows in a simple hill country ceremony in front of a newly-constructed log cabin near here where the couple will live. Coal-blackened miners attended the ceremony.

Two-room cabin is located on Abbott Creek three miles north of Prestonburg in an isolated section of rugged western Kentucky mountain country.

Violin Wizard Balks At $70 Union Fee, Drops $3,000 for 30 Minutes' Work

LOS GATOS, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP)—Because he refuses to join a Musicians' Guild at a cost of $70, Yehudi Menuhin, American violin virtuso, appeared likely to lose a $3,000 engagement with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Declaring his "freedom as an artist" was at stake, the 21-year-old genius declined to join the American Guild of Musical Artists, a requisite before performing with the Philharmonic Nov. 3 and 4.

Menuhin insisted it was not a question of paying the membership fee or his attitude toward organized labor that prompted the rebellion, but that as a free lance artist, he could not see why he should be required to sign a paper saying he "authorizes Agma to be my exclusive agent."

Leiland Atherton Irish, executive vice president of the philharmonic, seemed equally adamant in Los Angeles when notified of Menuhin's stand.

"If he doesn't want to play, I'm sorry, but he either will or he won't," Irish said. "It is not a question of labor or of unions. It is a matter of $70 against $3,000 we would have to pay him to play twice for about 30 minutes."

Police To Stay At Strike Says Hepburn

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—(CP).—Hon. N. O. Hipel, Ontario Minister of Labor, sought today to effect a peaceful settlement in the Humberstone Shoe Company strike at Port Colborne, where for the past week the labor dispute has been marked by sporadic outbreaks of fighting.

Premier Hepburn announced the minister intervention in the strike last night after refusing a request of a delegation of Humberstone strikers that provincial police be withdrawn from the area. He said that " as long as there is any lawlessness, they will stay."

Some 200 of the company's 400 employees went on strike when the plant re-opened recently after a shutdown. The strikers seek union recognition. Several persons have been injured and a number of pickets have been arrested during melees before the factory this week.

"The proper authorities" will conduct an investigation into conditions in the strike area, Mr. Hepburn said in warning the strikers not to attempt further interference with those entering and leaving the factory. He denied charges voiced by the delegation that police "manhandled" the pickets.

Havana Next Stop In King's Vacation

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 28.—(CP Cable.)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada sailed for Havana yesterda yaboard the liner Rotterdam after a four-day stay in Jamaica.

While his plans were not known officially, it was believed he would stay in Havana only one day and then leave for Miami, Fla., where he would entrain for New York on his way back to Canada.

He declined to comment on the Canada-West Indies trade treaty. "That is a matter for the Canadian parliament," he said.

He told reporters he had enjoyed "every minute" of his vacation trip to Jamaica and had formed the "most delightful" impressions of the island.

Cigar smoke clouded the Empress hotel to-day as Kiwanians became politicians for one meeting. Newly elected president W. A. Richardson and his two vice-presidents, Bill English and Vern Morphet supplied cigars at the insistence of all members.

Britains Whip Hand In Far East Doomed Says Jap

Berlin, Oct. 28 (CP-Havas)

BRITISH predominance in the far east "is done forever," no matter how "magnanimous" Japan is inclined to be, Toshio Shiratori, new Japanese ambassador to Rome, said in an interview today cabled from Tokyo by the Leipzeiger Neustenachrichten's correspondent.

Japan will play the decisive role in China from the military and diplomatic points of view as well as the economic. "A customs union is also foreseen," he added.

Vandervoort Inquest Adjourned 2 Weeks

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP) —Inquest into the death of Carman Vandervoort of Trenton was adjourned yesterday for two weeks after medical evidence and identification.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan asked for the adojurnment so that "police can make a more complete investigation. This is a rather serious matter from the public point of view."

Vandervoort was a passenger in a truck driven by John Vance, Bancroft, which overturned three miles north of Madoc Tuesday night. Mrs. Vance was not hurt, but Vance suffered painful burns from acid when a storage battery in the truck was smashed.

Chinese Attacking Outside Canton

HONG KONG, Oct. 28 (A.P.). — Chinese reported to-day a general counter-offensive was developing north-east of Canton, occupied by Japanese last week.

The Chinese were said to be attacking the invaders near Tsungfa and Lungmoon, respectively 40 and 80 miles to the north-east.

Severe fighting was reported at Leunghow, near Tsungfa, and the Chinese said the Japanese were retreating and facing defeat unless reinforcements arrived.

A high military official, believed to be General Ho Ying-Chin, was reported en route to Kwangtung Province to direct operations against the Japanese.

WILLARD BATTERY MEETING.

Local sales representatives of the Willard storage batteries held a meeting at the Empress Hotel last night attended by thirty-five men from the district extending from Campbellford to Bowmanville. R. C. Rolph of Toronto, sales manager, was the visiting speaker.

Hungary Agrees To Offer From Prague

BUDAPEST, Oct. 28 (A.P.). — Hungary and Czechoslovakia appeared to-day to be on the way to a peaceful settlement of their long-standing and often-threatening territorial dispute.

The Budapest Government in a note last night accepted the Czechoslovak offer to cede to Hungary about 3,860 square miles of land with predominantly Hungarian population.

Hungary also agreed military experts should meet immediately to organize Czech evacuation and Hungarian occupation of the area and that German - Italian arbitration commission should deal with eight disputed districts.

Czechoslovakia had demanded that the mediators settle the dispute and fix a time for the occupation of the whole area demanded by Hungary.

Diplomatic circles believed, however, that this would be no major obstacle because German and Italian mediators were likely to permit Hungary to occupy the undisputed regions as soon as the arbitration committee was formed.

Hungary also adhered to the original demand that plebiscites be conducted in autonomous Slovakia and Ruthenia, but it was understood the government felt the request necessary to satisfy Hungarians.

Czechs Continue Guard.

Czechoslovak soldiers, meanwhile, continued guarding entrances to main roads and bridges into Hungary. Thousands of troops were concentrated in that important shipbuilding and railway centre.

Residents of Komarno, described as a pure Hungarian community of 24,000 people, were prohibited from staging demonstrations or displaying Hungarian flags. A curfew regulation was enforced.

Hungarian troops on the Komarom side of the Danube were ready to cross the bridge whenever the order was given.

(Andrew Brody, who resigned Wednesday as Premier of autonomous Ruthenia after holding the post two weeks, was arrested on a treason charge after police said the National Government's central parliamentary committee accused him of negotiating secretly with Hungary for secession of Ruthenia).

Beck's Stock Rises Over Czech Crisis

WARSAW, Oct. 28 (AP)—The ill wind which blasted Czechoslovakia has aided the political fortunes of Colonel Joseph Beck, Poland's forceful foreign minister.

It is widely held in Poland that the colonel defied the might of Russia during Czechoslovakia's hour of trial and got away with it. Although Moscow undoubtedly would give quite a different version, the foreign minister's stock has gone up. He became a sort of national hero during the Czechoslovak crisis.

Beck's admirers proclaim that he is the strong man of Poland and predict this comparatively young statesman—he is 44—will one day be head of the government. That would mean he would be virtual dictator.

been mentioned for judiciary appointments.

Educated In Peterborough.

Sir Frederick was born in Woolwich, England, Nov. 25, 1857, and came to Canada as a boy. He received his High school education in Montreal and at Peterborough, Ont., graduating from the University of Toronto with his B.A. degree in 1879.

After finishing his law training at Osgoode Hall, he moved to Macleod, now in Alberta, but then a police post in the Northwest Territories. He opened the town's first law office.

In 1887 he won the Macleod seat in the Northwest Assembly, holding it by acclamation until 1905. Sir Frederick served as president of the council, equivalent to a premiership, as Attorney-General and Commissioner of Education.

Throughout his career he believed in having only one province instead of two between Manitoba and the Rockies. He stood firm in this belief but in 1905 the Dominion government formed Alberta and Saskatchewan. He was knighted in 1916.

A Hacking, Racking Persistent Cough

The constant hacking, racking, persistent cough that sticks to you in spite of everything you do to get rid of it is the kind that is dangerous to neglect.

The longer the cough sticks, the more serious menace it becomes to your health.

But, there is a remedy to relieve coughs—coughs that won't let go. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is that remedy.

It has a healing and soothing action on the air passages, and acts as a disinfectant of the respiratory organs, destroying the germs that may produce serious complications.

Coastal Guns Good As Any In the Empire, Better Than European, B. C. Boasts

Victoria, Oct. 28 (CP)

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S coastal defence guns are "as up-to-date as any in the British Empire and better than those in any European country," Lieut.-Col. P. L. Fortt, R.C.A., in charge of defence works on lower Vancouver Island, told a service club luncheon here yesterday.

"The defences of this coast are and will be adequate," he said. All the guns had not been received "as England feels—and reasonably so—that her needs are more important than ours."

Col. Fortt said the guns at Esquimalt, naval base near here, were exactly the same as those at Singapore and other important defences in the empire. While it was true some of the guns were 20 years old, it should be known that modern artillery weapons had not been altered or improved on and the only changes made were in the method of firing.

Lad's Wheel Stolen He Rushes To Dead Brother

Calgary, Oct. 28 (CP)

A NEW "meanest crime" was added to Calgary police records last night.

At the time of the accident in which five-year-old Billy Clark was killed Tuesday, the victim's elder brother, Robert, 16, had his bicycle stolen.

Young Robert was among the members of the Clark family to go to the scene when news of the tragedy was received. He laid his bicycle down near the crowd. Someone in the crowd rode it away.

Billy Clark was crushed to death under a street car as he played near his home.

Brantford Choir Escapes Bus Fire

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., Oct. 28—(AP).—Thirty-six members of the Canadian choir, of Brantford, Ont., escaped unharmed early today when a (Greyhound) bus caught fire while climbing a steep grade near Cherry Creek.

Most of the singers were asleep but the driver, Mark Golonski, of New York, awakened them and assisted them in escaping. Then he, assisted by the volunteer frie department and men from a nearby garage, extinguished the fire, confining the damage to the front of the bus. Golonski suffered minor burns of the hands.

The choir, travelling in two buses, was en route to New York for a recital at Town Hall Tonight.

Percy Edwards Heads C.C.F.

Percy Edwards was elected president of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation at the annual meeting of the club in the Moose Hall last night. Other officers are: Vice-president, Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas; secretary, Gordon Powell; treasurer, Ed. Hotson. William Johnston was appointed an honorary member of the executive.

The club reported a financial surplus and the most encouraging year of progress in its history. Part of the surplus is to be set aside for the deposit in the next federal elections. The report of the co-operative committee indicated the extent of its activities especially in the purchase of coal at cost for members, leaving a credit balance of a few cents. This committee was authorized to continue its work in the season now approaching. The membership committee reported the largest paid up membership since the C.C.F. was organized here, and the social committee its teas and draws and other affairs which had incidentally made a contribution to the treasury. The meeting reflected the ability of the members to carry on their business enterprise in addition to the main interests of their club. Confidence has been engendered, and it is now felt that the C.C.F. has taken root in the community.

Peterborough Lodge Visits Janetville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Oct. 28. — The Right Worshipful Grand Mistress of Ontario East, Mrs. E. Moore of Lindsay was a special guest at the regular meeting of Silver Jubilee L.O.B.A. in the L.O.L. Hall here on Monday evening when Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. of Peterborough was also present as guests and to exemplify the Scarlet degree to a number of candidates.

During the meeting a business session took place when it was decided to accept the invitation from Orono to put on the Orange degree there on November 8, also to call a special meeting to make arrangements for the third birthday anniversary celebration which falls in the near future.

Speeches were given by R.W.G.M. Sister Moore of Lindsay, Sisters Wright, Campbell, Pilling, Monk, Le Long, Elliottson and Brother Manley, all of Peterborough; Sister Everson and Brother E. Moore both of Lindsay as well as several local members expressed their pleasure in having the Grand Mistress present as well as the Peterborough friends and their appreciation of the degree work which was put on so efficiently.

During the evening the Grand Mistress, Mrs. Moore of Lindsay was presented with a token of esteem and an accompanying address, the former presented by the W.M., Mrs. E. A. Bradburn and the latter read by the P.W.M., Mrs. H. Johnston.

Mrs. Wilson, W.M. of Vimy Ridge was also the recipient of a gift presented on behalf of the lodge by Mrs. W. Hanna, while the address was read by Mrs. R. J. Burn.

The happy evening concluded with lunch and a social half hour.

Practically Slavery, Jobless Protest Of Toronto's Relief Proposals

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)

LABOR OFFICIALS described as "practially slavery" the Toronto Board of Control decision to put all able-bodied single unemployed to work levelling and grading harbor commission lands along the waterfront.

"The North fought the South to eliminate that sort of thing in the United States," said President George Watson of the Toronto District Trades and Labor Council. "It practically comes to slavery."

"We won't work for those terms," spokesman for single unemployed sheltered at Wellington House said last night when they learned of the board's decision. The men would not receive cash payment for their work under the plan, it was understood, but instead would be given food, clothing, shelter and medical care.

The men were willing to work two days a week as suggested by the controllers, but at the usual harbor rate of 45 cents an hour. Under those circumstances, they claimed, they would be able to obtain accommodation which would remove them from the unemployed class.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28 (C.P.). — Wheat futures prices were relatively steady on the Winnipeg Market to-day on confirmation of frost reports in Argentine. Prices slipped somewhat when United States markets softened on a forecast of rain in Winter wheat belts. Values closed ¼ lower to ¼ higher, October at 58¾, November 58¾, December 58½ to ⅝, and May 62⅛ cents.

The session opened comparatively active and prices showed firmness for the first time this week. Lack of demand and scattered selling precipitated a decline later.

Overseas houses and exporters offered early support.

Dealings were made up of local spreading, although some Southern houses showed interest. Export business was confined to a few loads.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA

OVER A CENTURY OF BANKING SERVICE

3819B

May Establish Cavan Township As Pheasant Breeding Area Department Official Advises

The entire executive of the Durham and Northumberland Fish and Game Association was returned to office for another year at the annual banquet at Holdaway's Hotel in Bewdley last night.

J. S. Thorne of Millbrook was returned as president; Harry Holdaway of Port Hope and B. K. Williams of Warkworth as vice-presidents; E. Sidey of Bewdley as secretary; and Robert Holdaway of Bewdley as treasurer.

It was a hilarious meeting that the association held, abounding with good fellowship and high spirits; not one discordant note was struck during the entire evening. Every seat in the banquet hall was taken by sportsmen from the two counties.

The department of game and fisheries is deeply appreciative of the work of conservation being carried on by members of the association, J. McCartney of that service told members in a brief address at the conclusion of the proceedings. "We must have the cooperation of sportsmen if we are to make any progress, and we feel we are getting that cooperation," he said. "There has never been a time in history when sportsmen have been so conscious of the fact they must conserve game if they are to continue to have good hunting. We used to think that there was an unlimited quantity of game that we could kill as we pleased, but now we realize that such a conception is false."

Open Discussion.

The meeting took the form of an open discussion immediately following the dinner. First item that came up was in regard to a closed season on muskrats. Such action by the government would merely open up the market to dealers in the United States and Quebec, declared William Dixon of Bewdley, long time member of the association. Rats are still as plentiful as ever in the marshes surrounding Rice Lake, he maintained. He claimed that furriers who are overstocked with pelts are behind the move.

Mr. McCartney said the department of game and fisheries has no intention of establishing a closed season on rats for the entire province. Some districts have requested that such action be taken because rats in their areas are fast disappearing.

While carp form no menace to the game fish of the district, they are most certainly disturbing the ducks, was the opining of the meeting. Mr. McCartney told members that the government is not concerned about the scavenger fish as regards game. His contention that they do disturb the water around rice beds and eat the rice that falls, leaving no food for ducks settling on the water, was borne out by W. J. Martin, of Bowmanville, game warden for Durham county.

Pheasant Sanctuary.

Possibility that Cavan township may be established as a pheasant-breeding sanctuary next year was evident following a discussion by Mr. McCartney. He told of the success the department has had in Western Ontario, where between seventeen and twenty thousand pheasant eggs have been distributed during each year for the past decade and a half. Last year 25 areas were opened up after 5,000 pheasants had been released in them. All had been well established for a number of years. This year 50 townships wereopened after between 15,000 and 20,000 birds had been released.

Each township has control over the licenses, collects a small fee from township residents for the privilege of shooting the birds, a larger one from outside hunters. The hunt lasts only two days, but brings in a good deal of revenue, he said. "I think this is going to be the shooting of the future," he said, claiming such licensing eliminates poaching and places responsibility for law observance in the hands of each community. The pheasant is again becoming well established in Western Ontario as a result of these stringent game laws and there is no reason why Eastern and Central Ontario could not follow suit, he believed.

"We plan to come further east next year," he said, and members agreed that Cavan township would be a suitable place for the establishment of such a sanctuary. A deputation will approach the township council on the matter, since it involves no expenditure and promises a good return in fees to be collected when the birds are sufficiently established to permit short open seasons.

Satisfied with Buck Law.

The "buck law" has proved satisfactory, Mr. McCartney told the gathering when the discussion came around to deer hunting. He said that the number of deer in the province is increasing steadily, due to the law by which the doe is more protected than the buck. "The doe is the easiest target," he said. "The buck is generally able to take care of himself. If there is a danger spot you men know that the buck generally tries to find some way to make the doe go into it while he stays out."

One member objected to the killing of so many bucks. "Any man who is a breeder knows the value of a good sire in his stock and it's usually the biggest and best bucks that are killed off, leaving the puny fellows to carry on the race," he said.

Sucker fishing in the spring came under discussion briefly when some members objected to the law which prohibits them to be caught. "You need have no fear along that line," said Alf Minaker, game warden for Northumberland county. "There was not a single prosecution in the entire county last year." Someone recalled that in Peterborough, men had been haled into court for just such infraction of the game laws. "We can't be responsible for the actions of Mr. Lyons," commented Mr. Minaker. The arrest of sucker fishers in Peterborough last spring had a bad effect on the entire district, was the opinion of one member. It taught disrespect for laws that were just, he maintained.

Motion pictures were shown at the conclusion of the meeting by Mr. McCartney. A vote of thanks for "one of the best banquets we have ever had" was voted to the proprietor of the hotel and member of the association, Robert Holdaway.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears go to your druggist and get 1 ounce Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.—(Advt.)

Wanted Colonies

Germany has made it clear to France and England that Germany's colonial empire will have to be restored before a general European peace can be guaranteed. Of the former German possessions in Africa, shown in black, France holds a mandate over Togoland (1) and Cameroons (2) with a minor interest allowed to Britain in both; South Africa (5) holds a mandate for Southwest Africa (3) and Britain a mandate for Tanganyika (4).

Translation of The Pilgrim's Progress into its 200th language is reported in London.

Two Additional Pictures Are Added To Denne Collection

EARLY DAYS in the history of Peterborough were further recalled Thursday as T. H. G. Denne prepared to add to his collection of old photographs of this city. Mr. Denne has placed two additional prints in the Robert Simpson Company's store here for exhibition before they are removed to the Public Library.

One picture was a photograph of two bank notes issued in 1836 by the Newcastle and District Loan company. "I consider this one of the most important pictures in the collection," said Mr. Denne. "Why, that's only twenty years after Adam Scott came here." He said the bank notes had been furnished by Sir Joseph Flavelle for reproduction.

The other picture is of the home of Dr. Robert Kincaid, southeast corner of George and Murray streets. It was taken in the early 1850's. The house is still standing, and is occupied by a physician, Dr. J. A. Morgan. It has altered in appearance, now being of red brick while Dr. Kincaid's home was of white plaster. Dr. Kincaid was one of the city's leading practitioners, once was a candidate for member of parliament, Mr. Denne recalled.

Manitoba Farmers Back Confederation

BRANDON, Man., Oct. 28.—(CP)—United Farmers of Manitoba, their annual convention concluded, were on record today as supporting confederation.

The resolution, adopted at the final business session yesterday, urged citizens to discourage "forces at work in the different parts of Canada that tend to produce discord among the people."

It followed another approved resolution prompted by an explanation to the convention on Tuesday by Frank Eliason, secretary of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, of that body's move to study possibility of Western Canada autonomy.

The resolution supporting unity within the Dominion was introduced by J. L. Brown, former Liberal M.P. for Lisgar, after he warned against possible misinterpretation of the first resolution which stated: "We trust that the finding of the special committee set up by the U.F.C. to seek for economic betterment of western agriculture may result in happier times for our Canadian peoples."

Judgment Is Reserved In Liquor Case

After most of Thursday had been taken up in hearing the case which was commenced earlier in the week Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., yesterday afternoon reserved judgment for a week in the charge against Mrs. Mary Hayton of keeping liquor for sale.

When the afternoon session began Mrs. Hayton was under cross-examination by Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., and the first question he asked "What is the source of your income?" precipitated a strenuous protest from W. J. Arthur Fair, Mrs. Hayton's counsel who argued that the question was unfair and irrevelent.

However, Magistrate Langley ruled that the question was a proper one and Mrs. Hayton told of receiving money from two boarders and a roomer and of having some insurance money.

Mrs. Hayton's evidence concluded the case for the defense and Constable Clark was recalled by Crown Attorney McElderry. In regard to Mrs. Hayton's statement that there had been four cartons of beer in her car he said there were only three when he searched the automobile and he also said he had seen a man place three cartons in the car at the Hayton home.

Judgment Next Week

Both counsel argued the case at some length and after they concluded Magistrate Langley announced that although he had his mind practically made up he had decided to reserve judgment for a week, adjourning the case until Thursday next.

On another charge against Mrs. Hayton of illegal possession of liquor there was also an ajournment until next week and a liquor charge against Harry Carter was similarly adjourned.

During yesterday afternoon's hearing Mr. Fair protested that his client had been locked up from Sunday until Tuesday and was not even supplied with blankets. He vigorously criticized the accommodation for women prisoners at the police station, declaring that the women's cell was in plain view of everybody going in or out of the back door.

"That's a matter for the police commission," said Magistrate Langley. "It has nothing to do with this case."

"I don't care who is responsible, whether it is the police or the police commission," said Mr. Fair, "but I do know that the accommodation is disgraceful in a city of this size."

"Better bring it before the police commission," suggested the magistrate.

"I intend to do so," replied defense counsel.

Must Make a Living

Leopold Macaulay who was house leader of the Conservative party during the last session of the Legislature, and who has been mentioned frequently as a strong candidate for the leadership of the provincial party, announces that he is not a candidate. That came of course as a surprise as Mr. Macaulay has frequently stated he was going to contest the convention.

His statement is simple and direct, and his reason for dropping out of the leadership race is one which can readily be understood. Mr. Macaulay says it is necessary for him to make a living by following his chosen profession and on account of that admittedly formidable reason he cannot consider being leader of the Conservative party.

If the leadership of the Conservative party were to fall to his lot he would be pretty much the property of the party as far as demands on his time are concerned. There would be a degree of distinction honor and public service attached to the position, but Mr. Macaulay feels the need of making a living, and he could not do much in a professional way and attend to his political duties at the same time.

We much prefer to have men saying plainly they are dropping out of politics in order to make a living than having them enter public life for that purpose. Political history in this country shows that most of the men who have devoted years to political life and public service have not made money out of it. Many of them could have done much better in a financial way had they attended to their business privately, and it is entirely to the credit of our provincial and federal governments that such a statement can be made. The candid manner in which Mr. Macaulay announced his withdrawal from the leadership contest is admirable.

Another Roosevelt Speech

President Roosevelt has made another declaration on world affairs and although no names of countries were mentioned it was plain as a pikestaff he was referring to Germany and Italy. Some of his utterances were so direct that there could be no mistaking their mission. For instance:

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the threat of war."

He might as well have filled in the blank space with the name of Germany for that is exactly what Germany did prior to the Munich agreement.

In another outburst he said:

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the dispersion all over the world of millions of helpless and persecuted wanderers with no place to lay their heads."

That refers to the policy of Germany and Italy toward the Jewish people and President Roosevelt might just as well have said so bluntly.

In a plain enough way he reiterated the sentiment contained in his address at Kingston. To quote:

"And we are determined to use every endeavor in order that the Western hemisphere may work out its own interrelated salvation in the light of its own interrelated experience."

A good speech and one which is needed. If such a message had been made while the agreement of Munich was not yet concluded the effect might have been tremendous. But late as it is, there is fair warning to war-loving nations that their path is not going to be a one-way street. The President told them plainly that if they were going to keep on arming they would be met on that same basis by his country, and if they wanted to talk business on the basis of actual peace through disarmament then he was ready for that too.

An Old Sore Spot

It takes little enough to start controversy or argument. The suggestion was made that the city of Toronto ought to pay something to maintain the University of Toronto. Apart from the revenue which the University collects as fees the province puts up some $1,600,000 and the city of Toronto pays nothing at all.

About 3,500 students living in Toronto have all the advantage of a University training without having to go away from home for it. They are free from the question of board, transportation and other incidentals connected with living away from home.

Western University located in London has received a great deal of encouragement right in the city. People there have put up several hundreds of thousands to provide for building and the city itself makes a direct grant of some $45,000 per year. When Hamilton secured McMaster University it was due to the effort of Hamilton citizens and their willingness to spend their own money, and we believe there has been encouragement from the county and other sources apart from the government for Queen's.

But Toronto, receiving the major benefit from the University in its midst has done nothing at all. The claim is made that they do not collect taxes on university property, but that helps not at all when it comes to paying the bills. President Cody has suggested that the city of Toronto might well consider making a grant, and of course that has the effect of raising the hair on the back of the neck of Toronto officials. It always works the same way. Toronto has taken all it can get and will continue to do so. We do not expect to see it stated in the news columns some day that Toronto has made a grant of $100,000 to Toronto University.

The Jew In Germany

The Nazi policy in Germany is to get the Jews out of the country and at the same time make it almost impossible for them to leave. When the Nazi party seized power they found there had been a law passed prior to their regime for the purpose of preventing the flight of capital from the country. That law levies an impost of 25 per cent. on the capital of any person leaving Germany and the operation of it has already netted the Nazis $120,000,000.

With the Jewish folk it is different. Many of them would consider they would be doing well enough if they could depart and lose only 25 per cent. of their possessions. But when the Jew goes he must leave behind 65 per cent. of his wealth in blocked marks so he has actually 10 per cent. of his wealth when he leaves Germany. And the German authorities having stripped him of nearly all that he possesses know well enough the difficulty to be faced in entering a new land—if one is open—because he has been reduced to a state of pauperism.

What the outcome is going to be no one knows. Within recent days 100,000 Jewish salesmen in Germany found they had nothing more to do because it had been ordered they could no longer be employed or work as salesmen. Caught like rats in a trap, they are neither killed nor liberated, but tortured and mauled incessantly.

The Quints Come First

We have heard now and then there has been too much attention paid to the Dionne quints. It has been argued that there are plenty of other children in the country which need attention more than they do, and that they are likely to be spoiled and so on.

But one of the first announcements concerning the proposed visit of Their Majesties to this country is that they desire to see the five little Dionne girls. So that sets those little folk in rather a high place.

So far we have heard nothing of their desire to see Nigara Falls, the Rocky Mountains, our various parliament buildings, our big factories and so on. Perhaps they know they will see plenty of such places without mentioning them in advance. But they do want to see the Quints.

So the five occupants of the Dafoe Hospital get the premier position and as far as points of human interest are concerned they deserve it. We hear so much of them we are apt to forget they are the only ones of their kind in the world and tourist trade figures will also reveal they are by far the greatest attraction we have to offer.

He's Doubly Guilty

Magistrates have cases come before them which must cause them concern. Probably there are a good many routine cases where it is not difficult to make punishment fix the crime at least approximately.

But here is a case in point. A man in a city court is charged with theft and it is not his first offence. According to the records he took his son of 16 years along with him to do the stealing by breaking into premises. Thus both father and son were in trouble.

On the next occasion this man took along a youth of 17 years who had been rooming in his house and now another young chap is in trouble. The Crown in prosecuting the case referred to the accused as a "modern Fagin responsible for his son's crime and now for getting this other youth into trouble."

It probably has occurred to the magistrate that he is dealing with a hard case. Hard because it is unnatural. Even if the average father realizes he is not what he ought to be and knows he has blundered along and made plenty of mistakes, he will cherish the hope that his son will go right. He will expect he is going to be a better man than his father. It works the same in regard to schooling. If the father has had little of it then he will probably desire that his son shall have the chance which was denied to him and he will sacrifice to make that possible. That attitude is not unusual; it is merely human nature working in a normal and wholesome way.

When we come to a case where a father is instrumental in dragging his own son into crime and after that pulls in yet another youth then we are dealing with an abnormal person. He is so wrong in his out look that he is likely to be wrong all the way through. The magistrate who is trying such a case cannot dispose of it lightly because the father is doubly guilty.

Dora Not Flustered

Dora Smith runs a beauty parlor in the town of Strathroy; her sister works in the telephone office and her mother is not in good health. Dora's father has been dead for twenty years and the family moved to town from a farm some years ago.

Dora bought a ticket on a sweepstake and of course that was a wrong thing to do; against the law and all that. But the ticket turned out to worth $150,000. Dora was taking no chances and she sold a half interest before she knew what it would be worth, and in all she receives $80,000 as her share. Probably more money than has ever been in possession of Dora and her relatives combined.

Of course reporters are always sent to see such people and they always ask the same sort of question about what the winner intends to do and so on. But Dora wasn't saying much. At the moment the only thing she thought about was that she would now be able to purchase a new cage for her canary, something she had wanted to do for some time but had never been able to afford it. Apart from that she intends to keep on with her little beauty parlor. So it does look as though Dora's head was put on right side up.

One reason why highways have to be increased in their capacity to care for increased traffic is given in these figures: In 1915 daily traffic over the Hamilton-Toronto highway was 286 vehicles. A count taken in 1936 raised the figure to 42,000, and it is probably greater today.

BUNGLED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfa is a healthy lass, you'd turn to see her as she'd pass, but she has days of woe; right now when it comes evening time, she's much inclined to sigh and pine, she has no place to go.

¶ Alfalfa was not well content, to go with one bright little gent, who courted her a spell; she dated with another jay, together they went out to play, the time they had was swell.

¶ And in between another lad, determined but a trifle sad, received Alfalfa's smile; he brought his father's car around, together they toured miles of ground, of hotdogs ate a pile.

¶ Alfalfa was quite happy then, she juggled three attentive men, or saw the danger sign; her dating system seemed so good, and worked exactly as it should, she portioned out her time.

¶ But number one called on the phone, one night she said she'd be at home, Alfalfa was not there; the little johnny with the car, had come and taken her afar, to sniff the evening air.

¶ And then all three found out her scheme, and none of them today are keen, Alfalfa fooled them all; Alfalfa pulled a sad mistake, and now all she can do is wait—for some one else to call.

Colonies Will Be The Hard Point

PROSPECTIVE demands by Hitler for the return of German colonies have not awakened any responsive chord in the British Empire. And the demands outlined in the memorandum Gen. Goering was reported yesterday to have sent to Lord Londonderry will not tend to ease the feeling.

As fears spread that Premier Chamberlain might seal his pledge of Anglo-German friendship by handing the Fuehrer a slice of Colonial cake, British residents in Colonial and mandated areas began putting the screws on Whitehall:

From Dar-es-Salaam, coastal capital of Tanganyika, a special meeting of the two-year-old Mandates Committee, formed to preserve the territory's integrity cabled to London:

"All British Europeans, Indians and natives of Tanganyika are seriously perturbed by the prospect of an early development of German colonial claims.

In view of repeated pledges that Tanganyika is essentially part of the British Empire we request an immediate reassurance."

South Africa settlers sent a similar cable to Capetown, and Indian organizations got in touch with their government at New Delhi.

Into the Nairobi offices of Major F. W. Cavendish-Bentinck's pro-British Tanganyika Defence League, formed two years ago, hurried an endless stream of recruits.

Infuential news organs in East Africa warned Mr. Chamberlain he must not assume any negotiations with Germany about East Africa could be carried through without prior knowledge and consent of its settlers. Front-paged was the question: "Will East African public opinion be consulted, or will this territory be presented with a fait accompli as in the case of Czechoslovakia?"

❖ ❖ ❖

IN SOUTH-WEST AFRICA — mandated territory of the Union of South Africa—settlers attempted to forestall Hitler by demanding that an immediate plebiscite be held, to decide finally and irrevocably whether their colony should be annexed to the Union. As a Union province, South-West Africa's destiny would be in the hands of the Capetown parliament, and completely outside the jurisdiction of any arrangement which the British Premier might make from London.

Farther south, in General Hertzog's Dominion, the Press broke a long silence. Local bodies on which British citizens are in a majority passed resolutions demanding the immediate cession of the province to Union and termination of the mandate. The powerful Cape Times asked, "Why should South Africa voluntarily hand over territory on her borders from which an aggressive state could subject every important city in the Union to the perils of air bombardment?

"Why should South Africa make a concession which would compel the immediate establishment of military, air and naval precautions on a large and expensive scale? Why should South Africa help to establish on her borders a political regime wholly in conflict with our democratic system?"

In Australia opposition politicians showed open resentment of suggestions that mandated New Guinea should be handed back to Germany, a course which would bring Japan's closest ally, and probably Japan itself, right to the doorstep of the Commonwealth.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN PRE-WAR DAYS Germany's colonial empire covered more than 1,000,000 square miles. Its population was 13,690,000—though fewer than 25,000 were German settlers.

Biggest territory was German East Africa—now Tanganyika—a 384,000 square mile area with 7,750,000 people. Fertile and well-forested, its natural resources include gold and diamond mines, tin and salt. Of its products, the principal are coffee, cotton and sisal hemp.

Most ambitiously-developed of all Germany's colonies, it was parcelled out between Britain and Belgium after the war. All but a few hundred German settlers, who elected to adopt British citizenship, were repatriated and their property sold.

Of the present European settlers about 2,000 are Germans, 1,000 South Africans and 7,000 British. From India have come some 35,000 Asiatics, and there are 5,000,000 natives. Not until 1905 was slavery abolished.

For 15 years of British rule, German and British settlers lived quietly together, but Hitlerism set Germans bawling for return to the Fatherland.

Mostly one-crop farmers, they had been hard hit by world depression, and according to Nazi agitators, the cause of this was the local British administration. To such Germans as supported the local Nazi cells, liberal subsidies were poured out from Berlin; those who opposed were ostracised.

DICTATOR DATA.

(Neal O'Hara, in New York Post)

AS REICHSFUEHRER and Chancellor, Hitler draws $24,000 annual salary, but big-hearted (you know Adolf), turns it all back to the national treasury. And that other celebrated statesman, Mussolini, gets only $5,250 annual pay as Premier of Italy, but as Minister of Interior he can dip his paws into a special fund for all he can grab. But aside from salary considerations, both Germany and Italy pay for all the palaces, mountain retreats, food, automobiles, private trains, etc., that their dictators enjoy. . . . And while we're on the subject of salaries, F. D. R. reputedly hasn't saved a cent of the $75,000 yearly pay he's collected since going to the White House.

• Radio Advertising On Sunday

WHATEVER restrictions Canadian law may put on the commercialization of the Sabbath, the radio apparently disregards them with impunity. Not only does the radio publish a great volume of advertising on Sunday, a proceeding for which a newspaper would be yanked through the courts, but radio promoters sponsor entertainments which are purely commercial in character. Studio staffs here in Toronto and other centres under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation are engaged in Sunday labor which cannot be described either as works of necessity or mercy. Contests in which the participants, compete for prizes are staged for the purpose of stimulating the sale of goods, the extraordinary idea being that if listeners like a program they will buy the particular timepiece or teething-ring that sponsors it.

One of the things says the Toronto Telegram which the nationalization of the radio was supposed to do for a long suffering public was to take some of the superfluity of advertising time off the air. The old Radio Commission has to be given credit for having made a gesture in that direction. But under the direction of the Governors of the present Broadcasting Corporation, the amount of advertising which is permitted to be crowded into a program interval is larger than ever. Although it was represented that an increased radio fee would enable radio to depend less on advertising for its support, the length of advertising chatter has increased rather than decreased.

Much of the Sunday advertising which originates in Canada is open to criticism, and all of it is probably in defiance of the law. Seven days a week there is too great a volume of advertising on the air. The radio listener who has paid $2.50 for twelve-months' enjoyment of his radio is entitled to expect a reduction in the advertising content of air channels within the jurisdiction of the fee collecting authority.

To The Editor

THE CANADIAN CHURCHMAN

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—A friend in Toronto has sent me a copy of the Canadian Churchman dated October 20. It might aptly be called a Peterborough number, and should have a wide circulation amongst people of all classes in this city.

A sermon by Canon W. P. Robertson, B.D., rector of St. John's Church appears on one of the first pages. The sermon deals with the visible organization known as the Anglican Communion, and what it stands for in faith, ministry, and worship. There is a broad spirit in the article, and in the closing paragraph Canon Robertson shows that the Anglican church is but part of the one, Holy Catholic apostolic church.

'Peterborough—Yesterday and Today' is the title of an historical sketch by F. M. De La Fosse, the courteous and obliging city librarian. The writer is at home in this subject, and people who have not lived here very long should read this informing and well illustrated sketch of the city's history.

The article 'The Church in Peterborough' deals mainly with the clergymen who founded the Anglican church here, and their heroic labours. We have word pictures of Rev. Samuel Armour the first missionary, Rev. R. H. D' O'Ller second rector of Peterborough, Rev. R. J. C Taylor,, Rev. Mark Burnham, Rev. J. W. R. Beck and other pioneers of the church.

There are also interesting sketches of the foundation of the various parish churches in hte city, St. John's, St. Luke's. All Saints, and St. George's. The Catholic spirit of the paper is shown in 'The Book Shelf' a page in which recent books are reviewed. There is a review of Rev Stuart C. Parker's book on 'The Guest Chamber' or, Parker is a well known, and greatly beloved Presbyterian minister in Toronto. On the same page is a warm commendation of 'Stars in the Sky' a book by Archer Wallace of the United Church Sunday School Department.

We congratulate the editors upon this splendid edition of their paper, and commend it to the reading public of this city.

E. W. YOUNG.

PRAYER OF PEACE

Let every nation, every tongue,
Their thanks to God for peace be sung;
Who in His love and in His care
Hath spared our sons and heard our prayer.

For Oh, how near we were to war,
This world of ours, both near and far;
But when we called to God above
He proved that He is ever love.

He calmed the seething waves of rage,
As He hath done from age to age;
May those who write this history down
Give thanks to God the world around.

For He is not like human aid
Of whom we oft might be afraid;
But He who keepeth Isreal still
Will every needful wish fulfill.

We thank Thee for our men of prayer,
Who cast on Thee their every care;
And trust that thou wilt show the way
To follow in this troubled day.

Oh God of heaven, still hear our prayer,
And ever in Thy holy care;
We leave the nations for repose,
For we believe our Father knows.

TREAT 'EM ROUGH.

(Detroit Free Press)

A DISPATCH from Panama says that four Germans were caught taking pictures of Canal Zone fortifications under conditions which admit of only one reasonable conclusion.

If the story is correct, the four were guilty of an offense which their own Nazi government punishes by prolonged imprisonment and sometimes by execution.

The Amercian Government will not inflict the death penalty. It is loth to go so far with spies even in war time. But if it has the goods, it should do something drastic enough to convince foreign agents that practicing espionage in the United States is no holiday picnic.

An impressive warning or two in the form of punitive action will help far more than dozens of sensationally advertised official denunciations and warnings.

WHAT HITLER DID.

THE St. Marys Journal-Argus shows how that town was affected by Hitler's Berlin speech:

A local incident relating to the Hitler broadcast of three weeks ago, has just leaked out. Now it can be told why a street transformer in St. Marys went fluey, causing the current to go off in many residences. A highly esteemed lady of the town, whose name we forbear to mention, had turned on her radio to hear the German Fuehrer's speech. As his notes mounted higher and higher, the lady's countenance registered disgust, which disgust, became intensified when the remarks of the frenzied Nazi were repeated by the interpreter.

She did what a lot of people would have liked to do. Her foot shot out in the direction Herr Adolf's voice was coming from. Bing went the radio, bang went the hydro street transformer. And no doubt mental telepathic waves accompanied the lady's gesture. We hope that Hitler felt the impact. At any rate, he softened a bit the next day.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THEY THAT trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches; none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him....That he should still live for ever, and not see corruption. For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others. Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwelling places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names....

Be not thou afraid when one is made rich, when the glory of his house is increased; for when he dieth he shall carry nothing away: his glory shall not descend after him.—Ps. xlix, 6, 7, 9-11, 16, 17.

Charge them that are rich in this world that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.—II Timvi, 17-19.

Contractor's Work Is Found Most Unsatisfactory In Taylor-Ketcheson Case

Awarding A. E. Taylor, Toronto contractor, $2,450 in his suit against D. V. Ketcheson for whom he built a house at the west end of Weller street, Mr. Justice Kieler Mackay late Thursday afternoon allowed Mr. Ketcheson $7,953.92 in his counter-claim against the plaintiff, concluding an action that was begun last February, and occupied the court seven days.

His Lordship complimented the opposing counsel, A. L. Elliott for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., representing Mr. Ketcheson, for their zeal, resource and fairness and also for the assistance they had given him throughout the trial. At the same time he sharply criticized Mr. Taylor for his conduct in his contractual relations with the defendant.

"This case has taken up seven or eight days, and I shall not review the facts," Mr. Justice Mackay said in delivering judgment. "I find as a fact that the work of Taylor was done in a most unsatisfactory way. I find there was falsification of construction resorted to in several particulars. The brick wall had to be taken down and reconstructed. The chimney was so faulty as to be a fire hazard. Drainage, if attempted at all, was done very badly with resulting moisture, and nothing was done to protect the building by heating from the severity of winter.

Says Ketcheson Justified

I find the defendant was entirely justified in taking the action he did in obtaining an injunction restraining the plaintiff from further construction. I was unable to understand why a contractor, presumably reputable, should have fallen so short of the standard of integrity as to make the construction of this house a living witness to that of one whose sole desire appears to have been to perform the work in a haphazard way.

The defendant has established that the cost of completing the building in accordance with the specifications of the contract was $7,953.92, and at that time there was due Mr. Taylor the sum of $2,000. The defendant heard that there were substantial unpaid bills, resulting in the filing of mechanics liens ranging between $2,000 and $3,000.

I find that the defendant is entitled to $7,953.92, less the $2,000 due Mr. Taylor at that time, about June 9th, under the agreement. The plaintiff says he did considerable work after that date but I find the amount of work was less than he attempted to lead the court to believe. So, I allow him $100 for that work. I also allow him $350 for extras, for which he claimed $549. There is a considerable difference between the figures of the plaintiff and the defendant, and being unable to arrive at a definite conclusion I am forced to take a more or less arbitrary figure between the two. Judgment will therefore be for the defendants for $7,953.92 less the sum of $2,450.

Costs To Ketcheson

I was disturbed about the matter of costs, but as the trial proceeded I became convinced there was an element of fraud attempted by the plaintiff to pass off faulty construction, and I feel I am warranted in assessing costs against the plaintiff. I think Mr. Ketcheson should have engaged an architect for his house."

His Lordship said he was expressing no opinion whatever in the matter of liens.

"I wish to say to counsel that I am grateful for their very honest, earnest and exhaustive efforts to lay all the facts before me. This was not an easy case, and a lot of time was taken up. I feel that I cannot leave without commending the zeal and refreshing resources brought to bear by both counsel in aiding the court to determine the facts."

A Major Concern

During the argument Mr. Justice Mackay said he had been deeply concerned not so much about the poor construction of the building in the first place, but about the spurious construction. "It looks very much to me like rascality. Mr. Elliott has done very well considering the difficulties he had to surmount."

Mr. Elliott had argued that there had been substantial compliance with the contract by Taylor, but certain work proved defective. On January 5, 1937, Mr. Ketcheson owed the plaintiff $2,000 by the terms of the divisible contract which provided for installment payments to the contractors at progressive stages of the job. On that date, Mr. Elliott said, Ketcheson was entitled to withhold an amount to cover the defects then existing; but he didn't do so. His attitude was that he wouldn't pay Taylor anything because of the defects and not because the money was due the contractor. Taylor was engaged by Ketcheson because of the good job he had done on the Leeming house.

Witnesses had estimated that the defects could be corrected at a cost of $1,030, and consequently there should be a judgment for $970 to the plaintiff. Mr. Elliott contended that Mr. Ketcheson was in default because he had not paid the $2,000, when it was due, as required by the agreement and was not entitled to anything shown to be needed at that time. Not one statement was made of the cost of repairs, and that should have been provided. If an architect had been engaged, Taylor would have received his payments on the basis of the architect's certificates.

Debts Incurred

Mr. Gordon said that when the $2,000 was due, Taylor had incurred debts with dealers for $2,850 for which liens might attach the property. And the contractor had agreed to keep all payments for materials in order. Mr. Gordon said there had been deliberate scamping on the job, and Ketcheson had a right to call in a contractor to remove the defects and reconstruct, which Taylor had earlier promised to do himself. The contract was abandoned by reason of a court judgment which found Taylor had been from October 26, 1936, to September 14, 1937, on the job and the work was unfinished.

Hazard of Agreement

Mr. Justice Mackay—"How was Ketcheson to know on June 5th the exact amount necessary to remedy certain defects?"

Mr. Elliott—"That was one of the hazards of the agreement as drawn by Ketcheson without an architect. Ketcheson simply said: 'I owe you nothing.'"

"And neither did he." His Lordship commented. "Admitting it was badly done, Taylor's work drives me to the conclusion he was content to pass on the Ketcheson construction defective in character, which must be unsatisfactory to any reasonable person. I am trying to find one way in which Ketcheson was not exceedingly reasonable with Taylor, until they got into police court. What gives me real concern is the falsifying of construction. Taylor hasn't attempted to justify it."

Arm Signals Still Play Big Part In Modern Transportation

Despite the rapid developments of modern transportation, arm waving still plays as big a part as in the days of the Pony Express rider, who waved his arms in the distance to denote his approach and the need of a fresh horse. With event of the Trans-Canada Airlines, scenes like the ABOVE, common enough at all United States airports, will be witnessed at airports all across the Dominion. Here we see a pilot of a modern airliner receiving instructions by arm-signals from a ground crew member. From LEFT to RIGHT; two hands straight up in the air is the signal to the pilot denoting the gate he is to use in unloading his passengers; right hand straight out at right angle from body means taxi to gate, all clear; two fingers of right hand extended means taxi out for take-off, all clear; crossed arms in front of face is the order to come to a complete stop; index finger and thumb of right hand forming a circle tells the pilot he has arrived on time.

800 Are Served At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 28.—The fowl supper held on Tuesday evening under auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was reported to have been one of the most successful events of its kind in recent years. The attendance estimated at between eight and nine hundred taxed the capacity of the huge auditorium but members of the Ladies' Aid who were in charge of the affair were quite equal to the occasion. Mrs. F. Adamson, president of the society, was general convenor and was capably assisted by Mrs. Jesse Locke, Mrs. Thadeus Patrick, Mrs. W. Scott, and Mrs. I. B. Hutcheon as assistant convenors. Decorations for the long rows of tables were carried out chiefly in the yellow and black motif of Hallowe'en and the flowers which graced each table were mainly marigolds which blended admirably with the season. Tables fairly creaked under the weight of the plenteous food with roast chicken heading the list, and an assortment of salads, cakes and pies that would appease the most fastidious.

The program was arranged by the organist and choirmaster, Albert Hazell. Nor was any of the true delightfulness of the programme lost by the fact that jovial Dr. O. C. Watson was chairman of the evening. His wit in putting over the program was an added asset to the evening. At the outset Rev. B. Simpson Black expressed his delight at seeing such a huge attendance and cordially welcomed them on behalf of the Ladies' Aid and the congregation of St. Andrew's church.

The opening number was a bagpipe selection by H. Spencer and John Campbell, following which was a piano solo by Don Bennett; vocal solo, Miss Ruth McCredie; reading, Mrs. P. M. Locke; vocal solo, George Lucy; reading, Beryl Spencer; piano solo, Miss Jean Scott; vocal solo, Frances Henry; coronet solo, Capt. D. Sharpe; vocal solo, Miss Monica DeCarrol; violin solo, Bruce Elmhirst; vocal solo, Raymond Wragg; mandolin selections, James MacDowell; vocal duet, Mrs. C. J. Vessy and Mrs. Geo. Lucy; guitar duet, Mrs. Josephine and Doris Locke.

An interesting part was a talk in two parts on her recent tour of Europe by Miss Hazel Atkinson whose treatment of what might easily have been a rather dry subject made the address delightfully interesting.

Marmora Store Looted Of $100

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Ont., Oct. 28. — A car owned and driven north on No. 37 Highway by William Houghtley of Ottawa was involved in an accident near Blakely's store at Thomasburg. As he was rounding the sharp turn at that point, he collided head on with another vehicle, driven by W. J. Nelson of Trenton. Both cars were badly damaged. Peter Pomery, Toronto, a passenger in the Nelson car, suffered scalp wounds, while Gertrude Bauerlein of Trenton, also an occupant, injured her leg. The Houghtley car was considered a total wreck after the smash. Chief of Police J. Clair Hayes, Tweed, was called to the scene and after an investigation decided charges would be preferred.

Gaining entrance through a rear door, robbers entered the premises of the F. N. Marrett & Company general store at Marmora on Wednesday night and stole merchandise valued at over $100, it was discovered by Fred R. Wells, one of the firm's associates, when Mr. Wells opened the business on Thursday morning.

The robbers bored two large holes in the rear wooden door and apparently reached inside to remove the lareg iron bar, which secured the door. Upon gaining entrance, the robbers stole sox, shirts, sweaters, windbreakers, and shoes. It is believed by investigating police that an automobile was used to transport the stolen goods out of the village. County Constable Percy Gray, assisted by Sergeant H. Thompson, and Constable William McBrien of the Ontario Provincial Police, investigated the robbery.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight! (Advt.)

Nats Favored To Wallop Imperials, Tigers To Take Cubs, And Beaches To Take Orfuns

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The impression is gaining ground in eastern football circles that Sarnia Imperials, the unconquerables of the Ontario Rugby Football Union for seven years, have slipped to such an extent they finally will meet a master within the union's ranks this season.

Beaten and tied in their last two games, the men of Massucci have shown only flashes of the form that brought them seven successive O.R.F.U. championships and two national titles. The giant Ormond Beach, killed in an explosion at Sarnia before the season opened, is being missed.

Loss of the offensive and defensive ace, who passed, plunged and held together the secondary defence, shifted practically all the burden to Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, and the opposition is stopping the Bummer by smothering his protection. Peterborough Orfuns block two kicks on his last week, leading to a 3-2 upset victory over the champions.

Another Imp's Loss

Hoddy Foster's Montreal Nationals, who meet Imperials at Montreal in one of the section's feature games tomorrow, may be the squad to overthrow Imperials. Holding a two-point edge at the top of the union standing, and still undefeated, Johnny Ferraro and company would just about clinch one of the two playoff spots with a victory.

The Imperial-National clash is only one of the bright spots on this week's schedule. Each league, with the exception of the O.R.F.U., will have the teams playing return games from last week.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 is assured for Toronto Argonauts' invasion of Ottawa, where the burly Roughriders will attempt to avenge last week's 10-6 defeat. Coach Ross Trimble has stressed pass defence in practice while Lew Hayman continues attempts to speed up the Argo end run, from which blossomed their winning touchdown pass.

Beaches to Win?

The remainder of the Fig Four and O.R.F.U. schedules has Hamilton Tigers at Montreal, with Tigers favored to defeat the Cubs again, and Peterborough at Toronto Balmy Beach.

Despite the victory over Sarnia, Orfuns will start as underdogs against the luckless Beaches, who beat them 18-2 at Peterborough.

This is the week, also, when Queen's must beat McGill or give up their intercollegiate championship. The odds are all against Ted Reeve's Tricolor who haven't won a game this season and who provided little more than a brisk workout for the undefeated, untied Redmen last week at Montreal.

University of Toronto Blues, crippled but still confident, will take on University of Western Ontario at home. Another loss would all but end Toronto's hopes for a playoff position. Mustangs won 3-2 at London last week.

Guy Patrick Signs Youth

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28.—(CP)—Guy Patrick, owner-manager of the Vancouver Lions of the Pacific Coast League, has announced he has signed one of the Dominion's most promising stars, 12-year-old Johnny Litster, for delivery in 1945.

Brother Lester Patrick, manager of New York's National Hockey League Rangers, has won wide recognition for developing youthful prospects with his annual training school in Winnipeg but it is doubtful if he ever spotted a prospect as youthful as Litster.

Johnny Litster's home is in Toronto. Last season he played with Riverside Club in Toronto's youngster league and was a sensation.

"Right now he's a phenom," Guy said. "I think I've a real major league prospect in this youngster. He comes from a family of noted skaters and his one ambition is to be a big league hockey player."

Patrick has had his eye on Johnny since he saw him perform in Toronto last fall, but Guy made no announcement until he reached an agreement with Johnny's father recently.

"He packs a wicked shot even at this early date," Patrick said. "He can skate well and he's tough. I gave him a talk on clean living and diet and I think he'll be a dandy when he arrives here in 1945 at the age of 19."

Johnny's cousin, Marion Litster, is champion girl figure skater of the British Isles and is expected to represent England in the next Olympic Games. Her father—Johnny's uncle—is a skating instructor at Glasgow University. Johnny's father is a skating enthusiast and taught him to skate when he was five.

P.C.I. Gridders Try New Plays

Work of the smartest school grid coach in the province will be seen here tomorrow when P.C.I. senior gridders clash with Lindsay at 2.30 in the Exhibition Grounds. Coach H. L. Bamforth has become noted for his clever tutoring in football—his team won the Ontario title last year—and his 1938 squad is showing much promise again. The team plays the "Bamforth style," featuring wide-open thrilling trick plays, banking on speed and the unexpected to down heavier opponents with regularity. The present team has been drilling hard on several new masked plays which will be attempted against the scrappy and heavy Scugog squad here tomorrow. As P.C.I. only took a 14-13 win over Lindsay in their last meeting, this should be a fine football battle throughout, and deserves a big crowd of fans—both school followers and city grid enthusiasts.

At 10.30 in the morning Saturday, the junior P.C.I. team and Lindsay wind up their C.O.S.S. A. schedule in the Exhibition Grounds. In their previous clash, Lindsay won by a single point but Coach David's battling students hope to reverse it tomorrow. Like the senior scrap, this junior joust deserves a big crowd, as the boys play fine rugby with all the speed and thrills which make collegiate football so exciting.

SPORTS -DAY BY DAY-

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

OUR cracked crystal ball answers thusly, if reluctantly: Sarnia to suffer a reverse in Montreal and Beaches to beat Orfuns. This is certainly not "wishful thinking" and admittedly is but a grid guess. But football fans insist on predictions in the pillars de piffle ground out on newspaper sports mills—and who are we to disappoint? But the writer declines to hazard a guess on Big Four (even the Big Two) or intercollegiate games, since he has not seen these teams in action. Don't go away yet, we're just warming up the engine. Two other grid games here, the C.O.S.S.A. contests, call for a guess, too. So we'll nominate P.C.I. to split even with Lindsay, the senior Peterborough squad copping the nod handily. Not having a nickel to our name, we defy Sarnia, Orfuns or Lindsay to sue us!

• • • • • • •

LET'S LOOK at the record. Lindsay has a tough scrappy senior school team this semester, but P.C.I. has a mighty smart grid mentor. A coach who teaches a tricky razzle dazzle style of play, and in the past several seasons he has always been two or three new plays ahead of rivals. The Garnet and Gray gang expect to flash a few new tricks tomorrow, when they tangle at 2.30 with Lindsay in the Exhibition Grounds here. And, despite a win by but a single point over the Scugog squad in their last meeting, we figure P.C.I. to win easily. With Mr. Bamforth's boys setting a new grid style which will be all the rage next year! This tilt rates a big crowd as it'll be a fan-tickler throughout, and as open as a tourist camp. Don't pass up the junior Lindsay-P.C.I. fray at 10.30 a.m. in the Grounds ala Exhibish, either, as it should be close and full of fight.

• • • • • • •

Gosh, What a Life!

IT MUST BE most discouraging for school rugby coaches season after season to have to start anew They just build up a good squad near the end of the season and then see that team broken up by graduations, etc., before the following football period. Junior mentors see their youthful stars snatched by the senior team, and the latter club's coach must get all he can out of his squad in the short schedule as some of his stars will not be back another year. It's a tougher building job than coaches in Big Four or senior O.R.F.U. have to face—so we must mitt the Messrs. Bamforth and David for doing a noble task in a hurry the present season with their P.C.I. teams. We'd go nuts on a job like that, honestly!

• • • • • • •

WHILE we could call Orfuns to take the Balmies tomorrow, such a call would require too much qualifying. We'd have to say Orfuns will win IF they get the same all-around high class of play plus fight that marked their joust with Sarnia. And IF they can stop Ab Box, who gets his kicks away faster than Stirling and who is a sweet forward passer. And IF the locals use their biggest offensive asset, sequence plays and lots o' trick stuff. And IF they get a good share of the breaks. As well as IF Don Crowe continues to boot the pigskin as he did last Saturday. Otherwise, we can't call the Beaches, who won here handily before, to lose at home to our gang. We do think it'll be close and a swelegant scrap, one well worth seeing. If our call of the Ponton pack helps deflate a few of the Orfuns' over-sized noggins and makes the whole gang mad enough (as being under-dogs again) to bash through the Balmies, we will figure this our finest column. Yessir.

• • • • • • •

Still Full O' Fight

COACH BILL IRWIN and his Orfuns are confident of grabbing off a win in Toronto. Irwin has his gang all het up and full of fight. There are no injuries on the club and a few new plays will be used. Bill remarked to us the other day that he felt Orfuns were the best-conditioned crew in the group. They are clicking better and better every time out, and are certainly all over their early stage fright. Given an even break, they just might ride over the Bam-Bam-Balmies for the nod. Regardless of our guess, we'd be tickled three tints of pink and full of apologies for picking Beaches. Go out there, gang, and show the so-called grid experts what you can do again—and don't forget to stay in there fighting every minute!

• • • • • • •

COACH ALEX PONTON of Beaches was guest speaker here last eve at a fine Kinsmen Club banquet, which we attended. He proved a good talker and boosted football and sports highly. Previous to the banquet he told us not to look for a "Hallowe'en Party" in Toronto, as his club was going to win. He told of the Beaches for eight years wearing the same outfits, riding in busses to games, rarely getting a meal and not one of 'em getting a cent. Says they don't yet and that he is still waiting for some pay as coach! "Our club, with all due respect to the rest of the boys," said Alex, "is a one-man club, and he is Abbie Box. A grand player, but I think he will quit playing this year." Ponton praised highly the local squad and said they really did something in beating Sarnia "as the Imperials are a real club and will be for some years yet." Coach H. L. Bamforth of P.C.I. and Prexy H. A. Cranfield of the Orfuns were guests, too, but Bill Irwin couldn't make it.

Lacrosse Prexy Leaving

AT THE SAME FUNCTION, President H. S. Leybourne of the local lacrosse club, which won the O.L.A. senior "B" title this year, was given a farewell presentation. Hal is moving to Montreal and is forced thus to terminate his relations with the gutted-stick brethren of this town. He became interested in the game several years ago when the Auburns had a squad in the Tri-County loop, and he later sponsored Auburns in the O.L.A., being prexy this past season. An active worker for the game, Mr. Leybourne will be missed by the lacrossers. The latter, incidentally, will be given a civic banquet for winning a title in the near future—and there is some talk of windbreakers for the victorious players. They deserve it.

• • • • • • •

IN OUR OPINION, probably the liveliest bout on the mitt card here Nov. 4th will be the semi-final between Harry Kiel of Toronto and Harry Low of Peterborough. We don't know the former but he is touted as being a slugger and crowder, and that's what Harry Low likes. The latter has never put on a sour show here yet, being a battler of the type the crowd loves. No step dancing, futile swings at six paces or backing up—he just rips in there like a buzz-saw on a rampage and hits hard and is hit hard every minute of every round. This is one bout that should jerk the customers up straight in their chairs, and the rest of the program also sounds right interesting. It'll be at the Brock a week from tonight.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Last night the 5 pins at Duffus Recreation alleys took an awful murdering from C.G.E. and City League bowlers. All told five men hammered off 800 or better scores, nine went over 700 and twenty-eight bettered the 600 mark.

The K. of C. Bowling Alley team in the City League busted all records to date for a high team total, this crack line-up of Fred Martin, Len Anthony, Frank Woods, Tom Miller and Vince Anthony levelled off 3750 to practically bury the Patternick Store five by almost 100 pins. Miller and woods tumbled 882 and 860 each, Tommy sandwiching in a huge 363 in the middle game to pile up his big score. Tom Curvin also had a big night for his first time on the alleys this year; his 833 was the deciding factor in Duffus Recreation team win over Fowlers Barbers. The C.G.E. supplied two men in the 800 class—G. Niles mowed down 807, and W. Carter 800 even. Walter Firth's 810 of a week ago was definitely swept aside in the above windstrom.

Len Anthony headed the list of 700 men with 764, Fred Scates 749, Les Calladine 720, F. Doris 719, J. Playford 718, R. Mason 715, Radiffe 715, E. Kearns 711 and E. White 706. The following scores are for C.G.E. 6.30 bowlers: W. Cowling 697, A. Heal 674, J. Marsden 673, G. Stevens 671, R. Buchanan 660, G. R. Langley 657, G. LaPlante 644, Harry Griffin 651, W. A. Masters 636, L. McIntosh 632. The Midnight C.G.E. troupe shot out F. Woods 695, A. Lasenby 692, F. Earle 684, F. Breadman 668, R. Dyer 659, Shaughnessy 651, O'Donnell 625, Mattuci 647, K. Whatley 618, E. Johnson 614, C. Baker 603.

City Leaguers to top 600 were Jack Playford 689, Les McIntosh 681, Tom Holyman 673, Fred Martin 656, Tom Cupoli 614, Gord Caird 609, and Jack Menogue 606.

Loblaw's ladies chalked up some fine scores in Miss B. Castle's 617 (255), R. Castle 498 and G. Constable 450 (221).

High singles included, in addition to Miller's 363, Les Calladine 348, W. Cowling 332, F. Woods 319 and 304, P. Pryde 307.

Nip For Birthday

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(AP).—Mrs. Billy Seeman-Phyllis Haver of silent screen fame—gave her husband a birthday party last night and her reward was a monkey-bite. The monkey came in a box, wrapped up like a birthday present. Mrs. Seeman opened it and the monkey nipped the first thing he saw—Mrs. Seeman's thumb.

No Bargain

Detroit Tigers in an effort to strengthen for the 1939 baseball wars, are said to be after shortstop Buddy Travis, ABOVE, of Washington Senators. Travis, just a good average fielder, but a consistent over .300 hitter, would be a valuable acquisition for any club and about all Washington President Clark Griffith is asking for him is half the Detroit team, a few sections of the ball park and the hot dog concession.

Amateur Hockey Far Behind Pro Claims Hiller

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28 (C.P.). — Dutch Hiller is heading for his first full season in the National Hockey League, but the chunky 23-year-old Kitchener, Ont., boy doesn't show the enthusiasm you'd expect.

"The novelty's worn off," soft-spoken Dutch remarked. "I played 13 games in the N.H.L. last season and am getting used to it."

Hiller, who trained here with New York Rangers, will replace Bobby Kirk at left wing beside Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall on one of the Rangers' forward lines. Kirk has been relegated to Philadelphia Ramblers of the International-American League, a Ranger farm team.

Short of stature but solidly built, Hiller is the first member of the New Yorkers' famed Three-R system—New York Rovers of the Eastern United States Amateur League, Ramblers and Rangers—ever to make the jump from Rovers to Rangers without some professional experience in Philadelphia.

Manager Lester Patrick of Rangers brought him up from Rovers late last season and he clicked immediately in the majors. Dutch was leading scorer in the Eastern U.S. circuit before he was promoted. He spent the 1936-37 season in England.

"I was pretty scared when Lester first moved me up to the Rangers last season and I got a real thrill out of it. After a few games, though the novelty seems to wear off and you realize you're just playing hockey after all. We played in Toronto my first night and beat the Leafs 4-2. Guess that was my biggest thrill.

"Don't let anybody tell you there isn't a terrific jump between amateur and professional hockey. It's as different as day and night. All this talk about juniors playing better hockey than is played in the N.H.L. is a lot of bunk. Fans like the juniors because they race and tear and skate miles farther than they have to.

"The pros are smarter, faster and take advantage of all the breaks. Instead of dashing around like the juniors, they wait for the breaks and when they come—bang, in goes a goal."

Dutch has great respect for Boston Bruins' Sauerkraut line of Milt Schmidt, Porky Dumart, and Bobby Bauer, also Kitchener boys.

"They're going to be one of hockey's greatest lines," he said. "They are great now, for that matter, but they're just starting. Schmidt is only about 19 or 20, and he's really a sweetheart."

"I think Boston will give Rangers the toughest time this season. They're the toughest club in the league to play against.

"But we've got a real club, too," Hiller concluded, "so it should be a great season."

Dutch didn't waste any time in getting into the thick of things when Rangers and New York Americans opened an exhibition tour here. He and Amerks' Tommy Anderson started throwing fists near the end of a rugged battle which Rangers won 2-1 after ten minutes' overtime.

Hail Women Fliers

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—(AP).—Three society women fliers who reported establishing a women's distance record came home yesterday to a flag-draped welcome in which their achievement was characterized as having "immense defence significance."

The women—Valentina Grizadubova, Capt. Paulina Osipenko, and Lieut. Marina Raskova—were credited with a non-stop flight of 4,031 miles in September, finally making a forced landing in a swamp near the Siberian-Manchoukuoan border.

Italy's great industrial activity is slowing down.

Basketball Rules Changed For The Coming Campaign

Many changes have been made in the basketball rules, according to an official list released for the coming 1938-39 campaign. The changes will embrace all organized leagues both city and interscholastic, and tend to open up play to a great degree.

Among the many important changes in the rules is one "if a player in possession of the ball is touching or straddling the division line he is to be considered in the back court regardless of the direction from which the ball comes. If he dribbles the ball from the back court, the 10-second count continues as long as he is touching the floor on or behind the line . . ." In other words, under this new ruling there is one fact to bear in mind—on the line is in the back court.

The following synopsis of changes in basketball rules in United States and Canada were prepared for the National Basketball Committee by Oswald Tower, editor, Massachusetts and approved by the governing body.

1. End lines may be four feet, instead of two feet, behind the face of the back-boards. This is an optional change for those who desire to adopt it and whose courts will permit it.

2. For players below senior high school age the minimum circumference of the ball is to be 29 inches. For older players the minimum circumference continues to be 29½ inches. The maximum circumference for all balls is to be 30 inches instead of 30¼ inches.

3. Substitutions are not to be permitted in the interval following a goal and putting the ball into play from out of bounds unless a charged time-out or time-out for injury has been declared. It is still legal, however, for either team to take a charged time-out after a goal.

May Play in Quarters

4. By agreement between teams, or by league or conference ruling, games between teams above the high school age may be played in quarters. The intermission between the first two quarters, the second two quarters, and prior to each overtime period, is to be two minutes. This applies to all games which are played in quarters. By mutual agreement, in games between teams of high school age and younger, an official's time-out may be taken in the second and fourth quarter provided there has not been a time-out for either team during the first four minutes of that quarter. This time-out is to be taken the first time the ball is dead after four minutes have expired, and is to be of two minutes' duration.

5. In games between teams of high school age and younger, the "sudden death" method of deciding tie games is to be applied to the first overtime period. The intermission prior to this period is to be two minutes, during which teams may not leave the court. The first team to score two points in the first overtime period wins the game. If neither team scores two points, but if one team has scored one point by the end of the three-minute overtime period, that team wins the game. If neither team scores in the first overtime period, additional periods may be played under the same conditions.

6. All jump balls must take place at least six feet from the nearest boundary line; that is, the jump ball rule applied to the side-lines last year now applies also to the end-lines.

7. The rule which forbids a player to be in his free throw lane for more than three seconds is not to apply to a player who is in the half of his free throw circle nearer the centre provided he does not have possession of the ball. In other words, a player without the ball may stand in the outer half of his free throw circle indefinitely but as soon as he gets the ball he is subject to the three-seconds rule. If he is touching the free throw line he is not in the outer

8. All teams may take five charged time-out periods and they are to be notified by an official when they have taken their fifth time-out. Additional time-outs may be taken at the expense of a technical foul for each time-out, and these may be taken even though there is no injury or other emergency. Failure of an official to notify a team that it has taken its fifth time-out does not prevent calling a foul if a sixth time-out is taken.

Out of Bounds.

9. If a player in possession of the ball is touching or straddling the division line he is to be considered in the back court regardless of the direction from which the ball comes to him. If he dribbles the ball from the back court, the 10-seconds count continues as long as he is touching the floor on or behind the line. If he dribbles the ball from the front court, he is considered to be in the back court as soon as he touches or straddles the line just as last year. If he receives a pass while touching or straddling the line, the foregoing applies in the same way. Under this new ruling there is one fact to bear in mind:

On the line is in the back court.

10. If the ball is in the air on a try for goal when the signal sounds to end a period, subsequent touching of the ball by a teammate of the thrower nullifies the goal; but if such touching is done by a defensive player, the goal counts if made.

Red Wings Send Promising Lineup Of Amateur "Comers" To Their Pittsburgh Farm

(By The Canadian Press.)

It may be that Detroit Red Wings have drawn the year's best group of young amateur hockey players. At any rate the Wings are sending to their International-American League farm at Pittsburgh a big group of able youngsters who, in their first season as professionals, are subject to an immediate summons to the National League.

When Pittsburgh defeated the Red Wings 5-2 in an exhibition at Detroit last night, the newcomers scored all Hornets' goals. Gus Giesbrecht got two and Kenny Kilrea, brother of the Red Wings' Hec Kilrea, contributed a goal and two assists. Both played with Pontiac of the Michigan-Ontario Amateur League last winter.

Syd Abel and Conny Brown, centres from Melville, Sask., and Cornwall, Ont., were impressive again in the Pittsburgh lineup, and Pete Bessone, who came up from Pontiac to play defence for the Red Wings in the middle of the last campaign, scored one of their goals.

The exhibition schedule will be in full swing to-morrow night, when Chicago Black Hawks play Cleveland Barons of the International-American League at Cleveland. Toronto Maple Leafs will split the 31 candidates for places on the N.H.L. team and the Syracuse farm into two teams for an exhibition to-night that will open the new area at Owen Sound, Ont.

Gottselig Going.

Johnny Gottselig led a blue squad to a 5-4 victory over a red squad in Black Hawks' camp at Champaign, Ill., yesterday. He scored two goals, the same number as Doc Romnes of the Reds, while Joffre Desilets just about clinched the right wing spot on the Hawk third forward line by giving two assists.

Jack Markle, Owen Sound native, will perform at right wing on a Syracuse forward line with Eddie Convey and Bummer Doran before the home folk to-night. The Leafs will move back to Galt, Ont., where they have drilled, for an exhibition to-morrow. Other games in their practice string will be at Syracuse on Sunday, at Toronto on Monday, and at Midland, Ont., on Tuesday.

New York Americans, with a penchant for buying veterans from other organizations, got one of the best when they nabbed Leroy Goldsworthy from Boston. The stylish wingman scored twice last night, though Americans were beaten by New York Rangers for the fourth straight time, 8-4 at Edmonton.

It appears Roy Conacher, brother of two of theg reatest players in National League history, will get a place with Boston Bruins in his first year as a pro. Conacher likely will line up on a string with Mel Hill, up from Providence, and Pat McReavy, who played with the great Copper Cliff, Ont., junior team two seasons back. Sent to Hershey with Terry Reardon and Harry Frost was Red Hamill, who played with McReavy at Copper Cliff and with Hill at Providence last winter. Johnny Shewchuck, another Copper Cliff product, went to Providence last night.

NOW CHIEF SCOUT

BRISTOL, England—(CP).— Bob Hewison, suspended as manager of Bristol City by the English Football Association, now is chief scout of the third division club.

Fights Last Night

Pittsburgh-Billy Conn, 167, Pittsburgh, outpointed Honey Boy Jones, 161, Pittsburgh (10).

Wilmington, Del. Scheduled eight round bout between Charley Gomer, 137½, Baltimore, and Johnny Mason, 133½, Buffalo. Declared no contest in fifth after Mason went down six times.

New Haven, Phil Doherty, 174, Boston, technically knocked out Danny Peal, 170, Detroit, (1).

Atlantic City, Bobby Jones, 170½, Atlantic City, knocked out Frankie Donofrio, 175, Philadelphia, (6).

Leeds United Missing Wily Hodgson

LONDON, Oct. 28—(CP-Cable).—Leeds United's efforts to keep in step with challengers for the English Football League leadership have suffered a serious setback. All this week scouts of the Yorkshire club have searched vainly for a centre-forward capable of taking the place of G. Hodgson who suffered an ankle injury a week ago.

The young South African will be out of the game for some time and the enforced idleness will rob him of a chance of keeping on fighting terms with Tommy Lawton, Everton centre-forward, for goal-scoring honors. At present both players are credited with 10 goals.

It is probable that Ainsley, former Sunderland inside-right, will be cast in the role of leader against Portsmouth Saturday but the Yorkshiremen would pay a big price for a first-class, ready-made centre.

While the Arsenal-Bolton Wanderers match on the latter's ground is likely to attract a crowd of 60,000 at the week-end Everton and Derby county will be battling away from home to maintain their position as joint leaders of the major league.

Liecester City will provide the opposition for the Toffee-makers while Derby is faced with a tougher match at Chelsea.

The King is expected to make one of royalty's rare appearances at a soccer match outside the capital. Following a civic function at Norwich he will see the second division tilt between Norwich City and Millwall at Carrow Road.

In Scotland Celtic and Rangers are still on even terms at the top of the major league. At the week-end both have home matches and should capture maximum points. Third Lanark, Glasgow neighbors, visit the Colts and Raith Rovers, promoted from the second division at the end of last season, tackle the light blues at Ibrox Park.

AMR BEY RETIRES

LONDON—(CP). — Squash racquets champion of the United Kingdom since 1931, F. D. Amr Bey, 28-year-old Egyptian, has announced his retirement from championship play.

SET FOR SCARBOROUGH

SCARBOROUGH, England—(CP) —Next year's English women's golf championship will be held at Ganton, near here, October 2-6. It will be preceded by the women's county championship finals.

Toronto Maple Leafs Rough It Up In Practice

With the opening of the National League hockey season but a few football games away, the boys are really turning on the heat in practice sessions in various parts of the country. Most of the kinks have been ironed out and they're saying it with sticks and body checks. Here's a shot from the arena in Galt, Ont., where Toronto Maple Leafs are going through their pre-season paces. Flying through the air with becoming grace is Pete Langelle, former Winnipeg Monarch, who played last year with Syracuse Chiefs in the International-American League. Langelle is expected to stick with the Leafs this year, but in this picture he was getting all the worst of it as he tried to break through a defence made up of Reg. Hamilton and Bingo Kampman. Reg is the one giving Peter the hip, while any arms or legs that can be seen that seem to be superfluous are Bingo.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Capt. George Eyston shot his monstrous "Thunderbolt" to the record-smashing speed of 309.6 miles an hour over Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, one year ago today. Aug. 27 this year he stepped his speed to 345.49 miles an hour and three weeks later John Cobb lifted the crown with a speed of 350.2 miles an hour. A week later Eyston hit the 357.5-mile-an-hour mark.

25th Notre Dame Army Tilt To Draw 80,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP). — One of the most peculiar things about the United States' college football season is the annual game between Notre Dame and the Army, the 25th of which will be played tomorrow at Yankee Stadium before about 80,000 "alumni" of the two institutions.

The game is unique because of this terrific outpouring of the "old grade," most of whom bought their tickets back in August. Otherwise the contest is not particularly distinguished, because Notre Dame usually wins and national honors seldom are in the balance.

The 80,000 alumni who scheme and scrap for the priv lege of paying $4.40 to see the game are not to be confused with the calmer type of alumnus who actually attended classes at one of the two institutions. The latter is comparatively rare and has become scattered all over the world, while the Notre Dame football alumni is concentrated right here in New York.

Grove Crew Takes Trinity College 18 to 4 In Rugby Battle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 28.—Lakefield Preparatory School defeated Trinity College School Third team here on Wednesday by a score of 18 to 4.

First Period.—T.C.S. made a rouge and a field goal which was kicked by Gripton. Crickmore of Lakefield made a lovely 30-yard run, but there was a fumble on the next play and T.C.S. recovered. End of period: Score—T.C.S., 4; Lakefield, 0.

Second Period.—Lakefield, taking advantage of the wind, kicked and recovered a fumble by the T.C.S. backs. On two plays, one by Dobbin and the other by Rose, Lakefield scored a major which Crickmore converted. Before half time Dobbin threw a long pass to Frewer and on the next play Pease scored another touch. For the rest of the period T.C.S. pressed hard, but were unable to score. Score at half-time: L.P.S., 11; T.C.S., 4.

Third Period.—From the kick-off, Dobbin ran the ball back 45 yards and on two successive plays—one a pass and the other a plunge, Lakefield scored another major which again was converted by Crickmore. For the rest of the period, T.C.S. held and nearly managed to score.

The last period was very even, and Rose of Lakefield kicked a single which was the only score. T.C.S. completed a number of forwards, Gripton and LeBrooey being responsible for most of them, but they were never within scoring distance. For Lakefield, Dobbin, Pease, Rose and Crickmore were outstanding, and for T.C.S. Gripton, Robarts, Black and LeBrooey were the best.

Final Score.—L.P.S., 18; T.C.S. 4.

The L.P.S. Juniors won an exciting rugby battle from Trinity College School Juniors by the decisive score of 28 to 10.

Carr-Harris, for the Grove, kicked to the dead-line in the first three minutes of play. T.C.S. failed to make yards and the kick was short. Wilkes plunged to the T.C.S. five-yard line and Hague, at quarter, went over for a try.

The Grove continued to play a kicking game and a mighty boot by Carr-Harris kept the play in the Trinity end.

The Grove kicked for two more points before the quarter ended.

Second Quarter.—Tilley, for the Grove, ran back a short kick, for a gain. A forward pass from Arnoldi to Urquhart netted 30 yards for the Grove. Herold made yards, and Wilkes went over for Lakefield's second touch. Carr-Harris converted.

Christie took a forward from Arnoldi for 25 yards, Herold made 20 more, and Carr-Harris kicked for a single.

On long runs by Anderson and Waters, Waters scored a try for T.C.S. Half time score—15-5.

Third Quarter—Grove kicked with the wind for another single. T.C.S. ran the ends and Waters went 40 yards for another try.

Lakefield forced T.C.S. to rouge. Wilkes plunged to the goal-line and Hague again slipped through for a major score which Carr-Harris converted.

Fourth Quarter.—In a rushing attack by T.C.S., Grove had to defend their end. Tilley and Wilkes led a counter-attack for the Grove and Wilkes scored the final touch of the game. Score—28-10.

For the Grove, Wilkes, Moore and Harris were outstanding on the line while Tilley, Carr-Harris and Hague were best on the back division.

Waters, Anderson, and Wills were best on the hard-working Trinity team.

MIDGETS, VICTORS.

The Grove Midgets defeated Lakefield High School's Second rugby team by a score of 8 to 0 in a contest held here on Tuesday afternoon. The High School team, who made their second appearance for the season in this battle, put up a good fight but failed to score.

New Regulations Disturb Goalies

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28.—(CP)—Pacific Coast Hockey League goaltenders will have to work harder for shutouts this season as a result of new rules by league officials designed to build up scoring records.

Most drastic change calls for a goal mouth four inches higher and six inches wider.

"Gosh," said Goalie Percy Jackson of Vancouver Lions when he learned of the new measurements, "it was tough enough before. I hope they give us a lacrosse stick to stop those pucks."

Hockey Today Is Faster Game

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 28.—(CP)—Bill Cook said today hockey is faster, better and more exciting today than it was 15 years ago when the Western Canadian Professional Hockey League was in full swing.

Bill Cook, manager of the Cleveland Barons, is no brash youngster jeering at the idols of another day. He was scoring champion of the Prairie loop when the league was at its best and continued his sharpshooting in the National Hockey League. It ended—at least Cook hopes it ended—last year when he played for his International American League team only because they were decimated by injuries.

Cook was a bit unhappy as he thought of the eight amateurs who left for home last night at the end of their training school period for further seasoning in the amateur ranks.

"They would have gone great in the old Western League, but they aren't quite ready yet for present day minor league hockey," Cook explained.

"Play now is much faster, every player has to be a sprinter, with this three-man line system, whereas in the Western League practically every one was a marathon player. We look back to those days through a pleasant haze, but I've no doubt at all fans now see a better brand of hockey."

HODGSON AT CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, England—(CP).—A. B. Hodgson, who stroked Oxford University to victory in the last two boat races, is taking a post-graduate course at Cambridge. There is nothing to stop him rowing for Cambridge, but he is unlikely to break precedent by doing so.

Nearly $5,000,000 will be spent in improving the telephone system in the Philippines.

Give Any Team All They Can Handle Red Dutton Boasts After Pepping Up With 3 Imports

SASKATOON, Oct. 28—(CP).—Acquisition of two forwards and a young defenceman to blend with his "keep punching" veterans has made manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton confident his New York Americans will be "much stronger" in the coming National Hockey League campaign.

"We'll give any team in the league all they can handle," he said today with a conviction that was contagious.

The vibrant manager who considers wasting time a cardinal sin, already has worked the two new forwards into the A's lineup. Art Jackson, 22, brother of the famous "Busher" of Toronto Maple Leaf fame and youngest player to join the star-spangled squad since Dave Schriner reported four seasons ago, will replace the injured Lorne Carr at right wing on the first-string line with Art Chapman and Schriner.

Leroy Goldsworthy, who learned his hockey in Edmonton and who is only 31 in spite of nine years big league service, will flank Red Beattie on the third line with Johnny Sorrell holding down the other wing.

Jackson on Option

Both forwards were acquired from Boston Bruins—Jackson on option for one season and Goldsworthy in an outright purchase. The other newcomer to the roster is Wilfie Field of Trail, B.C. The husky defence rookie, last year with Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, will pair with Johnny Gallegher. The other backline combination consists of the Amerks' heavy-duty standbys, Little Al Murray and big Joe Jerwa. Earl Robertson, so vital a factor in carrying the Amerks to last season's Stanley Cup semi-finals, again will be in goal.

The second-string forward line also remains unchanged, with veteran Nels Stewart as centre for Tommy Anderson and Eddie Wiseman. Hooley Smith, play-maker last year for Sorrell and Beattie, will be the utility man, filling in on attack or defence.

Dutton admits that it will take players like Stewart, Chapman, Sorrell and Beattie some time to work into condition. "But once they do," he adds, "we'll be tough to beat."

Carr's ankle injury, suffered in an exhibition game with New York Rangers last week, was a blow since the able little forward, a hero of the Amerk Stanley Cup sand last winter, had put on needed weight and was in fine shape. It is expected he will be out for at least a month.

Johnson and Day Missing

Only veterans of the 1937-38 squad who will be missing when the A's open their campaign Nov. 3, at Chicago against the Stanley Cup-defending Black Hawks will be Ching Johnson, now a manager in his own right with Minneapolis of the American Association, and Happy Day, who may be a N.H.L. referee this season.

Because Dutton is handling an "orphan" club, under direction of the league since getting into financial difficulties, he has been hampered somewhat in going into the open market for new talent. However, the Amerks now have a working arrangement with the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league and Red looks on the future with more confidence.

"We have a better chance to develop replacements for veterans under the arrangement with Seattle," he said. "Such an agreement is essential for success in these days of well-established farm systems."

Chinese Gridder

Playing a bang-up game at outside wing for Western University in the eastern intercollegiate loop is Bill Wong, ABOVE, 19-year-old Chinese of London, Ont. He is the first player from the land of Confucius to make good in top flight football in the east, at least.

Wrestling Last Night

New York, Karol Krauser, 200, Poland, pinned Dr. "Dropkick" Murphy, 201, Ireland, 1:09.

Camden, N. J., Joe Cox, 198, Kansas City, drew with Gino Vagnonne, 200, Joliet, Ill., (one fall each, 90 minute time limit, third).

Boston - Steve (Crusher) Casey, 228, Ireland, defeated the Sheik, 218, (two straight falls).

Douglas Grant Issues Challenge

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28—(CP)—Douglas Grant, three time winner of the Dominion badminton championship, announced here today he has challenged Jack Purcell of Toronto for the world's profesisonal championship.

Grant said he had received no reply from Purcell and that he would not turn professional unless his challenge was accepted.

"There are a lot of details to be worked out," Grant said, "but if Purcell accepts the challenge, I'll surely turn professional."

Grant first won the Canadian amateur title when he represented Kingston, Ont., in 1933. In 1934, as a Halifax entry, Doug did it again and in 1936 he brought the title west when representing Winnipeg.

Cattle Steady, Calves Gain 50 During Week

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP)—A liberal run of cattle was cleared out at generally steady prices on Toronto livestock market and the holdover of 1,000 head from last week was reduced to around 300 head by this week's close the Dominion livestock branch reported. Calves were strong to 50 cents higher in spots. Hogs lost 15 cents at the opening but made a net gain of 10 cents on stronger closing trade. Lambs were strong to 25 cents higher, and sheep unchanged.
